CONQUEST FOR PEACE
This painting of man's progressive conquest of the St. Lawrence River was made from a print published in 1840—104 years ago. It depicts the first by-passing of the Long Sault Rapids. Today's engineers estimate that the final conquest of the river will develop a total of five million horsepower, and will bring ocean shipping into the Great Lakes.
● Down through time the mighty, white-walled waters of the St. Lawrence have thundered.
Savage eyes have looked upon it in fearful awe.
Questing eyes have speculated upon its resistless power.
Practical eyes have broken down its shipping barriers—have assayed its untapped power—have planned its conquest.

Bank of Commerce Trophy Emblematic of City Softball Title Won by Saco Marines

Hunter Limited Point Anne Squad to Six Hits in Smart Contest

SCORE IS 8-2

SACO "Marines" won the Belleville City Softball League championship beating the Point Anne "Cementmen" 8 to 2 in the fifth and final game of the series at the Fair Grounds Monday evening. It marked the first time the "Marines" had won the coveted Bank of Commerce trophy emblematic to the city softball supremacy.

It was elongated Jim Hunter's six-hit pitching, coupled with a six-run barrage in the sixth inning, that gave the Marines the edge with which to win.

Hunter blanked the Cementmen for the initial seven frames before the Point Anne nine broke through the Marines for their lone two tallies. In the eighth, with one out, Luffman and DeForge hit and scored off Whitehead's bingle. Prior to this the Cementmen had found Hunter for but three one-base blows.

Max Peoples' Marines opened the scoring in the fourth, when LaBonne singled, went to second on an error and scored on subsequent fielders' choice plays. Hits by Carson and Barriage added two more Marine runs in the fifth, but it was in the sixth that the SACO batters rose up to break through when they got to Luffman's deliveries for five hits, including singles by Hunter and Henn, a double by Barriage, a triple from Bob Temple's bat and Wood's two-run-producing circuit smash, that settled the issue insofar as the losers were concerned.

Not a single Point Anne batter collected more than one safe blow off Hunter's deliveries, while the Marines racked up ten safeties from Stan Luffman's pitching, half of which came in the big sixth inning rally. Jim Barriage led the winners with the willow getting a double and a single, as the Marines added two other extra base blows, Temple's triple and Wood's home run. Hunter struck out four and walked one to chalk up his fifth win in six playing nights. Luffman whiffed seven and did not issue a single pass.

TURBULENT WRESTLER

A more vociferous and unorthodox wrestler than Nanjo Singh just can't be imagined. Singh, the turbulent Hindu of the muscle-bending business, thinks highly of his ring prowess and was quite annoyed when Referee Cliff Fox gave him the old heave-to for unnecessarily roughing Pierre DeGlane last week. "Get that Frenchman in the ring for me just once more. You are afraid to match us again," taunted Singh at Promoter Tunney. That's where Singh was wrong, neither DeGlane nor Tunney are afraid of Singh's taunts, but his ring actions are somewhat different, as will doubtless be proven in a return bout at the Hume Arena Wednesday night. The feature bout of the night brings two undefeated wrestlers, John Katan and Frank Sexton, together, to settle their question of ring supremacy once and for all.

FOUR HORSES HAVE A CHANCE IN ST. LEGER

British Bookmakers Stand to Lose Heavily if Any of Four Win

TEHRAN FAVORED

By JAMES R. CHAMBERS
(Reuter Staff Writer.)

London, Sept. 12 (CP-Reuter) — British bookmakers are not sleeping well these nights. It's not the possibility of Hitler's V-2 which worries them. It's next Saturday's classic race at Newmarket, the St. Leger, in which the British public has gone "all out" on four horses to such an extent that only the success of a rank outsider will enable the "bookies" to look forward on a nice, comfortable winter.

Tehran, owned by Prince Ali Khan, son of the Aga Khan, is the bookmaker's biggest headache. If he wins they will have to pay out $1,000,000 on bets struck before the race, apart from the bets made on the course on the day of the race.

Derby winner, Ocean Swell, would cost the "boys" almost as much if he won Britain's long distance race for three-year-olds. Pre-race bets would take $800,000 from the bookmakers banking accounts.

In the north of England, where they know quite a lot about picking winners of big races, a lot of money has been placed on Lord Derby's Borealis, and, if this horse gets his nose past the post first $800,000 would leave the bookmakers.

The success of Hycilla, the pre-race choice of thousands of the "little men" and professional backers, too, would cost the "bookies" $600,000.

Any way you look at it if one of these popular fancies wins on Newmarket Heath the bookmakers will get a shellacking.

CANADIENS TO USE PAUL BIBEAULT

Toronto, Sept. 12 (CP) — The Globe and Mail says today it has learned from Tommy Gorman, general manager of Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League, that the Canadiens will use Paul Bibeault in goal in the coming N.H.L. season. Bibeault, property of Canadiens, played sensationally with Toronto Maple Leafs last season, joining them after his discharge from the Canadian army.

The paper quoted Gorman as saying that Bill Durnan, who played a stellar game in goal for Canadiens all last season, will not be available because of the new league ruling barring players with war plant deferments from military service.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

(Written for The Canadian Press)
By ROBERT CLARKE

Toronto, Sept. 12 — (CP) — One of the most entertaining of our sports entrepreneurs is Edmund Reagan Quinn, who gave up taxi driving and carpentry to become the mat mahatma of Montreal, and it is a rare day when this big Irish-American, a ruynonesque character in speech, is unable to provide a fund of stories.

Although Quinn has made a few ventures into boxing promotion, he is essentially a promoter of wrestling and it is only natural, therefore, that his anecdotes deal mostly with the matmen. Although Quinn doesn't murder the English language, he could probably be booked on a charge of manslaughter. He disguises money as "smootch," and almost invariably he refers to people as "dubious characters." In addition, he has a confounding vocabulary of ad-libbed words.

At one time, Quinn was a hacker in Boston and one of his steady customers was Jack Sharkey, then near the top of the world heavyweight fight ladder. Although Sharkey was in the midst of amassing a sizable chunk of currency, he invariably gave Quinn a 10 cent tip.

In recent years, Quinn has used Sharkey as a referee on his wrestling shows and he has never lost a chance to rub it in about those dime tips. According to Quinn he has paid Sharkey as much as $500 a show, and it's generally when he's handing over the money that he reminds Sharkey of the by-gone days.

It's when Quinn starts to talk about money matters that you begin to wonder if you shouldn't bring up your son to be a wrestler instead of a professional hockey player. Quinn says that Yvon Robert, the pride of Montreal, raked in $40,000 for one 12-month stretch of wrestling and that Robert would have no trouble making $20,000 a year.

Quinn likes to tell this story, and it's up to you whether you believe it, about his early connections with Robert, in the days when English was a mystery to the big French-Canadian wrestler. Quinn and Robert were in New York and the latter had been asked to appear on a radio sports program, along with a number of other athletes — a polo player, a footballer, a swimmer and so on.

"The music plays, etcetera, and then the announcer goes into his spiel," says Quinn. "Robert is the first one up. The announcer introduces him and then says: 'Well, Yvon, what is your favorite hold?' And Robert answers: 'The forward pass.' Need I add I have given him the football player's script by mistake."

Another Quinn story involves a wrestler named "Rebel Bob" Russell and the antipathy of wrestler for boxer. It seems that Russell was walking down a Philadelphia street when he came to a theatre showing films of a mixed match in which Jim Braddock had been declared winner over a wrestler. A sign says: "Boxer beats wrestler — films being shown inside."

"Russell does not bother buying a ticket," says Quinn. "He is much too provoked for such nonsense. He bellows for the manager and when that dubious character shows up Russell tells him no blankety-blank boxer ever lived who could beat a wrestler. Unless the manager takes down the sign immediately, he is due to receive assorted hurts. Since Russell is no midget this statement leaves the manager nonplussed.

RELIANCE GIRLS ON THEIR WAY TO ANOTHER TITLE

Win First Game for Ladies City Softball Title From Stewart-Warner

COUNT IS 13-6

With extra base clouting and a strong defensive effort paving the way, Tilley Donihee's Reliance gals proved to fans at the Armouries lawn last evening, that they are again in quest of the city ladies' softball championship when they outhit and outplayed the SWACO girls to hang up a clear-cut 13-6 victory.

Right from the first inning, when Reliance scored twice, through to the final out, the game seemed hardly in doubt as the winners kept adding to their lead to pile up rather an impressive score. Extra base clouting was responsible for the majority of runs being scored with no less than eleven doubles and two homers being clouted off the deliveries of Lois Calcutt, pitching for SWACO, and Millie Foster, who tossed them up for the Reliance.

Dot. Rowbotham with a homer and two doubles to her credit took honors for her offensive effort but in this department she was closely followed by Buker and Colden for the Reliance. Buker conked out three doubles, while Colden hit for the circuit and added a double and single for good measure. Reliance outhit the losers by a 14 to 10 margin and were steadier afield.

Fielding features were supplied by Norma Corneal in centre for the SWACO as she took a hit to centre on first bounce and with a rifle-like throw tossed the runner out at first base. Buker in right field for the winners handled a number of chances perfectly, while Millie Foster turned in her usual good defensive effort in fielding her position.

The second game of the best four in seven series between the two teams will be played on the Armouries lawn on Wednesday evening.

The teams—SWACO: Fralick 2b, Colden ss, Meens c, Haslip 3b, Rowbotham 1b, Corneal cf, Ronsky lf, Calcutt p, and Kelleher rf. Reliance: Buker rf, Wright lf, Elliott 3b, Colden 2b, Blaind c, Garrow ss, McKenna cf, Coathup 1b, and Foster p.

Score by innings:—
SWACO	011 201 1	6
Reliance	232 402 x	13

CASUAL COMMENT by K.J.C.

Boss (as the clerk came in half an hour late) — Where the devil have you been?

Clerk — Been getting a hair cut because I saw that there is an order out requiring us to be neat at all times.

Boss (storming) — Getting a hair cut on office time, eh?

Clerk protesting) — But it grew on office time.

Boss (arguing) — But it didn't all grow on office time.

Clerk — But I didn't have it all cut off, either.

The boss went back to his office to sweat it out to himself.

Softball Situations.

For a community in which softball was practically washed up for the year, Harry Rollins' favorite outdoor pastime has really taken on a new lease on life along the shores of the Bay of Quinte.

After being beaten by a team (Ordnance) that had no right participating in the provincial playdowns, today we find SACO "Marines" in a position whereby they are just two games out of the 1944 Intermediate O.A.S.A. championship series. In the meantime there is considerable wailing out in Peterboro and mild mumblings from Oshawa, but in the meantime the Marines are sitting by idly waiting to meet the winner of the Toronto softball playdowns, which is likely to be the famed Toronto Kodak nine. Actually a week's lay-off won't do the Marines, and particulary Jim Hunter, any good. Hunter actually thrives on mound work, the more he pitches the better his control.

Take for instance last week when "Big Jim" hurled four out of the five nights. Tuesday he pitched in the city series, Wednesday he hurled against No. 6 Repair Depot, Thursday he was on the mound for the Marines at Oshawa and Saturday Jim struck out 11 Motor City batters to win the Oshawa-Belleville series in straight games. Incidentally after Saturday night's game catcher Murney Green remarked that Hunter's control and speed was better on Saturday than it had been all season. This alone establishes the fact Hunter thrives on pitching.

It is noted the Belleville-Toronto series does not open until next Saturday, with the second game slated to be played here on Sept. 23rd. Toronto hasn't declared a winner as yet, but why the long delay between the first and second game?

Always Ahead.

When the Toronto Carltons bowed to the Belleville Squire kids in a junior O.A.S.A. semi-final game at Toronto last Saturday, it not only marked the first time Coach Johnny Frost's Ukranian lads had tasted defeat this season, but Jack Doran's charges added insult to injury as they racked up three runs in the first inning and were never headed. Dick Fitzpatrick drove in two and stole home. However, it was Donnie Boyle's strong mound effort that shooed the local "Irishmen" home, although Boyle was given splendid support. The second game of the junior O.A.S.A. semi-finals will be played here tomorrow evening when Coach Doran has both Boyle and Bob Bunton ready to fire in against the Toronto Carltons. The winner meets the Hamilton-Windsor winner for the championship.

"The Carltons are a strong team and our boys will have to be even better than they were in Toronto to win here, simply prophesied Coach Doran today.

Around the Town.

It's congratulations to the SACO "Marines", 1944 champions of the Belleville Men's Softball League.... After a couple of years of idle squabbling over the city softball title at last the matter of the Bank of Commerce trophy is settled and the Marines are proud and worthy possessors of the old mug....A six-run break through, headed by Wood's homer, Temple's triple and Jim Barriage's double helped in making the new champions....The fact that Jim Hunter hurled a six-hitter and kept the Cementmen off the score sheet for eight frames also had much to do with the winning of the title....It was quite a pitchers' battle with the Marines only breaking through on Stan Luffman for six in the sixth to cinch matters....While all of this was going on Bill Blaind's Reliance lassies continue to dominate the Girls' City Softball League by taking the first game of the city league finals from SWACO by a score of 13 to 6 in a free hitting tussle....Lusty hits over the garden wall by Reliance batters settled the issue.... The second game of the girls' finals comes up Wednesday evening..Tonight is baseball night at the Alemite Field.

Remember When.

Fred Perry won the United States singles tennis championship for the third time and gained permanent possession of the trophy eight years ago today at Forest Hills, N.Y. The black-haired Briton—now a professional—defeated California's Don Budge 2-6, 6-2, 8-6, 1-6 and 10-8.

Keeps on Rollin'.

Few heavyweight wrestlers wear much better than big John Katan, the finger-pulling champion from Palermo, who has been campaigning among the continent's better wrestlers since the introduction of the modern style grappling. Younger stars came up, flashed and died out, but not John Katan, the promoter's meal ticket. As tough a ring villain as you'd want, Katan looks after No. 1 and that's why he's tops in box office attraction wherever he appears. Katan meets the undefeated Frank Sexton in the main bout of Marse Tunney's weekly muscle-bending show at the Hume arena this week. That ring ruffian Nanjo Singh also should add color to this week's program.

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 478

By SAM GORDON

Bridge experts are a stubborn lot. Asked to decide the bid for any hand, what is their verdict. They base it on the result in that particular deal.

That would be just ducky if the destiny of every hand was known in advance. But you and I know it isn't. Not in any well-regulated bridge game. Not even with a long neck.

Suppose you had a hand like this:

♠K Q 7
♥A Q 6
♦K Q 7 5
♣A Q 8

Show that hand to a flock of bridge nuts and ask what opening bid it should have. See how many different answers you get. Many of them will answer only after seeing partner's hand.

If you follow a definite set of simple rules, your opening is never a guess. Whether or not it turns out best, you know it was correct. And that's good enough in any language.

Your hand contains eight high cards and no short cards. What is the correct opening bid with a hand like that? Review the needs for each type of opening.

An opening of two in a suit shows nine tricks. With only eight tricks, this hand is not an opening of two in a suit.

An opening of two no-trump shows eight no-trump tricks. Eight high cards are eight no-trump tricks, this hand is not an opening of two in a suit.

An opening of two no-trump shows eight no-trump tricks. Eight high cards are eight no-trump tricks. This hand has enough for an opening two no-trump.

An opening of one in a suit shows five suit tricks, four high cards, two sure tricks, and a biddable suit. This hand has more than enough in all these items.

Thus, it is enough for an opening bid of one diamond or of two no-trump. With a choice, always open with the bid that shows the most strength. Providing, of course, it is honest.

When you tell your partner something, keep it clean.

AT THE BELLE

"The North Star", Romantic

A charming romance of two Russian youngsters trapped in the sudden fury of the Nazi invasion is a leading theme of "The North Star," Samuel Goldwyn's newest picture for RKO Radio release, now on the Belle Theatre screen.

The pair live in a small town near the Rumanian border and are taking a week-end trip with some of their schoolmates when the first wave of Stukas comes over. Before they can return to their village they learn that the Nazis are already in possession, and that the able-bodied men have fled to the woods until they can obtain weapons with which to drive out the invaders.

A truck laden with guns and ammunition on its way to the guerillas is wrecked by a Nazi plane, but the two young lovers, aided by two smaller children and an old man, endeavor to get the desperately-needed war supplies through to their comrades, despite the constant menace of Nazi patrols.

Thanks to their faith in one another they succeed, and the ensuing attack on the village by the enraged peasants forms the exciting climax of the film, which is hailed as one of the most dramatic offerings of the year.

Anne Baxter and the talented newcomer, Farley Granger, portray the two romantic principals, with Dana Andrews, Walter Huston, Walter Brennan, Erich von Stroheim, Jane Withers and Dean Jagger in important roles. Lewis Milestone directed the picture, with Lillian Hellman writing the story and screenplay.

Donald Duck's funniest color cartoon "Commando Duck" and the Canadian News of the Day, precede the feature attraction. Performances this week are presented evenings only, due to decorating in the theatre.

AT THE CAPITOL

"The Uninvited"

Reproduction of Windward house, the haunted cottage in Paramount's "The Uninvited," which is now at the Capitol theatre, was made from a photograph of an English home considered a classic specimen of that period.

In the picture, which deals with the effect of spirits upon a young woman, Gail Russell, Windward House is the focal spot of much of the action. To get the effect of a sloping lawn in front of the house, property men constructed a wooden framework about one hundred feet square, implanted it in the earth and then covered it with sods of grass. When the picture was completed, the grass was returned to the greenhouse for future use. Ray Milland, Ruth Hussey and Donald Crisp are starred in "The Uninvited."

"Jamboree"

(First Belleville Showing.)

Four lovely girls whose voices are known to fans throughout the country, the "Music Maids", are currently seen in Republic's latest musical comedy, "Jamboree" featuring a galaxy of theatre and radio stars, which is now showing at the Capitol theatre. The Music Maids have appeared on such nationally known airshows as the Crosby program, for nearly five years. Photogenic, the melody making quartet is in constant demand for pictures.

The Canadian Universal News completes the big program.

TWO OR 3-WAY TIE IN AMERICAN LOOP POSSIBLE

Seventeen More Games to Play With Detroit Tigers Having One More

REDS MOVE UP

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sport Writer

Possibilities of a two or three-way tie for the American League pennant appeared less fantastic today as the four leaders loafed thru an early week rest period before moving into the final stretch drive.

With an average of 17 games to play, Detroit had 18, the first place Yankees were only three lengths in front of fourth-place Boston and one game ahead of St. Louis and a half game on top of Detroit.

If a tie should result, the world series opening date of Oct. 4 might have to be moved back although a single game playoff in the west could be completed in time to open on schedule in St. Louis if only two teams were involved.

Open gaps in the league schedule left only a New York-Philadelphia night game Wednesday hanging before the week-end business starts on Friday but the race can not be decided before the final intersectional series starting next week.

Monday was a complete blank in the American but Cincinnati moved up to within three games and a half of idle Pittsburgh in their scrap for second place in the National by easing out a 6-5 10-inning win over Chicago.

Catcher Ray Mueller drove in four of the first Cincy runs and scored the winning tally in the 10th to give reliefer Clyde Shoun the nod over Hank Wyse.

TORONTO LEAFS OPEN WITH BEARS

(By The Associated Press)

The first round of the International League Governors' Cup playoffs, which opens tonight, may produce some record-toppling contests. The pennant winning Baltimore Orioles will tangle with fourth place Buffalo, while the runner up Newark Bears meet the third place Toronto Maple Leafs.

The first record that may fall is attendance at a single playoff game. The existing high is 24,551 set at Montreal when Newark played there in 1941. Baltimore will open its series with Buffalo at the Orioles' Big Municipal Stadium, where they have already attracted 30,000 to a single game this year.

Several batting records are in danger as the League's two most potent sluggers tangle at Baltimore. The Orioles' Howie Moss and Bisons' Eddie Kobesky will be aiming for the mark of four home runs as the highest number hit during the series. In the regular league season Moss led in runs batted in and home runs with Kobesky runner up for four masters.

In the pitching department Red Embree will be gunning for Buffalo's Charlie Fischer's record of 15 strikeouts in one game, set in 1936 against the Orioles.

Lightning Cuts Wood For Nissouri Farmer

London, Ont., Sept. 12 — (CP) — Wood cut into 50-pound pieces and into kindling ready for the winter without the aid of axe or man is a feature of a farm in West Nissouri township. A large tree standing near the barn was struck by lightning last week and exploded with such force that chunks of wood weighing 50 pounds were thrown the distance of 300 feet into a neighboring field, the rest of the tree was shredded into kindling.

SAILORS TO HELP IN FACTORY

London, Ont., Sept. 12 (CP)—A group of sailors from H.M.C.S. Prevost here today left for Chatham, Ont, where they will work for three weeks in a tomato canning plant. The group, all volunteers, was organized after appeals came from Chatham that a portion of the tomato crop would be lost unless more workers were obtained.

FOOTBALL SEASON OPENS SEPT. 23 IN BOTH LEAGUES

Armed Service Loop Has Four Teams and O.R.F.U. the Same Number

NO PLAYOFFS

Toronto, Sept. 12. (CP)—The sixth wartime football season will have its debut in Ontario Sept. 23 with opening games scheduled for that date in both the Ontario, Rugby Football Union and the New Ontario Armed Services Football League.

The Services League starts with two games, the Camp Borden Fliers playing the Toronto Navy Bulldogs at Varsity Stadium in Toronto and the St. Thomas R.C.A.F. team meeting Hagersville R.C.A.F. at the University of Western Ontario Stadium in London. These four teams make up the services loop.

The Dominion Champion Hamilton Wildcats pry the lid off the O.R.F.U. Senior season, entertaining Toronto Oakwood Indians in Hamilton, on Sept. 30 all four O.R.F.U. teams will see action, Toronto Balmy Beach playing Indians in Varsity Stadium here and Wildcats visiting Ottawa.

The Sept. 30 Services League games sends the Navy to play Hagersville at Hamilton while Camp Borden will invade St. Thomas.

Other scheduled dates for the two leagues will be announced later when agreement is reached on their co-related schedules. Each league will declare its own champion and no inter-league play-off is planned.

RUGBY LEAGUE NOT IN FINALS

Winnipeg, Sept. 12. (CP)—The Winnipeg High School Rugby League last night withdrew its five teams from the proposed east-west schoolboy final.

The Winnipeg Rugby Club announced earlier it was prepared to sponsor a game between the champion of the Winnipeg and Manitoba school leagues and Toronto St. Michael's College.

Club officials said they still are hopeful of an east-west game in Winnipeg about Oct. 14 as St. Paul's College of the Manitoba School League has expressed willingness to send its crusaders into such a game.

Robert Jarman, director of physical education for Winnipeg public schools, said the plan for east-west competition might interfere with academic work should there be a return game in Eastern Canada in 1945.

Mimico Mountaineers Eliminate Lakeshores

Mimico, Ont., Sept. 12. (CP) — Mimico Mountaineers eliminated Toronto Lakeshores from the Ontario Lacrosse Association Senior playoffs here last night by easily outdistancing the visitors 13-5 in the fourth game of the best-of-five series.

After the first quarter, when Mimico raced into a 3-1 lead, there was no doubt which team was headed into the final round against St. Catharines Athletics or Brampton, who are bracketed in the other semi-final series.

George Masters led the victors with six goals and played a stellar game throughout on offence and defence. Blain McDonald bagged three goals and Scoop Hayes two to aid the winners' cause.

Decision as to whether Brampton will get back in the running after withdrawing in protest against an O.L.A. ruling will be made at a special meeting of the Association executive tonight.

He isn't saying much about Menichelli's first name; it's Fernando, which might remind some folks of the celebrated bull.

By HYE BOSSIN

Sir Edward Villiers, representing Ealing Studios of Britain, was in Ontario last week to find out why British films don't get into as many theatres as he thinks they should. "They are not getting the break they deserve," he told Canadian film men.

A tall and friendly man, he learned that Canadian theatre men think that British films are just as good as Hollywood's in a great many instances. Why don't the theatre men play them in their theatres? Well, American stars, through fan magazines and other publicity, are household names. The public drawn by the star, not the film. The star system is stronger than ever, although it has been attacked for 30 years.

British stars are unknown. There are no fan clubs in their honor. They don't become popular idols until they go to Hollywood. And even in Britain Hollywood publicity serves to give American stars greater appeal than English players. Lack of publicity of a personal nature is the greatest drawback there is to the success of British films.

Sir Edward believes that films can offer democratic values of international appeal. Since Britain's support of parliamentary government and democratic ideals is older than other nations, he doesn't see why films made in Britain shouldn't carry these United Nations ideas in interesting dramatic form. British films will have a British slant which is at the same time international.

But personal appeal is the chief factor in bringing folks into the theatres in which they can be treated to these ideas.

"The children are studying the older folks through 'Are These My Parents?' and the parents are interested in 'Where Are Your Children?'" one fellow was heard to observe. . . They're trying to coax Kenny Baker back to films. They gave him such sappy parts before that he finally took a job with a Broadway show. He's terrific and they want him back.

Canada's greatest film pioneer is Ernest Ouimet of Montreal. In 1906 he opened the Ouimetoscope, offering two performances of films a day, each taking two-and-a-half hours. That was the first time in North America pictures were offered as competition to the legitimate drama. Movies were shown in [illegible] and for five cents the patron sat on a kitchen chair and saw about four subjects in 15 minutes.

In 1906 Ouimet built a $50,000 movie house, offering also a seven-piece orchestra and singers. That was the first de luxe house on the continent, the father of the plush cinema palaces one sees in all big cities today. He also took the first Canadian newsreels for insertion in the Pathe issue of those days. Ouimet is still hale and hearty in Montreal and experimenting with the golden quest of the film world, three-dimensional photography.

He likes to tell about a young Montreal girl who had had a walk-on part in one short and wanted a movie career. She came to Ouimet for advice. He noticed that she had unusual eyes and thought they would photograph badly. So without telling her why he advised her to take up marriage as a career instead. The very next day a scout saw her in the short film and searched her out.

On the screen she had a rare beauty—one of the mysteries of photography. Her name was and is Norma Shearer.

World's Sugar Supply In Precarious State Says Donald Gordon

Toronto, Sept. 12 — (CP)—Prices Board Chairman Donald Gordon said that the world sugar supply is "in such a precarious state we may even have to face the possibility of some cut in the sugar ration." The statement was made in a reply received Monday to a telegram sent by Toronto Controller Fred Saunders asking for more canning sugar for rural communities.

Controller Saunders' telegram said fruit was going to waste because of lack of canning sugar. Explaining that no considerations can be given at present, Mr. Gordon said:

"I think it can be safely said that the sugar supply position represents the most difficult situation we have to face today in any rationed commodity."

"THAT KEITH WOMAN"

By Phyllis Moore Gallagher

CHAPTER 17

"And now the Wayne Courtney angle: His house in London was bombed to the ground. He's never had a whole lot of money and what he did have in England is being taxed to the limit. Suppose he had found out in some way that Sandra is really his daughter. With Pamela dead, and Sandra becoming twenty-one, he'd have control of all that money himself, a daughter who'd be generous to him, and who wouldn't dare interfere because, actually, the money isn't legally hers. At the death of the real Sandra Keith, that money was—"

"Yours and you mother's!" I interrupted. "Legitimately yours and your mother's!"

"Yes, at that time," Peter admitted, and his face changed utterly. "You see, Letty, my mother died two months ago while I was in South America."

I murmured, "Oh-h, Peter!" and my fingers tightened a little on his arm. Presently I said, "So that explains why you came to Washington? To start suit for your rightful inheritance."

"No, not exactly," Peter said. "I crashed that debut reception because I had never met Pamela Keith. I also wanted to see Wayne Courtney's daughter. A lot depended on what I saw, whether I would file my claim or not. You see Sandra Keith would suffer if I sue—probable loss of her inheritance, scandal about the past....That bears thinking about, you see. I don't have a talent for wrecking people's lives." He was silent for a long moment. "Anyway, I think that Keith's will is behind the murder, don't you?"

"I—I don't know," I replied. "I'm so — confused. I — I just don't know."

Then I told Peter all I did know about the case, every clue I could remember, and asked him what pattern, if any, did he make of it.

"Look," said Peter, "let's go to your apartment make out a chart with our informtion pooled, and see where we stand."

And that, at two o'clock in the morning, is what Peter Gibson and I were doing. Out in the kitchen. Coffee and sandwiches before us, paper and fountain pens and rulers. And while we sat there, working on the chart, trying to figure out who had murdered Pamela Keith—the murderer struck again.

Peter and I finished the chart just as dawn hung like an opaline mist over the city. We were both exhausted. Looking across the kitchen table, our eyes met and admitted certain things: that we didn't know who had murdered Pamela Keith or Marcella Kingsley; that we weren't even sure the latter had been murdered; that we had settled on two suspects without a shred of real evidence and with a theory that was full of holes.

"I guess this is a job for the police, after all," I yawned.

"Yes," said Peter, running his fingers through his tousled hair. "I guess it is, all right. Our detective efforts are only getting us into trouble."

We were looking bleakly into each others eyes. Then Peter grinned and said, reaching for my hands: "Come over here, childhood, where you belong."

I did....Beside us the long, involve chart lay forgotten on the kitchen table.

Peter and I started fixing breakfast at seven A.M. I tied an apron around his middle, pointed out the coffee tin, the perculator, the toaster, and told him where he'd find bread....When he finished setting the table in the dining room, I awakened my parents and soon we were all breakfasting.

Dad gloomed about the Far Eastern situation, then mother amused us with tales she'd picked up at Kate Lote's reception. She had finished telling us about Marvin Eustace being at a political clambake down on the Potomac and winning a fifty yard dash when Peter asked for another piece of toast and I skipped out to the kitchen. I was fitting a slice of bread into the toaster when I happened to glance out of the window. Startled by what I saw, the slice of bread fell to the floor.

A second later Mother Dad and Peter were in the kitchen with me.

Peter ejaculated, "What's the matter, Letty? What's happened?"

"Lo-o-o-ok," I stammered, and got up enough strength to point my finger at the rock garden on the hotel grounds. "T-t-there's another r-r-rock gone from the g-g-garden. C-c-could it mean....? But it c-c-couldn't! S-s-sergeant H-Hornblower was going to have the g-g-garden w-w-watched!"

The words hardly passed my lips when a thunderous knocking on the door sent goosepimples up and down my spine.

Dad jumped a good two feet; Peter and Mother caught their breaths. No one made the slightest move toward the door. The thumping came again, I swallowed hard—and started toward it. A limber-kneed-Leon-Errol sort of walk, to be sure. When I opened the door I found the law in the person of Heath, the note-taker, standing in the hotel corridor.

"Sergeant Hornblower," said Heath, "would like to see you immediately at the Keith house, Miss Randolph."

Over my shoulder, the policeman saw Peter materializing through the foyer door. Dad also came into view with Mother his shadow.

"Sergeant Hornblower wants to see you too, Mr. Gibson," Heath announced.

This probably meant that the police were going to spring something on us. Open a closet door at the Keith huse, maybe, and let a body roll out right in front of our eyes to see what reaction we'd have!

Peter and I followed the big policeman. We crossed the hotel grounds, skirted the tennis courts and swimming pool, and came to that spot where Pamel Keith had met her death. For the space of perhaps five slow, painful heartbeats, my brain reconstructed that grim scene of exactly one week ago Peter's mind had been following my own, and he caught my arm in his hand and shook it gently.

"Cut it out!" he murmured. Then his arm went around my shoulder and I could feel it....compelling and comforting...throught soft fur of my coat. Finally we reached the solarium door and the drawing room where Sergeant Roger Hornblower had gathered together everyone connected with the case.

My eyes swept the long room to see who was missing from our group of suspects, for I felt certain now that there had been ...a third victim.

Sandra in dark blue silk jersey, was standing by the mantel, tearing a white lace handerchief into shreds. Young Victor Corliss was beside her, his hands behind his back, and I wondered if they... the hands...were there to hide their trembling.

Charlotte Cunningham, lovely as ever in her lavendar uniform, was at respectful distance from all the others.

Luke Cramer, a symphony in brown, was seated in a gold-brocaded chair, his head in his hands.

Gladys Newcomb in a red sweater and skirt was sitting on the petit-point love seat, Wayne Courtney on one side of her and Earle Pines on the other. The forced composure of Pines was apparent.

Marvin and Elsie Eustace were ensconced on the gold-brocaded sofa, and Countess Fanella Castigena, in a chair beside the Renaissance table, was snagging chocolates from a silver compote.

Peter Gibson and I both started for the south wall with its hollowed-out partition, but Heath directed us to a sofa in the front windows. I wondered if Sergeant Hornblower had learned about that wall with its thin partition. A moment later seeing Heath take a stand by the Sheraton chair, I decided Hornblower did know and wasn't taking any chance on someone eavesdropping.

Hornblower took a stand in the very centre of the room under the great pendant drop of the crystal chandelier. His hands were behind his back, and his bald head gleamed in the sunlight. He fixed those piercing dark eyes at each of us in turn. When they pierced me...slid away and came back to bore hot holes into my head...sweat popped out of my temples and, for the life of me, I couldn't control my tongue.

"Where's Reginald? Has he been murdered, too?" I said nervously.

Hornblower stiffened then blazed: "How come, Miss Randolph, you ask if Reginald Fielding has been murdered? What prompted such a question? What do you know about Reginald Fielding?"

I opened my mouth to explain, but nothing came out but a gasp

"I repeat, Miss Randolph," Sergeant Hornblower thundered: "What makes you think that Reginald had been murdered?"

"Because he—he isn't here," I said. "He is the only one who isn't here."

"Oh, process of elimination, eh?" Hornblower rasped, and his tone was ugly. "And a guess."

We were all questioned in the library that morning and, when my turn came, I told the Sergeant about noticing the missing rock.

"So, that's why you guessed another crime had been committed," he observed.

"I couldn't believe it when I saw that missing rock, Sergeant," I said. "You told me you were going to have the garden watched."

"Yes," he sighed. "And I thought it was being watched. But what did Callahan do? Got cold, he says. Went into a drug-store, he says. Gulped some coffee, he says. Wasn't gone but ten minutes, he says. Just ten minutes too long. Well, I'll deal with Callahan all right."

Hornbower kept up the questioning until noon...I learned later that everyone had the same alibi ...that is, everyone except Doctor Wayne Courtney...They were in bed, asleep, from two until three a.m., which was the important time. For during that early morning hour the Keith butler, Reginald Fielding, asleep in his basement room, had met his death. Reginald had died instantly, Hornblower told me.

There was an apparent difference in the murder technique this time. Pamela had died of a single crushing blow while Reginald's head had been pummelled.

Countess Fanella was the last person questioned. When Sergeant Hornblower finished with her, he came into the drawing-room, called Peter aside and, for a few moments talked in a low voice....Then he stationed some of his men on the grounds, others in the house, and told us we could not leave the premises until he said so.

Sandra's frightened eyes swept over all of us. "Does this mean—we're all under arrest?" she asked shakily.

Peter said, "No, Sandra. No one is under arrest. But we are all under suspicion. We aren't to leave the house or grounds until further notice. The police are coming back for a long session with us this afternoon."

Marvin Eustace declared through tight lips. "I've an appointment over on the Hill with a senator. It's important."

Earle Pines' lower lip curled outward. "And I've an appointment with my publisher at three." Then he added quite gratuitously, "Mr. Corliss should be attending classes. Doctor Courtney would undoubtedly like to check up on his patients. I feel certain that Mr. Cramer's office in Philadelphia needs him too. But they and we must stay here because the police—"

"Don't worry about me, Pines," interjected Luke Cramer. "I've got a good man holding down the fort."

"I'm not worrying about you," snapped Earl, "or anyone else."

Cramer seemed to ignore that. He said a little hoarsley: "I can have the best detectives in the country down here by night. New York or Philadelphia men. Let's not depend entirely on these local police. For heaven's sake, let's do something! It's been a week today since..." But he couldn't go on with that.

Remembering my interview with Hornblower, I remarked: "I think the Sergeant is doing his very best, Mr. Cramer. A careful examination of Reginald's room has been made. There are no material clues. No foot-prints—at least no visible ones, either on the floor or the carpets; no overturned furniture."

I wanted to add that, like with Pamela, there was no sign that Reginald had struggled, but there was something in Luke's face that made it impossible for me to speak of Pam then.

"The only thing they found was the rock beside Reginald's head. It's being tested for fingerprints," I finished.

"Maybe you're right," Luke Cramer said more calmly. "But ye gods, Letty, the police are so slow! And I—I feel morally responsible for Pamela's death. She was worried about something. When I talked with her on the telephone I realized that. I should have come, whether I was sick or not." His voice trailed off. "I should have come. I could have come. But how did I know anything like this—"

"Don't censure yourself, Luke," I interposed. "The important thing to do now is to try to figure out why Reginald was killed."

Even as I said that I was sure I knew why the butler had been murdered. It came to me so suddenly, as I recalled chatting with Reginald in that pantry the other day: His telling me about the phone message around ten o'clock which had followed Luke's call. And Reginald saying, "I never heard the voice before, Miss Randolph. Certainly not over the telephone. Yet, there was something familiar about it. Something I can't quite place. That familiarity worries me, like a tune running through your head and you can't remember its name or where you heard it."

I cudgelled my memory. Had I seen anyone in the hall outside the pantry who might have overheard Reginald and me? Anyone on the patio? In the dining-room? What about the servants' stairs? Charlotte Cunningham might have been listening down there.

No, I couldn't remember having seen anyone when I'd left Reginald in the pantry....

Peter Gibson bent over to whisper in my ear: "I wish to goodness I could get out of here. I've got something I want to do on the Great Outside."

"What?" I asked.

"Never mind."

At that exact moment Charlotte Cunningham, coming in from the wide hall, announced: "Luncheon is served, Miss Keith."

And luncheon was—I am not exaggerating!—one ghastly meal. The food was delicious, but even the maids serving us were nervous, and no one ate much except Fanella. There was almost no talk at all.

Afterward, we all straggled back to the drawing-room where Charlotte and a little dark-eyed maid served coffee. Finishing my cup, I said, "Don't know about the rest of you, but I could use some shuteye."

Managing to catch Peter's eye, I gave him a look which I hoped he'd interpret correctly. He did, for, while waiting on the second-floor landing, I soon heard Peter coming up the stairs. As he turned the corner, I caught his hand and drew him into the small, square darkness of a linen-closet. With my other hand I closed the door.

Peter observed: "Well darling, you do think of the nicest things!"

I couldn't see his face, but I knew he was grinning as he put his arms around me.

"You're off on the wrong track," I remonstrated. "Listen. Peter, I'm going to do some sleuthing up here and you're going to be my lookout."

PRINCE VISITS TROOPS

With the British 2nd. Army, Sept. 11 (AP) — Prince Bernhard of The Netherlands crossed the Albert Canal yesterday and visited Dutch troops fighting alongside the British, within 12 miles of his country's frontier. "This is a great day. The hour of liberation for Holland is almost at hand," said the Prince in a roadside interview.

Red Army Smashes Hun Fortifications On E. Prussian Border

New York, Sept. 11. (AP)—The BBC reported today that "front-line dispatches say that the Red Army has already smashed the German fortifications on the East Prussian border, which include everything from flooding to electrified wire entranglements".

The Broadcast was recorded by the office of war information.

The BBC said earlier "it is reported that in the last 24 hours more than 100 Soviet formations have taken positions at the East Prussian border" and that patrols "have been operationg on German soil for the past 36 hours".

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was making sad sounds to himself, saying, Oh well, what's a difference, who cares, it'll all be the same a hundred years from now.

Why William, such a torrent of despondency, ma said, You sound as if the wait of the whole world was rolling off your shoulders. What's a matter for land sakes? she said, and pop said, Oh, it was just something I happened to hear. I really didn't mean to make a scene about it, I suppose it's not of any great importance, let's just forget it, he said.

Now William I want you to tell me what it is and then banish it from your mind, ma said. It cant be so very serious, she said, and pop said, That's what I told you, dont give it another thought.

William I insist on knowing, ma said. You say it's something you happened to overhear. How do you mean, who said it? she said, and pop said, Digby Johnson.

Who? That's the man that tells you the latest news on the air for Terk's Linament, ma said, and pop said, That's the man. He was just on a little while ago, and I can still hear the heart rending catch in his voice as he discribed what it meant to him to have me walking around with a pane in my back when I could cure it in a few hours with one brisk application of Terk's Linament, he said.

But you have no pane in your back for land sakes, ma said, and pop said, I know, but Digby Johnson seemed to think I had, and his deep concern over it, his pitiful display of emotion, although the man doesn't even know me, really affected me deeply. I'm not over it yet, pop said.

Well then get over it, you crazy silly thing, ma said. Such a man. I might of known, she said.

Only she never does.

HOW TO RELIEVE PILE TORTURE QUICKLY AND EASILY

If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting this condition become chronic. Any itching or soreness or painful passage of stool is natures' warning and proper treatment should be secured at once.

For this purpose get a package of Hem-Roid from J. S. McKeown or any I.D.A. or other drug store and use as directed. This formula which is used internally is a small, easy to take tablet,—will quickly relieve the itching and soreness and aid in healing the sore tender spots. Hem-Roid is pleasant to use, is highly recommended and it seems the height of folly for any one to risk a painful and chronic pile condition when such a fine remedy may be had at such a small cost.

If you try Hem-Roid and are not entirely pleased with the results, your druggist will gladly return your money.

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE

Toronto, Sept. 12 (CP)—Stocks sold down in the early Toronto session today, the golds leading the decline. Trading was quite active at times and volume for the first three hours was 403,000 shares.

Losses of 10 to 20 cents were boarded by Giant Yellowknife and Conwest and other golds down 5 to 9 cents were Central Patricia, Negus, Upper Canada, Kirkland Lake, Bear and Malartic Gold Fields. Cochenour Willans advanced 14 cents to 2.61.

Smelters, Ventures, Steep Rock, Falconbridge and Pend Oreille were all soft issues in the base metal group.

Most industrial groups, including the steels, papers, senior oils and utilities were lower. Abitibi Pfd. weakened a point. In light trading the western oils eased lower. Home, British-Dominion, Pacific Refineries and Anglo-Canadian were lower.

NEW YORK EXCHANGE

New York, Sept. 12. (AP) — The Stock Market returned to a high degree of selectivity today after Monday's good recovery on negligible volume, and, while aircrafts and other scattered industrials continued to do fairly well, many leaders failed to follow through.

Bullish forces were cheered by further Allied victories and predictions that postwar industrial transition might not be so painful as expected.

Trends were a bit cloudy near the fourth hour. Dealings dwindled appreciably.

In the Canadian list, Dome Mines gained 1-8 and Distillers Seagrams moved up 3-8. Lake Shore was off 3-8.

Better performers included Douglas Aircraft, at a year's peak; United Aircraft, Pullman, Goodyear, General Motors, Du Pont and Johns-Manville.

This picture was taken in the plant where "Blindcraft" brooms are made. The blind broom stitcher in the illustration daily contributes his quota to the six hundred dozen brooms which this factory turns out every week. The provision of employment is one of the most important of the services which the Institute makes available for blind men and women. Generally such factories are not commercially profitable, but the subsidies required to keep them in operation result in the employment of many men who would otherwise be jobless. The campaign for funds in support of The Canadian National Institute for the Blind now going on, will help to maintain this work and keep blind people in employment.

Great Robber Migration Goes Into Reverse

By D. Zaslavsky in USSR Information Bulletin

In the rear of the German armies in the east there are large numbers of Germans who do not know where to go or what to do. They are the ill-starred "colonizers" of Russia. There are about 150,000 of them from the Black Sea coast alone, and if one considers the whole Soviet-German front they will be found to number millions. They are the personification of Nazi adventurism and a peculiar brand of doltish credulity.

We will not stop to inquire where the Nazi politicians, scientists and publicists got the idea that in the east of Europe— in Russia, the Ukraine, Byelorussia, the Crimea and the Caucasus — there were immense, empty, little cultivated or badly cultivated areas which were only waiting for the arrival of the Germans to colonize them. Nazi literature gave currency to the phrase "living space in the east." It painted a fantastic picture of boundless territories inhabited by savage "natives" who were unable to govern themselves, to cultivate their land or to run industries. History allegedly condemned them to wait for the Germans to come and teach them how to live.

It was a fantastic picture indeed: and to it a fantastic history of the Russian people was invented. The Nazi Obersturm historians declared that the Russians from time immemorial, from the very dawn of their existence, had been governed by Germans. They passed off as Germans the first princes of the Russians and all her prominent savants, etc. Swindlers wrote whole tomes on the subject, and fools read and believed them.

Is it surprising, therefore, that when the German army invaded Russia, Byelorussia and the Ukraine millions of Germans believed that the long-desired and long-promised hour had come and now every German had the opportunity to grow rich with the help of Russian slave labor? Hitler promised to assign land, implements and workers to all Germans who desired them. He called upon German landowners to seize enormous territories and upon German officials to acquire and administer the property of the Russian people.

Hundreds of thousands of Germans swarmed like locusts into the Soviet Union in the wake of the German army. They wound up their affairs in Germany; some of them sold their estates and land with the idea of establishing themselves on a wider footing in Russia. They came from every corner of Germany and settled in every city and village in the occupied regions.

They were confident and arrogant. Although the war was by no means over they were convinced that the main thing had been accomplished: a place had been cleared for them and they were given power.

The disillusionment was equal to the aberration. It began from the very first day of their arrival. They learned that the real Soviet people did not in the least resemble doning their stolen booty. Hitler propaganda had painted. Their acquaintance with the Russian people not infrequently began with acquaintance with Soviet guerrillas; and there often enough their brief careers as colonizers ended. Their houses were burned down; bullets lurked in wait for them. Every form of residence was offered them. They could find no agricultural implements and the people refused to work for them.

Life was hard and dangerous for the Germans in the conquered regions. But they reconciled themselves to difficulties, believing it was only a temporary phase and that the German army would break the resistance of the Soviet people.

But then something happened which was altogether inconceivable to the German mind. The Red army began beating the German army, and harder and harder as time went on. The front, which had moved forward as far as the Volga, began to retreat and to draw nearer and nearer first to the Don and the Northern Donets, then to the Dnieper, Bug, Dniester and Prut....Then the trains began to run on all lines westward carrying disillusioned colonizers. Many of these would-be conquerors fled in panic along the roads, aban- that oelograph picture of them that

The Germans have already been ejected from three-quarters of the Soviet territory they have seized, and those of them who thought to settle forever on Soviet soil have become nomads. They do not know where to go, and the Nazi government does not know what to do with them. We learn from recent newspaper reports that the German authorities are warning migrant colonizers not to hope to find a new Eldorado but to return to their former homes and seek work as laborers on big estates. And that is how it will end. There is no other alternative for these deluded Germans. They all hoped to be landowners and slaveowners, but they will end up as farm laborers on the land of others. Such is the finale of the German Eldorado in the east.

But the reckoning has only begun. The colonizers plundered the Russian people and looted their hard-won property. They forced the Russian peasants to work for them as unpaid laborers and treated them brutally besides. They flogged, tortured, hanged and raped...

Now they will be made to pay for their misdeeds. Their names are known and they will be pursued by the hatred and vengeance of the Russians they mistreated. They will learn the consequences of German "colonization" to their cost. That is necessary in order once and for all to knock out of their heads the nonsense of "living space in the east" and their mission as the "higher race" to dominate other nations.

The German robbers must be brought to repentance. But it is even more important that they serve as a warning to their children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren not to intrude into other countries with arms in their hands and the malice of bandits in their hearts.

Marshal J. Stalin Regrets Inability To Join Conference

Quebec, Sept 12 (CP)—A cable from Marshal Stalin expressing his regrets that military developments made it impossible to accept an invitation to join the Roosevelt-Churchill conference here was made public shortly after 1 p.m. E.D.T. Monday.

In making the message public, President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill said they would have been delighted to have Stalin here but realized he was "properly absent on the field of duty".

The Stalin message was announced at a hastily-called press conference in the Chateau Frontenac newsroom by Stephen Early, Press Secretary to President Roosevelt.

He said it was being released as soon as received as an answer to the many questions regarding Stalin's absence from this important conference.

The text of the Stalin message follows:

"At the present time, when Soviet armies are fighting battles on such a broad front, developing their offensive increasingly, I am deprived of the possibility of travelling out of the Soviet Union, and of leaving the direction of the army for the shortest period. All my colleagues agree that this is quite impossible."

CANADIANS REACH NETHERLANDS BORDER

RED ARMIES 75 MILES NORTH OF BELGRADE

FaceLeopoldCanal Which Presents Difficult Obstacle

U.S. 1st Army Drives New Column Toward Frontier

By ROSS MUNRO
(Cp War Correspendent)

With the 1st Canadian Army in Belgium, Sept. 13 — (CP Cable) — Canadian troops stood on the Netherlands border today after capturing Bruges and advancing eastward 10 miles to the Leopold Canal which skirts the frontier southwest of the Schelde.

Reconnaissance forces were along the canal, seeking a way across, but retreating Germans had blown up the bridges.

In less restricted country to the southeast, where there are not so many dikes and waterways, Polish troops of the 1st Canadian Army leaped forward 30 miles from Gent to reach St. Nicholas. They now are working north toward the Netherlands border.

Other Polish troops are fighting a German force in the north outskirts of Gent, where [illegible] enemy rear-guard is making [illegible] attempts to hold the Canadian Army out of the Schelde area.

Canal One of Largest

Canadian tanks and infantry now delayed by the Leopold Canal have a difficult obstacle to overcome before they advance into the Netherlands. The canal is one of the largest in Belgium and will require a lot of bridging. The Germans may attempt to defend the canal line.

At the moment the Canadians have lost contact with the enemy on the Canal but when they begin to cross it he may fight to prevent a bridgehead being gained.

Along the coastal sector, Canadian infantry swept the area from Zeebrugge to Newport clear of the enemy. One strongpoint held out yesterday but finally surrendered. Three hundred prisoners were taken.

Canadian troops have formed tight semicircles about Calais and Boulogne, and also are in strong positions on the Dunkerque perimeter, awaiting the order to assault.

Take 8,000 Prisoners

British troops in Le Havre, under command of Lt.-Gen. Crerar, now have taken 8,000 prisoners, accounting for practically the entire garrison. One small group was holding out on the end of a wharf last night but by now it probably has been wiped out.

There were no S. S. troops in Le Havre, and the prisoners were husky and well-fed — the freshest-looking prisoners yet taken by the Canadian Army. Their appearance indicated they didn't attempt much of a fight.

The fierceness of the British attack and the terrific shelling and bombing must have persuaded them quickly it was useless to resist.

Once the break-through was made and the garrison officially had surrendered, the British 49th Division again distinguished itself by clearing the city rapidly and mopping up small bodies of the enemy who had not heard of the surrender, or who had decided to fight on anyway.

The Germans have evacuated a good number of troops from the Schelde bridgehead, but the R.A.F. has been attacking shipping relentlessly and harrying it wherever it moves.

London, Sept. 13 (CP)—U.S. 1st Army troops drove a new column at the German frontier today mid-way between two earlier border breaches which had carried the fight onto the "holy soil" of Germany, while British 2nd Army troops advanced well into the Netherlands and further built up their Albert Canal bridgehead.

In two border sectors the Germans counter-attacked, it was announced at Allied Supreme Headquarters, but they were thrown back or held.

Headquarters also announced that the American 9th Army under Lt.-Gen. William H. Simpson had taken its place in the operational command in France.

This army's sector has not yet been disclosed. It is the sixth Allied army to be identified in the combat area. Others are the American 1st, 33rd and 7th armies and the British 2nd and the 1st Canadian armies.

Gen. Eisenhower announced that Maj.-Gen. John T. Lewis of the U.S. army heads a new Allied Supreme Headquarters mission to France located in Paris as of today. Maj.-Gen. H. Redman of the British army was named deputy. The mission will represent the Supreme Allied Commander with the French government.

Clearing the way ahead of the American 1st Army columns probing the Siegfried defences at two points U. S. 9th air force fighter-bombers went out in relays beginning at dawn for ceaseless pounding of concrete strongpoints in the path of the advance.

They ranged both sides of Siegfried line and swept as far south as Metz and Nancy where the U.S. 3rd army poured armor and artillery across the Moselle on a 15-mile-wide front in a power built-up for a sweep on Saarbrucken and Strasbourg.

Battle for Five Ports.

Far behind were battles for five ports.

At Brest Germans fought on fiercely, mustering every man of army and navy personnel and even workmen into a delaying stand against American penetrations into the city.

Boulogne, Calais and Dunkerque were closely invested and Germans there seemed determined to hold on until blasted out—a process which does port facilities no good.

Zeebrugge was not under direct assault but probably will be soon. Canadian patrols have penetrated to the port area but now are mopping up to the south before driving on from Blankenburghe for the clean-up.

Fly 1,750 Miles to Bring Food to Polish Patriots

Rome, Sept. 13 — (AP) — R.A.F. Halifaxes flew 1,750 miles through dense clouds which left the planes encrusted with ice and dropped more supplies to Polish Patriot forces in Warsaw Sunday night, the Mediterranean Allied Air Force announced today.

Pilots reported that fires were raging in the Polish capital as the British planes swooped low and released the containers.

Crisis in Balkans More Serious To Germans Than Italy's Surrender

By JON MIMCHE
(Reuter Military Commentator)

London, Sept. 13 —(CP Reuter)— While Allied troops have invaded German territory in strength and Germany is called on to make its utmost exertion to counter this threat, all eyes have naturally turned to this most sensational of all fronts.

Yet 1,100 miles from the Albert Canal another crisis has developed for the German High Command. A front 600 miles wide has been burst open: 50 divisions that two weeks ago were still counted as additions to German manpower and as an essential stop-gap of the invasion of the Danube basin, now are marching with the Allies.

For the German High Command the crisis now in full swing in the Balkans is more serious than that caused by the surrender of Italy, and operationally more menacing than the Russian break-through in White Russia last June. In terms of continental strategy the Balkan crack is hardly less dangerous to the Germans than that in France.

A front that was held last July by 25 Romanian divisions, 25 Bulgarian divisions, 15 Hungarian divisions and about 35 German divisions, a total of 100 divisions, now has to be held by 15 Hungarian divisions and 25 German spread from Greece through Yugoslavia to Hungary and largely in the course of retreat.

Front Cannot Be Held.

Obviously such a front cannot be held—and the German High Command as well as Marshal Joseph Tito have recognized this. The moment the Germans realized what was afoot they began withdrawing their troops from the exposed extremes of Greece and from the southern parts of Serbia.

Partisan strategy in Yugoslavia is something novel in wars of liberation. Tito does not aim at driving the Germans from his soil, but, on the contrary has mobilized all his forces to prevent the Germans from getting away.

King Peter of Yugoslavia, in a broadcast last night from London, called upon all Serbs, Croats and Slovenes to unite and join the National Liberation Army under the leadership of Tito.

He assured them that with the victorious armies of the Soviet Union on one side and those of Great Britain and the United States on the other side at the Yugoslav frontiers, their day of liberation was at last dawning.

The Balkans may once more decide Germany's fate. They may have their say, in 1944 as in 1918, on whether Germany's rulers shall be able to prolong the war by yet one more winter campaign.

NEWS BLACKOUT CLOAKS VICTORY TALKS AT QUEBEC

Conference is Almost Exclusively Devoted To Military Plans, Mainly Pacific War

MUCH SPECULATION

By JOHN DAUPHINEE
(C.P. Staff Writer.)

Quebec, Sept. 13 (CP)—Secrecy as complete as that shielding military operations in the field has been applied to the Quebec "Victory conference" as Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt settle down to the second phase of their meeting—joint talks with their chiefs of staff.

The prospect is that less information than ever will be provided for the 150 newspaper and radio correspondents on the job.

The conference opened Monday. As the secrecy restrictions tighten, a review of announcements by official spokesmen shows these few facts have been released:

1. The conference is "almost exclusively a military conference" with the main emphasis on the Pacific war.

2. Decisions taken at the conference will be Anglo-American and made by Mr. Churchill and Mr. Roosevelt with the advice of their experts.

3. Prime Minister Mackenzie King, as conference host, is consulted frequently by the two principals, but he has no say in actual decisions other than giving his views when asked for them.

4. Marshal Stalin was invited to attend but declined because of the pressure of war duties at home.

5. Other United Nations leaders, including Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek of China, were not invited but all the United Nations will be informed of conference results.

6. Foreign Affairs experts of Britain and the United States are not in attendance.

7. The conference started with private talks between Mr. Churchill and the President; now the "real business" of the conference is under way with the principals meeting with their chiefs of staff.

8. Before the conference ends, there will be a meeting in Quebec of the Canadian Cabinet's War Committee, with Mr. Churchill and probably his chiefs of staff sitting in.

ATTACK CENTRAL SECTOR OF GOTHIC LINE IN FORCE

Near Futa Pass, Main Avenue Through German Defence Line

BITTER FIGHTING

By GEORGE BRIA
(AP War Correspondent)

Rome, Sept. 13 — (AP) — Allied 5th Army forces driving against the central sector of the Gothic Line northeast of Florence are within a mile of Futa Pass, one of the main avenues through the German defence line barring the path to northern Italy, it was announced today, while the British 8th Army remained stalemated near the Adriatic.

The Pass was described as more strongly defended than Cassino, scene of some of the bitterest fighting in the Italian campaign.

Allied headquarters said the 5th Army had reached Langnano and Poggio D'Ella Dogana, five and two miles, respectively, southwest of the Pass.

Some of the fiercest fighting of the Italian campaign continued meanwhile on the Adriatic sector, where the Coriano-San Savino positions remained unchanged.

On the west coast 5th Army troops drove ahead three miles to the Berlamacca Canal, while farther east patrols pushed on to the vicinity of Sant' Ippolito, 18 miles northwest of Florence.

The advance northeast of Florence toward the hard core of the Gothic Line was a steady sweep. Troops which had thrust a short distance across the Sieve river Sunday and Monday advanced 5 miles yesterday.

The Germans apparently were ready to meet any new assault on the Gothic Line. In the vicinity of the Futa Pass new pill-boxes and gun emplacements have been established and many heavy anti-aircraft guns brought into positions.

PACIFIC NATIONS TRAIN THEIR EYES ON QUEBEC CITY

Churchill and Roosevelt Stern Critics of Staff Planners

DECIDE ABOUT JAPAN

By FRANK FLAHERTY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

Quebec, Sept. 13 (CP)—All nations of the Pacific have their eyes on Quebec today as President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill get down to the meaty stage of their second Quebec conference and their 11th meeting of the war.

In the seclusion of the citadel they are studying with the British and United States chiefs of staff the problems to be met in defeating Japan—matters affecting the fate of Australia, New Zealand, India, China, the East Indies and other countries.

The two leaders wound up yesterday morning the first stage of their meeting: A general exchange of views in private while their experts worked to co-ordinate plans to be submitted for approval.

In the afternoon they embarked on the second stage: A series of round table meetings with the generals, admirals and air marshals to study and eventually approve the staff plans.

Stern Critics.

Mr. Churchill and Mr. Roosevelt are the government leaders and at times stern critics. The staff planners may be sent back for more information to make changes. While they work the leaders themselves hold further private conferences at which they talk over the work of their advisers.

It has been officially stated that the plans of the invasion of Europe, already successsfully carried out, received final approval at the first Quebec conference a year ago.

The present "Victory conference" is brewing things of equal importance to the nations of the Pacific where the Japanese enemy has yet to be pushed back and finally subdued.

All Nations Informed

That the fighting nations of the Pacific will be informed of the decisions taken here was made clear yesterday by President Roosevelt's press secretary, Stephen Early, in

STUTTGART, BERLIN AND FRANKFURT HEAVILY POUNDED

Frankfurt Raid Aimed At Smashing Flow Of German Troops To Front Lines

25 PLANES LOST

By HOWARD COWAN
(AP Staff Writer)

London, Sept. 13 — (AP) — At least 3,000 American planes hurled 5,000 tons of bombs on Germany today in explosive emphasis of Gen. Eisenhower's promised "devastating bombing" of Germany.

More than 1,500 were heavy bombers and they struck while Frankfurt, Stuttgart and Berlin still burned from massive R. A. F. nocturnal blows.

For the sixth successive day, German radios carried "Achtung" warnings of the aprroaching Allied bombers from England, France and Italy.

The overnight raid upon Frankfurt, now less than 90 miles behind the German front line, was carried out in particularly great strength and was aimed directly at smashing the flow of Nazi reinforcements to the front.

Rail Yards Jammed

The R.A.F. bomber command, it was disclosed, originally had planned to strike another target 40 miles further east, but changed its plans when it was learned the rail yards at Frankfurt were jammed with military traffic headed west.

"The first bombs were dropped just before midnight," the Air Ministry said. "Although there was stiff opposition neither ground defences nor fighters succeeded in dissipating the force of the attack. Visibility was excellent and the target area was accurately marked out by a Pathfinder force."

Clear weather also favored the forces of British heavy bombers which struck at the great German engineering and war industry centre of Stuttgart.

The attack on Berlin was carried out by Mosquitos, which showered the German capital with two-ton bombs for the third successive night.

25 Aircraft Lost

The night attacks cost the R.A.F. 25 aircraft. Intruder planes shot down two German night fighters.

View With Alarm Rush of Evacuees Back to London

London, Sept. 13 (CP)—Growing official alarm at the rush of avacuees back to London reached such a point today the government began searching for a legal way to forbid them to return.

Warnings that the danger from flying bombs is not over have gone unheeded, although newspapers have been frank in appealing to the evacuees, mostly women and children, to stay where they are safe.

Thousands of Bicycles Hum Along French Boulevards Day and Night

By ROSS MUNRO
(CP War Correspondent)

Paris, Sept. 12 — (CP Cable) — Paris, still an excitable, unpredictable city nearly three weeks after the Germans were driven out, is rapidly regaining stability and settling down to becoming the capital of France again.

With the doubtful distinction of being the last war correspondent from the western front to reach the city, I drove from the Canadian sector in Belgium to spend 40 hours there last weekend.

The city is remarkably quiet. There are no masses of vehicles but thousands of bicycles hum along the boulevards from morning to night although there are no more street skirmishes, men of the French Forces of the Interior — dubbed "Fifis" by the Canadians—go around with rifles slung over their shoulders.

A few buildings on a few famous squares have been pitted with bullets and grenades and there is a burned-out German tank on Place de la Concorde but it almost looks as if it had been put there as a monument to liberation. Allied planes drone over the city all day.

Food for civilians remains scarce but the situation rapidly is being improved.

Scores of Canadians visit the Canadian Embassy and Maj.-Gen. Georges P. Vanier, Canadian Ambassador-designate to the French provisional government, hears their stories and provides help and guidance.

A number of Canadian officers are beginning to reach the city for a few days' leave.

Fight for Control Of Rail Network At Timisoara

Russians Reach Outskirts Of Sofia Says Radio Report

By DANIEL DE LUCE
(AP War Correspondent)

Moscow, Sept. 13 —(AP)— Powerful Russian tank forces and Romanian infantry emerged today from the western foothills of Transylvania and fought for control of the rail network radiating from Timisoara, 40 miles south of the pre-war Hungarian border and 75 miles north of the Yugoslav capital of Belgrade.

(The Paris radio said the Red army had reached the outskirts of Sofia and that the Bulgarian capital was preparing a reception, having arrested all members of the former pro-Nazi government.)

Marshal Malinovsky's offensive was rolling forward during his brief absence to sign an armistice with Romania in Moscow. His troops approached within 25 miles of Cluj, capital of central Transylvania and largest Romanian city still in enemy hands. He broke a permanent fortified line which the Hungarians had been building since 1940 when Hitler awarded them the northern half of the Romanian province.

Lomza Given Up.

Battle reports from north Poland said the major rail centre of Lomza, 20 miles below East Prussia, was virtually encircled. (The German radio heard at London said Lomza had been "given up.")

The battle in the Balkans for Transylvania now is becoming a campaign to envelop Serbia (Southern Yugoslavia) from the north and reach the Tisza river, which flows north and south across the heart of the Hungarian plain, one of Hitler's major bread baskets.

Russian front dispatches told of hundreds of confused German and Hungarian prisoners marching back into the Transylvania mountains as streams of Soviet armor rolled west.

Rivers, but no mountains, now stand between Malinovsky's vanguard at the mouth of the Mures valley and the area for a flanking move south to Belgrade to seal the Balkan peninsula's neck.

At midnight, the Kremlin announced the capture of Deva, 85 miles from Hungary.

Firm Grip on Road

In captured Deva, Russian and Romanian forces advanced 36 miles from Petroseni. The thrust gave them a firm grip on the main highway and railway into Budapest from Romania. The Cluj-bound spearhead seized Aiud, 30 miles to the south.

Front reports said the campaign was meeting stiff but sporadic German and Hungarian resistance.

To the south the Red Army appeared to be on the verge of joining up with Marshal Tito's Partisan forces in Yugoslavia. A group of

Prices Board Lifts Restrictions On Women's Shoes

Ottawa, Sept. 13 (CP)—The Prices Board announced today that restrictions on two-tone and ornamented women's shoes have been lifted and that a number of other wartime orders governing the manufacture of boots, shoes and slippers also have been revoked.

The announcement said makers of women's footwear will be allowed two completely new patterns and may vary their present lines by substituting patterns used prior to October, 1941, when many of the existing restructions were imposed.

Makers of men's and boys' footwear now may use white leather, previously allowed only for women's, misses' and children's footwear.

230 Residents Of Italian City Killed by Germans

Rome, Sept. 13 — (AP) — Germans killed 230 residents of Civitella Della Chianai, 50 miles southwest of Florence, in reprisal for the slaying of three Nazi soldiers by Italian Partisans, a dispatch from Florence said today.

The dispatch, quoting residents of the town, said the three soldiers were shot June 18 when the Partisans caught them looting.

According to this account 30 hostages, including a parish priest, were seized in church June 26. They were lined up in a school courtyard and machine-gunned. Twenty-one boys were seized on a road near the town and also were machine-gunned.

Other residents were shot in doorways of their homes when answering knocks.

C.W.S.F. TO RESUME WINTER ACTIVITIES

After being more or less inoperative since early in the summer, members of the local Canadian Women's Service Force under their commanding officer Major Marion Harden, will meet at the Armouries this evening. Together with re-organizational work which inevitably goes with the resumption of activities, the main topic of discussion among the girls will be plans for the shipment of Christmas boxes to the boys overseas. As these boxes have to be in the mails by the middle of October, in order that the boys overseas may not miss out on Christmas, wrapping of gaily decorated parcels will again soon be the order of the day for the local C.W.S.F. girls.

ImpromptuDance Features Chance Meeting of Pals

Pedestrians, office and store staffs of Richmond Street, Toronto, stared in amazement the other day at the strange sight of a tartan-clad Highlander dancing a Scottish reel with an elderly captain wearing the insignia of the American army.

But, perfectly oblivious of the amused smiles of their audience the two dancers, Piper Jamie Clark, Belleville, and Captain Jack Fraser, United States Army, military attache at the White House, Washington, D.C., gave vent to their feelings through the intricacies of a Highland dance.

For the two, ex-members of the famous Belleville Kiltie Band which toured the world away back at the turn of the century, had not seen each other for thirty years. They met by chance in Toronto.

Piper Clark, clad in the colorful Stuart tartan, who was filling a professional engagement in the Queen City, stood quietly conversing with a friend when a quiet voice, strangely familiar, murmured in his ear, "Quite a pretty uniform, isn't it?"

He turned, stared, memory wrestled with itself, then a broad smile of recognition spread itself over his features. Up went his arms as he shouted "Johnny Fraser." The American captain, despite his fifty-four years, likewise spread his arms and in a trice the long separated friends were doing a Highland fling on the pavement while delighted lookers-on applauded.

FIRE DESTROYS COTTAGE

Campbellford, Sept. 13 — (CP) — Fire of undetermined origin Tuesday destroyed a large summer cottage, together with its contents and an adjoining tent at Bradley Bay, five miles south of here. The property is owned by Mrs. S. E. Hendricks of Campbellford. Visitors at the camp lost all their personal belongings. Farmers, fishermen and campers hastily formed a bucket brigade and succeeded in saving nearby cottages along the waterfront.

Handsome Silver Tray Presented To Lt. Col. Donnan

Tangible appreciation of his efforts in furthering the interests of the regiment in all its phases of activity, was shown Lieut. Col. B. C. Donnan, former commanding officer of the 2nd Battalion (R) Argyll Light Infantry (T), by officers of the unit last night when they presented him with a handsome engraved silver tray in the Officers' Mess at the Armouries here.

The presentation was made by Lieut. Col. B. C. Sisler, present commanding officer, who assumed command of the unit upon Col. Donnan's retirement last June.

The tray, a handsome oblong piece of silver bears the inscription, "To Lieut. Col. B. C. Donnan, from the officers of the Argyll Light Infantry (Tank)." Above the inscription is the regimental crest.

In a brief address of appreciation, the former C. O. modestly stated that "I do not deserve this. You have already done too much for me." He added that he has enjoyed every moment spent with the regiment although he was first and moremost a "Hasty Pee" officer. "My heart naturally is with that regiment but since coming to the Argylls, my interest naturally has been with you. It will be with you forever."

Progress of the regiment, Col. Donnan said, had resulted from the efforts of its commanding officers since reorganization in 1929. "Today it boasts one of the finest officer personnel of any unit in the district." He paid tribute to the efficiency of Col. Sisler, whom he was happy to see assume the command of the unit. Col. Donnan also expressed his pleasure at seeing former R. S. M. Willerton and Sergeant William Pomfret, now commissioned officers and members of the mess.

A special guest at the presentation was Sergeant Navigator Tommy Donnan, R.C.A.F., eighteen-year-old son of Col. Donnan who received his "wing" at Portage La Prairie last week.

The function took place following the regular mess meeting of officers of the regiment.

Chatterton Couple Honored by Friends On Silver Anniversary

Chatterton — Relatives, friends and neighbors numbering close to seventy-five gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. B. Mitts Monday evening to celebrate their silver wedding anniversary which had been on Sunday.

The early part of the evening was spent in visiting after, which Rev. Cooke called the gathering to order and a period of reminiscence in song was carried through with such songs as "School Days," "Down by the Old Mill Stream," "Sweet Bunch of Daisies," "When You and I Were Young Maggie."

A reading was given by Mrs. G. Bonter. A mouth organ selection was given by J. Campbell and a piano solo by Gena Vanderwater. Following this the bride and groom of twenty-five years were given seats of prominence and an address was read by Mrs. P. Meale, signed on behalf of the community by Ivy Meale, Laura Bleecker, Mary Heasman, Jim Campbell.

Mrs. J. H. Frederick presented the couple with a beautiful floor, lamp, and Leonard Marisette on behalf of the Sunday School presented Berson with a hymnary.

Both made very fitting replies, thanking all for the gifts and inviting them to visit them again.

Mr. D. Bleecker and Mr. B. Johnston gave a number of selections on the violin and guitar which were thoroughly enjoyed by all.

Lunch brought to a close a very happy evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Mitts had entertained twenty guests on Sunday, members of their family and a few close friends.

Outstanding Stage Production Will Feature Grandstand Show At the Belleville Exhibition

Rated as "absolutely tops" in the field of stage entertainment and regarded as easily one of the best productions to be seen here in the history of the fair, the grand stage performance, being brought here by the well-known Billy Garden interests, will feature the grandstand attractions at the Belleville Exhibition.

There is music, mirth, comedy and skill acrobats, natators and beautiful girls, vocalists and instrumentalists included in the program, that fairly stands out with variety.

The artists will perform against a scenic backdrop of colorful beauty with the sparkling music of Ken Goode's band supplying the musical background.

Claire Rousse, the famous one-man band who produces from the recesses of his capacious costume no less than 30 musical instruments is one of the headliners.

Also featured are the well-known radio comedians Al and Bob Harvey who are heard on a milling program weekly. Pat Bailey, husky-voiced singer of the airwaves, will also be here with a variety of songs as will internationally known Zena Cheevers, acrobatic dancer.

The Cycling Kirks.

The cycling Kirks, composed of the father, mother, son and two daughters will be seen performing on every type of bicycle known to the trade. Fifi, grotesque in make-up will clown his way through the audience while a former attraction at the Maple Leaf Gardens, Toronto, the Skating Whirlwinds, will offer a beautifully costumed act on their flying "wheels".

Then there are the Pethick Dancing Girls. Enough said. A novel act is Lamont's cockatoos, a number of trained talking birds who do everything demanded of them.

Other exhibition attractions beside the famous Conklin midway with its color and glamor will be a collection of Canadian wild animals. This show will be entirely free to all and is educational as well as worth seeing.

Fine Water Show.

Diving girls will compete in a water show said to be one of the finest of its kind ever shown. Along the midway will be, besides the tented shows and other attractions dear to the heart of the fair-goer, ferris wheels, merry-go-rounds, tilt-a-whirl, the whip, rocket ride, and other special rides for the children.

The midway is strictly an all-Conklin affair and maintains the reputation of being clean wholesome as well as thrilling entertainment.

Liquor Ration May Be Doubled On December 1st

Ottawa, Sept. 13 —(Special)—An increase in Ontario's monthly liquor ration from its present 13 ounces to 26 ounces will come into effect Dec. 1 if the Provincial Liquor Commission's inventories show sufficient stocks on hand to warrant the action, it was reported here.

(Liquor Commissioner V. T. Goggin, who attended last week's conference of liquor commissioners in Victoria, B.C., said he had no comment to make on the rumor.)

It is understood every effort will be made to boost the meagre "mickey" of liquor to double this amount for the Christmas holiday. The fiscal year ends March 31 next, and if the liquor stocks show a reasonable accumulation within the next month or six weeks, the increase may be put into effect on a temporary basis.

With a Dominion election not so very far off, it is said that supporters of Prime Minister Mackenzie King are urging him to relax the restrictive order and permit the Provinces to be more generous with the liquor store customers. The bright face on the present war picture is also advanced as a strong argument in favor of changing the regulation, if not abolishing it altogether.

The conference of Provincial liquor commissioners at Victoria was held behind closed doors and very little of the discussions was made public. The chief topic, however, was the Dominion's restrictive order regarding liquor.

NEWS BLACKOUT

9. Decisions of the Dumbarton Oaks peace-planning conference are being followed closely by the President and British Prime Minister.

Quick End to War Indicated.

Speculation sent out from Quebec by reporters has been based largely on these facts and on recent war developments which indicate a quick end to the war in Europe.

These are among major points of speculation: :

1. There is likely to be another Churchill-Roosevelt meeting soon after Germany is defeated, if not before, to talk over European affairs with Marshal Stalin.

2. One main subject of the present conference may be planning to bring an early end to the fighting in Europe, possibly by revising the Casablanca declaration of "unconditional surrender." but without departing too far from the original.

3. Rt. Hon. Anthony Eden, British Foreign Secretary, and perhaps a high American Foreign Affairs expert may come to Quebec later.

4. Approval may be given to interim reports sent from Dumbarton Oaks.

5. The status of various nations at the European peace table may be decided—and more particularly the status of France.

6. The Pacific war conversations may be centred largely on steps to transfer armed forces from Europe to the Pacific theatre, and the knitting together of Gen. MacArthur's Southwest Pacific forces with the Southeast Asia forces of Vice-Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten.

7. The extent of demobilization which can be carried out when Germany is defeated without jeopardizing prosecution of the war in the Pacific may be determined.

8. There may be a definite decision on the extent of Canada's participation in the Pacific war.

9. Tentative arrangements may be made on such European problems as the post-war policing of Germany and other nations, including preliminary decisions on specific areas to be policed by Britain, the United States and Russia.

At the end of the first Quebec conference in August, 1943, Mr. Churchill and Mr. Roosevelt held a joint press conference at which they made public a summary of their decisions in the general terms. Whether such a meeting with the press will be held this time has not been decided definitely.

The War Today—

Superior Skill of Allied Generals Outsmarts Prussianism's Best

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
(AP War Analyst)

When we see Allied forces battling on the soil of tottering Germany, it gives to wonder that the United Nations in such comparatively short time should have achieved this triumph over a militaristic nation which came close to conquering the world.

There are, of course, many reasons for Allied success but an important one is the superior skill of generals who at decisive moments have outsmarted the best brains that Prussianism could produce.

Brig.-Gen. Horace Sewell, distinguished British military expert, says that one outstanding reason for Allied superiority is the relative inflexibility of the German mind. It works along well defined lines — a powerful and smoothly-running machine, but in a groove.

Rommel Repeated Tricks

We have an excellent illustration of this in one of the Reich's foremost generals — the famous Field Marshal Rommel, of desert fame. Rommel is a great soldier, and he was so characterized to me by none less than his conqueror in North Africa — General (now Field Marshal) Montgomery — when I was with the British forces not long after they had won the decisive battle of El Alamein. One thing that helped Montgomery take his opponents' measure was the shrewd observation that while the German was dangerously tricky he could be counted on to repeat the same tricks under certain circumstances.

The Russians, of course, provide us with many cases of out-generaling the Nazis.

Normandy Proof of Superiority

Then there have been numerous cases in which Allied generalship has delivered a telling blow at a vital point after leading the Germans to believe the attack was coming somewhere else.

Well, one could write a book on the superiority of Allied generalship but I'll give Sewell the last word with comment on D-day in Normandy. He points out that this invasion was a surprise in two ways, first because the enemy expected the attack at another place, and second in the way the Allies built up their positions and supply bases on open beaches which were supposed to be invulnerable.

Lathe Cuttings Found Strewn Along Highway

Spiral-shaped sharp-edged lathe cuttings strewn along the Belleville-Trenton highway last night drew loud protests from motorists, who found the gleanings from a war plant anything but conducive to the long life of tires.

Investigation by Police Sergeant Arnott revealed that a truck owned by the Crawford Metal and Waste, Station Street, had driven from a westerly point with a load of the metal shavings. A faulty rack is said to be the cause of the slow but sure distribution of the tire-ruining metal. A large pile of the stuff was found on Highland Avenue where the rack apparently gave way.

City workmen cleaned the road, but motorists continue to bring in the souvenirs of their drive. Police will continue the investigation of the affair.

E. C. GARBUTT
(Picton)

Picton, Sept. 13 — Prominent in business and fraternal life for many years, Edward C. Garbutt died at his home here, Saturday. He had been in failing health some time. Rev. J. W. Shier conducted the funeral Monday afternoon and interment was in Glenwood cemetery.

Mr. Garbutt was born at Millhaven, Nov. 22, 1857, and came here as a boy of 14. He learned the carpentry trade and helped build steamers here. He entered the employ of the North shoe store, remaining there 29 years. In 1914, he purchased the business and operated it for some years.

Mr. Garbutt became an Oddfellow in 1880 and filled all the various positions in that order with the exception of treasurer in the subordinate order, Bay of Quinte, No. 143, Picton. He was also a member of the Encampment. He was elected Grand Patriarch for the term 1904-05. He was grand representative of the Grand Encampment to the Sovereign Grand Lodge at Philadelphia in 1905. Later, in 1906, he occupied a similar post of distinction at the Sovereign Grand Lodge Assembly in Toronto. He served for more than 20 years, starting in 1910, as Grand Treasurer of the Grand Encampment of Ontario. He was a lieutenant colonel of the Patriarchs Militant of Ontario Oddfellows.

As a Mason he held all the offices up to the Master's chair. He became a member of Prince Edward Lodge No. 18 A.F. & A.M. in 1906, was a Past Master and life member and held the rank of Very Wor. Brother. At one time he was a Grand Steward of the Grand Lodge of Canada. He occupied all the chairs in the R.A.M. and was a Past District Superintendent.

He was a charter member of St. George Preceptory No. 52 and held offices up to Provincial Prior and served as registrar. At one time he was a member of Rameses Temple, Toronto.

Mr. Garbutt served nine years as secretary-treasurer of Picton Public School Boad, and at one time was a member of the board and chairman. He also served as chairman of Picton Collegiate board. He was a member of the United Church.

Survivors are his wife, formerly May E. Hubbs, and a daughter, Hilda, Mrs. E. A. Vandewater of Belleville.

DR. GEORGE WALKER
(Formerly of Belleville)

The death occurred after a short illness on Sunday, Sept. 3rd, in Dauphin, Manitoba, of Dr. George C. J. Walker, dentist, and formerly of Belleville, where his father, Dr. George Walker was also a prominent dentist of some years ago.

The late Dr. Walker had been retired for some years to his farm near Dauphin, and lately had been doing some work for the government. He leaves a widow, a son and two daughters; his only surviving sister Mrs. Frank Ferris (formerly Mabel Walker of Belleville) lives at 1284 Beach Drive, Victoria, B.C.

Many old friends of the Walker family in Belleville will regret the passing of Dr. Walker.

Butter Ration Delayed Again; Sugar Unchanged

Ottawa, Sept. 13 (CP). — The Prices Board today served notice on Canadian housewives that they will have to get along with less butter than they expected between now and the end of the year.

For the fourth time this year the board ordered postponement of the validity date of butter coupons. Tonight's order affects two pairs of coupons. Those numbered 80 and 81, which ordinarily would have become good Oct. 5 will not be valid until Oct. 12, and coupons 88 and 89 have been advanced to Dec. 14.

While butter is going to be less plentiful, S. R. Noble, sugar administrator, had a measure of cheering news. He said that while world sugar supplies were "next thing to desperate," no reduction in the ration is expected this year.

Announcing the reduction in butter ration, the board said Canadian butter stocks at Sept. 1 were 11,500,000 pounds below the Sept. 1, 1943, stocks. Early announcement of the cut was made to enable consumers to plan to make their butter purchases last longer.

Must Last Three Weeks.

Under the revised coupon dates butter bought Sept. 21 with coupons 78 and 79 must do the consumer for three weeks, until Oct. 12. Butter bought Nov. 23 with coupons 86 and 87 must also last for three weeks. Butter coupons, each good for eight ounces, normally become valid every two weeks.

Surplus Disappears.

Discussing the sugar situation, Mr. Noble said about 4 million tons of surplus sugar built up for the United States, Britain and Canada had disappeared and "the situation generally is tighter."

While it was not likely the half-pound weekly ration in Canada would be changed this year the situation would be reviewed in 1945. If a reduction was made next year it most likely would affect the industrial use and home canning rather than the ration for household consumption.

Mr. Noble was elaborating on a statement yesterday by Donald Gordon, Prices Board chairman, who said world sugar supply is "in such a precarious state we may even have to face the possibility of some cut in the sugar ration."

FIGHT FOR

Soviet war correspondents was said to have left Moscow expecting to witness the junction.

The Red Army was fighting a hard battle with the Germans just south of the East Prussian border, but the daily Soviet communique gave few details. The Russians closing in on Loma, gateway city to lower East Prussia, were meeting strong resistance from large German tank and artillery forces.

The Soviet communique, one of the shortest in months, remained silent about broadcast German reports that new concentrations of Red Army troops and guns had begun a drive aimed at breaking into East Prussia.

Moscow likewise said nothing about the Warsaw sector. The Germans have reported a concentrated attack on the outer approaches to Praga, eastern suburb of the Polish capital.

PACIFIC NATIONS

response to inquiries about Australia and China.

Mr. Early said there had not been a conference yet concerning which all governments were not informed of decisions.

Thus it was made clear that the conference is secret, but not private. The Canadian government at this meeting as at previous conferences is expected to get full information by direct contact of Prime Minister Mackenzie King with the British and American leaders. Mr. Early's statement let it be known that other United Nations, including the Pacific states vitally concerned, will also be advised of conference results.

Almost a steady procession of staff cars indicated the two government leaders were calling for experts and papers.

Yesterday was the 36th anniversary of the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Churchill but no time was taken off work for celebrations. Since the Governor-General and Princess Alice were leaving in the afternoon for Arvida, Que., photographers were called in during the morning to make official conference pictures.

Mr. King was to be joined by more of his ministers today or tomorrow and a meeting of the war committee of the Canadian cabinet, with Mr. Churchill sitting in, will take place during the week.

Press correspondents worked to make news out of information, and they received no promises of enlightening announcements.

While the arrival of other notable —possibly economic and diplomatic advisers of the two principals or representatives of other nations—was not ruled out, the official spokesman said he had no knowledge that any were coming.

That left the meeting still what it set out to be, a strictly business gathering between two of the big shareholders in the United Nations firm deciding how to finish an important task for which the firm was formed — namely to beat Japan down to unconditional surrender.

STUTTGART

sance photographs showed that 269,000 incendiaries dropped on Darmstadt early yesterday devastated "almost the entire city."

Thunderbolts, Lightnings and Mustangs were out at dawn today pin-pointing targets across the German frontier on both sides of the Siegfried Line and attacking enemy positions in the Nancy-Metz area and at Brest.

Flying 900 sorties yesterday, they bagged 40 planes in the air and nine on the ground.

At a loss of two planes, British and Canadian Beaufighters, supported by Mustangs, attacked an enemy convoy last night off the West Frisian Islands on the Netherlands coast, severely damaging a destroyer and leaving five other ships on fire. Shore installations also were left afire.

Commercial Raising of Broilers On Large Scale Planned by Swift Co.

Claimed to be the first time that the commercial raising of broilers has been attempted in Canada by other than private enterprises, the Swift Canadian Company Ltd. branch at Belleville will enter this field on a comparatively large scale in the near future, it has been announced by the local branch office manager, Mr. G. S. Brownell.

Immediate plans call for the construction of seven brooder houses at an estimated cost of between $25,000 and $30,000 for buildings and equipment and having a total accommodation for more than 40,000 baby chicks. Here the chicks will be fed for approximately twelve to thirteen weeks with the finished birds to be processed at the Belleville plant and then shipped in boxes to supply the Montreal hotel and steamship trade.

14-Acre Site

Site for the brooder houses has been chosen within the city limits in the north western part between College Street and the C. N. R. tracks and west of North Front St. Extent of the area upon which the brooder house will be constructed is about 14 acres with negotiations for purchase of the land being underway for the past year.

According to Mr. Brownell the broiler raising project has been instituted primarily as an experimental venture and accurate records of costs of production will be kept, these being made available to district farmers contemplating going into the raising of broilers on a larger scale. Operation of the project will in no way interfere with normal operating business of the branch office. Purchase of broilers from district farmers will continue on an equally as large a scale as heretofore.

Use Plant Incubators

Explaining the proposed operation of the project Mr. Brownell indicated the baby chicks would be supplied directly by the local Swift Canadian Company branch plant incubators. Chicks will be taken when a day old to the brooders with full-time egg production of from 1,600 to 1,800 hens being required to supply the hatchery. Eggs will be purchased locally if possible.

Brooder house will be 20 feet by 250 feet with a litter of odor-absorbing peat moss being utilized upon which to raise the chicks. Brooder houses will be heated by special kerosene burning stoves, the annual requirement of which will be in the neighborhood of 35,000 gallons. Regardless of the season, chicks will be kept indoors and fed special growing and fattening mashes.

Year-round Employment

Although processing of the birds will be done at the local plant, the new project will make but little difference in the working personnel at the local plant. Rather it will provide year-round instead of only seasonal employment for present workers. Labor requirements at the brooder project will call for about eight full-time men, including one specialist in chick diseases.

Plans for the construction of the brooder houses are at present on the drafting tables but it is expected tenders for their construction will soon be called. Contract for the construction of the buildings is expected to be let to local contractors.

Householders in City May Go Cold Unless They Place Coal Orders Now

One Coal Dealer Says Majority of People Disregarding Appeals

Despite collective appeals from the different coal dealers in the city for householders to take delivery of the initial allocation of their winter's fuel requirements before the end of the month, local consumers are not coming through with orders in sufficient numbers to dispel future misgivings of the possible fuel delivery situation later on in the season.

At least this was the consensus of local fuel dealers in the city when questioned on the subject today. According to fuel controller's regulations 50 percent of domestic fuel requirements may be delivered before the end of September and one half of the balance delivered by the end of December.

In the words of one local dealer, customers formerly taking early delivery of their coal are following the same practice this year, but the vast majority in Belleville for some reason are disregarding appeals to get part of their coal in during the summer months. And it is not because of lack of cash to pay on the line.

Situation May Get Serious.

"The way we look at it, the fuel situation in Belleville may very well be serious if there is a sudden drop in temperature early in the winter," stated one coal dealer. "At present we are taking all orders and could make more deliveries, but the same situation definitely will not exist later in the season when everybody will want fuel delivered at the same time."

In the opinion of this dealer the delay in householders taking delivery of the first 50 per cent of their fuel requirements has something to do with the current war situation. Many consumers, it is felt, are holding off because they do not like burning class "C" fuel, and feel that if the European war were to end soon there would be an easing of the regulations calling for them to burn 25 per cent pea coke or soft coal.

Less Fuel Available.

"But that is not the way it would work out," assured the dealer. "There would be no immediate easing of fuel regulations in Canada in the event of an early conclusion of European hostilities. In fact the fuel situation in Canada today is even more acute than it was last year. The Canadian quota of anthracite fuel from the United States has been cut slightly from last year."

Commenting on local consumers' general dislike of class "C" fuel, another dealer compared the lot of the Canadian consumer to the regulation in effect in England. "Over there householders are limited to 100 pounds per week for any size dwelling," he said, "and it's not all anthracite coal either. They have to take whatever they can get."

Do Not Always "Play Ball".

In the main dealers are doing their best to live up to regulations regarding the delivery of fuel, it was learned. But householders do not always "play ball" and sometimes resort to underhand methods to secure more than their rightful quota of grade "A" fuel. Again regulations are that 50 per cent of domestic fuel requirements may be delivered by September 30th; then 50 per cent of the balance by December 31st, and the remainder after the first of the New Year. Twenty-five per cent of the total fuel requirements must consist of grade "C" fuel, meaning either pea sized coke or soft coal.

Dealers were unanimous in asking customers to take delivery of 50 per cent of their fuel requirements as early as possible in order that the labor situation may be eased later on in the season. If not delivery services will not be able to take care of the orders—and under present labor conditions dealers are dubious of being able to add to their delivery staffs.

Town Planning Subject of Talk At Kiwanis Club

Members of the city council, guests and Kiwanis Club members heard an interesting address on Town Planning at the weekly luncheon of the club at the Quinte Hotel on Tuesday by Dr. Stanley Lach, Associate Professor of Civil Engineering at Queen's University, Kingston. Also present was Harold "Bouncer" Holway of the Kinsmen Club and chairman of the welcoming committee for returned veterans from the service clubs of the city. He appealed for the use of cars day or night to provide transportation for those veterans and a number of the Kiwanians donated their cars for that purpose. An inter-club meeting will be held at Tabernacle United Church on Monday evening when the members will hear an address by John Bracken leader of the Progressive-Conservative party. Jack McVeigh presided at the luncheon with Harold Carruthers as song leader and Lorne McDougall as sergeant-at-arms. Leo. B. Riggs presided at the piano.

Appealed for Help.

Ald. C. R. Clapp, chairman of the Salvage Committee, appealed to the club for the use of trucks and men to collect salvage from 8.00 p.m. till 10.00 p.m. on the night of October 16th. The club promised the alderman their heartiest co-operation in this community project. An appeal was made by Taylor Franklin for subscriptions to the Community Chest fund to be inaugurated on September 25th. The speaker was introduced by Bob Pringle and Kiwanian appreciation was expressed by Frank Follwell. Dr. Lach said that the perfectly-planned city should have spaciousness, health and recreational facilities. "In former years the voices of town planners were crying in the wilderness," said the speaker, "but not so today because it is a vital subject with every community." He believed that government pressure would be exerted to have each municipality have a town planning scheme and many favored the smaller size of city.

Points Out Defects.

The speaker pointed out the many defects in cities some having bad suburbs, others shack towns on their outskirts and sub-standard buildings, industry put in the wrong place and recreational facilities an unknown quantity. Dr. Lach stated that 50 per cent of the people in Canada cannot swim and that is because facilities have not been provided in the majority of cities. A new transportation system in cities is badly needed declared the speaker because the ones now in use are inadequate. Advertising should be controlled on the city streets. To control town planning the powers must have restrictions for the use of land and there must be proper civic by-laws respecting zones. Dr. Lach was positive that technical advice should be secured in the over-all plan and that the plan could be continually modified to suit the needs.

Rehabilitation Of Chaplains To Charges Urged

London, Ont., Sept. 13 —(CP)— The return of chaplains after the war to charges from which they have been given leave of absence today was urged by the committee on rehabilitation in its report to the General Council of the United Church of Canada.

Dr. Harold Young, chairman of the war services committee and a member of the standing committee specially set up for the rehabilitation of chaplains, presented the report which was accepted with all its recommendations by the council. Among the recommendations was one urging that men who resigned their charges to be chaplains or otherwise take part in the war effort be found positions comparable to the ones they resigned.

The report also advocated engaging returned men as assistants in large churches so that the surplus of ministers be taken up. Dr. Young said that while at present there is a need for 137 ministers in Canada, after the war 300 will return thus creating a surplus. It was suggested these assistant ministers be engaged on a temporary basis.

Refresher courses for chaplains, particularly younger men, were advocated and the possibility of starting these courses was referred to the board of schools and colleges.

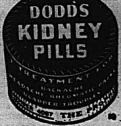
British, Russians, Americans Agree On Security Issues

Washington, Sept. 13 — (AP) — With agreement on all major issues of world security organization assured, British, Russian and American conferences at Dumbarton Oaks today drew near the conclusion of their exploratory talks. The Anglo-American delegations prepared to start similar negotiations with the Chinese.

The Chinese phase of the talks will last about a week. The initial Russian phase had been scheduled originally to end last Saturday but delays due to the need for frequent and long communications between the British and Russian groups and their home governments were officially held responsible for prolonging the meeting.

The only major point on which there seem likely to be indecisive results concerned the Russian proposals for creation of an international air corps. The Chinese are understood to be ready to propose a full international police force. This has posed a special problem for the American delegation, whose military members are strongly opposed to the international force idea.

It was indicated, therefore, that the plan to back the proposed world security organization with military force would provide for forces organized along national lines, under an international high command, but with the way left open for further consideration of the international police force suggestion, at least so far as an air corps is concerned.



Community Campaign To Raise $15,000 Will Open Here Sept. 25th

Units of the humanitarian army that have been quietly but efficiently "carrying on" through the dark years of war, the Salvation Army, The Victorian Order of Nurses, the Y.M.C.A. and the Children's Aid Society, have been doing their important work on a less-than-cost basis.

As important to the ultimate victory as is the work being done on the military fronts, these "civilian" organizations have been looking after those who are directly affected by the holocaust of war, and who are as important to the national welfare as those in the armed services.

Overshadowed by the heroic deeds of those in Canada's army, navy and air force, the spotlight of achievement publicity has not focused the work of these organizations in its glare. Unheralded and unsung, representatives have gone about their war tasks, and are doing a splendid job.

Perform Vital Work.

But like any war effort, funds are needed if this humanitarian work among the civilian population is to be maintained. Additional cost has automatically been levied on the coffers of the associations with the increase in demands made upon their facilities. And these demands have been heavy.

Representatives of the Victorian Order of Nurses have quietly wended their way through all kinds of weather to the homes where their services have been vitally needed. The Salvation Army, whose work along social service lines is known the world over, is not only doing a fine war job with the "troops" but among their dependents and other civilians as well.

The Y.M.C.A. has been carrying a heavy war load in its civilian programs among the young people of the district while the Children's Aid Society has been the medium of bringing happiness to many a tiny tot and mother, who otherwise might be left to the mercy of the world.

In order to carry out these different activities, the Community Campaign which will be inaugurated in the city on September 25th will supply, it is hoped, a generous amount of funds to the collective coffers of these organizations.

Public-Spirited Citizens Assist.

A number of public-spirited men and women have aligned themselves to the work of collection and it is hoped that the general public will once more demonstrate its appreciation of humanitarian activities by contributing in a generous manner.

Fifteen thousand dollars is the financial goal being aimed at, by the committee in charge of campaign activities. This is not a small amount of money, but one that is vitally needed. Give and give generously when a canvasser calls for a contribution. Those wishing to submit donations to the fund may do so by leaving their contributions with Mr. I. G. Hefkey, manager of the Royal Bank here and general treasurer of the fund.

Rock Blasting Causes Damage To Store Windows

The shattering explosion of a charge of dynamite used by city workmen in excavating rock ruined plate glass windows in the MacKenzie Barber Shop, cracked another in the Seldon Drug Store and punctured a gas main on Front Street this morning.

Public Works officials stated that there were no injuries to pedestrians or shop personnel. Confinement by logs of the location of the charge prevented stones, rock fragments and other debris from flying through the air. The damage was caused, mainly by concussion resulting from the explosion.

The workmen were engaged in excavating for sewer installations and dynamiting was necessary to remove rock strata.

A plate glass window in the barber shop is almost a complete loss. Damage to the Seldon Drug Store window is confined to a small crack in a corner, while Public Utilities officials stated that the gas main damage was slight. Some escaping gas was noticed but Utilities workmen soon had the leak repaired.

LT. TOM C. LEWIS PROMOTED TO CAPTAIN

He joined the army in January, 1941 and a few months later was graduated from the Brockville Officers Training Centre as a lieutenant. Shortly afterwards he went overseas and after extensive training in England went to France and subsequently to Belgium.

Guarded Papers On Invasion Found After '43 Talks

2 French-Canadian Soldiers Receive British Empire Medal for Their Service

Quebec, Sept. 13 — (CP) — Two French-Canadian soldiers, a major and a sergeant-major, have received the British Empire Medal for guarding secret documents on the invasion of Europe which they found after the first Quebec Conference last year, military authorities said here Tuesday.

The soldiers, whose names were not revealed immediately, again are employed in the Chateau Frontenac at the Quebec Conference now in progress.

It was understood the documents gave a clue to the date of the invasion, one of the most closely-guarded secrets of the war.

Brig. Edmond Blais, district officer commanding military district No. 5 (Quebec) confirmed that the awards had been made but said he could not give the names of the soldiers without their consent.

He said also that it was true that secret documents of the highest importance had been found by the sergeant-major after the chiefs of staff left the Chateau in 1943.

Military authorities said that the documents never left the Chateau, which was kept under close guard during the period of the conference.

They were discovered by the sergeant-major under a book when he was checking a Chateau library.

Toronto, Sept. 13 (CP)—Douglas France, 16, received burns about his hands today when a short circuit caused an electric current to pass through the metal hand rail he was holding on a street car. Officials of the Toronto Transportation Commission said it was the first time a passenger has received a shock in that manner.

Must Be Avoided

Many persons are looking or will be looking to the day when eased motoring restrictions will make possible more travel and pleasure. This is a justifiable attitude to take for the motor car has come to fill a great place in the needs of men, women and children.

Yet there is a grim suggestion from investigators of an American life insurance company that civilians in the United States may be set for a wild driving spree once gasoline and other motoring restrictions are eased, says the Montreal Herald. These investigators feel that "the average motorist wants to get behind the wheel and go places—fast." There may then be also the hazard to driving that "for some time these reckless road roamers will be driving cars that are ready for the junk pile—cars that would normally have been replaced or reconditioned years ago." The suggestion of these investigators is that as high as fifty thousand American civilians may be killed in traffic accidents in the first year of peace.

The Herald hesitates to predict the reaction of Canadian drivers to the new freedom but suggests that "it might be well for Canadian safety agencies and motorists' associations to note this dark prophecy and launch an educational campaign before wartime driving restrictions are eased."

This is something to think over. Drivers have become accustomed to slower driving, they have been taught that carelessness is a crime and may easily lead to destruction which is nearly related to sabotage. In wartime no one can afford to be careless nor in peacetime either for lives and property depend upon every precaution for safety. The idea of a driving spree must get out of people's minds for it has no business there. In fact in peacetime with the greater number of cars the greater the caution that will be required to operate a motor vehicle.

Highway departments have done everything to make driving safe, roads have been built according with the thought of safety and cars have been built and will be built for the maximum security of the driving public. The rest remains with the drivers. Driving will always require drivers to have their wits about them. If all do this there will be no driving spree and no highway holocaust of victims.

Here and There

On Tuesday morning last week shortly after midnight residents of Eastern Canada felt earth tremors signifying that peculiar behavior of the earth known as the earthquake. To be shaking in one's bed while the room, the house, the community and a wide expanse of country swayed with the quiver of the disturbance within the earth is to these parts a rather unusual experience. People of Belleville felt the tremors and knew what it was for they had had a previous experience some years ago, also during the night.

But the people were mostly calm, even in Cornwall where serious loss was caused by the damage to the walls of large buildings and where fear might have been expected. Perhaps it was the experience of the war that has trained people to face danger but it was probably the feeling that Canada is so secure a land, a land so free from dire storms and catastrophes of nature that the people have come to regard this happy security as guaranteed. Canada is fortunately a land with a record for lack of hurricanes, tornadoes and such upsets of nature of which one reads in other parts of the earth. Canada has electric storms but they soon pass and fortunately loss by them is not to be compared with the loss of life and property in places where tidal waves, earthquakes and other calamities are common.

This sense of security that Canadians have felt and still feel has not been shaken even in the terrible war which through the crimes of Hitler and Nazi Germany, boastful and pompous Mussolini and Japanese militarism was forced upon mankind. Through the storms of terror caused by man, Canada and the United States and America in general have been secure even while man-made terror was exercised by the Hun, the Fascist and the Jap against every land they could strike. The story of Poland, Czechoslovakia and other overrun countries indicates the havoc human tyranny and brutality can work upon mankind. London too has known what it meant to have to endure the brutalities of a Hitler and perverted Germany in the trying times of 1939, 1940 and 1941. Once again Hitler, the slave and agent of inhumanities, has tried to save his crumbling "empire" of terror, dust and ashes by wildly hurling robot bombs against Britain to try and seek some way out of the trap in which he has been caught along with Germany—the trap of retreat and retribution. London civilians have endured with heroism these blows which have cost thousands of lives, the result of enemy terrorism.

Canadians have known nothing of this living in an area where the German murder weapon was striking almost nightly until platforms from which these flying bombs which served no military purpose were launched were captured by the invasion forces. A series of slight tremors in most parts—that was all this quake meant. But London was on the war front. That is the price she paid because nature made her so close a neighbor to the Continent which Hitler tried to dominate.

Ottawa Journal recently referred to this robot bomb assault upon Southeast England in these words:

"If here in Ottawa we knew that Monday night's earthquake would be repeated tonight, or tomorrow night, with still more and perhaps worse ones on the way, what would be our state of mind? Well, all through July and August Londoners lived in the knowledge that each succeeding day or night would bring a bombing perhaps worse than the last one, that more houses were destined to be destroyed and more people destined to be killed. We read of such things, and we remarked casually on how bad they must be; but did we really grasp their terror, their ordeal?"

These are the facts that war-torn Europe now knows, they are the reasons why every step that is necessary will be taken to guarantee peace from such man-made terrors as the Axis nations have perpetrated against humanity. About earthquakes man can do little in quake areas except to build houses that it is said will probably endure the shock, but after the holocausts of war with its horrors man will now use every skill and effort to remove the possibility of repetition of these barbaric outrages against humanity and threats to the peace of the world.

Knucklebones

The average soldier's most popular game of "rolling the bones" was not invented in Southern United States. Encyclopaedia Britannica describes the grandfather of dice as "knucklebones," a surprisingly similar game of chance played by the Greeks and Romans. Sophocles ascribed the invention of knucklebones to Palamedes who taught it to his Greek countrymen during the Trojan Wars and both the Iliad and the Odyssey contain allusions to it. The early Greek "dice" were usually shaped in such a way that they could score only on four sides, counting one, three, four or six points each. Similar to modern expressions of Phoebe, Little Joe, box cars and snake eyes, the Greeks and Romans declared their throws with "Midas, Aphrodite, Alexander, Solon" and other names of gods and leaders.

FATHER TALKS

Fancied I was settled down, done with dance and song,
Greyed about the temples and a bulge about the waist.
Now I've got my chin up, and I'm working all day long,
Whistling coming homewards, with my duty fairly faced.
Planning things for mother—any way to please—
Promised him I'd do it when he went overseas.

Home is still and lonely now that he's so far away;
Lonelier for mother, though, than it is for me.
She goes 'round his bedroom twenty times a day.
I've got friends to talk to—fathers all are we.
Just to set her laughing now and then I tease.
Keeps her mind from fretting now he's overseas.

Got to keep my chin up, just for mother's sake.
Promised him I'd do it, when he went away.
Faith with that young soldier I'm trying not to break.
"Don't let mother worry!" last I heard him say.
Hope the show is funny! Always ill-at-ease
Seeing warfare pictures, now he's overseas!

Pyle Visits R.A.F. Pilot Who Was Trapped 8 Days in Wrecked Plane

Editor's Note: Ernie Pyle, who recently decided in France that he "had had it" and must take a rest, is in England. While awaiting transportation home he went to visit the wounded RAF pilot whose rescue from a wrecked plane in France, after eight days without food or water, Ernie witnessed. He has wirelessed two columns about him. The first follows, and the second will appear tomorrow.

By ERNIE PYLE

London, Sept. 13 (by wireless) — We will have to call off this respite from columning for a couple of days in order for me to tell you some good news.

It's about the RAF pilot who was trapped in his wrecked plane for eight days. The story has a happy ending. He is alive, and doing nicely. And even though he has a long hospital ordeal ahead, he is happy and grateful and the sun shines for him, again.

When I returned to London from France on my way to America I began tracing the pilot's whereabouts. It took almost a week to find him. Finally I located his hospital, and I travelled halfway across England to see him. My friend Bill Strand of The Chicago Tribune made the long trip with me just for company.

An RAF station wagon, driven by a Waaf, met us at the station and took us to a hospital out in the country. The lieutenant had been informed we were coming. We were ushered into a small sunny ward, and the lieutenant began smiling as we walked through the door. He held out his left hand, for the right one was still tender from bullet wounds.

When we got him out of his plane that day almost a month ago we knew that in a very few days he would either be dead or over the hump toward recovery, because his burned back was gangrenous, and gangrene works fast.

Well, he was first taken to a clearing station of the American 30th Division. He was very drowsy from morphine. When he began to come to, all he could hear was a lot of chatter in German, with voices answering to Hans, Herman, etc.

The drowsy lieutenant figured that he must be in German hands after all. But it turned out that he was hearing wounded German prisoners talking to each other.

The lieutenant's back responded to treatment. The gangrene was cut away, and it was seen that he would pull through. He was moved next day to another field hospital, and then three days later he was evacuated to England by air.

You may remember that when we got him out of his wrecked plane he asked the date and said his wedding anniversary was only three days away and he hoped to make it back to England for that. He was nearer right than we had thought. He arrived in England one day after the anniversary.

After that he was in an American general hospital for 16 days. As his wife says, he was treated like "my lord." He was their prize patient. And then he was removed to the RAF hospital where he is now and will be for a long time to come. His wife and baby come to see him twice a week.

His present condition is this:

His back is still painful but is healing excellently. Unfortunately he has to lie on it, because of his shattered leg being in a rack.

His right hand, on which a bullet had cut the fingers to the bone, is out of the bandage now but is still very tender.

His right leg, which was not wounded at all, is giving him trouble. Because of lying for eight days in one position, with the leg bent and pressure on certain nerves, he has lost control over his foot. He can move the leg all right, but the foot just flops around. The doctors think it will eventually be all right.

His left leg is the worst problem. As you may recall, his left foot was pinned under the rudder bar all that time, and the calf of his leg had a shell hole in it. We couldn't tell just how bad the wound was when we got him out.

Well, the wound was apparently caused by a 20-millimeter shell which exploded inside his leg. It completely destroyed about an inch of both bones in the leg. There was simply a gap there, with no bone whatever.

He had already had three operations on this leg, and he will have many more. They will have to graft in new bone and then give it months to grow and strengthen. The doctors say it will be ten months to a year before he can walk, but that eventually he should have 90 per cent use of his leg. That means he will probably walk with a limp, but he will walk.

As his wife wrote me, in a beautiful letter:

"We have our fingers crossed to get him home for Christmas. After that I guess he and Clare Margaret can teach each other to walk."

Clare Margaret is their baby, now nine months old.

IN THE NORTH AMERICAN WAY.

Any one who cares about his or her comfort, personal appearance, health, efficiency and longevity will be satisfied with nothing less than immediate denture service if or when he or she has to lose one or more teeth.

Immediate denture service requires more skill and time and patience—skill on the part of the dentist, time and patience on the part of both dentist and patient—and hence it cost more than the old method under which the victim has to limp along for weeks or months toothless while waiting for the dentist to make the denture or for the gums to heal and become firm enough to support the denture. Immediate denture service therefore costs more—and it is worth more.

The dentist who practices in this modern way takes the impression before extraction of the tooth or teeth prepares the denture, and then proceeds to install the denture immediately after extraction, before the patient leaves the office.

Of course it is not always applicable, even if the dentist has the requisite technical skill, and neither is the denture always entirely comfortable for the first few days, and in more instances the dentist will have to make minor adjustments or alterations of the denture. But on the other hand, many patients declare they have no more discomfort in the first few days than one would expect to have after extraction of one or several teeth, and often enough even members of the patient's own family are unaware that the patient has had any teeth extracted.

Contrary to popular fancy, the healing of the gums is not only not hampered by the denture but the denture acts rather as a control and support for the new gum tissue and promotes more regular formation of new tissue for the support of the denture. Much more important than the mere embarrassment of being toothless is the rapid change in the contour of the face that inevitably accompanies toothlessness—a sagging from flabbiness and a shortening of the distance between nose and chin, changes so familiarly caricatured in the representation of a witch or an old hag. And still more important than this sad loss of whatever good looks the individual may have had, is the impairment of oral digestion which attends loss of the function of mastication. This in the course of weeks or months brings not just the appearance of premature old age but the nutritional deficiency which is physiological old age.

I repeat, immediate denture service is not always applicable even if the dentist is skilled in this method and the patient is eager to have it. But in most instances, if too many teeth have not already been lost, it is the method of choice for the individual who values his or her comfort, appearance, efficiency and health.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Shortness of Breath.

What causes shortness of breath? Could smoking have anything to do with it? I dislike water. Drink hardly a glassful a day. M. Told this will cause arthritis, rheumatism, kidney trouble, hardening of arteries later in life. Is this true? I am 30. (Mrs. G. A. L.)

Answer—Many things may cause shortness of breath, some of them serious, some easily corrected. Overindulgence in tobacco is one cause. Perhaps you get enough water in the foods or beverages in your diet. There is no set rule about drinking water, but several glassfuls a day, especially in warm weather, should be taken ordinarily. It is all right to take a good drink of cold water at the beginning of a meal, if you are thirsty. This tends to stimulate secretion of gastric juice and improve digestion. That shortness of breath, young lady, should warrant a thorough physical or health examination by your physician, just by way of an investment in happiness.

Round Shoulders

Daughter 5, shows tendency to become round shouldered. I am round shouldered, so was my mother. Is it an inherited weakness, mimicry, carelessness or what? (Mrs. S. C. A.)

Answer—Chiefly a nutritional deficiency, I believe. Send ten cents and stamped envelope bearing your address, for "V-I-T-E Spells Youth".

Oil Controller Issues Statement

Toronto, Sept. 13 — (CP) — The Office of Oil Controller G. R. Cottrelle last night issued a statement saying that the difference in the average gasoline consumption per registered motor vehicle in the nine provinces of Canada is due to the "considerable difference in proportion and uses of commercial vehicles included in the motor vehicle registration.

Regarding an Ottawa dispatch to the Windsor Star which quoted figures showing that average consumption of gasoline per motor vehicle was higher in Quebec than in any other province the statement said that dividing the total consumption of gasoline by the number of registered motor vehicles "gives an entirely erroneous impression."

True beauty depends on youthful skin elasticity

14-DAY PALMOLIVE METHOD MAY IMPROVE YOUR SKIN

Compare face with shoulder skin. You'll find shoulders look 5 or more years younger. That's because shoulder skin retains its elasticity—while facial skin pores are clogged with make-up, unable to breathe for hours at a time. And when pores can't breathe skin starts to age prematurely. But Palmolive can help retain youthful elasticity in your skin.

Look younger in 14 days! Each time you wash, (use a face cloth) massage warm, rich, vitalizing Palmolive lather thoroughly into your skin for one full minute. Now a quick rinse and pat dry. Palmolive's 60-second Beauty Massage has been scientifically tested by 2,301 women and 36 doctors. Their reports prove conclusively that . . . in just 14 days, it brings lovelier complexions.

WEDDINGS

CEARLEY—McMEEKIN

The First Presbyterian Church, Prince Rupert, B.C., was the scene on Saturday evening of a very pretty wedding when Miss Margaret Helen, the younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McMeekin, Fourth Avenue East, became the bride of Leading Stoker Francis James Cearley, only son of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Cearley, of Belleville, Ont. The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. F. MacSween.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was charming in her gown of white net over satin. A shoulder length veil-cascaded from a coronet of orange blossoms. A shower bouquet of red roses and white heather, completed the lovely picture.

Mrs. Catherine Armstrong, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. For the occasion, she chose a floor length gown of turquoise blue taffeta, with Dutch bonnet. Her bouquet was a sheaf of carnations and gladioli.

Groomsman was Petty Officer James Irvine, RCNR.

Mr. Duncan McRae and Mr. Reg. Wilson were ushers.

Following the wedding, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, which was beautifully decorated with summer flowers. The happy young couple received the best wishes and congratulations of their many friends, under an arch of pink and white, topped by a wedding bell.

The toast to the bride was given by Mr. D. C. Stuart, with the groom responding suitably. A three-tiered wedding cake was duly cut in traditional style by the bride, while refreshments were served. Pourers were Mrs. F. R. Good and Mrs. H. S. Parker. The serviteurs included Miss Marjorie Eby, Mrs. M. Erickson, Miss Joanne Miller and Miss Marie Amadio.

L/S. and Mrs. Cearley will remain in Prince Rupert, B.C., until the groom receives his new posting. The bride, who was brought up in the city, and who met L/S. Cearley when the latter was stationed here in the naval service, sometime ago, is well-known by everyone. To her and her husband go the best wishes of the community.

Cook Says No Fried Onions No Meal

From U.S.S.R. Information Bulletin

One of the most remarkable features of the Soviet offensives is the success of field kitchens in keeping up with armored spearheads. Their service is at the peak of efficiency while the offensive is at its height.

The commander of a Red Army tank battalion has been telling me about Pervunin, the battalion cook.

"There were days during the Spring offensive when none of us ever imagined the field kitchen would be able to follow us. We gave up all idea of breakfast, lunch or dinner. Yet every time we stopped at one or another line a hot meal appeared as if by magic."

In this battalion Sergeant Major Krutavtsev has charge of the mess. He prepares for each offensive battle as minutely as any of the men who take part in the fighting. After studying the route to be taken by the tanks, he knows exactly where the field kitchen must be to deliver breakfast, lunch or supper. And he always sends along insulated containers in case the kitchen cannot get close enough to the tanks. It is his boast that whatever the circumstances, whatever the weather, his tankmen will get their meals hot and on time. And he has never failed.

Pervunin, the cook, collaborates to perfection. He is an artist of a cook, and an immense believer in the virtues of fried onions. A meal, he considers, is not a meal without fried onions. They are an invariable accompaniment, as essential as salt. Here is one of Pervunin's daily menus:

Breakfast: Meat soup, bread, tea with sugar.

Lunch: Ukrainian borshch, meat and buckwheat porridge.

Supper: Potato puree with fat bacon, tea with sugar.

Even at the height of the fighting he turned out three hot meals a day.

One of the Red Army's most famous "bath trains"—the one presented by the Soviet trade unions—was decorated with the Order of the Red Star when it halted for repairs in Moscow. It is managed by a woman, Captain Anastasya Sharipo. Its official title is "Bath, Laundry and Disinfectant Train."

I visited this train not long ago when it was on service a mile or so behind the front line. I was accompanied by Major Markov, commanding officer of a dive bomber regiment, who wanted to arrange a "wash and brush up" for his men. We found the long train hidden in the woods among sunlit silver birches.

A noise like the pounding of breakers came from a large car in the middle of the train. As we waited a group of soldiers emerged, their faces red and steaming, and bundles of clothing under their arms.

After making an appointment for the major's dive bomber crews, Captain Sharipo showed us around. In addition to the bath wagons, there is a mechanized laundry and disinfecting station, a cloakroom, a barber's shop and a "cultural service car" where the men can relax, listen to the radio, see a film, read papers and magazines and play a game of chess.

During 1943 this particular train provided baths for 170,000 Red Army officers and men, laundered 800,000 sets of underwear and entertained 100,000 men in its "cultural service car."

You Can Have Brighter Teeth!

Impartial laboratories made hundreds of tests. Scientists checked their findings with photoelectric measuring devices and authorized this statement: PEPSODENT POWDER PRODUCES A LUSTRE ON TEETH TWICE AS BRIGHT AS THE AVERAGE OF ALL OTHER LEADING BRANDS . . . BRIGHTER THAN ANY OF THEM—BAR NONE! These results have been double-checked by identical twins who made practical in-the-home tests . . . by technicians in dental clinics . . . by dentists in their own offices. The result is always the same: Pepsodent Powder with Irium makes teeth far brighter.

You Can change a child's face!

This young boy, for example, had badly-arranged "baby" teeth that made his lower jaw protrude . . . threatened to affect his future looks. But modern dentistry, by corrective treatment, improved his looks . . . made the permanent teeth come in properly, too. Yes, dentistry can do wonders in straightening crooked teeth. Or, like the movie stars, you can have chipped or broken teeth recapped. So watch children's teeth carefully. Visit the dentist regularly. For it's the truth . . . a child's personality and future may depend upon the condition of his teeth and how bright and clean they're kept!

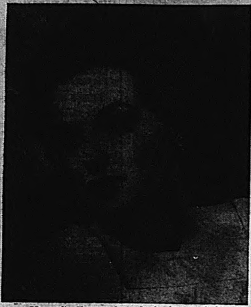
How to Ensure a Healthy Skin



Marguerite Chapman has a lovely, clear complexion.

By HELEN FOLLETT

NO ORGAN of the body shows the effect of ill health as does the skin; many disorders that afflict the human race are reflected to a certain extent in its appearance. So bear with us if we harp often on the need of arranging a well organized existence, becoming a devotee of the goddess Hygeia.

The skin shares the benefits observed by nutrition, speedy circulation, normal elimination of body wastes. The under-nourished individual is without complexion coloring, has a cutaneous coat that is grey, sallow or pale. No cosmetic will correct this condition; the cure is in a balanced diet, one that includes the various elements necessary for well-being.

Cleansing the Skin.

Infected teeth or tonsils may impair the delicate texture and tone of the skin. Lack of bathing, interfering with the functioning of the skin all over the body, can cause blackheads and pimples to form on the face. The complexion is constantly exposed to atmospheric dust, should be washed freely with soap and water at bedtime. To keep the surface smooth, a cream should be applied after the facial tubbing.

There are a few individuals who find that even the blandest soap sets up an irritation or redness. Cleansing meals are good substitutes, or a thin oil can be used.

Cosmetics Helpful.

A clean wash cloth should be used every day; a soiled one is an abomination. Soiled powder and rouge pads are sources of infection.

With cleanliness, lubrication and careful regard for the laws of health any woman should have a complexion of which she is proud. Cosmetics are helpful, they're fun to play with, but they are not the whole good looks story. As is the health of the body, so is the health of the skin.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

A "Mere Man" Asks Some Questions

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I, a "mere man," need help! I expect to be married soon, a "mixed marriage" at a church. No guests, just two witnesses.

1. Is it proper for us to give presents to these witnesses?

2. At this kind of marriage, does the bride carry a bouquet or wear a corsage?

3. Who is supposed to plan the wedding trip? Is that entirely in the bridegroom's hands, or should the bride be consulted? R. H.

1. If these witnesses are friends or even just acquaintances of yours and your fiancee's, it would be thoughtfully generous for you to give some simple gift to the man witness, and for your fiancee to give one to the woman witness. If both are men, or both women, you might give each a gift from you both. These gifts to witnesses who aren't also considered attendants, aren't exactly "necessary" but it is a gracious gesture to give them something memorable of the occasion.

2. Since undoubtedly your bride will be dressed informally, it is appropriate for her to wear a corsage.

3. Although occasionally we hear of a bridegroom who plans a wedding trip as a complete surprise to his bride, usually they plan this trip together. It has been my observation that most girls "have ideas" about where they would like to go on their wedding trip, and as definite ideas as to where they would prefer not to go. So perhaps you'd be a wiser man to consult with your prospective bride about the plans for this romantic journey!

A Swimming Date

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When a girl is on a swimming date, does she pay her own admission to the women's bath-house, or does her escort hand her the fee before he leaves her to go into the men's bath-house? C. C. G.

That depends on the thoughtfulness of the man. It's proper for him to hand her the admission-fee, but it isn't necessarily a gesture that a girl can take for granted. (She'd better carry her own admission-fee .... "in case.") Some men are always thoughtful about these and similar amenities. For another example, some men hand a girl they are taking to a dance the fee for the attendant in the woman's dressing-room.

Black is Not Appropriate

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

At my daughter's church wedding, 7 p.m., I had planned to wear a black gown, but I had been told that black is out of place for me to wear. Is this right? W. H. S.

It is not appropriate for you, the bride's mother, to wear a black gown at the wedding. Your role is an important one, and you, particularly as hostess, should not establish such a "lugubrious" note. You do not necessarily need to wear a gown of pastel shade; you may, for example, wear a dress of a rich burgundy shade, or, if becoming to you, a warm shade of blue.

A Teen-Age Party

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I would like to give a party before I go back to boarding school. It will be just for girls from 15 to 17 years of age. I would like to know if I should plan to have games, or should I just let them talk? L. G.

A group of girls of this age can have fun, and lots of it, just chatting together....and eating. But if to your group of friends a party isn't a party without games, you might have up your sleeve a few plans to play their favorites. Perhaps some pencil-and-paper games, always amusing and intriguing.

CARLTON JUNIORS HAVE DEFAULTED TO THE SQUIRES

No Junior O.A.S.A. Game Will be Played in Belleville Tonight

MAY PLAY SEPT. 23

There will be no Junior O.A.S.A. semi-final softball game played between Belleville Squires and the Toronto Carltons here this evening.

This ultimatum was handed down from Secretary Frank Feaver's O.A.S.A. office in Hamilton to Convener Harry Rollins here last evening.

"The O.A.S.A. cannot tolerate a default in the semi-finals at this stage of the provincial playdowns", stated Secretary Feaver to Mr. Rollins, after the Toronto Carltons had tendered a default in their second game of the O.A.S.A. semi-finals early yesterday. The Toronto management asserted it was impossible to procure leave of absence for several of the Carlton Juniors, who were engaged in war production work. Incidentally the Belleville Squires won the first game of the Junior O.A.S.A. semi-finals by beating the Carltons 5 to 3 in Toronto last Saturday, following which the softball parent body announced the return game in Belleville would be played this evening.

However, there will be no game in Belleville tonight, aside from a girls' final tussle at the Armouries Lawn between Reliance and SWACO.

"With the Belleville Fair coming up next Monday we could not procure the Exhibition Park for a return junior game here on Saturday, Sept. 16th. In conversation with Secretary Feaver it was ruled by the O.A.S.A., that the Toronto Carlton juniors would come to Belleville on Saturday, Sept. 23rd., to play an afternoon game, while in the evening the SACO "Marines" will also play a return Intermediate O.A.S.A. game in the same park", announced Convener Rollins. The provincial junior game will be played as a separate game from the intermediate tussle.

PACIFIC COAST CHAMP.

When Frank Sexton, the Ohio Powerhouse, tangles with John Katan at the Hume Arena tonight Sexton's coast title is not at stake, but his record of never having been defeated in a wrestling ring faces its most torrid test. After all Katan says he has never been defeated in a Belleville ring, which is all the local fans are interested in. It should be quite an interesting meeting at that.

To add spice and color to his greatest show of the season, Promoter Frank Tunney signed Nanjo Singh, that turbulent Hindu, in a rematch with Pierre DeGlane, the popular Montreal wrestler. To open the night's card it's Al Dunlop and Abe Zonkin, the Hamilton rugby star.

CARDS FIELDING AT RAPID PLACE

New York, Sept.. 13 (AP) — St. Louis Cardinals, whose butter-fingered fielding was a big factor in their World's Series defeat by New York Yankees last year, are currently fielding at a pace never equalled in Major League baseball.

Including games of Sept. 11, the Cardinals boast a team fielding percentage of .982, a point higher than the Major League record of .981 set by Cincinnati Reds in 1940.

Of their 132 games to date, the Red Birds have played errorless ball in 58, probably a record.

Leading this group of glue-fielding phenoms is Marty Marion, probably the best fielding shortstop in baseball. He has erred on only 15 of his 631 chances for a .976 percentage, tops for short-fielders in the majors this year. He accepted 15 chances (another high) on July 8 against Pittsburgh, and had 10 assists against Brooklyn 10 days later.

TIGERS PULLING FOR A'S TO TAKE N.Y. YANKEES

Connie Mack's Team Can Pull Yanks Out of First Place With Win

CARDS BEATEN TWICE

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sport Writer)

Connie Mack's lowly Athletics put the chill on Detroit all season, winning 10 to 19 from the pennant contenders, but Tigertown today was 100 per cent behind Philadelphia as the A's tangled with the Yankees in a resumption of American League competition.

If the seventh-place Mackmen can trip New York, Detroit would vault into the lead by .0006. The Yanks-Athletics tilt was the only game scheduled from Monday to Friday but they were due for two more in New York this weekend while Boston plays Washington, St. Louis entertains Chicago and Detroit visits Cleveland.

American League teams, thinking of the World Series, took heart from the Cardinals' continued slump as the Red Birds dropped a double-header to Pittsburgh for their ninth defeat in their last 13 starts.

The Cardinals fell before the Pirates' Fritz Ostermueler, 5-3, in the first game and then dropped the nightcap, 6-5 as Preacher Roe took the decision over Bud Byerly.

Attendance figures reflected the tightness of the flag chase with New York showing the way at 727,386 and the entire league drawing 4,185,000 customers. Detroit was second with 646,642 and a cinch take the lead with 14 more home games to two for the Yanks.

Rain washed out Cincinnati at Chicago and Philadelphia at New York double-headers in the National, after the Phils had taken a 2-0 lead in three innings of the opener. Boston at Brooklyn also was postponed.

Fritz Ostermueller and Babe Dahlgren, Pirates — Ostermueller held Cards to eight hits and chipped in with two safeties as Pittsburgh took opener 5-3; Dahlgren drove home pair of runs in first and homered to help Bucs sweep second tilt, 6-5.

SCHEDULE ANNOUNCED

Toronto, Sept. 13 — (CP)—Harold Bailey, Secretary of the Ontario Rugby Football Union, last night announced complete dates for games in the O.R.F.U. and the newly-formed Ontario Service Football League.

The season opens Sept. 23 with the service league playing two games and one being scheduled in the O.R.F.U. League games will be completed Nov. 4.

What's Doing in Sport

By The Canadian Press

Weighing 10 pounds more than his opponent, Johnny Greco, 144, of Montreal, accredited Canadian titleholder, took less than three rounds last night at Montreal to dispose of Bobby Gunther, dark-hued Detroit scrapper. It was Greco's third fistic engagement since stepping out of a Canadian Army uniform. The feature bout, a scheduled 10-rounder, was witnessed by 10,000.

The Jamestown, N.Y., team again toppled the Lockport nine, champions of the class D Pony League, last night, taking the third straight game 3-0 in the post-season final playoff series. The winners require only one more decision to grab the playoff trophy.

Before the end of the second round of the heavyweight feature last night at New Bedford, Mass., Sgt. Jack Porter, military policeman at Moncton, N.B., had knocked down Felix Del Paoli of Philadelphia 14 times and was awarded the decision on a technical knockout. Porter, 191, flattened Del Paoli, 212, seven times in the first round and seven times in the unfinished second frame.

Based on the showing of farm teams, the Chicago Cubs look to have substantial reinforcements in prospect for next season. Among their minor league affiliates, Los Angeles has a long lead in the Pacific Coast League; Milwaukee copped the American Association pennant; Lockport, N.Y., won the Pony League race while Nashville earned the second-half flag in the Southern Association. Only 10 minor leagues operated this year.

Sports Roundup

New York, Sept. 13 (AP)—From somewhere in France, Cpl. Doug Gary writes: "When we came to England the kids had no life at all. Games didn't interest them. But after a year or so all the kids were playing baseball, yelling, fighting like they do back home....Even the service Tommies, R.A.F., etc., took up baseball in preference to cricket. Now the cricketeers are afraid baseball will completely ruin their game."....The Columbus Red Birds, who set a record by winning the little World Series the last three years in a row—and under three different managers—retained Nick Cullop as pilot this year and failed to make the American Association play-offs by .001 per cent.

Team championship of Fred Lipovetz's "700" bowling clubs of America goes to the Clinton, Iowa, club with a 3218 score. Frank Serpico of Philadelphia topped the list with three 700 or better series last season, including one even 800.... Stan Lomax has just been re-elected President of the New York sports broadcasters and Ted Husing is chairman of the overpowering committee. Believe it or not, that's no reference to Ted's language.

BIRDS AND BEARS WILL BENEFIT BY THE LAYOFF

Extra Day of Rest May Change Entire Course of Playoffs

LEAFS MEET BEARS

(By The Associated Press)

Baltimore and Newark, pennant winners and runners-up of the International League pennant race, are the teams most likely to have benefited from the complete washout of yesterday's Governor's Cup playoff schedule, which opens tonight. Buffalo plays at Baltimore and Toronto at Newark.

The Orioles and Bears fought a hectic race right down to the wire, with each club squeezing the maximum from its overworked pitching staff. An extra day of rest might conceivably change the entire course of the playoff with the top two contenders rested enough to flatten the third and fourth place clubs.

Manager Bucky Harris of Buffalo has elected to change his starting hurler from Bob Gillespie to Forrest Orrell, while the remaining three clubs are content to string along with the starters previously announced.

Players who have not been overly publicized and who may well alter the course of events in the playoffs are Mayo Smith of Buffalo, Tony Castano of Toronto, Newark's Danny Reynolds and Blas Monaco of Baltimore. Monaco has accounted for three grand slam home runs this season while Mayo Smith has been batting with teammate Eddie Kobesky for league batting honors.

Tony Castano, quietly near the batting title all season for the Maple Leafs, and Danny Reynolds, who provided payoff hits for the Bears when they were most needed, round out the quartet of hitters who may shine during the series.

Beurling, who will visit the west coast before returning to England, expects to be in China within the next two months.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By JOHN LeBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Halifax, Sept. 13 — (CP)—Every once in a while this department sees pictures of prehistoric men carelessly whaling each other across the noggin with outsize clubs. Were these shilleighs in reality hockey sticks? We haven't gone into the subject deeply enough to render an opinion, but we hereby offer it to palaeontologists as a matter of research in the hope they may be able to strike a blow for sport and Canadian unity.

This suggestion comes to mind as the result of some new discoveries bearing on the rivalry between Kingston, Ont., and Halifax as to which community gave birth to the game of hockey. It seems the Halifax protangonists have been stirring up the dust in the archives and have come up with a year that makes Kingston's 1865 birth claim look like ultra-modern stuff.

According to these earnest researchers, they have dug out of an ancient publication a news item to the effect that hockey — or a reasonable facsimile thereof — was played hereabouts in 1779.

This, they said, makes it obvious that old gaffers in the Kingston hot stove league of 1865 undoubtedly were grumbling even then that the new crop of hockey players couldn't hold a candle to the men of the old Halifax circuit of '79.

At any rate this looks like the cleavage between the Halifax and the Kingston, or Upper Canada, factions is going to get wider than ever, with loud outcries of dissent going up from either side and national unity taking a severe beating.

Which puts the question up to the palaeontologists. Personally, we're in favor of seeing them get right to the bottom of this thing, ending the argument once and for all.

In the meantime, the Halifax's supporters will go right ahead with their plans to set up a hockey hall of fame in opposition to Kingston's. The leader in the movement is J. E. (Gee) Ahern, who divides his time between sports, editing the Halifax Herald and Mail and acting as deputy mayor. Next move, he says, will be the appearance of a book with Halifax's claims documented. Meantime, too, he says, Kingston can chew over that 1779 business.

AIRGRAPH RATE REDUCED

Ottawa, Sept. 13 — (CP)—Postmaster General Mulock yesterday announced a reduction from 10 to five cents, effective Sept. 15, in the airgraph rate for mail addressed to civilians.

The new rate puts civilian mail on the same basis as mail to the armed forces and applies to mail to any country in which the airgraph service is available. This includes Great Britain, Australia, New Zealand, the Middle East and a number of countries in Africa. Mail to the armed forces may also be sent by airgraph to France and Italy.

Have a "Coke" = You're back among friends

. . . or a way to put service men at ease

In its atmosphere of kindliness, home is hospitality headquarters with Welcome so often summed up in three words, Have a "Coke". To a service man it expresses a bond of understanding and friendliness. He hears it quite often at camp. It's one of his ways of saying You're my pal. Around the globe, Coca-Cola is spreading the custom of the pause that refreshes,—has become a symbol of friendly refreshment to folks at home and at war.

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 479

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Some bridge players bid by ear, eye, nose and throat. It gets them into the darndest contracts. But they seem to like it. Maybe they don't know any better.

Those who know better give dependable signals with each bid. With such signals, partners plainly tell each other what they have and what to do about it.

Take a pair of partnership hands likes these:

SOUTH
♠Q 10 8 7 5 4 2
♥J 4
♦6
♣7 5 3
NORTH
♥A Q 2
♦A K Q 2
♣A J 2

North opens with two no-trump. Notice that it not an opening of two in a suit. There is a difference. Two in a suit is forcing to a game. Two no-trump is not.

An opening of two no-trump is a signal that shows eight high cards or their equivalent. It promises a hand that expects to take eight tricks in no-trump.

But that's not all. It also signals: "Partner, I have all but one high card to make a game in no-trump. With no high card, you may pass; with a high card or better, bid something."

It signals further: "If you bid something, follow the order of choice in T-A-N: takeout, assist, no-trump. So, if you do anything but pass, I will know we have a game in no-trump, at least."

South responds with three spades to show his biddable suit. But the fact that he did not pass was his signal for saying he has a high card. His spade queen is a high card.

Consequently, north bids three no-trump. Then south, to show his suit is rebiddable, calls four spades. And that gives north ideas.

Since south has a long suit, he must have one or more short suits. So, a slam in spades looks promising. And for all north yet knows, there may even be a grand slam in their pair.

Stranger things than that have happened.

LONDON LETTER

By ALAN RANDAL
(CP Staff Writer)

London, Sept. 13 — (CP)—V-day, when it comes, is going to be rough on the pocket book in London's west end. The people of the entertainment world are getting ready for it now and have their price lists pretty well sorted out. Or jacked up may be a better way of putting it.

If young Mr. London wants to take his wife or best girl to the west end to celebrate in a big way on Victory Day it will cost about $500 according to current calculations.

This includes a new evening dress for the wife who probably hasn't had an evening dress since war broke out because clothing coupons were needed for more necessary things. Then comes the price of good seats at the Victory parade, a bang-up dinner at a famous west end hotel, a box at the theatre and a few hours in a "hot spot" night club.

Theatre agencies, restaurants, dress-making establishments and night clubs are the authorities for these prices.

An evening dress will cost anything up to $200. The theatre box will be $30. The hotel dinner $40 and if young Mister London isn't ready to spend $30 at the "hot spot" night club he'd better not even think of going there.

The new Board of Trade orders governing the sale of furniture have the dealers in a state of dismay. These orders mean hours of overtime, extra staff, checking and rechecking of every invoice, scrutinizing every piece of furniture, and new involved bookkeeping systems.

"It takes a brave man to sell a piece of furniture nowadays," said one dealer. "He either sells at a loss or if he sells it at a profit he cannot sleep at night because he has broken the law."

Furniture now must be ticketed with its selling price; its serial number in the trader's stock record, its reference number in the schedule, and whether it is new or second hand.

How to make Britain into the world's tourist centre No. 1 has been occupying the attention of the travel and industrial development association. London, if the tourists chiefs have their way, will be the chief attraction. PICTON

91-Year-Old Gets Maskinonge Weighing 20 lbs.

Picton, ept. 13 — There may be bigger 'lunge caught but it is doubtful if there are older fishermen than Gilbert Badgley who caught one on a recent day. This 91-year-old resident of Big Island was trolling in the Bay of Quinte when a 20-pound muskie struck. After a half-hour struggle, Mr. Badgley got it to the side of the boat. Lacking a gaff, he used his fingers to haul in the big fish. As he rowed to shore, the fish knocked the plug out of the boat and it started to fill with water. Mr. Badgley remedied this, but by the time he reached shore he was too tired to carry the fish to his home, attaching a string and dragging it behind him.

Cpl. R. Selwyn Dies of Wounds

Picton, Sept. 13 — Another Prince Edward County casualty is reported. Cpl. Richard Selwyn is officially reported to have died of wounds suffered in France. He was reported missing on Aug. 16. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Jones Lewis, Wellington, and was 31 years of age. Previous to enlistment, he was employed on the McIntyre gold mines staff at Schumacher. He was a member of the Algonquin Reserve Army until joining for active service in 1941, going overseas early in 1942. He was an only son.

The fund opened to assist in the rebuilding of Christ Church (Anglican) at Hillier, which was recently struck by lightning and destroyed, has reached $4,200 in cash, pledges and insurance ($1500), Rev. E. N. Grant, Wellington, announced yesterday. Not only have Prince Edward County people and churches responded but others in the diocese. The Women's Guild of Cataraqui Anglican Church sent $25. Rebuilding awaits the securing of materials.

Picton R.A.F. soccer team was in Toronto over the weekend playing in the semi-finals of the command playdowns. They were eliminated 5-2 by the Royal Norwegian Air Force, who lost in the finals to Jarvis. Two of the local stars were playing in the United States and several members have returned to England.

Mail service to Italy is praised by Pte. Murney Johnson, with the P. L. D.G.'s there. He states that parcels are received six weeks after mailing and that cigarettes are now received in 12 days. Letter deliveries are rapid. This improvement is much appreciated by the men, he says..

F. L. Ward and C. A. Jones left today for the Moosonee district on a hunting trip.

Home, Community Must Share Blame For Delinquency

Picton, Sept. 13 — That the home and community must share the blame of juvenile delinquency, was the contention of Miss Violet Anglin, new superintendent of Prince Edward County Children's Aid Society, in an address at the Rotary Club yesterday. Miss Anglin recently came here from Kingston.

The speaker noted the problems arising out of fathers serving away from home in the forces, the receipt of allowance cheques by mothers and the fact that both parents are often employed, leaving home life neglected. Too many homes are suffering from a breakdown of home life, she declared.

Only the home can fill some of the needs of the child, but centres where recreation and instruction are provided are a benefit, she said.

It is not necessary to have elaborate club rooms, but preferably one where boys might have a part in its planning. Let us be practical, let us think first and foremost of the boy and his needs and how best we can serve him, not by doing for him, but by providing him with the tools and guiding him in their use, she urged.

Miss Anglin detailed an account of a boys' club and how members fixed it up themselves. Sports were organized and recreation provided by leaders. The result was all that could be desired.

The speaker stressed the need of proper leadership. Co-operation of parents should be enlisted.

We have to win this war, and we can, but what is the use of all this work and sacrifice, the sorrow and suffering, if we are doing nothing for the next generation—those who are children today? asked Miss Anglin.

The Rotary Club will meet Thursday night to discuss formation of a boys' club here.

U. S. SUB LOST

Washington, Sept. 13 — (AP) — The submarine Gudgeon with her crew of approximately 65 officers and men is overdue and presumed lost, the United States Navy announced today.

Ancient Citadel Ideally Informal Setting for Talks

Quebec, Sept. 13 — (CP) — Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt prefer informal settings for the conferences at which world-shaking decisions are made.

They have just the setting they desire at the old citadel high above the St. Lawrence.

Mr. Churchill has his living quarters on the first floor of the old stone building and the President is on the second floor, where both have offices. The President's map room is within 15 feet of his door and signals equipment is installed there for immediate communication with Washington, and through Washington to the world.

The President and Mr. Churchill move freely about the building. sometimes they meet in a large room off the terrace and the president has a small reception room where they sit in comfortable chairs.

When the chiefs of staff are called into consultation, the meetings are held in the large room near the terrace, but the same informal atmosphere prevails.

Both the President and Mr. Churchill work long hours, and they are accessible to each other at any time. After a dinner given by the Governor-General and Princess Alice Mon. night both studied papers before retiring, and both were at work again early next morning.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King occupies rooms adjoining those of Mr. Churchill on the ground floor of the Citadel and has offices on the second floor.

While Mr. King is not sitting in on the meetings between them, he sees them frequently and is in and out of the rooms where they meet.

"THAT KEITH WOMAN"

By Phyllis Moore Gallagher

CHAPTER 18

"And what do you expect to find?"

"I don't know," I whispered. "Maybe some blood. Maybe....How do I know until I sleuth?",

"As if the poice hadn't been over all these rooms with a magnifying glass," Peter remarked.

"Just the same I want to look around."

"You don't have a nose for sleuthing, Letty. Not long enough or pointed enough," mused Peter. "That nasal button is a definite handicap. But go ahead and try; I'll watch from the hall. If you hear two knocks, scram!"

Fanella's room yielded nothing but bits of food, a soiled plate from last night's snack, and a lot of clothes that would have been better for pressing.

Luke's room, too, showed lack of domestic discipline. The bed had been poorly made, the rugs needed sweeping, there's dust on the mahogany chest of drawers, tables and chairs. I searched thoroughly but nothing important came to light. Jamming my hands in my pockets in irritation, I suddenly felt something metallicly cold against my fingers.

Drawing out the object from my right pocket, I saw that is was a rhinestone clip. I couldn't remember where I'd found it. Then it all came back clearly. I'd run across that glittering bauble in Vic Corliss' tuxedo pocket. Until this moment I'd forgotten the clip completely. Rhinestones did not make me think of Sandra Keith....She who detested costume jewelry.

THAT FANCY LITTLE BOW OF SHINING GLASS MADE ME THINK OF MARCELLA KINGSLEY!

MARCELLA KINGSLEY!—VICTOR CORLISS. Was there a connection?

Suddenly my spine went rigid. I heard Peter's double knock on the door; then his feet running swiftly, almost silently, along the corridor.

Quickly I ducked into the bath that opened off Marvin's and Elsie's room, closed and locked the door. Turning, I saw there was another door which led to an unoccupied bedroom—the yellow room—and I locked that door, too. I started up the water in the lavatory, began to splash and do things noisily with towels.

It was a charming bath, an ornate affair with green and white tiles and concealed lighting above a shelfed frieze of merry mermaids. I admired the sunken tub which seemed almost big enough to float an armada of PT boats, flicked on the lights, flicked them off, flicked them on again—and stood looking upward, my mouth open in surprise. There was something missing!

The lights were spaced evenly, each bulb about two feet from its neighbor. However just over the dressing table which was skirted in green waterproof taffeta and covered with all sorts of cosmetics, undoubtedly Elsie Eustace's possessions—I noticed a break in the pattern of lights. Curious, I climbed up on the dressing-table stool, then onto the glass-topped table, peering over the shelfed frieze with its merry mermaids. My heart stopped suddenly; then began to race.

At last I'd found something!

Climbing down, I had a little metal tube in my hand. The legend on its face claimed that this cream, applied so-and-so, would hide blemishes, pimples, birthmarks and what-have-you....Would it hide—teeth bites? Was it now hiding such tell-tale marks on Marvin's throat? Had it been Marvin who attacked me on the grounds right after Pamela's dinner? It could have been....While I was upstairs getting my cape and looking around for my evening bag, he could have slipped out of the house, perhaps even up to the hotel, to make that phone call to Pam.... The more I thought about it, the more certain I was that this was so.

As far as I knew there had been little checking done on that period of time when everyone was moving from the dining-room into the drawing-room for coffee...While I was upstairs looking around for my evening bag the day of Sandra's debut: In the yellow bedroom adjoining this bath.

I wondered if the bag were still in there and knew, instinctively, that it was not. That missing bag explained one thing that had puzzled me. The murderer hadn't climbed into my room through the window from the balcony the night I was attacked. Detective Hornbower was wrong in thinking that. The murderer—man or woman—had found my bag, had taken the keys to my apartment out of it, and used them! I always keep an identification tag on my keyring.

I turned off the splashing water and, for a long moment, stood staring down at the tiny tube in my hand. Was it loaded with fingerprints? Had it been carefully wiped before being thrown up beyond the shelfed frieze? Someone must have been in a great hurry to dispose of it like that...

If the metal tube hadn't jarred the bulb and put it out of commission, I doubt if anyone would have thought of looking up there for anything.

Wrapping the tube in my handkerchief, I held it gingerly so as not to blur any possible fingerprints.

Then another thought struck me. Almost anyone could have tossed that tube up there. Just because this was the Eustace's bath, it didn't mean the tube belonged to Marvin or Elsie. While Hornblower was questioning us this morning, I had seen almost all the suspects go upstairs one time or another. Yes, it could have been anyone—and I was right back where I'd started.

"Letty, have you died in there?"

It was Peter Gibson outside the bathroom door. I turned the key in the lock, stepped out into the unoccupied guest-room, and started to tell him what I'd discovered.

"Not here, dear! The Eustaces may come up," Peter said, and took my hand.

Together we hurried out of the yellow room, made our way to the small morning room over the southwest corner of the ballroom. I promptly unfolded my handkerchief and exhibited my find to Peter who immediately shut the door and bundled the ube up in the handkerchief again. Then he exploded in choked tones.

"Good Lord, Letty! Haven't you any sense at all! This is a murder case. Murder! I don't know how important that tube is. But suppose it is a clue and the assassin learns you have it...."

"Who was it came upstairs a few minutes ago?" I interrupted.

Peter pushed me down on the sofa in front of the window, and took a place beside me.

"It was the Countess and Luke Cramer," he answered. "They came up to lie down—separately, of course."

"Did they come up together?"

"Yes."

Then we discussed the tube of blemish cream, and I declared: "I'm on a fresh hunt for teeth bites now. I didn't know before there was a cream which could hide such marks. And while I'm on that subject, Peter, just how did you get those marks on your throat?"

Color swept into his face.

"Well, that night....the night Pamela Keith was murdered...." he began. "I had a date. And you must remember, Letty, I made that date before I met you."

"Stellita Carlisle?" I said, remembering what Clem Barkley had told me.

"For heaven's sake!" exploded Peter. "Can you read minds?"

"No. I can't and I don't," I said. "Clem Barkley told me about you and Stellita Carlisle. She was your—alibi."

"Oh," murmured Peter "So you' can't read minds. Well, thank the Lord for that!"

"Go on with your story."

"Well I had a date with Stellita. She met me in the cocktail lounge at the hotel. We drank and talked till nearly eleven fifteen, then I took her home. In the taxi... I don't know just how to describe this....You see, I was pretty keen about Stellita—once. She was the first mature woman I'd ever run around with and I—well, I got in rather deep." He looked straight at me and color flamed in his face again as he fumbled for words.

"Anyway, I had to tell her we were—all washed up. That was one of the things I'd come down from New York to attend to. Stellita didn't believe me. Not at first. I'm not going to describe any of the grim details. There was an ugly moment or two. Well to make a long story short, she bit me and, having to tell this story, is making me sound like a cad."

"So she bit you? Nice girl!" I remarked.

Peter ignored that. "You can't imagine how I felt that night when you told me you could read minds and followed it up with that crack about teeth—a girl's teeth."

"You did look startled," I admitted.

"Startled! I aged ten years!"

"I never did think you murdered Pamela," I offered. "Not really."

"No?" queried Peter mockingly.

"Well, I didn't."

"I thought maybe you did it," said Peter sadly.

"Why, you—you wicked...."

"But I loved yuo just the same."

"For any such suspicion, you ought to have your head examined," I rejoined tartly. "That's no compliment, Peter Gibson. I wouldn't want you to love me if I was a—murderess."

"You'd want me to—recoil?"

"Precisely."

"Well, darling, you see I had decided that if you murdered Pamela she deserved it," said Peter. "I was going to help all I could. Even"... he put his head down, his hands over his eyes..."even if I had to confess to the crime myself."

"Why-y, Peter I started to expostulate, really touched—until I bent and looked up under his hands at his broad grin...I was just about to slap him hard when the door opened.

Charlotte Cunningham came in, and I dropped my hand without inflicting punishment. She said that Sergeant Hornblower had returned and wanted everyone in the library at once. Then she flounced away with a rustle of lavendar taffeta and white satin petticoats.... I could understand what Pamela had meant when she'd said Charlotte was "on the make" for all gentlemen callers, and that she wanted to fire the little hussy. I wouldn't have had the girl around ten minutes, I thought. Charlotte had the face of an angel, all right, but there was nothing angelic about her from the neck down.

Peter bent toward me. "You can do what you please, Letty," he whispered, "but I'd advise you to turn this tube over to Sergeant Hornblower. Pronto!"

"All righ'," I agreed.

Sergeant Hornblower's questioning went on until seven p.m. When he finally finished, he told us we were free to leave the house but he warned us to be available on short notice.

Peter Gibson and I wandered up Crystal Room, then sauntered into to the hotel. We had dinner in the the cocktail lounge to listen idly to the dance music and to chat.... We went from books to music, and from music to gardens, and from gardens to politics, and from politics to the Keith case mysteries. All at once I was silent. A number of pictures were running through my mind, pictures falling into place and making a whole unbroken panorama....

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop wasn't down to breakfast yet, and ma said, Oh dear I've done it again. I've left my diamond ring in the bathroom and your father is sure to find it and put it in his pocket to teach me his proverbial lesson about being more careful with it. Oh dear, run up and see if it's still on the washstand, Benny, she said.

Meaning to bring it down if it was, only it wasn't and pop was just finishing shaving his face with an innocent expression, not even asking me what I was looking for, and I went down again, saying to ma, He must have it already, ma, but here's his watch off of his night table if you want it for revenge.

Give it to me quick, oh goody, ma said ,and pretty soon pop came down looking kind of absent minded and saying to himself, Now where the dooce.

And he felt in his watch pocket as if he didn't expect to find anything in there, which he didn't, and ma said, Anything wrong, William?

Not a thing, pop said, and ma said, By the way, exactly what time is it?

I can tell you the precise date, pop said, and ma said, I know the date for land sakes, I want you to look at your watch and tell me what time it is.

History repeats itself, and in times of national stress we are forced to abandon our advanced sistem of currency and return to the age old method of barter, pop said. I will barter you one piece of jewelry for one timepiece, he said, and ma said, In other words do you mean you know when you're licked?

Check and double check, pop said.

Meaning yes.

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE

Toronto, Sept. 13 —(CP)— Golds and industrials worked lower this afternoon on Toronto Exchange. Other groups held steady. Trading was active with turnover at 374,000 shares.

Golds took an index loss of .93 before putting on a small rally. Declines of 10 cents or more came out for Frobisher, Giant Yellowknife, O'Brien, San Antonio and Macassa. Cochenour Willans was a feature of the trade as it climbed 15 cents to 2.74.

Smelters gained ¾ and prices weakened a bit for Nickel and Steep Rock.

Lower prices ruled in industrials for foods, utilities and papers. Gypsum lost ⅛ to 8, Ford was off ½ to 25½ and Canada Packers lost 2 points to 113.

Pacific Refineries netted a recovery of 8 cents from yesterday's decline and Foothills gained 5 cents.

LIVESTOCK

Toronto, Sept. 13 — (CP)—Cattle trade was very slow on the livestock market here up to mid-session today with sales too few to establish prices. Small lots of butcher steers and heifers brought $8-$10.50 and few stockers $8-$10.

Calves were firm at $14-$14.50 for choice with common vealers downward to $7 and grassers mostly $6.

Lambs were steady at $13-$13.50 Good ewes and wethers with bucks $12-$12.50 and culls $8.

Hogs were steady at $17.85 grade A dressedweight and sows $13-$13.25 dressed.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Marketing Service were: cattle 400, calves 400, hogs 400, sheep and lambs 500. Unsold from yesterday were 3,100 head of cattle.

LIVESTOCK

Montreal, Sept. 13 — (CP) — Receipts were: cattle 10; sheep and lambs 100; hogs 100; calves 20.

A few canners and cutters sold at 4-5.50. Sheep 12-12.50 for good ewes and wethers with bulk 12.50. Bucks discounted 1 per cwt.

Veal calves 10-14 according to quality. Hogs 17.65 for grade "A". Sows 12.50-13 dressed.

HOGS

Toronto, Sept. 13 (CP)—Prices were unchanged at bacon-hog markets reporting early today. Dressedweight, Grade A, delivered, London and Hamilton $17.50; Stratford to farmers $17.50; to truckers $17.65; Hull $17.40; Barrie $17.65.

WALL STREET

New York, Sept. 13—(AP)—Buying interest in stocks continued highly selective today benefitting principally a few industrial specialties and overlooking the general run of leaders.

Some of the pivotals tried to move ahead in the early proceedings but gave up in the face of light selling. Near the fourth hour trends were mixed with price variations narrow. Dealings matched the low figures of recent sessions.

Awaiting events at the Churchill-Roosevelt conference at Quebec and in the battle of Germany, market followers generally showed no disposition to discard their recent auction.

In the Canadian list, Dome Mines eased ⅜ and Lake Shore ¼. Hiram Walker gained ⅛ and Distillers Seagrams ¼.

Bonds and commodities were irregular.

Early Onslaught On Philippines Seems Possible

By W. L. BEALE, JR.
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Quebec, Sept. 13 —(AP)— An Allied onslaught on the Philippines before the last echoes of this Roosevelt-Churchill victory conference die away seemed possible today as the British and American commands discussed the shortest cut to global victory.

In President Roosevelt's map room on the second floor of the Governor-General's residence on the moated citadel, the European battle lines as well as those of more fluid naval attacks spearing toward Tokyo are carefully charted. But in all official statements, the gold-braid conference of staff officers in the 800-room Chateau Frontenac is nailed to the Pacific war and Britain's determination to help blot out Japanese aggression.

International political relations across the narrow channel between Britain and France, involving the Dumbarton Oaks security talks at Washington and the future of the British - American - Soviet advisory commission in London, press for swift dispatch of purely military business.

In the Pacific Ocean, air and naval attacks set the pace for events to come.

See Allied Troops in Philippines Soon.

Some military men say Allied troops will be in the Philippine Islands before next month.

The Philippines, Formosa, the Japanese homeland, presumably would be primarily an American show.

India, Burma, Malaya and the Netherlands East Indies would be assigned to British command—a job given Admiral Mountbatten at an earlier Quebec conference 13 months ago.

For Britain's part, reports from London relayed through Washington put virtually her entire fleet at the disposal of the Allied combined chiefs of staff once Berlin is occupied. But in the far reaches of the Pacific, supply is the initial worry, and this big factor could operate to limit the number of fighting ships.

Coldwell Speaks At Labor Parley

By CHARLES BRUCE

London, Sept. 13 (CP Cable)—M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. parliamentary leader, speaking at the opening session of the first conference of British and Dominion labor parties, said that "social and economic improvement of man" is the only sound foundation for permanent peace.

Meantime, he said, collective security must be attained into the framework of which enemy countries which purge themselves of Fascist ideas could join.

"The right to use force must be in the hands only of an international union for the outlawry of war" said Mr. Coldwell.

Twice in a lifetime "we have found we dare not leave nations' fates in the hands of a system whose motive is private gain," he said.

The war had altered unemployment and "our unwanted youths are flying our planes." The nobler tasks of peace should be undertaken in the spirit in which wartime tasks have been accomplished.

"If we can produce planes, tanks, guns and bombs, we must build homes, make clothes, produce food and provide schools and hospitals," the C.C.F. leader said.

T. C. Davies, secretary of the Western Australia Branch of the Australian Labor Party, urged that post-war planning not be left too late.

AMERICANS REPORTED 4 MILES FROM AACHEN

Several German Towns Captured In Rotgen Sector

Canadians Draw Net Closer About Three Channel Ports

With Americans in Germany, Sept. 14 —(AP)— Infantry and tanks smashed two miles deep into the Siegfried line on a front four miles wide today after attacking from across the dripping, mist-hidden hills northwest of Trier.

Allied Supreme Headquarters, Sept. 14 (AP) — Several small German towns in the sector near Rotgen have been captured, it was announced today at Supreme Headquarters.

Names of the villages, in the central area within ten miles of the great communications centre of Aachen, were not disclosed.

(A Brussels broadcast said today United States troops are now 4 1-3 miles from Aachen. Federal communications commission monitors heard the broadcast.)

London, Sept. 14 (AP) — Berlin-bound British and American armies struck into the 15-mile-wide appendix of The Netherlands in a thrust apparently intended to flank from the north the German border city of Aachen, already besieged from the south.

Two Crossings Made

Two crossings were made into The Netherlands, one by the British 2nd. Army thrusting north of Bourg-Leopold and the second described in today's Allied communique as by "Allied" troops near Maastrict, 20 miles northwest of Aachen.

This second thrust presumably was made by U.S. 1st. Army forces which already had been reported operating near Maastrict.

The 1st. Canadian Army continued to draw its nets tighter about the Channel ports of Dunkerque, Calais and Boulogne, while one front-line dispatch said Canadian elements had driven across the formidable barrier of the Leopold Canal just south of the Belgian-Netherlands border.

The crossing was reported made at Moerkere, five miles northeast of Brugge (Bruges), in the face of bitter machine-gun and mortar fire.

As the 1st. Canadian Army continued to draw its nets tighter about the Channel ports of Dunkirk, Boulogne and Calais, the British 2nd. Army beat off renewed German attacks on its Albert Canal bridgehead. Other Canadians were last reported probing German defences on the Leopold Canal near the Belgian-Netherlands frontier.

Weak Resistance

Resistance was said to be surprisingly weak near the south of Aachen, a northern keystone of the Siegfried Line. Field dispatches reported thhe Germans might be falling back for a major stand on the Rhine—some 40 miles to the east in this sector. This suggested that the Germans were making another trade of space for time.

The British 2nd. Army beat off repeated local German counter-attacks against their whole northern bulge which apparently had broken faint German hopes of holding any sort of a defence line along the Albert Canal in Belgium. British troops already had crossed the Scaut Canal, which runs 66 miles roughly east from Antwerp through Massenhoven, Herenthals and Degroote into Holland.

This drive was aimed squarely at the road centre of Eindhoven, 11 miles north of the border—and a Paris broadcast said Tommies already had reached the town.

Air reconnaissance in wide sweeps over The Netherlands showed neither any considerable German troop concentrations nor any heavy movement by road or rail. What there was headed east.

Meanwhile back on the Brittany peninsula progress was made in the reduction of the Atlantic port of Brest was the capture of a German fort two miles east of the city.

A Berlin broadcast this morning said a terrific aerial bombardment in the Metz area had touched off a new American offensive. There was no immediate official Allied comment, but field dispatches said American shell-fire in that sector had drawn no reaction.

WAGE RATES ADJUSTED

Ottawa, Sept. 14 — (CP) — Wages paid "prevailing rate" government employees across Canada, most of them engaged in construction work, have been reviewed and in many cases are being adjusted, to bring them into line with rates paid in the community in which the employees are working, Labor Department officials said today.

Federal Election Nov. 27 Predicted

By R. K. CARNEGIE
(CP Staff Writer)

Quebec, Sept. 14 —(CP)— Liberal members of Parliament who have come to Quebec after talking matters over with cabinet ministers in Ottawa are prophesying that a federal general election will be held Nov. 27—the last Monday of the month—or at latest early in December.

The date will be largely decided by the progress of the war in Europe. If Germany collapses or is so knocked about as to be unable to carry on the fight on a substantial scale there would be nothing to prevent Prime Minister Mackenzie King from fixing an election date well before the Christmas holidays.

Reports from London yesterday said American war planning officers overseas are figuring that organized resistance in Germany will end by Oct. 31, at the "outside." If that proves true, the Canadian elections could be held at the end of November or early in December without conflicting with Prime Minister Mackenzie King's indication that he would not call an election before the war was won unless he was forced to do so to avoid extending the life of parliament, which automatically ends in April.

(The Ottawa Citizen yesterday quoted Parliament Hill circles as predicting that the federal election will come between Dec. 6 and Dec. 20. The newspaper said that it is generally expected parliament will be prorogued by Oct. 7. Dissolution by the latter date would allow for a period of from 50 to 60 days before voting took place.)

Hurricane May Not Hit Mainland

Wilmington, N.C., Sept. 14 (AP)—Gales swept the entire North Carolina coast early today as a great tropical hurricane moved northward over the ocean but the centre of the storm appeared to have changed course so that it may not hit the mainland except for possibly the tip of Cape Matteras.

The Wilmington weather bureau said early today that the centre of the storm passed northward possibly 150 miles east of Wilmington.

Winds of 30 to 50 miles an hour blew from south of Wilmingtonto northward to Beaufort. The barometer started climbing here and the danger seemed past.

Frequency Modulation Stations Not Widespread Until After War

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Sept. 14 —(CP)— Use of frequency modulation stations to improve radio broadcasting in Canada likely will not become widespread until after the war but experiments and public demonstrations will begin in Montreal and Toronto within a few months, Dr. Augustin Frigon, general manager of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, said today.

Dr. Frigon told The Canadian Press the CBC believed frequency modulation—a new type of transmission which does away with static and interference in radio reception—should be introduced generally in Canada when conditions permit.

"However, we don't want to stampede or to be stampeded into the field," he added.

In Montreal, the CBC is preparing to build a frequency modulation station atop Mount Royal while a suitable site for a similar station is being sought in Toronto. When the stations are established in a few months, all CBC programs in the two cities will be broadcast over frequency modulation transmitters.

Present Sets Not Fitted.

Listeners generally, however, will not note any difference in reception because the present-day receiving sets are not fitted for frequency modulation reception. A number of special receivers will be distributed by the CBC "among a few persons qualified to pass judgment," on the operations.

Dr. Frigon said it was expected some stores would put on demonstrations to illustrate the difference between ordinary reception and frequency modulation reception but it was unlikely that any new radio sets, fitted to pick up both ordinary and frequency modulation reception, would be built before next year.

The difference between ordinary and frequency modulation receivers was very technical. About the only similarity between the two was the type of loud speaker used. Some engineers have stated that it would not be economical to have present-day receivers rebuilt into frequency modulation receivers.

Russians Fight Way Into Streets of Praga at Warsaw

BELGIAN CAPTIVES STRUNG TO CEILING AND BLUDGEONED

Men Crowded In Compartments Only 3 Feet Square, Deep And Tortured by Huns

ATROCITIES RELATED

By HAROLD MAYES
(Reuter War Correspondent)

Brussels, Sept. 14. (CP-Reuter)—Atrocities committed by the Germans were described vividly when I visited the former Gestapo headquarters in a peaceful Brussels street.

Men were herded into tiny compartments measuring only three feet square, by three feet deep and subjected to torture if they refused to talk.

Others were placed 40 and 50 in a room only nine feet by seven.

Pregnant women were kicked in the stomach and burned with lighted cigaret ends.

Thousands Suffer Horribly.

This was the Gestapo headquarters for the whole of Belgium and Northern France and in dungeons, comparable only with those of bygone ages, thousands of citizens were subjected to horrible treatment.

In one small room with light and air from only one small grating in the pavement 24 people were herded.

One person was allowed out each day to be given an opportunity to talk.

There was no light, no comfort of any description and their only contact with their guards was through a small grill in the heavy steel door.

Black Bread, Soup.

Their daily food was a small piece of black bread and a mug of thin soup not much thicker than water.

One of the men who was in prison there for four days last July told me his story.

The prisoners were strung to the ceiling by their feet and bludgeoned with metal-loaded rubber truncheons. Their fingernails were pulled off.

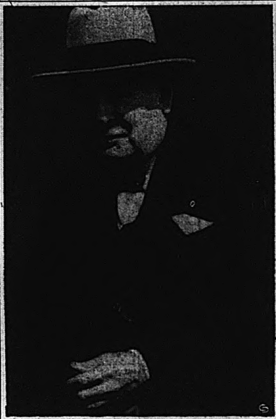
My informant was a 57-year-old Brussels warehouseman and the father of ten children, who was accused of fraud and illicit transport of arms from Paris to Brussels.

APPEAL AS COALITION

Winnipeg, Sept. 14. (CP)—Hon. Errick F. Willis, Progressive Conservative Party leader in Manitoba, suggested in a broadcast speech last night that "unless unusual and unforeseen circumstances intervene, the Provincial Coalition government should again appeal to the people as a coalition".

GERMANS LEAVING RHODES

Istanbul, Sept. 14 — (AP) — Reports reaching here today indicated the Germans were evacuating the island of Rhodes, largest in the Dodecanese group. The Nazis were estimated to have more than a division on the island.



This informal study of Prime Minister Winston Churchill was caught by the camera man shortly after his arrival in Quebec for conference with President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Mackenzie King.

BRITISH 8TH ARMY ENDS STALEMATE ON FRINGE OF LINE

Advance 1,000-Yards in Coriano-San Savino Area Near Adriatic

LINE STRONGLY HELD

Rome, Sept. 14 — (CP) — British, Canadian and Indian elements of the British 8th Army have broken a stalemate which halted their advance on the Adriatic front for several days, and have advanced 1,000 yards in the Coriano-San Savino area, it was announced today.

Meantime the Allied 5th Army — which now is known to include several British divisions and the 6th South African Division — cracked through German outposts all along the front between Pistoia and Lucca and is battering at the forward fringe of the main Gothic Line.

On the Adriatic sector, further south, British forces recaptured two bitterly contested points about 1,000 yards northwest of Croce and continued to force ahead.

Defensive Zone

Headquarters emphasized that the Gothic Line is a defence zone several miles in depth studded with many concrete emplacements. Trenches, tank obstacles, mines and dugouts are ranged along the mountainsides "and everything conceivable has been done to make the position strong."

"It is so designed that in penetrating the line resistance increases with the depth of penetration," the headquarters said.

The location of the deepest Allied penetration was not disclosed specifically.

Allied forces yesterday had reached the threshold of two main passes through the Gothic Line. There was no further word of their progress.

Airmen Support Attack

Allied medium bombers and fighters continued to support the attack, blasting rail bridges in the Po Valley and positions in the Rimini area and north of Florence. Coastal aircraft attacked shipping in the Gulf of Genoa.

The navy announced the bombardment of Rimini was continued Sept. 12 with good results despite increased enemy counter-fire. The navy also reported sinking of an enemy convoy of several vessels in the Aegean by destroyers the night of Sept. 12-13.

An official statement summed up future prospects:

JAPANESE LOSE 200 PLANES IN DAY TO U.S. FLIERS

Battle Unfinished and First Reports of Action Are Fragmentary

CARRIER PLANES USED

Pearl Harbor, Sept. 14 (AP)—Japan's air force, caught up with in strength along the approaches to Manila, lost more than 200 planes in one day to American fliers raiding the central Philippines from aircraft carriers—with the battle unfinished and first reports fragmentary.

"It is indicated that air operations are continuing against strong enemy opposition," a communique said in disclosing that carrier planes were over Cebu, Negros and Panay islands in the Philippines all day Monday.

Last Friday when Mindanao, which has been attacked since Aug. 6 by land-based bombers, was blanketed by carrier planes of the 3rd fleet, only eight Japanese aircraft were aloft at the south end of the archipelago. All were shot down, as 60 were destroyed on the ground.

Monday's raiders, moving north to within 200 miles of Manila, shot down more than 50 and wiped out more than 150 on the ground, in addition to sinking several cargo ships "in the initial attacks."

The unspecified total of sinkings was added to the 89 small cargo boats and sampans sunk or damaged Friday off Mindanao.

The carriers presumably were part of the powerful task forces which, unchallenged by the Japanese navy, have roamed waters east of the Philippines for a week, during which Palau has been raided repeatedly by planes and twice shelled by warships.

Weather Forecast

Kenora and Rainy River:—Fair and a little warmer. Friday—partly cloudy, followed by scattered showers.

Lake Superior:—Moderate to fresh winds; partly cloudy and cool tonight and Friday.

CANADIANS WIN BRIDGEHEAD OVER LEOPOLD CANAL

Double Waterway Is Nearly 300 Feet Wide With 30-Foot Banks on Sides

WON BY ONT. TROOPS

With the 1st Canadian Army in Belgium, Sept. 14 — (CP Cable) — Canadian infantry today forced a crossing of the Leopold Canal in the vicinity of Moerkere, five miles northeast of Brugge (Bruges) and two miles from the Netherlands border.

Ontario troops, who won the bridgehead met heavy machine-gun and mortar fire as they crossed the waterway.

The Leopold Canal is the most formidable water barrier Canadian troops have yet encountered in Europe.

Its double waterway is nearly 300 feet wide, having twin 120-foot water passages with a 30-foot bank between them.

The waterway which enters the sea seat of Zeebrugge separates about 15 miles northwest of Gent where one branch runs to the Netherlands frontier and the Schelde while the other curves around between Gent and Brugge (Bruges).

The Canadian crossing of the Gent Canal about four miles south of Brugge was an example of the stiff battles protected German demolitions can impose.

The battle of Gent lasted nearly four days after infantry crossed the slimy, 40-foot canal near the town of Moerbrugge. They used Belgian boats tied along the canal's banks for the crossing.

The town's brick houses adjoin the canal banks and the hedges and orchards around them provided good cover for German rear-guards.

The infantry were able to push forward to protect the Canadian engineers who built a Baily bridge across the water, but groups of Germans from the Brugge area laid small arms fire on the sappers.

They were cleaned out but the engineers still had to work under the concentrated fire of enemy guns set up beside the German ammunition dumps on the east bank of the canal. The Germans also had mortars and their bombardment compared with the shelling which Canadian troops fighting in the Caen area had experienced.

It was slow and painful work for the sappers. In the meantime infantry ahead were engaging well-dug-in enemy infantry positions guarding the crossing, and some small-scale battles were fought.

When the Canadian tank crews finally got their Shermans across, the fight went out of the Germans.

In the meantime another Canadian infantry force marched into the ancient, beautiful town of Brugge to the north and occupied it. The Germans started to withdraw across the Leopold Canal where they presumably planned another rear-guard fight. Behind them they left few bridges intact.

Anthony Eden Coming to Quebec, Will Participate in Conference

Quebec, Sept. 14. (CP)—It was officially announced today that Rt. Hon. Anthony Eden, British Foreign Secretary, is coming to the Quebec Conference, setting up the assumption that political and diplomatic as well as military questions are to be considered.

The announcement was made by a British spokesman at a special press conference in the Chateau Frontenac. United States spokesmen had no information whether Cordell Hull, United Secretary of State, is coming. It was recalled that at the 1943 conference both Mr. Eden and Mr. Hull sat in on the later stages.

Mr. Eden's arrival, whether or not it means a widening of the range of discussions beyond what was intended, is not expected to lengthen the conference beyond the planned time for ending it—at the weekend.

At the press conference it was also reported that the Canadian-British side of the conference is assuming concrete form.

Prime Minister Churchill will attend a meeting of the Canadian Cabinet War Committee at the Citadel this afternoon and talks between Canadian and British Chiefs of Staff are already progressing in the light of over-all plans made by the Churchill-Roosevelt conference and the joint British-American staff.

The possibility that the Polish question might be taken up when Mr. Eden arrives was not rejected by the British spokesman, who said that foreign affairs were never in a "more interesting condition" since something was happening everywhere.

However, he added that the British Prime Minister and the Foreign Secretary were accustomed to daily conversations and that Mr. Churchill was responsible for the entire range of British domestic and external affairs. It was natural he would want to see Mr. Eden at this time and that Mr. Eden would want to see him.

But Mr. Eden was not to be a mere adviser sitting in an anti-room and waiting to assist Mr. Churchill. He would be a participant in the conference and would meet with both Mr. Churchill and Mr. Roosevelt.

Czechoslovak Line Believed Crossed By Cossack Patrols

Indication Stalin Resumes All-Out Drive on Germany

London, Sept. 14—(CP)—Massive Russian forces assaulting Warsaw frontally fought today into the streets of Praga, the industrial suburb of the torn Polish capital on the east bank of the Vistula river, the Berlin radio announced.

Far to the south, other Russian troops reached the Czechoslovak frontier in the Beskide mountains of the Carpathian range and one report said Cossack patrols were believed to have crossed the border within 50 miles of Kosice, sixth largest city of Czechoslovakia with 70,000 population.

Advancing five miles beyond the toppled Narew river bastion of Lomza, still other Russian troops drove to within 15 miles of East Prussia.

Yet another group of Red armies moving swiftly through Romania was acknowledged by Berlin to have stormed through the Szekler corner of Transylvania, territory disputed between Romania and Hungary.

The whole picture of enlivened activity all along the eastern front prompted Moscow reporters to cable there were indications Stalin had resumed his all-out offensive toward Germany itself.

Berlin's announcement that Russian troops were fighting in the streets of Praga meant that Marshal Konstantin Rokossovsky's tanks, artillery and infantry finally had gained the ascendancy in an embittered battle of attrition which has raged for many weeks within gunshot of Poland's leading city.

Reaches New Climax.

"Southeast of Warsaw, fighting reached a new climax in ferocity, and amount of material used by the Russians on Wednesday," a Berlin broadcast said. "Paying no attention to losses in man and material, the Moscow high command sent ever fresh formations into the battle so that the Soviet Russians finally were able, after a fierce ding-dong battle, to enter Praga, suburb of Warsaw on the eastern bank of the Vistula."

(A broadcast communique from Marshal Tito's Partisan headquarters said his troops had captured Negotin in Yugoslavia six miles from the Romanian and Bulgarian borders, and had made contact with the Red army.

(A broadcast German war review commented dourly that "in the Balkans one cannot talk of battles, but just of Russian parades.")

Front dispatches said mauled Nazi armored forces fell back chaotically to the northern elbow of the Narew river, pursued closely by Russian tanks carrying swarms of tommy-gunners.

25 ARE KILLED AND 65 INJURED IN TRAIN WRECK

Crack Dixie Flyer Telescoped Into Mail and Express Train Standing Idle

NEARLY ALL SOLDIERS

Terre Haute, Ind., Sept. 14—(AP)—At least 25 persons were killed and about 65 injured today in the collision of two Chicago and Eastern Illinois railroad passenger trains near here.

Nearly all the dead and injured were soldiers.

The trains, one of the crack Dixie Flyer, south-bound, and the other a mail and express train, crashed head-on during a heavy fog.

The engine, tender, two baggage cars and the first two of three Pullmans on the Dixie Flyer left the track and piled up along the roadway. All cars of the other train held the track.

The first two Pullmans of the Flyer carried only soldiers.

A major, who declined to give his name, said all of the men were overseas air force veterans, most of whom wore the purple heart decoration. He said they were on 30-day furloughs, after which they were to have been taken to redistribution centres.

Coach Splits Open.

The first Pullman, containing 30 soldiers, split open and some passengers were pinned in their seats, others were thrown out along the tracks and some were caught beneath other cars. Most of the soldiers and civilians were asleep at the time of the crash.

Through the wreckage and alongside the tracks lay Purple Heart decorations and air medals. Baggage of the soldiers and civilians was strewn for a hundred yards.

A Roman Catholic priest went to the scene of the wreck and from there to the hospitals giving last rites regardless of creed.

For several hours after the collision, which took place at 2:30 a.m., E.D.T., on a single track three miles northeast of here, there were conflicting reports on the number of dead and injured. The fog lay heavy over the scene and bodies were scattered.

THREE-POUND POTATO

Dundalk, Sept. 14 —(CP)— Charlie Fullerton, caretaker of schools here, is the envy of potato-growing citizens. He has dug many from his patch weighing two to two-and-a-half pounds but his real pride and joy was a three-pound spud of the Dooley variety.

Lieut.-Colonel Cecil I. Merritt, Vancouver and Belleville, Canada's first army Victoria Cross winner in the present war, has accepted the nomination as Progressive Conservative candidate for the riding of Vancouver Burrard, party officials announced yesterday.

The offer of the nomination was forwarded to Colditz, apparently a suburb of the German city of Leipzig where Col. Merritt is now a prisoner of war, some time ago. Acceptance was received by party officials recently.

Small Girl Has Heart on Her Right Side

Despite the fact that her heart is on her right side, life for little Linda Marion, two-and-one-half-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Marion of Shannonville is just the same as that of any normal person. She plays with the neighboring girls as other tots her age may be expected to do and to all outward appearance is a healthy, normal child.

But she still is dimly conscious that in some way she is a bit "different." Entered last year in the baby show at Mohawk Fair, the little girl came in again yesterday with the attending physician recalling the fact of the girl's transposed body organ.

But the doctor did not have all to say. "My right side—is my right side," the little girl faltered, as she got in her own word of explanation.

Women's Hospital Aux. Will Hold Tag Day Saturday

Modern equipment that has long been one of the outstanding features of the Belleville General Hospital, like anything that is under constant use, must needs be maintained and at the end of its useful life, be replaced.

Residents of the city and the far-flung district which places demands on the facilities of the hospital, who are not so financially blessed as their fellows, cannot be and are not neglected when in need of treatment.

The Women's Hospital Auxiliary a hard-working organization of ladies whose efforts along hospital maintenance and supply lines is a bright star in their collective crowns, is holding a tag day on Saturday in an effort to replenish coffers that are badly in need of funds.

The general public is well aware of the splendid work being done at the hospital here and it should go without saying that the response will be a generous one. The public needs the hospital twelve months of the year. The hospital needs the public for twenty-four hours or less on Saturday. Be generous. Buy a Hospital Tag.

Captured Jeeps And Motorbikes Gave Boys Thrill

Gunners of a troop of Canadian artillery now prodding fleeing Jerries in the rear with judiciously placed twenty-five pounder shells, apparently haven't forgotten the thrills of the merry-go-round days of their boyhood.

The khaki-clad Paul Reveres, members of Lieut. Bill McGeachie's battery somewhere in France had a field day recently at the expense of Hitler's mechanical transport and gasoline dumps.

"The boys," wrote Lieut. McGeachie to his mother here, "had pocketed a German recce outfit. As is the custom over here these days, the Jerries threw up their hands and surrendered, leaving a large number of motor cycles and jeeps behind."

"After they had been sent to the rear, the boys celebrated. All they needed was a steam calliope to make the picture complete. They roared hither and yon over the countryside in Hitler's jeeps and on his motor-bikes, burning Jerry gas at an alarming rate of speed. It took us a considerable length of time to round up the gunners who frolicked at will on their newly-acquired steeds, and remind them of the fact that there was still a war on."

Good Racing At Wooler Fair

The first of the larger county fairs was held on Wednesday at Wooler with a crowd of more than 2,000 in attendance and held to this proportion by the threat of rain. The racing was completed before the rain fell and it was impossible to continue with the remainder of the fair due to the heavy downpour. The horse racing provided the chief attraction, there being two classes carded with a running race. George O. Tice of Belleville acted as starter and although all the races were decided in straight heats, the competition was keen. The results follow:

2.18 Class.

Exhibition Highlights

The military parade scheduled for Tuesday night will be one of the colorful features of the Belleville Exhibition. Headed by the Belleville Municipal Band, the parade composed of mechanized units of the Royal Canadian Field Artillery, the Argyll Light Infantry (Tank) and squadrons of the RCAF from No. 6 Bombing and Gunnery School of Mountain View, the Belleville Air Cadets and others will parade to the Exhibition grounds, shortly after eight o'clock. The crack band of the Royal Canadian Air Force, Trenton, will be in the parade.

The familiar voice of W. N. Reid, vice-president of the exhibition, will again be heard announcing the horsemen and winners when the trials of speed get under way on the second and third days. Mr. Reid, who is well known in this capacity is a popular announcer with horse lovers and the news that he will be back at the old stand in front of the grandstand will be welcomed.

Faithful Dobbin, that piece of horseflesh who patiently plods his way between the shafts of city milk and bread wagons has been given a spot in the exhibition limelight. Mr. U. (Sandy) Lummis, proprietor of the Harris Bread Co., has donated a number of handsome prizes to a class that is open to delivery horses. There is no entry fee and Dobbin must have done his bit by working in and around the city streets in order to be eligible.

Much local and district interest is centred in the opening of the Exhibition which takes place at 8:30 on Monday evening. Mr. John Bracken, Progressive Conservative leader, will formally "clip the ribbon" after addressing city service clubs at a pre-opening banquet at Tabernacle Church.

School children of the counties of Hastings and Prince Edward have been presented with a free admission ticket by fair directors. The tickets have been distributed to the various school boards and will be presented to the children through the media of school teachers.

Livestock entries, indicative of the interest shown in this class of exhibit, are coming in at a steady rate to the secretary's office. One herd of thirty purebred stock from a neighboring county will be here as well as many others representing the many breeds of dairy and beef cattle for which this district is justly famous.

Crack horses of the harness tracks will be here for the trials of speed programmed for Tuesday and Wednesday. The track has been readied and with good weather prevailing some records are likely to go by the board. Then, in addition, a number of rural jockeys will gallop their home-bred "Whirlaways, Zevs, and Men-o'-War" around the tracks in specially arranged running races. Entrants from Hastings and Prince Edward will vie for honors on Tuesday, while Wednesday's event is a free-for-all.

Marmora (Special) — Fishing at the foot of Crowe Lake on Wednesday afternoon Dr. H. Crawford, of Marmora and Walter Revoy, local guide, landed a muskie which weighed twenty and a half pounds. The capture afforded a thrill to the local physician who was pleased when he could pronounce life extinct.

BANCROFT

Egan Creek United Church Observes 50th Anniversary

Bancroft, Sept. 14 — An outstanding event of the weekend was the celebration of the 50th. Anniversary of the erection of the Egan Creek United Church on Sunday, September 10th. The church was most fittingly decorated for this unique occasion with many floral bouquets in memory of the older members of the church who cradled it through its pioneer days. An anniversary cake with fifty golden candles commemorating the event added to the decorations. Also displayed was a large honor roll draped with flags bearing the names of all Egan Creek and Detlors boys who are now on active service overseas.

Recalls Earlier Days

There were two services during the day, one in afternoon in charge of Rev. Robert A. McLauchlin, of Bancroft, with Rev. Kemp, of Havelock, as guest speaker. Rev. Kemp incidentally was clergyman in this same church and district some forty-three years ago and his talk was interesting in relating events of some two decades ago. A quartet from St. Paul's United Church, Bancroft, was present to assist with the musical program. Members of the church fifty years ago were honored on this occasion, and included Mr. and Mrs. Charles McGuire, Mr. and Mrs. August Rupnow, Mrs. John Smith and Miss Lena Smith.

Out-of-town guests included Rev. and Mrs. Kemp of Havelock; Mr. and Mrs. Bert Mason, Mr. and Mrs. Alec McGuire, Mrs. Tucker, and Mrs. Cole, of Belleville; Mrs. A. H. Lloyd of Hillier; Mr. and Mrs. Percy Smith of Madoc; Mr. and Mrs. N. R. Flower, of Renfrew; Mr. and Mrs. Archie Schutt and family of Schutt, also several friends from Bancroft, Hermon and Fort Stewart.

Several Letters Read

Rev. McLauchlin read several letters from interested friends who were unable to attend the services which included one from Mrs. Wolfinger, of Florida, formerly Barbara McGuire; also one from a friend with an enclosure of a $25 cheque as a gift to the church.

The evening service at 7.30 p.m. was in charge of Mr. N. R. Flower, of Renfrew, and formerly of the Bancroft field. Rev. Kemp also was guest speaker at this service. A letter read by Mr. Flower from Mr and Mrs. James Smith of Fort Francis, was quite interesting in that they are one of the oldest families now living who were present at the erection of the Egan Creek Church

On Monday evening the ladies of the church sponsored a supper in the Detlor Hall, which was well patronized by people from adjacent townships and towns and villages. Following supper a short program was given which included a talk by Rev. Kemp who related his trips and experiences when he was in Fort Stewart and Egan Creek charge some forty-three years ago.

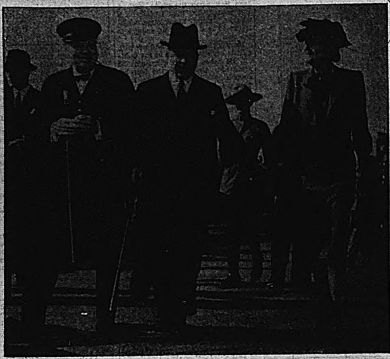
OLD FRIENDS MEET AGAIN



First to greet the British Prime Minister on his arrival in Quebec City for the second Quebec conference was Canada's Prime Minister, W. L. Mackenzie King, who boarded the Churchill train as it came to a stop, welcomed Mr. and Mrs. Churchill to Canada. Then all three walked over to the automobile of the United States President on an adjacent siding, and the entire party proceeded to the Citadel, where they are guests of His Excellency the Governor General and Her Highness Princess Alice during the duration of the conference. Fears of Reprisals Haunt Members Of Hitler's Gestapo

Lethbridge, Sept. 14 —(CP)—Fear of reprisals haunt members of Hitler's Gestapo who are prisoners of war in Canadian camps, it was learned here today.

The Lethbridge Herald, which is running a series of articles on German prisoners of war in Canada, says hatred, which is breaking into the open among Hitler's forces in Europe, is steadily becoming more pronounced among Nazi prisoners in the Dominion.

Gestapo members until recently were active in the prisoner of war camps; their word was law, and there are indications that they administered severe beatings to "bolster" the Nazi morale of weakening Germans.

"Many of the Gestapo fear retaliation from their fellow prisoners for the brutal beatings they administered while they kept the captives 'in line for Hitler,' " said the Herald.

Going Home

The going home of Europeans, the arrival of Gen. de Gaulle in France, the departure for England of the Crown Princess Juliana of The Netherlands and the departure of some of the members of the Belgian Government in London for Brussels, all spell one thing, the great reality of the liberation, which has come to much of Europe in the west. Luxembourg was entered by the Allies the other day and it will likely not be long before the Grand Duchess leaves her temporary home in Canada for her country.

What must be the delight of these folk to return to their homelands after the years in other lands as refugees can be imagined. The war years had passed slowly but the Allies in the fulness of time moved into Norway and the beginning of the end started.

These people moving home are but the beginning of the return of vast numbers of people who had fled before the horrors of Hun oppression.

The stay in England, Canada, United States has established cordial relations which will long last. As Princess Juliana said on her departure from Ottawa, "I shall come back many times, I hope, to renew this friendship which is stronger in my heart than I can describe. God bless you all." Her three daughters are still in Canada for the present.

The millions upon millions in Europe who have seen the invaders in their countryside, towns and cities and still have carried on under the oppression, have the satisfaction that they are again free in their homes which have been in their families for generations.

There is another class which has been "going back," but they have been driven back in headlong flight, the Nazis. They have left behind them the hate of millions for they have done deeds that shocked mankind. These have gone back because they could not help themselves from certain defeat. Many of the agents and slaves of Nazism never got back home for they have fallen in battles from the Atlantic to the German border on the west, from the Balkans to Russia and from eastern North Africa across the continent to Sicily and Italy to the present Gothic line. Those Huns who survive to return to Germany are still called by Hitler to fight though Nazidom's doom is certain and their homecoming can have but little joy in it for they return but to see in the long run the defeat of Germany on her own soil. Among the Huns who have not returned are the thousands upon thousands of prisoners taken in battle. They will see after the war only a defeated Germany.

Many Happy Returns

In Quebec on the great business of the Allied Conference, Prime Minister Winston Churchill and Mrs. Churchill had the happy occasion to celebrate the thirty-sixth anniversary of their wedding. The great British leader and his wife who have had a most happy life celebrated with their friends who included the President of the United States and Mrs. Roosevelt. Mr. and Mrs. Churchill have the fine faculty of adjusting themselves to the setting in which they are. Their celebration was a happy one in spite of the great task which rests in Mr. Churchill, Canadians wish them many happy returns of the day.

Within the Huns' Gates

Hitler's evil designs have boomeranged and will continue to boomerang against Germany with growing intensity. The Allies are at the gates of Germany and columns have even penetrated into the "sacred soil" of the German Fatherland as the Germans call it. Night and day Germany is the goal of almost unending flights of bombers sweeping into the land of aggression to destroy every target. With the liberation of France and Belgium, and the advances in the east and the south, Germany is ringed with the Allied air fleets which have closer and fewer targets to pound than they had before the invasion of Normandy. Yesterday ten thousand tons of explosives were hurled by the planes against the German capital, cities in various parts of the Reich and planes swept along both sides of the Siegfried Line bringing destruction and desolation.

Hitler made heavy use of his planes in the early days of the war, today they are not so plentiful for he has been losing them daily at a rate which indicates that he is being forced to use up his store of planes which he hoped to keep in reserve. Now it is Allied planes which are doing the punishing—upon Germany.

Retribution is coming upon him in a way and with swiftness few could have expected. The speed of the redemption of France and Belgium and Luxembourg must have bewildered the Hun. A lightning war far more vast than Hitler's oldtime blitzkrieg is driving Hitler's birds home to roost.

Crime Without a Name

(Detroit Free Press)

The satanic tortures recorded in Dante's "Inferno" pale beside the stories of the Nazis' "extermination camps" coming from Poland.

Authenticated accounts from Allied and neutral sources were published earlier. Now, all shadow of doubt about the truth is removed by the eye-witness stories of American newspapermen. W. H. Lawrence's report of the Majdanek abbatoir in a recent issue of the Free Press began, "I have just seen the most terrible place on the face of the earth."

We Americans are slow to believe the worst of even our enemies. Distance and unfamiliarity are obstacles to comprehension. Thus, even as we read the unimpeachable testimony, the mind cannot grasp it all.

Yet it is fact, not some monstrous nightmare of fiction. If it were fiction, its author could only be a fugitive from a madhouse.

The world stands in the presence of the crime without a name.

Stops Hiccoughs

In the treatment of hiccoughs—an ailment more spectacular than romantic—the "electric shock" treatment has lately tended to capture the headlines, says The Portland Oregonian. But as we understand it, hiccoughs routed in this manner frequently are back in another eight hours.

And in this connection there is a story in The Scout, published at Camp Pendleton, Calif., which will bear retelling. It has to do with the case of Lawrence Schone, 31-year-old Los Angeles aircraft worker, who had hiccoughed thirteen days and nights. The case had considerable publicity and the story behind the outcome should be known.

It seems that Camp Pendleton had had quite a distinguished instance of hiccoughs some months earlier. A marine had gone for two days and nights. Then he was put to sleep and cured by Burrette S. Shope, pharmacist mate second class, through a foot massage. Shope, a physiotherapist in private life, says the nerves of the feet are allied with the stomach and diaphragm. Anyhow, it worked.

So when the papers were full of the case of Lawrence Schone, Pharmacist Shope travelled to Los Angeles entirely on his own and with the consent of the distraught physician massaged the patient's feet for an hour. The patient then fell asleep and twenty-four hours later he was released from hospital.

Music Speeds Work

London's 4,500,000 workers have increased their output so distinctly since the half-hour "Music While You Work" programs were initiated that Director Wynford says the "music in factories has come to stay." Workers, he predicted, "Will insist on it." During the four years of experimenting with the work-music program, Reynolds has constantly toured factories, getting worker reactions, adjusting programs to worker tastes, and noting production trends. He told of visiting American experts studying the innovation that output dropped 20 per cent in one factory when the relay apparatus broke down for a week.

CRANKMIRE LOSES HIS TEMPER

Said Crankmire: "Give the check to me!
I'd rather pay the bill myself
Than guest of such complainers be,
Whose thoughts no higher go than pelf.
Here, richly eating at your ease
And wearing trim civilian dress,
You've gone from ox-tail soup to cheese
With undiluted bitterness!

"You haven't said one cheerful word!
Not one of you has dared to smile.
You've all repeated things you've heard—
Untrue, unfair and even vile.
But still the war is far from won,
And still our boys in jungles die—
Brave and devoted every one.
And we're the home front—you and I!

"Stand up! A uniform goes by!
Two weeks from now that lad will be
A bomber in the German sky
Or sailing the Pacific sea.
I've had enough of you today!
Give me the check! I'll hear no more!
You whimperers all, I'm on my way!"
And out he went and slammed the door!

Wounded R.A.F. Pilot and Pyle Talk Over the Former's Rescue

Editor's Note: This is the second of two columns in which Ernie Pyle, interrupting his vacation, brings us up to date on the R.A.F. pilot in whose rescue from a wrecked plane in France Ernie participated.

By ERNIE PYLE

London, Sept. 14 — (by wireless) —At the hospital the R.A.F. pilot and I enjoyed living over again the climax to those eight days of imprisonment in his wrecked plane in France.

When we rescued him that day I had not wanted to badger him with trivial questions, so there were some things I didn't get straight, and other things I had straight which he was mixed up on.

I thought his leg had been wounded while he was still in the air. But he told me it didn't happen until about three hours after he had crashed, when there was shelling and shooting all around him. He said that whatever kind of shell it was made a terrific racket when it came through the plane and struck him.

The little hole in the side of the plane through which he had thrust his hand — we thought that had been torn when the plane crashed. But actually the pilot had made it himself during those eight days, trying to tear a hole big enough to get out.

He worked at it off and on with a little crowbar he had in the cockpit. He asked me if I thought he could ever have made the hole big enough by himself. I told him there wasn't a chance.

He said the worst thing in those eight days was the thirst. After the first couple of days he wasn't hungry at all, but the thirst was torturing. He said that for hours and days he visualised creeks full of water, and all the pubs where he had left a little beer in the bottom of glasses.

He had seen the columns I wrote about his rescue, and he was modestly pleased about them. He laughed at one thing I had said — that his eyes, as he rolled them there in his imprisonment, were like "big brown tennis balls."

Actually his eyes did seem like that. But in the hospital that effect had gone, and his eyes seemed of normal size. His face had filled out and his color was fine. He smoked and laughed, and his discontent was only because the hospital wouldn't let him out on leave immediately.

• • •

The Lieutenant has strong leanings toward America. He didn't tell us on that day of the rescue, but he had his flight training in the States. He trained at Clewistin, Fla., and was in America from October of 1941 till April of '42.

He had been flying in combat for two years, and although his plane had often been hit, this was the first time he had been shot down. He remarked over and over again how lucky he was to be alive.

He was regretful that his wound would take so long to heal that the war would undoubtedly be over before he was well again. As he said, he would "like one more crack at those Jerries."

The Lieutenant was smoking Lucky Strikes when we visited him, and he said, "You can see I've been in an American hospital." I took him a Zippo lighter as a gift, and he was very proud of it. As soon as he can use a pen he is going to write notes of thanks to the two American soldiers who discovered him.

During those eight days of anguished imprisonment he never gave up hope that he would get out. It was even stronger than hope, for he said he was positive all the way through that he would get out.

• • •

In a letter his wife wrote me she asked that I keep the Lieutenant anonymous. She said it was one of those things he owed to all his friends and comrades who had not been lucky enough to get back with their stories.

I would certainly honor her request, but his name has already been published elsewhere. The Air Ministry, like our own War Department, releases the names of casualties as soon as the family is notified.

So, since his identity is already publicly known, I'm sure she will not consider it a violation of trust for me to print it here again so that his friends in America may know who this courageous flier was.

He is Flight Lieutenant Robert Gordon Fallis Lee, of Selbourne, Orchard Road, Shalford, Surrey. He was a mechanical engineer before the war. He is the highest type of Englishman, a man of great courage and of fine instincts — the kind of person who makes our two countries proud of each other.

In the letter Mrs. Lee wrote me she said, "It would be impossible to attempt to thank you and the others for what you did for my husband in France. I am afraid I don't know how to express the kind of gratitude we feel. But one day there may be another installment, when the family keeps a date it has in the U.S.A."

That's fine. Come on over — we will all welcome you.

WORK HARD AND LIVE LONG

Arteriosclerosis, hardening of the arteries, a gradual lessening of the resilience or elasticity of the arteries, is an accompaniment of old age. Old age in some persons begins before forty, in other around fifty, in exceptional instances not until after sixty. It depends, as Dr. Osler saw it, on the quality or grade of material used for the tubing—that, he taught, explains why old age comes earlier in some families than in others.

What I don't know about heredity is simply astonishing—to people who think they know all about it. So don't take my ignorance seriously. It is my notion that it matters little or not at all how old your grandfather lived to be or whether he died of heart failure or from fracture-dislocation of the upper cervical vertebrae complicated by a short fall. What really matters is the use or abuse to which you have subjected your arteries and the rest of your body.

Incidentally, old timer, if you were I you would worry no more about the condition of your arteries than you do about the condition of your teeth, your hair, your eyesight or your ability to roll somersaults or to run upstairs two steps at a time or to sprint a few blocks without getting fussed about it.

Having expressed his belief that inheritance of poor material for the tubing is the chief cause of arteriosclerosis, Dr. Osler relented or abated a jot or tittle, to add that more commonly the degeneration (replacement of elastic or muscle cells with inelastic fibre) in the artery wall resuts from bad use of good vessels.

Now that makes sense, in my poor understanding of pathology. But, I regret to add, Dr. Osler then explained that bad use of good vessels meant alcohol, syphilis, overeating, stress and strain of modern life, overwork of the muscles. Besides these specific causes or contributing causes of hardening of the arteries the great medical teacher mentioned three others, namely, hypertension (high blood pressure), the involution process or natural wear and tear to which the tubes are subjected with age, and finally kidney disease (nephritis, Bright's disease). Barring casualties we'll discuss these arterial hazards in talks to follow.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Vinegar.

An old doctor told me two teaspoons cider vinegar daily in glass of water is beneficial. How much to find out from you? (L. J. M.)

Answer—In my opinion vinegar should never be used even as condiment if Lemon juice is available instead. However, a few drops of any kind of vinegar you prefer, on your cabbage or beans, may be harmless for occasional use. Plumb silly is the common notion that drinking vinegar "reduces". It will "reduce" only by ruining health, perhaps causing serious liver or kidney damage. The dilute acetic acid (of vinegar) is not utilized, not oxidized, in the body. The dilute citric acid (in lemon juice) is oxidized and utilized in the body.

Calcium and Nerves.

Is it true that people with a normal calcium content in blood are generally calm and those with low blood calcium are nervous? I am 21, very nervous, and would like to combat it. Is there any way to achieve increased blood calcium?

(Miss C. J.)

Answer — Physiologically, one function of calcium in the body (in the blood and the tissues) is to regulate excitability of nerve fibres and nerve centres, to steady neuromuscular irritability. Being only a plodding door-to-door type of doctor I wouldn't know what you or any one else may mean by "very nervous". Send stamped envelope bearing your address, and ask for (do not send clipping) the pamphlet "The Calcium Shortage".

Old Folks and Young Folks

Some time ago an elderly lady told how much good she and her husband had derived from taking some kind of vitamin tablets with breakfast every day. We were much interested. (S. C. A.)

Answer—Send stamped envelope bearing your address, for pamphlet "Old Folks and Young Folks".

Search for Slayer Of Mrs. A. Smith In East Ontario

Kingston, Sept. 14. (CP)—Search for the slayer of Mrs. Austin Smith, 42, of Detroit, Mich., who was found murdered in her Port Franks Summer cottage on Lake Huron, Monday, swung into Eastern Ontario late last night after Provincial Police found her automobile two miles west of Kingston.

As a result of the discovery, all police in the district were called to duty to hunt for the suspect.

The abandoned car, locked, empty and undamaged, had been parked on a country road. Search for it had continued since the woman's body was found with a rifle shot through the back by her husband, a Detroit Service Station operator.

Posses scoured all Ontario highways leading into Quebec and the north-eastern United States for any suspicious-looking characters. Police have been searching for an 18-year-old soldier reported missing from Camp Ipperwash, near London, Ont., for questioning and also are on the lookout for a .303 rifle believed to have been used in the murder.

Yesterday, Inspector W. H. Kennedy of the Criminal Investigation Branch of the Provincial Police, Toronto, spent the day in the Port Frank district, 35 miles northwest of London, for clues in the sand dunes and bush surrounding Mrs. Smith's cottage.

A post mortem at Sarnia, Ont., yesterday revealed that the $1,200 ring, first thought missing, still was on Mrs. Smith's finger.

Jolliffe Criticizes Drew's Attitude On Family Allowances

Toronto, Sept. 14 —(CP)— By criticizing the Family Allowances Act, Premier Drew of Ontario desired not only to divert public attention from his own record but to bring on an early election "if possible before the troops come home," E. B. Jolliffe, C.C.F. leader in Ontario said in an address over a CBC provincial network last night.

He described the Premier's opposition to the act as a "phoney" issue and said Mr. Drew had "raised the flag of provincial isolationism" by his attack and had sounded a call for political warfare against Quebec.

"When Mr. Drew made his radio speech of Aug. 9, he knew perfectly well he was stating a policy which could not possibly be accepted by any other party worth its salt.

"In short, he deliberately raised an issue upon which he knew the government was almost certain to be defeated if it came to a vote in the House next session."

Will Oppose Isolationism.

The C.C.F. opposition, however, was prepared to form a new government in Ontario if called upon, Mr. Jolliffe stated, adding he could speak only for the C.C.F. in stating that "we shall continue to support whatever progressive measures may be introduced by the government," but "we shall oppose Mr. Drew's policy of provincial isolationism, whatever the consequences may be."

"I suppose," the C.C.F. leader continued, "Mr. Drew imagines that if he is defeated in the legislature, a general election must follow as a matter of course," but "an early election in Ontario is not necessary."

"There is no reason why Mr. Drew should not bow to the will of the majority and change his policy. If he cannot change it, and if he is defeated in the House then his proper course would be to resign. His resignation would not mean an election. It would mean a new government . . .

"I wish to make it perfectly clear that the C.C.F., as the second largest group in the legislature, is prepared to form a new government if called upon to do so."

Mr. Jolliffe said the Ontario Premier had made "wild and extravagant" statements concerning the Family Allowances Act and the entire issue raised by the Premier was a false one, because there was nothing Mr. Drew's government could do to prevent the act from taking effect except refer it to the courts.

The C.C.F. leader quoted from speeches made by Mr. Drew in 1939 in which he advocated the strengthening of national ties and the need for one strong government legislating for the people of Canada in their common interest.

"We agree with what he said in 1939.." National problems could not be met by one province alone, but only by the united action of the Canadian people through the Federal government.

"Our effort to win the peace will utterly fail if we have nine separate provinces struggling with nine different efforts. Yet that is exactly what Premier Drew of Ontario is proposing."

Stating that Premier Drew had criticized Quebec, Mr. Joliffe stated "It is always easy to emphasize those things which divide us and to ignore the important interests which unite the people of Canada from coast to coast."

In a reference to the government's record, Mr. Jolliffe asked where is the housing commission promised in the 22 points, the forest resources commission authorized by the Legislature, the education and vocational training promised to every child, the adequate medical and dental attention promised for all children "and where are a score of other things so freely promised 15 months ago?"

Rumor S.S. Troops Fire on Peace Demonstrators

London, Sept. 14 — (CP)— The radio of the French Forces of the Interior at Lyon reported today S. S. troops had fired into a crowd of peace demonstrators in Berlin.

The broadcast did not indicate the source of the report and there was no information from other quarters concerning any such demonstration.

A similar report, however, was broadcast later by the French National radio at Lyon, the Ministry of Information said.

The United States Office of War Information quoted the Lyon radio as saying "riots are reported to have taken place in Berlin," and added: "During one fight a small group of rebels routed an S. S. formation and went back into hiding before the arrival of police reinforcements."

ARREST MAYOR OF STUTTGART

Rome, Sept. 14 (AP)—A letter received by a German parachutist captain captured in Italy has disclosed that the mayor and police president of Stuttgart were among 120 residents of that German city arrested for communicating with the Reich's enemies through secret transmitters. The letter was released through Allied air force headquarters.

Stark said alcohol potatoes are first dehydrated.

Rouen, ancient capital of Normandy, was freed by the 3rd Canadian division last Aug. 31. A plaque commemorating the liberation was made by a Royal Canadian electrical and mechanical engineer unit and placed in the Rouen city hall.

IN THE CITY

The city lawns are trim and neat,
  Late flowers are blooming there,
And all along the shady street
  Homes show a picture fair;
But oh! we miss the country skies
  Where naught obstructs the view,
With fields a-stretching far and wide
  And woods in autumn hue.

And yet we love the hurrying throng,
  The friendly folk we meet,
The little children's laugh and song,
  Their voices soft and sweet;
For life, how lonely it would be
  However bright the land!
If face of friend no more we see
  Nor grasp a friendly hand.

WEDDINGS

BOYLE—DOWNEY

St. Paul's Church at Dartmouth, N.S., was the scene of a pretty wedding Monday, September fourth, when Rev. Father Neary united in marriage Alice Frances, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Downey, Tufts Cove, N.S., to Joseph Patrick Boyle, R.C.N.V.R., son of Mrs. Boyle and the late Harry Boyle, Belleville, Ont.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, looked charming in a floor length gown of white chiffon, gathered at the waist and neckline with gold sequins. Her long veil was held in place by a coronet of small white fowers. Her only ornament was a gold locket, the gift of the groom. She carried a bouquet of Talisman roses.

Miss Vivian Haney, cousin of the bride, was bridesmaid and wore a pink chiffon gown similar to the bride's and trimmed with pink sequins. Her shoulder-length veil was held in place by a coronet of small pink flowers and she carried a bouquet of white gladioli.

Frank C. Boyle, R.C.N.V.R., brother of the groom, was best man.

The mother of the bride received in a two-piece dress of old rose wool with brown accessories and a corsage of red roses.

After the ceremony a wedding breakfast was held for the immediate relatives of the family. In the evening a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents for a number of guests.

The bride and groom are at present visiting the groom's mother at 14 Elmer Street, Belleville.

O'BRIEN—RYAN

Marmora.—A pretty wedding was solemnized at the Sacred Heart Church, Marmora, on Monday morning, September 11th., when Mary Elizabeth Ryan, daughter of Thomas Ryan and the late Mrs. Ryan, of Marmora, became the bride of Edward O'Brien, son of Mrs. O'Brien and the late Patrick O'Brien, of Marmora.

The ceremony was performed and the nuptial mass celebrated by Rev. H. J. Farrell.

The bride wore a blue two-piece dress with navy hat and accessories and corsage of American Beauty roses. Her attendant was Mrs. Gordon Burns of Peterborough, who wore a mauve street-length dress, matching hat and accessories and a corsage of yellow roses. Sgt. Gordon Burns of the R.C.A.F., Montreal, was groomsman.

The couple left on a trip to Toronto, and on their return they will reside in Marmora.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

He's "Cock of the Walk" Though Living on Old Age Pension

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 59 years old. Fourteen years ago I married my second husband who was a bachelor 18 years older than I. He has provided me with little money for clothes, so my married daughter (who has four children of her own) supplies my needs.

I have a small home in my name, which I was about to lose a couple of years ago, but my daughter took this over and is paying off the mortgage, besides paying for her own home.

This daughter's 12-year-old son came out to visit me for a month, my daughter paying for his board. He was a good helper with chores, but my husband is one of those men who thinks a child should work every minute and have no pleasure. So when my grandson went to visit some little friends for the afternoon, my husband promptly said he can never come here again. What can I do?

My daughter has been good to both my husband and me, but my husband is one of those men who must have his way. My husband's only income is old age assistance. How can I tell my daughter her son can't come here any more? I don't like to hurt her. E. M. H.

You would be worse than foolish if you told your daughter her son is unwelcome in your home. Your daughter has been wonderful to your husband and you. More than likely you would have lost your home without your daughter's help. From scores of letters I've had, there is no type of old man so completely "cock of the walk" as one who is living on old age pensions.

Without nagging, tell your husband he must learn how to be reasonable, even at his advanced age.

Wants to Get Rid of Undesirable Lodger

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Three months ago I rented part of my house to what I thought a nice couple. The woman is all right, but the man is impossible. My husband is in the Navy, so my niece, mother and aunt live with me. This man yells at his wife, swears and has said nasty things to my niece who is only 20. We can't have friends in because he embarrasses us all with his talk.

Since this man has come in, we have no privacy, and as my niece and I work in a war plant, we're tired at night, and like to relax. To do that we have to go to a movie, just on account of this man. Isn't there something we can do to get him out of the house? I expect my husband home on furlough in ten days, and I certainly don't want his month's leave spoiled by this man.

If there is a Rent Control Commission in the city from which you write me, I would advise you to consult them without delay. The Commission here in Washington tells me there are six reasons for which a tenant may be dispossessed, whether he is or is not in the armed forces. Whether any of these conditions apply to your home city, you must get the final answer from their Board.

Fashion Flashes

COLOR RISES to new height and interest in millinery. Made for evening wear is a forward-tilted model in bright fuchsia felt trimmed with matching satin roses and draped veiling of the same shade with a small rose at one corner.

Every other dress seems to have a peplum, so well has this fashion been received. A nice daytime dress has a skirt of sheer brown wool. The rippled peplum is of brown wool in front and peacock blue wool in back.

Nothing so pretty as a young girl wearing her first dance dress. A beauty is of foamy white net, with high round neckline and a yoke formed by flat puffs of white ostrich, which also make the sleeves. On the skirt, loose puffs of the ostrich are held by white satin ribbons.

Designed with thought to the needs of the college or career girl is a coat of tan wool fleece with tuxedo collar and deep cuffs of sable-dyed muskrat, nice for almost any occasion, yet sturdy.

We like to admire beautifully-made clothes even while we know we can't have 'em. This goes for a theatre suit of black dull-surfaced slipper satin with a wide band of black fox used for the curving skirt border. The top is a cape with buttoned vest front, with black and huge wide sleeves formed of wide bands of black fox.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

On the Use of "Junior"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

My husband's father's name was George E.; my husband is George E.; our son is George E. When our son was born, George E. Sr. was living; my husband George E. Jr., our son was called George E. 3rd.

When George E. Sr. died, did the Jr., then become Sr., and our son become the Jr.?

My husband contends that even though his father is dead, he (my husband) is still Jr., and our son is not Jr.

I contend that the grandfather was George E. 1st., that my husband is George E., 2nd., and that our son is George E. 3rd. But that at the same time my husband becomes the senior, and our son becomes the junior.

Your opinion will be very much appreciated.

Mrs. C. E.

Upon the death of the senior George E., the usual procedure is for the junior George E. to drop the Jr. and become senior, and for his son to become "Jr."

You did not tell me why your husband did not wish to follow this procedure. It is true that occasionally a man bearing the same name as his father has a definite reason for continuing to call himself "Jr." after his father has died. For example, if his father has been so famous that the son feels that he should not take his name; or for some practical reason such as the fact that the son has established a business under his name as "Jr.". If your husband has such an important or practical reason for wishing not to drop the "Jr." after his name, he may abide by this decision, but he should realize that this is not the usual procedure.

Your last paragraph, outlining your idea of the name-change, shows confusion between the name of a man's son and grandson, and the name of a nephew or cousin of a man of the same name. Let me explain. When George E. was living, your husband was George E., Jr.; and your son was George E., 3rd. According to the usual custom, when George E. died, your husband became George E., and your son added the "Jr." to his name.

Now let's suppose your husband had a brother, William, who also named his name after his grandfather, George E. While the grandfather was living, that son would be George E., 2nd; and if George E., 2nd had a son who also was named George E., he would be George E., 3rd. But these forms do not affect the names of your husband or of your son, since they are descended in a direct line from your husband's father.

TRENTON

Pte. M. A. Clough Killed in Action, Serving in France

Trenton, Sept. 14 — Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Clough, 14 Leopold St., have received official information that their son Pte. Maynard A. Clough has been killed in action in France after seven years of service in the Army.

Pte. Clough joined the Midland Regiment in the Spring of 1937, going to Barriefield Camp, Kingston, for two weeks, and after having completed training was called on to serve as batman to the officers of the Canadian Army (Permanent Force) of Canada. He served in that capacity at Trinity College, Port Hope, until the course was completed.

In the spring of 1938 he was still a member of the Midland Regiment but owing to circumstances could not take his training at Barriefield Camp, thus missing the only part of his training since going into army life. In the spring of 1939 he was selected among others to appear as the Guard of Honor to the King and Queen who were visiting Canada in the City of Kingston, later taking up his annual training with the Midland Regiment at Barriefield.

Service With Midland Regiment

Having completed his training there he returned to his home to take up civilian life again, but not for long as the Midland Regiment was called upon at the outbreak of war to guard the Trenton R.C.A.F. Station. This was known then as the First Midland Regiment and was one of the first regiments of the Non-Permanent force of Canada to guard vital Government properties from spies and saboteurs.

On August 21st the Midland Regiment under Major Dudley took up the guarding duties of air stations and when Canada declared war on Germany the Regiment was preparing to go on active service in which all men who were able joined up.

On Active Service in 1940

Seeking immediate action Pte. Clough was released from the Midland Regiment to go on active service but failed to get into the Army until the spring of 1940.

On May 17th Maynard Clough was inducted into the Royal Canadian Artillery, with the 14th Battery of Kingston. As a gunner he trained at Kingston for two months before going to Camp Petawawa, Ont., to take up his advance training after which he was returned to Kingston to await his overseas draft. He left in December 1940, arriving in an English seaport on Christmas Eve, 1940. After serving in England for three and a half years he left in June 1944 for France, thus completing over seven years of military life.

Red Cross Meeting

The regular meeting of the Red Cross Society was held in the work rooms on Tuesday with the monthly meeting following. The President, Mr. B. F. Joyce, presided and minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved. Treasurer's report was presented by Mr. George Sprentall.

Reports of the various committees were presented and the shipping report showed 80 articles had been shipped to Red Cross Headquarters during July at a total value of $82.75 and during August 111 articles at a total value of $135.15. In addition 196 pieces of linen at a value of $133.50 had been shipped for Russian relief.

A special appeal was made during the afternoon to the ladies present for gifts of cigarettes, gum, games, knitted articles or other items suitable for making up the Christmas parcels for personnel of the Corvette "Trentonian". It is hoped all citizens will respond to this appeal, and quickly, in order that our adopted family of sailors may have a joyous Christmas.

Honored on 78th Birthday

The many friends and neighbors of Captain Constantine VanAlstine, 512 Front St., gathered at the North Trenton United Sunday School on Tuesday evening in honor of Mr. VanAlstine's 78th birthday. Rev. J. D. Martin of King St. United Church, in a very inspiring address, thanked Mr. VanAlstine for his devotion to the Sunday School with which he has been associated for the past 49 years, being Superintendent for more than thirty-seven years.

On behalf of the gathering Mr. Earl Bonter, assistant superintendent of the Sunday School, presented the guest of honor with a beautiful arm chair and Mr. VanAlstine in his witty but truly sincere manner thanked his many friends sincerely for their kindness, expressing the desire that he might be spared many years of active work with the Sunday School.

Sgt. Thompson enlisted in the R.C.A.F. in June 1943, and attended I.T.S. at Belleville, service at Fingal and graduated as a Bombardier from Malton in July last, after which he was posted to Three Rivers until leaving for overseas.

He is a former graduate of Trenton High School.

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Sept. 14 —(CP Cable)— A bill adding a 10th year to this longest of modern parliaments will be introduced when the House of Commons assembles Sept. 26 after the summer recess.

Not since Cromwell's time has parliament had so long a life but the feeling in Britain is that it will be cut short before its 10th year is completed. If the war in Europe ends this year, a general election is expected next spring or summer.

Normal life of parliament is five years and the life of the present house expires in November, 1940. Since then, bills extending it another 12 months have been passed annually.

A snap election if the war ends soon is not likely since the new electoral register is not yet complete and many service voters still are unregistered. It is also planned to carry out interim redistribution of seats before the election and the necessary legislation will be passed next month.

This legislation will create 25 temporary constituencies, giving the House 640 members instead of the present 615. More permanent redistribution affecting the whole country will be carried out later.

Appointment of Sir Hughe Knatchbull-Hugessen as ambassador to Belgium is an indication of the importance the Foreign Office attaches to the embassy in Brussels. Sir Hughe has been sent from one key post to another.

He was Britain's ambassador to China during the crisis years of 1936-38 and was nearly killed in a Japanese strafing attack. Since the war he has been in Ankara, linchpin of Britain's diplomacy in the Middle East. Sir Hughe is a scholarly diplomat, an excellent linguist and musician.

German Mail Links With Portugal Are Cut By Allied Drive in France

Ottawa, Sept. 14 (CP)—The Allied drive through France has cut German mail connections with Portugal and letters from Canadian prisoners of war may cease to arrive for a time, post office officials said.

As soon as the southern and central regions of France have been cleared of the enemy, however, it will be possible for Allied authorities to collect prisoner-of-war mail from Swiss postal authorities. Home mail will be delivered to prisoners by the same route, in reverse.

DIGESTION OFF? Jittery? Pepless?

—Your Nerves May Need Feeding

Every act — every movement of your body, no matter how small, is controlled by nerves. When nerves lack nourishment, every function of your body may suffer . . . digestion . . . bowels . . . muscles. You may sleep poorly, feel depressed, physically and nervously exhausted.

An impoverished blood condition due to lack of sufficient iron is often accompanied by nervousness, for nerves may then fail to get their proper nourishment. So if you are nervous, rundown, pepless and tired with sluggish digestion and bowels because of this condition try Dr. Williams Pink Pills. They not only help build up the blood but they supply Vitamin B-1 which contributes to the normal functioning of the nervous system and the digestive tract. Then see what a difference your improved blood condition may make, not only in your energy and strength but in your nerves, digestion and bowel action. Get Dr. Williams Pink Pills today from your druggist.

BROOM WINDER

This is a blind man binding broom-corn to a broom handle with wire. The wearing quality of the broom depends on the efficiency with which such men do their work. In the factory where this picture was taken, a battery of broom winders, broom stitchers and sorters turn out six hundred dozen "Blindcraft" brooms every week. Factories for the employment of blind men used to be considered the only means by which employment could be found. That has now changed, and there are dozens of blind men and women earning their livings at all sorts of jobs. The Institute factories, however, still have their place, and will continue to have. All the services made available by The Canadian National Institute for the Blind to blind people owe their existence to the generosity of the public. The maintenance of Institute factories does not, nowadays, require much money, but they are part of the general Institute set-up—an important cog in the social machinery built up to serve the blind. It is to maintain the whole pattern of Institute work that the present campaign for funds in Belleville is being conducted.

FREQUENCY

Operate in U. S.

Dr. Frigon said frequency modulation stations have been operating in the United States for a few years, first on an experimental basis and then on a commercial basis. About 45 of the stations now were in operation and the Federal Communications Commission had before it applications for approximately another 50 stations.

The CBC has received applications for licences for approximately 80 commercial frequency modulation stations, said Dr. Frigon.

"When matters have settled down in the United States the time will have come for Canada to take a stand because manufacturers in Canada will unquestionably have to follow the same standards as in the United States," said Dr. Frigon.

Establish Planning Board.

Dr. Frigon said that a radio technical planning board, composed of radio experts, was being established in Canada to go into the whole question of frequency modulation.

He said frequency modulation and television were two almost completely separated fields, although frequency modulation transmitters might carry sound for television. He said television probably would not be available to the public generally for another 15 or 20 years.

FRESHER, CHEAPER FOOD for your table by men who think of tomorrow

TOMORROW'S EVERGROWING GARDENS . . . Why should garden-fresh vegetables be available only in summer? Why should rich, ripe strawberries be a luxury in winter? Men who think of tomorrow are doing something about it. In Scotland, where seasons are short, it has been possible to grow six to eight crops of vegetables a year by heating truck gardens with underground steam pipes—under glass in winter, open to the air in summer.

MEN who think of tomorrow are planning to feed the world better than it has ever been fed before, to make it healthier than ever before. It is a glorious future to which we may look . . . but only after this war is won!

Are you working at your "war job" as hard as you can?

Are you saving and turning in wastepaper to help meet the serious shortage this country faces in the manufacture of containers for war materials?

Are you collecting and turning in every last drop of fat from your kitchen to help feed the hungry machines that turn it into TNT?

Are you heeding the Government's plea to curtail your personal travel so that troops and supplies can move freely over our already congested transportation systems?

Have you added your blood to that of millions of others to provide life-saving plasma for our wounded?

And have you increased your purchases of War Savings Certificates and Victory Bonds to the limit of your ability . . . and are you holding on to them?

Only by working hard at these and scores of other "war jobs" can we be sure of Victory . . . and the ever-ripening fruits of Victory. Let us all be MEN WHO THINK OF TOMORROW!

* THE HOUSE OF SEAGRAM *

'Glamor Boy' Sexton Defeated By 'Killer' Katan But Winner Given Help by Referee Maxwell

Counted Out in Third Fall When Only Slightly Pinned on Mat

FANS STORM RING

Billed as being undefeated during the past two years, Frank "Glamor Boy" Sexton dropped one of the most unpopular decisions ever to be handed out in the local wrestling emporium Wednesday evening when in the main bout of the evening he was counted out by Referee Maxwell, who gave John "Killer" Katan the nod in the third and final bout of the night.

It was a tough and surprising loss for the agile Sexton who apparently had things well under control until in a mixup near the ropes his shoulders touched the mat for a period sufficiently long for Maxwell to count him out. Previously Katan and Sexton had each won a fall.

But Maxwell's questionable decision was practically 100 percent unpopular with the fans and they lost no time in telling him all about it. Hundreds strong they stormed the ring as he raised Katan's arm in victory. But if it was Maxwell's skin the fans were after they waited too long for he and Katan escaped to the dressing room leaving Sexton and his supporters wondering what it was all about.

Claiming he was robbed on the decision, Sexton immediately got on the long distance telephone in conversation with the wrestling commissioner demanding a return bout with Katan in Belleville and with a different referee.

Fans With Sexton.

Fifteen hundred fans were with Sexton all the way as he proceeded to give Katan "the works" in the first round. Sexton used his famous rolling figure-four to full advantage but this punishing hold proved his downfall in the first canto. In the midst of a roll both wrestlers 'rolled' out of the ring and before their return Katan had bounced his opponent's head hard against the ring boards. Noticeably hurt Sexton was then an easy victim for the first fall.

Out for revenge in the second round, Sexton went really to work on the hapless Katan and in comparatively short time pinned his shoulders to the mat. The third canto was a repetition of the second until the encounter near the ropes, when as the result of the unpopular decision Sexton's undefeated record was broken.

In the preliminaries Al Dunlop, sore arm and all, bested Abe Zonkin, former Hamilton footballer. But it took him practically the full regulation time to do it. Zonkin showed Dunlop a new trick around the ropes but it backfired when the ultimate victor hung the helpless Hamiltonian by the feet in the corner. The fall came in exactly 19 minutes.

Singh Draws With DeGlane.

The semi-final bout saw the Hindoo, Nanjo Singh and the Montrealer Pierre DeGlane battle to a thirty-minute draw, which saw all kinds of wrestling but little action until just as the gong went to end hostilities. Singh had the advantage during the early part of the bout as he punished DeGlane with a prolonged series of toe holds. Action speeded up towards the last and with liberal use of feet and fists the contestants were at each others throats as the gong sounded.

Connie Mack Says Detroit Has Best Chance To Win Flag

(By The Canadian Press)

Although Sal Maglie, ace twirler of Welland Atlas, held Hamilton to six hits and registered 12 strikeouts without issuing a pass, the Hamiltonian worked out a 3-2 victory at home last night to square the Niagara Senior Baseball playoffs at one game apiece. Harry (Deacon) Wasser, Niagara Falls, N.Y., import, was touched for eight safeties by the visitors but, after a bad first innings when Welland went into a 2-0 lead, he kept the blows well scattered.

Twice postponed because of rain, the featherweight match between Chalky Wright and Jacky Wilson was ordered by the District of Columbia Boxing Commission to be staged indoors tonight at Washington. Eddie Walker, manager of Wright, refused to accept the order however saying the delay would hurt his fighter who has a scheduled title go with Willie Pep at New York Sept. 29. The Commission has promised disciplinary action if the bout is not held tonight.

Speaking at a Shrine Club gathering in Philadelphia yesterday, Connie Mack of the Athletics declared Detroit Tigers were the best bet to win the American League pennant through their outstanding pitchers, Dizzy Trout and Hal Newhouser.

Winning their fourth straight game, the Beavers, representing the Hamilton Police A.A., last night copped the softball title of Hamilton by defeating Slaters 2-1.

With Nelson Gary, Jr., 4-year-old one-armed lad of Los Angeles, as a special guest, one-armed Pete Gray sparked the Memphis Chicks to a 7-6 victory against Nashville last night at Memphis to take the first game of the Southern Association playoffs. Gray tripled in the 12th inning for his fifth hit to start a victory rally.

The three-year-old pace, featured yesterday at Strathroy Fair, was won in straight heats by Babe Grattan Boy, owned by Campbell and Son of Ailsa Craig. W. Herbert's Goodwill Bill was second in all three starts. Denfield Dick captured the 2:22 pace.

Creighton Mine defeated Coniston 6-3 last night at Sudbury to clean up the semi-finals of the Nickel Belt Senior Baseball League. The Miners now clash with Copper Cliff for the circuit title.

Winnipeg, Sept. 14 — (CP) — Should a few days of school lessons interfere with east-west high school football competition when sportsmen are trying to put the game on a national basis?

That's the question posed to Winnipeg Rugby Club officials, who are doing everything to promote minor leagues for a potential fall pastime rivalling the spring's Dominion junior hockey.

Just when the club was set to foot the bill for a two-game series between the Manitoba high school leagues and St. Michaels College, Toronto, the Winnipeg public school circuit poured cold water on the deal. It would take the boys away from study.

But will determination win out? Art Chipman, the club's vice-president, has another plan. It involves St. Paul's College, a private Winnipeg school. Now he is hoping for a single east-west game here October 14.

Maurice (Winnipeg Free Press) Smith asks why the high school league waited until this late date to make its decision. When the east-west game was first broached was the time to say it would interfere with academic studies.

Toronto public school principals also turned down the proposal, claiming too much time would be lost from school. "What a lot of mealymouthing unadulterated succotash that is," wrote Jimmy (Toronto Globe and Mail) Coleman." The educators of Toronto have done a distinct disservice to the youngster under their care," he argued.

Whether schoolboys travel or stay home, senior east-west rivalry is certain to flourish after the war.

In Winnipeg, former Blue Bombers are tutoring the kids. Lou Mogul, Benny Hatskin, Norm Gellar, Don Durno spend hours on corner lots building brawn and planning strategy. Some 90 lads are trying to make a place on Kelvin Clippers, defending Manitoba school champions. The minor game now is a serious business with some 4,000 fans packing stands every game.

Until the old Western Interprovincial Football Union operates again, the armed forces will carry the east-west senior torch. The R.C.A.F. has a four-team league in Manitoba and plans to tackle No. 1 Command, Toronto, this fall.

The senior gridiron is kept alive in Saskatchewan. The once-famed Regina Roughriders and Saskatoon University Huskies plan exhibitions. In Alberta, the school leagues will carry on in Edmonton and Calgary while the University of Alberta Golden Bears anticipate tussles with Saskatoon Huskies.

Rain forced postponement of the International League playoff schedule for the second consecutive time last night, as Buffalo was held idle at Baltimore and Toronto was washed out at Newark.

London, Sept. 14 — (CP)—Olympic Games, if ever held again, should not be put on for at least 25 years after the war.

That's the view of a London Star columnist who claimed in a lengthy article that the games never achieved their purpose of friendly rivalry to bind together nations in brotherhood. It was in answer to a newspaper report quoting Daniel Ferris, secretary of the United States Amateur Athletic Union, as saying that "if peace comes within the next 2 years, there definitely will be a 1948 Olympic."

"Do we really want a resumption of the Olympic Games after the war?" the columnist asked.

He said that at the last Olympics, held in Berlin in 1936, Germany used the occasion to spend £5,000,000 ($22,500,000) on propaganda, glorifying the Nazi creed, and for speeding up the militarization of German youth.

"The atmosphere was anything but friendly," the article continued. "One sequel was that England moved at the Olympic Games International Committee that soccer should be eliminated from future Olympiads.

"There were rows at the previous series. At the Amsterdam Games in 1928 some of the boxing decisions were so bad there were riots, boxers in tears, and a threat to withdraw by the U. S. team."

The writer added that at the Games in Paris four years earlier there was an argument between an Italian and a Hungarian which ended in a fierce duel with sabres. In addition, he said that a British middleweight boxer was bitten in the chest by his French opponent who "though several times warn and completely outclassed, got the verdict."

"If these things can happen, how much more likely would they be soon after the greatest war in history," the writer concluded. "It will take a long time for animosity to subdue."

Nancy Risch, 17-year-old Scottish speedster from Motherwell, came to London and smashed two of her own swimming records. The feat gave her undisputed possession to the title of Britain's fastest woman swimmer.

She set up a native record for the 220 yards by swimming the distance in the time of 2:38 4/5. When she was 15 she swam the 220 in the record time of 2:39 5/10.

The second record was smashed when she swam 150 yards free-style in 1:39, lowering her former mark by 2 1/5 seconds.

Daughter of a police inspector, Nancy holds British native free-style records over 4 distances and every Scottish record for all strokes over all distances.

Harry Gumbert, Reds and Frank Secory, Cubs: Gumbert won his 11th game of season holding Cubs to eight hits in 4-1 Red victory; Secory hit three-run homer in sixth of nightcap to account for all Cub runs in 3-2 win for even break.

CARDS LOSE FIRST SERIES SINCE '40 TO THE PIRATES

Team Not Hitting and American League Stock Takes Boost

CHICAGO FOURTH

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sport Writer)

American League World Series stock gained a few points today as the four idle contenders analyzed the fate of St. Louis Cardinals who had lost their first season series since 1940 and dropped 11 of their last 15 games.

Pittsburgh Pirates swept another double-header last night, 7-3 and 10-5, for a 12-10 edge in games. The Red Birds haven't beaten the Pirates in their last ten meetings, a tie being their best effort.

Frankie Frisch has had the Pirates rolling at a .763 clip since Aug. 9 and at the .600 season mark for the first time as the Cards dipped below .700.

The National League leaders were having pitching trouble with Harry Brechen failing to go the route on the opener and Max Lanier suffering his fifth successive defeat in the second. Rip Sewell and Xavier Rescigno took credit for the Pirate victories despite two Cardinal homers by Johnny Hopp and one each by Ray Sanders and Ken O'Dea. Johnny Barrett and Babe Dahlgren hit for the circuit for the Pirates.

Chicago clung to fourth place in the National by downing Cincinatti, 3-2, in the second game of a double-header, on Frank Secory's three-run homer after Harry Gumbert had turned them back in the opener, 4-1. Philadelphia at New York and Boston at Brooklyn double-headers were rained out.

TERRIFIC SLUMP HITS CARDINALS

St. Louis, Sept. 14 (AP) — The team that was picked to break the all-time record for total victories in the National League, St. Louis Cardinals, will have to rid themselves of a terrific slump if they are to win 100 games this year, considered easy pickings less than a month ago.

The 1944 National League pennant, which seven other managers awarded the Red Birds before the season started, is still mathematically within the reach of Pittsburgh and Cincinnati.

All this trouble started 15 games ago, Sept. 1, in Pittsburgh. The Cardinals played four games with the Pirates—a vast mistake, for they lost them all.

Since then the league-leaders have won only four games for an average of .267. Over the season they have won 95, lost 41, and there are 18 to go. To win 100 games means the drooping Red Birds must take five of those 18, a .277 average, 10 points better than their September pace.

The Cardinal lead, once a haughty 20 games, has been cut to 13 1-2 contests—and the remaining games are in the road. But Card officials have gone ahead confidently with plans for their third straight world series. Tickets have been printed, the park is a sellout, and you can't find anyone asking for his money back.

YOUNGSTER SEES HERO IN ACTION

Memphis, Sept. 14 (AP)—A wide-eyed lad of three met his ball-playing hero yesterday.

"Hi, Pete,—" little Nelson Gray, Jr., of Los Angeles said—and then wonder and worship welled up in a tiny throat to choke off the words.

"Hello, youngster," smiled Memphis outfielder Pete Gray, who used to play ball in Quebec.

They shook hands—with their lefts. You see, they had no rights.

But that wasn't enough for Nelson. He leaped to plant a wet kiss on Pete's lean, flushed cheek—and squeezed his hero tightly with his single arm.

Young Nelson lost his right arm in an accident a year ago. His father, a baseball fan, wanted to give him an objective in life—so he fed him on stories of the prowess of Pete Gray, the one-armed wonder of the Southern League.

Pete Gray soon became Nelson's idol. He had to have a Memphis uniform "just like Pete's" and a miniature bat and glove.

Then he begged to see his hero in action.

The Memphis commercial appeal sponsored a fund to bring Nelson to Memphis for the Nashville-Memphis series, which opened last night. The fund was quickly over-subscribed.

LESSON NO. 480

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Deliver me from Jumpin' Jim. There is no way to throttle him. With each good hand he tries to wham our contract into some big slam. I dare not say a word of censure. He may succeed with some rare venture.

Except in isolated cases, the safety of a slam depends on having enough aces and kings. When you know you have all the aces, find out if you have enough kings.

Drag yourself to this deal:

NORTH
♠A K 9
♥A Q 2
♦A K Q 2
♣A J 2

WEST
♠J
♥10 9 8 6
♦9 7 5 4 3
♣Q 9 4

EAST
♠6 2
♥K 7 5 3
♦J 10 8
♣K 10 8 6

SOUTH
♠Q 10 8 7 5 4 3
♥J 4
♦6
♣7 5 3

The bidding has gone this far:

SOUTH	NORTH
Pass	2 NT
3 S	3 NT
4 S	?

By this time, north is in the mood for slam. He knows by now that south has a long spade suit. Therefore, south must have one or more short suits.

If north was that kind of a huckleberry, he would hop into a slam in spades right then and there. But that would not be wise. Because south might also have two kings; enough for a grand slam.

Four no-trump is the convention signal for asking partner how many kings he has.

In response to five no-trump, six clubs is the response that denies having any kings. When north hears that, he learns that the opponents have both unseen kings. So, he probably ends at six spades.

The opening lead from west is the heart ten. No matter what defence the opponents put up, south can make seven spades. Or with a diamond lead, north can make seven no-trump. Work it out.

"Louisiana Hayride"

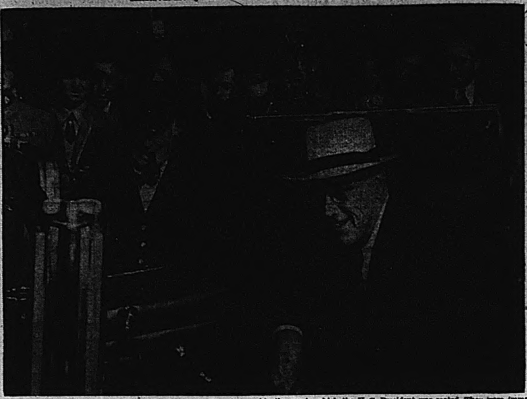
"Wal starch my socks if'n Judy hain't done it again. I'm a tellin' you she's the funniest, singin'est gal thet ever come out of these here hills and she shore is makin' hey, hey while the fun shines", at the McCarthy theatre, where right now she's a rippin' and sortin' and a rarin' to go to town in Columbia's musical jamboree of joy "Louisiana Hayride," yes, sir. And she's a pippin in them thar citified clothes of hern.

Telling the story of a hayfield family which suddenly gets rich because an oil company takes a lease on the old homestead, the action goes to Hollywood to star Judy in her own production under the ministrations of two city slicker con men (Richard Lane and George McKay). They rent a studio, get a director and a writer and $3,000 a week from the newly-rich Judy. But they also get theirs in the end.

You can imagine Judy in Hollywood. Well, the screen writers have too. But far beyond what you or I could dream up. There are backstage scenes of Hollywood with Judy in the midst of them; there are farm scenes—you should see her in the midst of her family which won't buy stock in a shoe manufacturing plant because they never wear shoes; you also should see her fight off the wolves who rush at her in a pack when they hear she's an heiress; yes, you should ese "Louisiana Hayride" and get the ride of your life and a haywagon of mirth and melody.

2nd feature attraction presents Van Heflin, Jimmy Lindon, Wallace Ford, Stuart Erwin and Patricia Ellis in the story of a man the world called bad and the woman who dared to love him, the greatest emotional drama to come out of Hollywood in a long time "Back Door to Heaven."

ARRIVE IN QUEBEC FOR SECOND HISTORIC MEETING



Prime Minister Winston Churchill and President Franklin D. Roosevelt greet one another in Quebec City shortly after their trains had arrived from separate directions. Churchill, with a fresh edition of the well-known cigar, walked from his train, accompanied by Mrs. Churchill, to the car in which the U. S. President was seated. They were immediately whisked up to the Citadel, where they are guests of His Excellency the Governor General and Her Highness Princess Alice. Both were officially greeted by Prime Minister King and members of the cabinet upon arrival.—(National Film Board Photo.)

With Ontario Naturalists

Toronto, Sept. 11 (CP)— With all outdoors for their classrooms, nature lovers have been going to school in the northern wilds for the last six years for the sheer joy of actual observation under scientific supervision. The school, conducted during the first two weeks in July, was started by the Federation of Ontario Naturalists.

J. R. Dymond, professor of systematic zoology at the University of Toronto, one of the federation's leaders, says:

"We believe that the most effective way of arousing an interest in nature is to take people into the out-of-doors under competent leadership. It was to provide the necessary leaders that the school was started."

Under the auspices of the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests nature hikes were conducted this summer in the southern part of Algonquin Park near the highway where most of the summer residents and hotels are located. Hikers were made familiar with the common trees, flowers, ferns and birds with the idea of making them feel fairly at home when out-of-doors.

Mrs. Doris Huestis Speirs, North Bay, reports the finding of the first nest in Ontario of the Evening Grosbeak. It was the end of a long quest.

The nest was discovered 50 feet up in a dying white cedar tree at Clear Lake in the Haliburton district by Mrs. Mary Noble Earle, wife of a retired Syracuse lawyer, now realizing a wish to live in a log cabin in the wilds of Ontario the year round.

On June 21 the nest with small young in it was photographed by Otto E. Devitt of Toronto and a complete story of the discovery has been recorded at the Royal Ontario Museum.

The Evening Grosbeak, one of the largest of the sparrows, is colored in broad masses of lemon yellow, with black wings, crown and tail.

German prisoners-of-war cutting wood near a lake in the South River area near Algonquin Park found a nest filled with the eggs of a wild duck. The species was not learned. They were brought into camp, an obliging hen did the sitting and the young ducks were raised successfully as pets.

A pair of Burying Beetles, shining red and black, or yellow and black in color, and only about half an inch in length, can bury a dead mouse they find in your garden in three hours or less. This provides them with enough food to last a lifetime. Burying Beetles are the sextons of the insect world.

Menzies Condemns 'Noisy Group in U.S.'

Canberra, Sept. 14 (CP-Reuter)— Robert Menzies, a former Australian prime minister, speaking before the House of Representatives during the budget debate today, condemned "the noisy group in the United States which constantly is trying to make trouble by suggesting that all the burdens of the world are being transferred to the United States."

American critics, he said, should ponder the figures of mutual aid showing that the United States end-lease to Australia to end of December last was equivalent to £28,000,000 (about $100,800,000) at prices not necessarily at cost price, while Australian lend-lease to the United States for three years to the end of last June was £279,,000,000 pounds at cost price.

SWISS WANTS INDEMNITY

London, Sept. 14 (CP)—The Swiss government has instructed its legation to protest in Washington against violation of Swiss air space and demand indemnity for all damages, a broadcast Swiss communique said yesterday.

Interprovincial Conference Willl Be Held Sept. 26

Highways Ministers, their deputies, engineers and other technical officers from practically all the Provincial Governments in the Dominion will assemble at the Cornwallis Inn, Kentville, N. S., on Tuesday and Wednesday, Sept. 26 and 27 next, for an important wartime interprovincial conference on postwar plans for the greater development of Canada's highway systems.

The Conference, sponsored by the Canadian Good Roads Association, has been called in order to provide an opportunity for full and frank discussion among the government representatives of the many problems that confront Highways Departments, in matters of administration, construction, maintenance, and regulation of traffic.

Experience during the war period has shown how vitally important highways are in times of emergency, and the provincial governmental officers are desirous of utilizing to the full the knowledge that has been gained for peace time development.

The Conferences take the place of the conventions of the Canadian Good Roads Association, which have been held annually since 1914, but which were suspended during the war.

Standing committees, composed of representative government engineers and officials, have been studying technical and administrative problems during the past year and their reports and conclusions will be discussed by the Conference.

Hon. W. A. Fallow, Minister of Public Works for Alberta, will preside at the Conference, at which eight of the nine Highways Ministers of the Dominion will be present, with their technical staffs. Arrangements for the Conference are in the hands of George A. McNamee, secretary of the C.G.R.A., Montreal, who is putting the final touches to the program.

AT THE BELLE — In this case the tip would definitely be a gratuity as Jack Carson loves Jane Wyman in his maddest, merriest way in Warner Bros. new comedy, "Make Your Own Bed." "The Lady From Lisbond," a romantic thriller, is the second feature.

Eisenhower Tells Foreign Workers ToGoUnderground

Allied Supreme Headquarters, Sept. 14 — (AP) — A spokesman for Gen. Eisenhower told foreign workers in northwest, west and southwest Germany Wednesday to flee the Gestapo's manhunt for soldiers and trench diggers and to "leave the factories."

"You are in danger," he said in a broadcast, "but in the next few days you may have the greatest opportunities for action. In a desperate effort to eliminate Allied support among the workers, Himmler plans to repeat in the west what he and the Gestapo have already done so thoroughly in the east . . .

"Leave all German factories at once!

"Go underground."

Quebec Conference May Conclude This Week

Quebec, Sept. 14 — (CP) — The military conference between Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt today was reported to be making rapid progress, with the possibility their second Quebec meeting of the war would be completed this week.

Persons close to the British and American leaders said clear-cut decisions are being made rapidly on plans to smash Japan.

Both the Prime minister and the President have urgent business at home, with problems created by the swift movement of Allied armed forces demanding constant attention. They are not expected to linger in Quebec, much as they would relish a holiday.

ONTARIO FARMERS
1000 MEN WANTED
Now!

THIS is an appeal to THE FARMERS OF ONTARIO. The Packing Plants of Ontario, which process and ship your livestock for export, ARE SERIOUSLY SHORT OF MEN. Every available Farmer of Ontario is urged to offer his services for employment in one of the Packing Plants in this province as soon as the essential work of the farm is completed. OVER 1,000 men are required to start in the month of September alone. Good hourly wages will be paid. Transportation to the plant will be provided. Assistance will be given in arranging board and room.

With full staffs, the Packing Plants of Canada have ample capacity to handle even the tremendously increased numbers of cattle, sheep and swine, which Canadian farmers have ready for market this year. When operating to capacity the Packing Plants can keep the market cleared and livestock can be slaughtered, processed and shipped at its most profitable time, when it is at its market peak. Thus, losses which occur when animals are held beyond the peak—through additional feeding costs, through falling away from peak condition and through the danger to price structures when supply, threatens to exceed demand—are avoided.

Last year several hundred Ontario farmers volunteered for work in the plants in processing their own products and protecting their own interests. Production for export this year has increased by 40%. Available man-power has shrunk by 28%.

The Ontario Farm Service Force, in conjunction with Employment and Selective Service has undertaken the task of raising sufficient help from Ontario Farmers to keep Packing Plants operating to capacity this year. This department of the Ontario government's Department of Agriculture feels that this extension of its service is as vitally important to the interests of the farmers of this province as anything it has yet undertaken. The need of meat as a primary essential food to our Allied Armies, to the people of Great Britain and to the starving millions in countries being liberated by our victorious armies, is the basic consideration. In addition, efficient operation in the processing and marketing of livestock is necessary in protecting the greatest export market ever opened to Canadian farmers.

Your services are needed from now until spring. If you cannot devote that full period of time, a month or more will be of great assistance.

OFFER YOUR SERVICES AS SOON AS POSSIBLE. If you cannot go to work at once, call or write, stating that you will come, and at what date you will be available. Remember you will be serving your own best interests as well as playing a vital patriotic part in serving your country.

CHAPTER 19

Peter said, "Something's wrong here. We've hit a short circuit. Look here, I don't want to talk about books and music and murders any more. I want to talk about —us."

I was still silent.

"Now what?" asked Peter. "Why the obsessed look?"

Ignoring that question, I said: "Peter, would you like to join me in a little investigation job?"

"Who are we going to investigate? And where?"

"Charlton-Arms offices."

"Why?" queried Peter.

"I want to find out if that telephone call to Pamela just before ten o'clock was made from the hotel."

"You can't trace calls made from a phone booth, Letty."

"The call needn't have been made from a phone booth," I said. "It could have been made from one of the rooms. Wayne Courtney is staying here. Countess Panella still has a room here. Or the call could have been made on one of the house phones. I know that when the booths are occupied, you can call outside on one of the house telephones and, if you're a guest, all you have to do is to ask the operator to put the charge on your room bill. If you're not a guest, you can pay the toll at the front desk. Maybe I'm wrong about this, but I think it's worth looking into, Peter."

"Even if we go to jail for illegal entry?" he smiled. "Well, all right."

Peter paid our bill and we crossed the long lobby coming at last to a corridor in A-Wing which leads to the office doors. I dug into my purse for my skeleton keys and pencil flash. But Peter stopped me.

"I suppose you have an acetelyne torch tucked away somewere," he laughed. "Let's try this in a legal way."

Peter told me to wait....In a minute or so he returned with the night manager who, beaming knowingly, let us enter the executive offices and directed us to the telephone records cabinet.

"If I can be of any further help"...but Peter cut him short with thanks and the manager left the room.

I got to work at once, realizing that this was likely to be a long, tough job. There are hundreds of apartments in the Charlton-Arms, and you can imagine how many calls are made daily from the building. I knew that a complete record of the calls was kept. Each record slips shows a date, the number of the hotel suite making the call, the length of time consumed by the call, and the name of the operator who put the call through.

After a rather long search, we found the Saturday records. And just as the clock struck eleven, Peter cried, "Eureka! Look at this! Here's the record of that call!"

His hand was trembling as he passed a slip of over to me. This is what we read:

Date: Sat., Nov. 22, 1941.
Suite: 106-A
Call: North 21067
Time: Five minutes.
Operator: Marcella Kingsley.

"Marcella Kingsley!" I gasped. And then, "But, Peter, she was a stenographer! Not a telephone operator!"

"Well, she was cerainly a telephone operator last Saturday," said Peter, ruffling another batch of slips and showing me her name signed to many of them. "Yes, sir, she was an operator on Saturday. And she probably listened in on that call, knew too much and—Well, you know the answer."

While I was fingering that fateful slip, Peter asked, "Who occupies Suite 106-A?"

"I don't know," I replied, but the number was vaguely familiar. "It's a first floor number, like our own. We can find out in a jiff, though."

We put the slips back in the file case and hustled out of the office.

"What now?" whispered Peter.

I took a slow deep breath and directed, "Follow me, Watson."

One minute later, Peter and I were leaning against the front desk in the main building, asking a clerk which guest or guests occupied Suite 106-A. The lad said: "Dr. Wayne Courtney, Miss Randolph."

"Dr. Wayne Courtney?" I repeated.

We turned from the desk, and Peter said in a whisper: Just where is this leading us?"

"To the telephone girls," I said.

A minute or so later, Peter and I were in A-wing again, going down a steep flight of stairs, winding our way through a long corridor, and reaching at last a glass door which we opened.

complete with ear phones, busy

Ten girls of various descriptions, with little flashing bulbs on their boards, plugs and switches, were sitting in glassed-in cubicles, each partitioned from the other. They glanced in our direction and I saw a familiar face in booth No. 8: small and dark with great brown eyes almost lost behind steel-rimmed glasses. I couldn't place the girl for a moment; then I recognized her as Maizie Diggs, a stenographer who had done some work for me.

Maizie smiled at me, and I wiggled a beckoning hand. I saw her tap on the glass wall on her left and jerk her dark head toward her board, signaling the other operator to take over. Then Maizie pushed a button that blackened all the tiny lights on her board and came up to me smiling widely.

"Hello, Miss Randolph; is there anything I can do?"

"Maybe," I said. And then I asked her if the late Marcella Kingsley had worked in that telephone room. "Oh, yes," replied Maizie. "Tuesdays and Saturdays. Nights, I mean. After her work in the office. From six until ten. I signed on to take her place when ...when..." The girl's voice broke a little remembering; "and I thought she must have been extremely fond of Marcella Kingsley. "She was so young, Miss Randolph," Maizie went on. "We all liked her. It was a terrible shock, her—her killing herself like that."

"Look, Maizie," I began. "Do you know anything about any of Marcella's boy friends? Please, believe me, I'm not asking out of idle curiousity. I have a definite and important reason for wanting to know."

"Boy friends?" Maizie looked thoughtful. "Oh, she had a lot of them, Miss Randolph. An awful lot! Being so pretty and all. But I don't know a thing about them. Not even their names. Marcella wasn't one for telling things. But there was someone lately, someone special, who had Marcella up in the air, all right. She was so excited all the time. But we couldn't get anything out of Marcella, except that he was slick. I'm not sure, but I think I saw him last Saturday night."

I swallowed hard.

"Where?" I asked.

"In the lobby here at the hotel," Maizie said. "I'd been working late and when I went into the locker-room, Marcella was there. I knew she had made a date with him, all right. She was humming, looking so happy. That's what's so awful about it, Miss Randolph. Marcella was just riding the clouds Saturday night, and then on Monday...The girl's voice choked off again. "I guess," Maizie went on, staring down at her brown oxfords, "Marcella just couldn't take it when the doctor told her she had a—what the papers called 'a fatal malady'."

"Did she see a doctor?" I asked.

"Yes. Monday. Lunch hour. She came back to work, looking scared, I thought. I asked her what the doctor had said. Marcella shrugged and told me, 'I guess I'll live, all right.' I laughed because Marcella didn't look sick. I'd never seen her looking better. Of course, I knew her head had ached when she'd been out late."

"Well, there's nothing fatal about a hang-over?"

"Oh, it wasn't a case of hangovers, Miss Randolph. Marcella never drank much. Please don't think that."

"I understand, Maizie. And the man? The man in the lobby?"

"Oh, yes," went on Maizie. "Well, he was real good-looking. Tall and dark and young. Bare-headed. A college boy. I've seen enough students to know one when I see one" Maizie grew thoughtful. "Somehow," she went on, "I had a feeling he wasn't glad to see Marcella. Maybe I was wrong. Still, he did seem sort of—I don't know—jumpy. Of course, that might have been because of Marcella. Being right there in the lobby and all. He was probably afraid the manager would say something to her. You see, none of us employees are allowed to use the lobby, or eat in the dining-room, or use the swimming pool in summer. You know."

"Did Miss Kingsley and the young man go out together?"

"I don't know. When I left, Marcella was right there by the telephones in the lobby, talking to him."

"By the house phones?"

"Yes. The ones near the A-wing entrance and below the front desk. You know."

"Thanks," I said. "I appreciate all you've told me. And one more thing, Maizie: Don't repeat any of this to the other girls. And if you can find out who Marcella's boy friend of Saturday night was, or anything about any of her other boy friends, I'd be grateful if you'd call me instantly. I know I'm puzzling you, but I can't explain right now."

"Oh, I understand, Miss Randolph," Maizie said, but she didn't. She looked puzzled, almost frightened. I watched her go back to her glassed-in cubicle; when she reached up to put on her ear-phones her brows were knitted together.

"And who was Marcella's man?" Peter asked when we turned out of the A-Wing corridor toward the lobby.

"Your guess is as good as mine," I said. "But I'd venture Victor Corliss. He's a college boy, and Saturday night he was bare-headed. And Vic is also tall, dark, and good-looking. If you'll remember, Sandra and Vic were quarreling in the hotel garden shortly after Pamela was murdered. Sandra was furious about some girl. I imagine Sandra learned about Vic and that girl the day of the debut. She cut Vicc dead when he came down the receiving line that afternoon. Then I rather think they made it up a bit during the dinner at the country club. That is, until Vic disappeared and wouldn't explain where he'd gone."

I remembered the rhinestone clip then, plucked it out of my pocket, and showed it to Peter.

"I found that in Victor's tuxedo pocket earlier in the week. I keep forgetting the thing . . . . It does seem to fit in with this new evidence, doesn't it? Victor and Marcella Kingsley. I suspect this clip was hers."

My voice cut off abruptly, and I knew by the expression on Peter Gibson's face he was seeing exactly what I had seen a moment before: The uniformed doorman coming into the lobby with the late papers in a bundle under his arm. Newspapers with screaming headlines:

After Two Years He Tells How Syntona Helped Him

Tells of Relief from Years of Suffering With Stomach and Kidney Disorders, Bladder Irritations, Dizzy Spells, Headaches and Tired Feelings, says Whole System Felt Improved.

"I will always have a good word to say about Syntona after the great comfort and relief it gave me two years ago when I was suffering with stomach and kidney disorders," said Mr. Charles Sageman, 129 Charles St., London, in a recent statement:

"For years I hardly had a decent night's sleep because I had to get up so often at night to relieve my kidneys and I suffered greatly with bladder irritations. In the mornings I always felt nervous and unrested. My stomach too, was in a disordered condition and it seemed my whole system had become weakened and run-down. Awful spells of dizziness came over me, spots floated before my eyes and I was subject to frequent headaches. My tongue was constantly coated, my complexion was rough and sallow and I was losing weight.

"It was then that I first began taking Syntona and I was surprised at how quickly and pleasant it acted on my stomach and bowels. Before long I could eat regular meals and my food seemed to be doing me some good. Then the kidney and bladder suffering was gradually relieved and those headaches and dizzy spells left me. I could get my proper sleep so my energy returned and my whole system felt toned up and improved.

"I am now eighty years of age and I can confidently say that I owe much of the improved health I enjoyed these last two years to the few bottles of Sytona I took at that time. I think it is just great to get a medicine that does so much for a person and yet contains no harmful drugs."

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville at DOLAN THE DRUGGIST.

CHARLES SAGEMAN

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was quick looking at the avvertizements in pop's paper at breakfast, and pop said, Are you going downtown?

No I'm not, ma said. There's nothing I actually need, so this will be a golden opportunity to stay safely away from the stores. If everybody followed that principle it would put a final end to extravagance in these times when purchases should be governed entirely by necessity instead of by fads and fancies she said, and pop said, In that case you might as well hand me back my paper, considering the fact that you're just poring over the department store adds like an overloaded bee still making a pass at a flower.

I'm merely comparing the avvertizements in a kind of a detached impersonal way, ma said, and pop said, That's isolationism, and isolationism is only a short step from fashism.

For instance just take these adds for reading lamps, ma said. Marks and Marcus's are avvertizing old fashion wooden student lamps at eleven dollars and 96 centss, and Hookbinder's are quoting exactly the same thing at 9 eighty nine. I mean I know it's definitely the same lamp because I've been through both their lamp departments within the passed few days, she said, and pop said, Well, there are no wooden students around her so we dont need a wooden student's lamp at any price.

Naturally we dont need one in the pressing sense of the word, but there's no telling when we'll have an overnight visitor, and one of those lamps would just complete the guest room, and it seems like false economy to wait till the day of absolute necessity when the sale will be over, ma said, and pop said, To repeat an innocent question, are you going downtown?

Well, now that you ask, I believe I am, ma said.

Which she did.

Indoor Exhibits Of Great Variety At Mohawk Fair

Livestock Exhibit Did Not Compare in Numbers With Other Years

BABY SHOW HELD

Upholding proud traditions established the 42 years in which they have held their fair, directors of Mohawk Fair again achieved success on Wednesday afternoon, when they held their annual fair before a crowd which was not deterred because of threat of rain. Exhibits of livestock did not compare in number with other years because of the threatening skies but indoor exhibits far surpassed those of former fairs.

Proximity of the No. 1 Instrument Flying Training School to the fair grounds made itself evident in the number of Air Force uniforms appearing on the grounds, while the R.C.A.F. sound truck was used as a loud speaker over which to announce events and winners.

Success of the fair in no small measure is due to the President, Mr. Norway Maracle and his able staff of directors, who had a really interesting program lined up for the enjoyment of the patrons. In addition to the usual exhibits of livestock, the indoor exhibits of grains and vegetables, school children's work, home cooking and handicrafts was truly outstanding.

Baby Show Interesting

It remained for the baby show to draw the interest of mothers, however, and here was seen an entry which each year eclipses that of the past. Seven month old Robert Maracle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Maracle took the $5 sweepstakes prize for the boys, while Janice Johns, nine months, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Johns won the counterpart in the girls' section. Other winners in the boys' section were Clare Brant, Ralph Brant and Kenneth Claus. Other winners in the girls' section were Doreen Topping, Elaine Scero, Marion Hill, Marilyn Johns and Elizabeth Maracle. As is the custom the public's popular choice decided the winner.

Keen competition was seen in the running races with N. Bassett of Trenton coming through as winner with two firsts, while H. K. Boyce of Belleville besting Bassett's other entry for second position, taking two seconds.

Novelty contests added to the interest of the crowd while the steady clink of horseshoe pitching was heard all afternoon as the quoit pitchers demonstrated their skill. Sports lovers were entertained by a lacrosse game between two teams from the neighboring R. C. A. F. training station.

Found Guilty On Lesser Count

Peterborough, Sept. 14 (CP)—Charles Ward, 45, yesterday was found guilty of intent to cause grievous bodily harm by a jury at the assizes of the Supreme Court here. Ward had been charged with intent to murder by shooting William J. Bolton, his neighbor, but the jury found him guilty on the lesser count. Sentence was deferred until the end of the court.

The shooting occurred in a laneway between the Ward and Bolton home on March 24 last. Bolton who was on a night shift in a local factory was just leaving his home when a bullet pierced him in the his defence claiming ne stumbled and fell and the gun went off. The Crown was unable to show a motive for the shooting.

BULL GETS ON ROOF

Perry, Okla., Sept. 14 (AP)—Henry Gengler looked twice to make sure it was a bull's head and not a rooster's sticking up over the roof of the barn. When he investigated, he found the 1,000-pound animal had broken out of its pen and onto the roof of the basement barn. It climbed to the top, slid down the other side and jumped 16 feet, breaking several ribs.

PRISONERS ESCAPE

Montreal, Sept. 14 (CP)—Royal Canadian Mounted Police and men of the Canadian Provost Corps continued a search today for 2nd Lieut. Wanckel Gerhardt, a German prisoner-of-war who escaped from a camp near Grande Ligne, Que., 30 miles southeast of Montreal, while today it was announced that another prisoner-of-war, Lt. Von Holleuffer Joachim Aldrecht, had escaped from a camp "north of Montreal."

Both men were reported to have escaped late yesterday afternoon.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET

New York, Sept. 14 (AP)—Buying timidity, combined with a mild extension of Wednesday's late selling, handicapped recovery in today's stock markt although scattered spots of resistance developed.

Canadian issues were weak, Distillers Seagrams and Lake Shore easing 1-8 each, Hiram Walker 1-2 and C.P.R. 1-4. Dome Mines bucked the trend to gain 1-8.

Backward most of the session were U S Steel, Santa Fe, International Harvester, American Telephone, Goodyear, Kennecott, Sears Roebuck, Woolworth, Johns-Manville, Allied Chemical and Texas Co.

County Court

Driver Guilty Careless Driving

Robert Rbertson, R.R. No. 7, Napanee, was assessed $25 and costs or a months in jail at county police court Thursday morning, when he was found guilty on a careless driving charge brought by Provincial Constable Harry Caldwell following an accident on No. 2 Highway, on September 3rd., when considerable property damage resulted.

Involved in the accident were Mr. Robertson who was driving an auto eastward, when it came into collision with a motorcycle operated by Sgt. J. Harman of the R.C.A.F., stationed in Quebec. Testifying Sgt. Harman stated the Robertson car was being driven on the wrong side of the road and without lights. Damage amounting to $250 resulted to the motorcycle. Constable Caldwell testified as to skid marks resulting from the accident.

Anna May Brennan paid $13 out of court on a charge of obtaining a liquor permit contrary to the L.C.A., while the case of Mildred Sianchuk resulting from unlawful possession of a beer book was enlarged for one week. Careless driving counts against Wilber Sherry and John W. Hamilton were also enlarged. Wm. Countryman paid $15.50 out of court on a breach of the L.C.A.

Assault Charge Dismissed.

An assault case against Joseph McDermott of Marysville, was discharged by Magistrate Lloyd after evidence was heard from both sides. The complainant, T. M. Wring, also of Marysville, testified McDermott had come to his house on the night of Sept. 9th., In search of his wife, who at the time was visiting at the Wring home. The alleged assault resulted, when Wring interfered as McDermott was thought to be making an attempt to molest his wife. Ormonde Butler acted as counsel for the accused.

Pleads Guilty of Theft.

James F. Bateman of Rawdon township pleaded guilty to a charge of stealing approximately four cords of wood from S.S. No. 1, Rawdon. Acting as caretaker for the school, Bateman admitted carrying the wood to the basement of his and his mother's residence. Constable Wallace Hendron investigated the case and laid the charge. Bateman was given suspended sentence for one year and ordered to make restitution of $25 to the school board and to pay costs amounting to $18.00.

German People Are Urged Not To Give In

London, Sept. 13 (CP)—Predicting that a new Allied surrender ultimatum would emerge from the Roosevelt-Churchill conference in Quebec, the Berlin radio told the German people today that to give in now would allow the Allies to gain victory "by sneaking through the back door."

The broadcast disclosed that similar warnings were published by all German morning newspapers as Nazi propagandists sought to bolster home front morale for the final defence of the Reich by harping on the theme that defeat would be "widse than" Versailles" and that Germany must "fight to the bitter end."

"A political offesive is in the making along the lines of President Wilson's 14 points in view of the terrific losses which the Allies will have to face during the coming phases of the onslaught againsst Germany," declared Voelkischer Beobachter.

"In this way victory would be obtained by sneaking through the back door. The Allies know full well, that Germany will play out decisive trump cards in the near future and that the war must be won now at all costss."

A dispatch from Switzerlasd, however, declared that Col.-Gen. Heinz Guderian, chief of the German General Staff, with the support of his field marshals and the whole high command had advised Hitler that the worst could be expected at any moment.

Other neutral report indicated the Nazi party itself was divided into two factions—one under Hitler, Himmler, Goebbels and Vos Ribbentrop called the "Vernichtungspartel" or destruction party; the other under Reichmarshal Goering known as the "Friedenspartel," or peace party.

NANCY AND MAASTRICHT FALL TO ALLIES
RUSSIAN, POLISH TROOPS STORM INTO WARSAW

Three Penetrations Made in Siegfried Line Near Cologne

Canadians Retire From Leopold Canal Bridgehead

By JAMES M. LONG
Associated Press War Correspondent

London, Sept. 15 (AP)—The cities of Nancy and Maastricht, strongholds at opposite ends of a 180-mile front, fell today to the battering offensive of Allied armies which had driven with shattering force into the depths of the Siegfried line at three places.

Nancy, a famed French bastion of 121,000 on the banks of the Meurthe in a crook south of the Moselle, fell in the southern onslaught of the United States 3rd army at 11 a.m. (5 a.m. E.D.T.)

Maastricht, Netherlands city guarding the Meuse canal where the Germans made their fateful crossing into Belgium in 1940, fell during fierce penetrations of German defences north of half-encircled Aachen, the German high command admitted.

Nancy, 14th city of France and historic scene of French resistance both in ancient times and in the first Great War, is 88 miles from the Strasbourg crossing of the Rhine.

Allied announcements and dispatches said three penetrations from two to eight miles deep and six to nine miles wide—one of them completely through the first belt of fortifications—had been made in the line toward the Rhine cities of Cologne and Coblenz.

Fierce Resistance.

Ross Munro, Canadian Press War Correspondent, said that in the face of strong German opposition Canadian infantry have been forced to give up their narrow bridgehead over the vital Leopold canal at Moerkerke, near Bruges, as enemy resistance stiffened along the most formidable water barrier Lt.-Gen. Crerar's troops have faced in Europe.

The Canadians were stubbornly clinging to their toe-hold over the 270-foot-wide canal when enemy resistance suddenly surged up in a blaze of artillery and mortar fire while German machine gunners along the flat ground beside the canal opened up with fierce machine-gun fire.

For several hours there was heavy fighting. Then the Canadians were ordered back to the west of the canal and by late yesterday afternoon had completed their withdrawal.

Mop Up Pockets

British 2nd. Army units to the north were mopping up the last pockets of German resistance in a new slaughter-ground between the Escaut and Albert Canals.

Dispatches reaching here indicated the Germans had helped to close the Escaut-Albert trap on themselves by blowing up all the bridges but one across the Escaut before they retreated from the Albert Line. The single remaining bridge, at Degroote, was seized by Tommies driving toward The Netherlands.

German resistance stiffened along the southern outskirts of the fortress city of Aachen, key to the western approaches to Germany's rich industrial Rhineland, which was shelled and was being by-passed. Units from the south had approached to within a mile of this partly-ringed city.

Forty miles to the southeast at the German road junction town of Prum and 30 miles farther south in the northwest outskirts of Trier the Germans had only rifles and machine guns in a thinly-manned defence zone to pit against tanks and mobile artillery.

The Americans were capitalizing on their advantage in fire-power along the 90-mile assault front extending southward from Aachen. On this front some 1st. Army troops had bitten into the Seigfried Line and others were deployed close to German border.

Three Zones

These were the three great zones of penetration:

1. A nine-mile-wide breach of the German border from a mile south of Aachen to south of captured Rotgen, where U.S. 1st. Army swept through the Belgian border villages of Hergenrath and Gemmenich and reached or captured the German towns of Forstebach, Kovschen, Ormhof and others not yet named.

2. A six-mile-wide pathway eight miles deep into the outer concrete pill-boxes of the Siegfried Line to the outskirts of Prum, seven miles east of the Belgian town of St. Vith and 11 miles northeast of the Luxembourg town of Clervaux.

3. A two-mile-deep wedge into the defence zone just northwest of Trier, near the southern end of the 90-mile section. A front dispatch said the Germans fought like fanatics in that area but their pill-boxes were lightly armed and thinly garrisoned.

At Brest the besieged garrison refused another Allied ultimatum to surrender and American troops fought into it, street by street, as they heard explosions from the water-front, apparently indicating final German demolitions of port facilities.

There was no information in today's communique regarding 1st. Canadian Army units investing the isolated Channel ports of Calais, Boulogne and Dunkerque.

Search for Rifle In Swamps, Rivers In Trenton Area

Toronto, Sept. 15. (CP)—A party of Ontario Provincial Police today searched rivers and swamps in the Trenton area for a .303 calibre rifle officials believe was used in the killing of Mrs. Austin Smith of Detroit at Port Franks on Lake Huron last weekend.

The police were accompanied by Private Irwin William Stata, 18-year-old native of Chesterville in Eastern Ontario, who was arrested yesterday and charged with murder in Mrs. Smith's death. He was arrested by Provincial officers who had been watching the home of his mother, a Toronto war worker, on Euclid Avenue in the west-central section of the city.

Police did not say where in the Trenton area they would search for the rifle except to say they were going to that area. One said "we have a rough idea where it is" and another said "we believe it was thrown in the river".

Stata was arraigned briefly in a Toronto court late yesterday and remanded. He will be taken to Sarnia in a few days for preliminary hearing.

500 Maquis, 2 'Chutists Capture City of Dijon

Dijon, France, Sept. 15 (AP) —Five hundred Maquis and two American parachutists captured the industrial city of Dijon, it has been learned, although its seizure had been announced previously as having been accomplished by French armored forces.

Capt. William H. Pietech from Peach Lake, Westchester County, N.Y., and Sgt. Robert Baird, of West New York, N.J., had been dropped two weeks previously with a French captain and arms for 300 Maquis on a mission which had been completed before the taking of Dijon.

GERMANS ATTACK FINNISH ISLAND IN GULF FINLAND

Assaults are Repulsed Except One — First Outbreak Since Relations Broken

9 NAZI SHIPS LOST

By ROBERT N. STURDEVANT
(A. P. Staff Writer)

Stockholm, Sept. 15 (AP) — The Finns announced today that the Germans, their former partners in arms on the eastern front, attacked the Finnish island of Hogland during the night after a surrender ultimatum was flatly rejected.

A Finnish communique said the assaults were repelled "except at one point, where the mopping up of the weak German bridgehead is continuing this morning."

The German attack was the first outbreak of hostilities between the Germans and the Finns since the Finns broke diplomatic relations with Germany September 8 and ordered the Germans to quit all Finland by Sept. 15.

Hogland Garrisoned Island

The garrisoned island, also known as Suursaari, is in the Finnish gulf about midway between Kotka and Narva. It is important as a control point for German attempts to blockade the Russian Baltic fleet. The island also has protected the northern flank of German forces trapped by the Russians in Estonia and Latvia.

The Finnish communique said the attacks were launched by German naval forces against various parts of the island's coast and that nine German ships were reported either sunk or set afire.

A Finnish broadcast said the Finnish cabinet and officers of the Diet were summoned to an emergency meeting today to consider "matters connected with Premier Hantti Hackzell's illness." The broadcast was reported by the office of war information. Hackzell, head of the Finnish armistice delegation, was stricken in Moscow last night with a brain hemorrhage which was said to have left him paralyzed.

Train Wreck Toll Stands at 29

Terre Haute, Ind., Sept. 15 — (AP)—The toll of dead in the head-on collision of two trains north of here yesterday increased to 29 today with the deaths in hospital here of two sergeants.

The deaths increased to 26 the number of servicemen, all air force veterans, who died in the wreck of the 14-coach Chicago and Eastern Illinois Dixie Flyer and an express-mail train. Thirteen other airmen still are in hospitals, two in serious condition.

Three crew members of the flyer were killed, and about 25 other trainmen and civilians were injured.

The soldiers, who had completed up to 50 missions in overseas combat, were en route to a redistribution centre in Florida after completing 30-day furloughs.

Army and railroad officials were investigating the wreck.

Premature Welcome With Flags For Canucks Maddened Huns

By WILLIAM STEWART
(C.P. War Correspondent.)

Brugge, Belgium, Sept. 15 (CP Cable)—The people of Brugge brought out the flags three days too soon when false reports of the approach of the Canadians spread through the streets of this ancient town, I was told Wednesday.

The Germans still in occupation were so incensed by the demonstration that few civilians dared to leave their homes until they actually saw Canadian infantry walk in on Tuesday.

The French and Flemish-speaking Belgians laughed about it yesterday as they sought out soldiers on whom to bestow hospitality, and many of them told how some Germans showered their windows with machine-gun fire whenever they saw a black, yellow and red tricolor hanging out.

Until the Canadians did arrive a bedraggled stream of Germans passed through the town for days heading east. They blew up bridges around the town one by one and even damaged the ancient gate at the western approach to the city. Nearby homes were heavily damaged by the explosions.

When the first Canadians arrived the Belgians swarmed into the streets to greet them.

Flt. Lt. McAuley, Belleville, And FO. Jackman, Stirling, Have Been Awarded D.F.C.

Two Hastings County fliers were represented in the latest R. C. A. F. list released from Air Force headquarters in Ottawa announcing decorations to a number of Canadian airmen in recognition of their overseas service.

One of the decorated fliers, Flt. Lieut. A. G. "Mike" McAuley, is from Belleville, while the other is Flying Officer F. D. "Des" Jackman of Stirling. Both fliers have been awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross.

Son of Mrs. James McAuley, Queen Street, Flt. Lieut. McAuley is a native of Northumberland county attending rural schools in that district and high school at Campbellford. He came to Belleville about 8 years ago and before his enlistment into the R.C.A.F. three years ago was employed at Boyce's service station. Proceeding overseas almost two years ago he was detailed as pilot with a bombing squadron flying Halifaxes. He has completed his first tour of operations over the hottest of enemy industrial targets and is now on instructional duty in England. His wife, the former Grace Prentice of Marmora, resides on Foster Avenue.

Flying Officer Jackman is the son of Mrs. Edna Jackman of Stirling and although born in Ottawa attended school in Stirling. He enlisted in June 1941 and received his navigator's wing at Malton in 1942. Proceeding overseas he went on operations in October of 1943 and has now completed his first operational tour. At present he is instructing in England.

Families of neither flier knew of the impending decorations. "Mike" is a modest lad and never in his letters home has indicated that he was slated for a decoration," stated Mrs. McAuley this morning.

HURRICANE HITS 1,000 MILES NEW ENGLAND COAST

16 Deaths Attributed to Storm, Buildings Ripped, Trees Uprooted

ATLANTIC CITY SUFFERS

(By The Associated Press)

The great Atlantic hurricane blew out to sea off Maine today and headed toward Saint John, N.B., leaving in its wake death and widespread damage throughout the northeastern United States.

Sixteen death were attributed to the storm and damage was estimated to be in the millions. Long Branch, N.J., alone reported more than $2,000,000 destruction.

Gales of 80 to 100 miles an hour whipped heavy rains, ripped buildings, snapped power and telephone lines, uprooted trees and disrupted transportation services.

The American Telephone and Telegraph Company reported 300,000 telephones out of order from Pennsylvania to Maine.

Weather observers predicted the storm probably would hit Saint John today, continue through New Brunswick into the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

(By The Associated Press.)

The storm on Long Island and in New England was exceeded in violence only by the devastating hurricane of Sept. 21, 1938, which battered the same area, taking more than 600 lives and causing damage estimated at $500,000,000.

Atlantic City and neighboring New Jersey coastal resorts appeared to have suffered the greatest damage. Mountainous waves struck the board-walk sections of these cities while a 90-mile wind tore off roofs of some apartment houses and damaged other dwellings, leaving hundreds homeless. Both the famous large piers at Atlantic City suffered heavy damage from high seas and a smaller pier was reported almost destroyed.

Ocean City, Md., another resort community, was awash in a foot of water before the storm advanced northward.

Cities Without Lights.

Long Island, southeastern Massachusetts and Rhode Island also bore the full brunt of the gale, but its force was not as great as had been anticipated.

Cayuga Held Up By Heavy Fog

Toronto, Sept. 15 (CP) — The Canada Steamship Lines passenger vessel Cayuga arrived in Toronto about 5.30 a.m. E.D.T. today after having been held up at Queenston in the Niagara district by fog. The vessel was scheduled to dock here at 11.30 p.m.

More than 200 passengers from Toronto spent a sleepless night on the excursion vessel.

At Niagara Falls the fog was described as the heaviest on the Niagara River in 21 years.

CANADIAN TROOPS WITHIN MILE OF RIMINI AIRFIELD

Cross Marano River With Tanks, Infantry, After Hard Fighting

NEAR PO VALLEY

Rome, Sept. 15 — (CP) — Canadian troops of the British 8th Army on the Adriatic sector of the Italian front have crossed the Marano River with tanks and infantry after hard fighting and driven to within a mile of the Rimini airfield, it was announced today.

The 8th Army also cleared the Coriano-San Savino ridge and smashed Nazi tank-supported counter-attacks.

Allied 5th Army troops have seized Monte Catino and Ponte Di Moriano, both about four miles north of Lucca in an area 15 miles from the west coast of Italy.

This advance, the deepest northward penetration in the west coast sector, carried British and American troops some 16 miles beyond the Arno River, from where they jumped off in the present offensive.

Severe losses were inflicted on the Germans on the whole 8th Army front in heavy fighting Sept. 13, it was announced.

Using Neutral Republic

Headquarters said air reconnaissance showed clearly that the Germans were using the neutral republic of San Marino in Eastern Italy for supplies, gun areas and motor transport.

"Guns within the Republic are being engaged by our air force and artillery as on other sectors of the front," the announcement said.

The 8th Army has only one hill feature to capture before driving to the great plains of the Po Valley.

Gen. Leese's new attack on Rimini has made good headway. Tanks were hurled into the offensive and the Germans suffered heavily. Scores of lorries convoyed German prisoners back from the front.

Sentence 2 Youths For Car Theft And for Assault

Cobourg, Sept. 15 (CP)—Remanded until yesterday for sentence, Dean Summerville, age 20, of Brighton, and Evans Jones, same age, of Hilton, were each sentenced to two consecutive terms of one year and six months for car theft and assault.

Evidence given at their trial last week revealed that on Aug. 5 at Trenton they hired a taxi, owned by C. B. Graham, and after driving out of town, slugged the driver, Isaac Cook, and drove off. Near Warkworth the car went off the road and one of the youths was injured.

During the course of a police investigation of the accident it was learned that it was a stolen car and subsequent investigation resulted in the arrest of the pair.

ALLIES INVADE PALAU ISLANDS NEAR PHILIPPINES

MacArthur's Troops Also Made Surprise Attack and Landed On Morotai Group

AERIAL BOMBARDMENT

By CHARLES H. McMURTRY
(AP War Correspondent)

Pearl Harbor, Sept. 15 — (AP) — American assault forces converging on the Philippines from the south and east landed at unidentified points on the fortress-like Palau islands and at Morotai in the Halmahera islands today (Manila time) on the heels of a crushing aerial bombardment.

(The Tokyo radio said today the invasion of the Palau islands took place on the southwest coast of the island of Peleliu. Peleliu is at the southern end of the Palau islands.)

Marines and army assault forces from Admiral Nimitz's Central Pacific command landed on the Palau group, 600 miles east of Mindanao island in the Philippines, while Gen. MacArthur's landing troops made a surprise attack on Morotai, 300 miles south of Mindanao.

Both commanders, now operating their forces as a co-ordinated team squeezing Japan's prize conquest of the Pacific war, announced the invasions a few hours after they were accomplished, indicating initial success and confidence in the outcome.

Nazis Expelled From Island

London, Sept. 15 —(AP)— Yugoslav partisans have expelled the Germans from the big Dalmatian Island of Brac, 10 miles south of the port of Split, Marshal Tito asserted in a communique today.

He said the Germans sustained heavy losses and that large quantities of arms, ammunition and equipment were captured and a German ship was sunk.

Britain To Honor Gallant Airmen Who Fought in Battle of Britain

By ALAN RANDAL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Sept. 15 — (CP Cable)—Four years ago at this time and on this side of the English Channel only "the few" of the R.A.F. stood between the world and the conquering Nazis.

Those are the men — many of them Canadians — a grateful Britain is remembering today with a commemoration parade at which Lord Dowding, then Commander-in-Chief of Fighter Command, is taking the salute. Their accomplishments will be remembered again Sunday with a special anniversary service in Westminster Abbey.

Some still are operational pilots. Others are in high spots in ground jobs. A good number of the few died in the very air battles that meant eventual doom to German hopes of conquest.

Exactly four years ago today those men of the Battle of Britain had their greatest day, shooting down 185 German aircraft.

As pilot officers during the Battle of Britain, R.C.A.F. fighter pilots who now rank as wing commanders and group captains flew side by side with Britons and men from other Commonwealth countries in the tumbling dog-fights which changed the course of the war and saved millions of lives.

One of them was Wing Cmdr. Del Russel, D.F.C. and Bar, of Westmount, Que., who now leads an R.C.A.F. Spitfire wing in France. This Montreal ace, with Group Capt. Ernie McNab of Regina and Group Capt. G. R. McGregor of Montreal, then respectively squadron leader and flight lieutenant, were the first three Canadian Air Force men to receive decorations from the King in this war. Each had at least four enemy aircraft destroyed that time.

An R.A.F. squadron which had an important Battle of Britain role was the famed all-Canadian squadron formed in the fall of 1939 with pilots from among scores of Canadians already serving in the R.A.F. and number one Canadian Fighter Squadron under McNab took part in the battle during that summer and autumn of 1940, the forerunner of Canadian fighter squadrons which later wrote a blazing chapter into the history of air warfare.

A pilot officer, Stan Turner, of Toronto, was awarded the D. F. C. three weeks after the Sept. 15 battle for shooting down two Germans with his own aircraft partially disabled. He is still fighting in a leading wing in Italy in which the Canadian City of Windsor squadron flies, and holds the D. S. O. and a Bar to his D.F.C. after fighting in the Battle of Malta and in the African desert.

Cross Vistula River From Captured Suburb of Praga

Soviet Batteries Warned Not To Fire on Bridges

By DANIEL DE LUCE
Associated Press War Correspondent

Moscow, Sept. 15 (AP)—Russian and Polish troops were believed storming into Warsaw proper today across the broad and swift Vistula from the captured industrial suburb of Praga.

Front dispatches said four Vistula bridges still were standing.

Pravda said Russian batteries had been warned not to fire at the bridges because "we are going to need them."

Another Russian force 30 miles to south was across the Vistula in the Warka region threatening to outflank scorched ruins of the capital city of 1,265,700. No crossing of the Vistula has been reported north of Warsaw. Between Praga and the city proper, the river is 500 to 800 yards wide.

The climactic battle for Warsaw, besieged from without since summer and from within by Polish Partisans, was directed by Marshal Konstantin Rokossovsky, himself Polish-born.

Other Red Successes.

The assault on Warsaw surpassed in importance other Red successes on the eastern front, although these included:

1. Capture of a third to a half of the 16,842 square miles of Transylvania, which Hitler assigned to Hungary. The provincial capital of Cluj, the 1,000,000 population of which makes it the largest Romanian-claimed city still in enemy hands, was outflanked and within artillery range of Russians 13 miles to the south.

2. A thrust across the Narew river from captured Nowogrod, Polish railroad town 15 miles south of East Prussia.

3. The thrust of strong patrols into the east Beskid mountains of Czechoslovakia, seeking to link up with Slovak Partisans.

4. An increasing penetration into northern Serbia, where Marshal Tito announced his Yugoslav Partisan army already has joined forces with the Red army near Negotin.

Blew up Bridges.

(The Berlin radio said today the Germans blew up the bridges across the Vistula river between Praga and Warsaw.

(The broadcast asserted the Germans evacuated the east suburb of the Polish capital "according to plan" and Russian attempts to interfere with the German disengagement were repelled.)

FEWER HUNTERS OUT THIS YEAR

Deputy Minister Says Little Ammunition for Duck Hunters Unless Restrictions Raised

Toronto, Sept. 15 (CP) — The duck hunting season in Ontario's northern zone opened today, but D. J. Taylor, deputy minister of the Department of Game and Fisheries said he believed there would be few hunters out this year. He said unless the curtailment on ammunition was raised, duck hunters will have little ammunition to go hunting with.

The season in the southern zone opens on September 25.

The northern zone runs from the southern boundaries of Bruce and Grey Counties east to the junction of Grey and Simcoe, including Lake Simcoe. From that point the zone runs east roughly along Highway No. 7 to Smith's Falls and thence northeast to the Ottawa River.

Tropical Storm Moving Toward New Brunswick

Halifax, Sept. 15 (CP) — Meteorological bureau officials here said this morning that the great tropical hurricane which caused widespread damage through northeastern United States is now moving toward Saint John, N.B., and will continue through southeastern New Brunswick into the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

The officials said the storm risk along the southeastern coast of Nova Scotia has lessened, and its main force will move west of the province.

The storm will probably hit Saint John itself about 11.30 o'clock this morning. Coastal residents of New Brunswick have been urged to take all possible precautions and fishermen have been warned to make for the nearest port.

For the farmers in the Annapolis Valley there was little sleep last night. More than 90 per cent of their crop was still on the trees.

Vessels scurried frantically to Nova Scotia's fishing ports last night and this morning, battening down everything that was loose.

In Halifax, telephone and telegraph companies were holding repair gangs in readiness.

Russians Drop Food And Arms for Warsaw

London, Sept. 15 — (CP—Reuter) —General Bor, Commander-in-Chief of the Warsaw Insurgents announced today that the Russians have dropped their first help to Warsaw.

In today's communique on the fighting of the Polish home army he says:

"On Sept. 14, on the 45th day of the fighting in the capital, the Russians dropped small amounts of food and arms on the suburbs of Warsaw.

"It is the first attempt of this kind from the Russian side."

Member of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment since early in the war, Sgt. Vernon Strebe, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Strebe, of Eldorado has been dangerously wounded while serving in Italy, his parents have been informed. Details of the seriousness of their son's wounds were not received by Mr. and Mrs. Strebe.

Proceeding overseas with the first contingent in December, 1939, Sgt. Strebe trained in England for a considerable time before being returned to Canada to take an instructor's course at Brockville. He was in Canada at the time of the Sicilian invasion but later expressed a desire to get into action and returned overseas to the fighting front. Besides his parents there are two sisters, June and Phyllis, at Eldorado.

Cafe Proprietor Fined For Failure To Affix Stamps to U.I. Books

For failure to affix regulation stamps to unemployment insurance books issued to employers by the Federal government, Louie Chin, proprietor of the Tic-Toc cafe, Front Street, was fined $35 assessed costs of $19.05 to be paid in ten days, or in default of payment, thirty days in jail, by Magistrate Garvin in city police court today.

Information was laid by Inspector J. Fenton of the Unemployment Insurance Commission here. Mr. E. E. Follwell represented the Crown.

Chin, when asked to plead after hearing the charges, asked the court "what am I supposed to do?" Magistrate Garvin, in order to hear evidence ordered the court to enter a plea of not guilty in the accused's behalf.

Inspector Fenton stated that he had paid several visits to the cafe in question and found unemployment insurance books devoid of affixed stamps. He had instructed accused in the procedure and also had prepared a sample payroll for the employees. Continued negligence on the part of Chin eventually led to information being laid.

"I do not know why you bother with so little," remarked Chin, during a lull in the taking of evidence.

"It may turn out to be not so little as you think," was the Bench's reply.

Magistrate Garvin patiently explained to the accused how he had broken the law, and inquired if he desired a lawyer to represent him.

"Yes", replied the accused. I want Donnan."

After discussion of the case with the principals involved Chin changed his plea to guilty.

World's Fair At Shannonville Ready To Open

As has been the case for many years past, first class racing events will feature the World's Fair at Shannonville on Saturday with various classes being offered for the enjoyment of the patrons. Included in the trials of speed will be a free-for-all, a 2.27 class and a pony race, with a farmers' green race and a free-for-all being offered in the running races.

Starting the fair attraction will be dancing for Friday evening with Jack McCaughen and his eight-piece variety band being featured. Saturday evening there will be a variety program with high class talent, dancing and games.

For the afternoon of the fair is offered a musical program by district military bands; there will be midway rides, shows and games for the enjoyment of those seeking amusement on the midway. There will be sports and novelty contests and other attractions.

Of special interest to the mothers will be a baby show in which babies one to six months and from six to twelve months will be eligible. The baby show at the World's Fair is gaining in popularity and this year's entry is expected to be larger than ever. Good prizes are being offered in both classes.

As a farm exhibition Shannonville Fair has again excelled itself with a total of $1,000 being offered in prizes and in specials. Livestock and other products of the farm are expected to be displayed in greater numbers than previously.

"Book-Bank" Reading Contest Winners

The Boys' and Girls' Reading Contest in the form of a "Book Bank" Contest has been concluded. The party was held on Sept. 9th. and games were played and prizes given to those who took part in the contest. The boys and girls were greatly interested and as a result a great deal of good reading was done. There was a registration of 72.

The contest consisted of questions about books and authors to be answered and slips placed in a safety deposit box. These answers were given values. A small book or "Bank Book" was given each one in which they listed their books read. These small books were handed in and totalled at the end of August. The boy or girl won, who had the greatest total for reading done through the months of July and August.

Prizes of books were given to the three winners, — David Lawrence, grades 7 and 8; Jeanette Fink, grades 5 and 6; and Sherrill Turner, grades 3 and 4. These three did extremely well and deserve great credit because there was real competition. Beth Wilbur won the prize for general questions.

The Honor Roll by grades were:

Grades 7 and 8: David Lawrence, Douglas Young, Olive Thompson, Jean Caverly, Lorraine Wood.

Grades 5 and 6: Jeanette Fink, Doris Kerr, Evelyn Robbins, Marilyn Andrews, Margaret Langman, Diane Clarke, Joan Hiles, Kathleen Clark, Dorothy Seames, Phyllis Walmsley, Frances Thompson, Robert Reid, Wallace Lavergne.

Grades 3 and 4: Sherrill Turner, Ruth Bailey, Beth Wilbur, Donna McNish.

POLICE BLOTTER

There is one lucky woman in the city at least. Losing her purse with fifty dollars in cash and other personal belongings, she had the good fortune to have it recovered by the police department. Another woman was not so fortunate. Mrs. Wood of Wallbridge Road, lost her purse containing eight dollars on Front Street, she reported. So far it is still missing.

Not content with "pinching" a brand new automobile tire and wheel from James McRoberts, in Foxboro, members of the light-fingered fraternity noticed some clothes hanging out to dry on the McRoberts' clothesline and promptly purloined them as they made their getaway.

Whether some patriotic early morning riser has confiscated them for salvage reasons or perhaps they had not been delivered is not as yet known, but a bundle of thirty morning newspapers was missing today from its accustomed place in the doorway of Arthur Jones' store at 303 Front Street.

Two members of the R.C.A.F. will have to explain to police here at the expiration of their "forty-eights" how come they had two "Mickey Mouses" of a good grade of firewater garnished with several pints of a well-known brand of brew in their automobile.

Canadian Legion Attracts Many New Members

Cognisant of the value of unified organization learned through their experience in the uniform of their country, men and women of Canada's armed services are showing a marked tendency toward associating themselves with veterans' organizations.

This was definitely apparent last night here when twenty-five, out of seventy-two applications for membership were initiated as members of the Belleville Branch of the Canadian Legion.

High-ranking officers of the R.C.A.F., Commissioned officers of the Women's Division, and officers and other ranks of the Canadian army were among those who participated in the ritual of initiation, conducted by Branch President Lieut. Col. H. E. Smith.

List of New Members.

Initiates included Wing Commander Robert White; Squadron Leaders, E. R. Emond, D. C. Graham, and G. J. MacKenzie; Flight Lieutenants N. Garand, H. W. Biggar; Flight Officer, E. D. Bristol, (W.D.); Flying Officers, R. W. Barton, F. X. Fuger, Doris J. Parke, N.S.; Pilot Officers, R. J. Bathgate, A. F. Knowles; WO. 2 M. H. Cornish; Officer Cadet, Fred Webber; Sergeants, H. W. Webber, J. F. Sabine; Frances I. Simpson (W.D.); Corporal G. A. George; LAC's L. N. Dube, V. K. Finch; LAW. Marguerite Jeffs; Captain W. L. Elliott; Private R. Bourdette and Messrs. Eric Corradi and H. Mowat.

Flight Officer Bristol is a daughter of Major Everett Bristol, C.M.G., Toronto, Past District Commander of District D.

Initiation of the remaining applicants will take place at a future meeting.

Assisting President Smith in the initiation ceremonies were 1st Vice President FO. Tom Hetherington, 2nd Vice Roy Madden and Sergt-at-Arms, Sam Johnson. George Ellarby is secretary treasurer of the branch.

W. T. Burke, Guest Speaker

Guest speaker for the evening was Provincial Command Secretary W. T. Burke, Toronto. Others who gave brief addresses were District Commander Major E. McDowell, Brockville, and Major, the Rev. A. B. Payne of Belleville.

Organized in 1925 when the late Earl Haig pleaded for unity of all ex-service organizations, all of which joined except four, the Legion has borne aloft the human brotherhood and comradeship conceived in the heat of battle and which has carried it to great heights of accomplishment, Secretary Burke told the Legionnaires. He referred to the words of the ritual interpreting them as the groundwork of the aims of the organization.

"That members realize the mighty task involved in this serious obligation is borne out in the prestige and respect the Legion enjoys today. Pioneers of the Legion have built not a structure of stone, but a living memorial in the hearts of those who sought and received its aid," he said.

"Each member is a living link in this great chain of service freely given to our comrades and their dependents — a noble heritage that is being built for those who follow after."

200,000 Members in Canada

Canada has 200,000 members in its Legion, the speaker stated, "but we need to be stronger if the returned veteran is to get his rightful share." He mentioned the fight being waged by Legion executives to enforce the ex-service man preference in civil service appointments. The Legion educational system in this war is a marvellous institution, the first combined system endorsed by leading Canadian universities. Its work for the personal welfare and morale of the troops overseas is one of many fine examples of achievement in warfare, he concluded.

Comradeship in terms of service, is the slogan of the Legion, Major Payne said. He urged his audience "to serve and in serving, serve one another; to build and in building, build for tomorrow.

Major MacDowell in a brief address urged for additional membership. He recalled incidents of the Vancouver convention and exhibited a maple leaf picked from a tree in British Columbia that measured 11 inches across its face.

Refreshments were served the meeting by members of the Women's Auxiliary of the Legion.

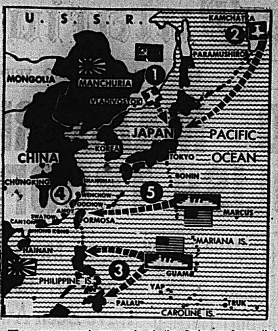
IF RUSSIA GOT INTO PACIFIC WAR



When announcement was made at the Quebec conference that Stalin had been invited, although it been stated that the war to finish off Japan would be a major topic—newsmen and assorted experts were quick to scent a tipoff since, heretofore, Stalin had been left out of any talk involving Japan, it had been assumed that Russian aid in delivering the knock-out blow at the Japs could be expected, and this would begin with use of the vital Russian bases near (1) Vladivostok and on Kamchatka (2). Meanwhile the first moves to a clean-up of the Philippines (3) have been made and the southeast coast of China (4) assumes growing importance and a drive from the sea would, most probably, have the Foochow area as a goal since good communication lines to the interior are there. Formosa (5) is the chief obstacle to be overcome in such a drive—but the Quebec agreements will doubtless include methods of meeting all problems.

Exhibition Highlights

President Elmer Sandercock, who met with an accident while working around the barns of the County Home, was sent to hospital as a result of injuries received. He expects to be out and be around when the Exhibition gets under way on Monday afternoon.

Plenty of interest is being centred on the draw for the forty prizes valued at $1,000 given by the Belleville District Shrine Club, which takes place in front of the grandstand on Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons. The Shriners have undertaken a humanitarian work, that of assisting and providing treatment for crippled children who otherwise would be forced to go through life under a serious handicap. Ticket sales are mounting but there are plenty left for those desirous of helping a very worthy cause.

Exhibition patrons will see a blood-tingling sight on Tuesday evening after the military parade when special sections of the Argyll Light Infantry stage a reconnaissance demonstration "harboring an assault troop." Specially trained for the occasion, the local reservists will show in detail just what this important cog in the wheel of modern reconnaissance tactics does under actual war conditions. Then previous will be the colorful parade with the Trenton R.C.A.F. and Belleville Municipal bands in attendance.

The final meeting of the directors of the Exhibition was held last night in Secretary Eric Denyes' office and all wrinkles ironed out preparatory to opening night. Improvements to buildings and horse and cattle rings were reported while the general fair situation came under discussion. Directors left with the opinion that what they have to offer the general public is of a high quality, and hope for a generous patronage on the part of urban as well as rural residents.

Sturdy little fellows and dainty little misses are getting their best Exhibition smiles ready for the big Baby Show scheduled for Tuesday afternoon. Entries have been more than satisfactory and that part of the grounds where the future Canadian will display their dimples and infant beauty will likely resound to gurgles of delight when the big moment comes.

Junior farmers are also taking exceptional interest in their department of the big show. Cattle judging, interclub competition, and livestock and other exhibits to be topped off with a banquet will feature the young farmers part in the fair. Not to be outdone, the young ladies of the outlying districts have also shown a keen enthusiasm and they will offer plenty of color as well as competition.

The military parade will be featured by a marchpast of armored vehicles and marching troops. The salute will be taken by a high ranking air force officer, whose name will be published later. The R.C.A.F. band of Trenton will play the marchpast music in front of the grandstand.

A wartime feature will be the display of soldiers' parcels packed for overseas, while the work of county patriotic organizations will also be on display in one of the buildings.

Finland Within Range of Lancasters

London, Sept. 15 (CP Reuter) — The Swedish newspaper "Aftonbladet" published a report today from its Finnish frontier correspondent saying that two formations of British Lancaster bombers flew in over Finland this afternoon, Reuters correspondent in Stockholm reported.

It was pointed out in Stockholm that a flight from Britain to Finland is well within range of Lancasters, which could bomb in Finland and then fly on to Russia.

Prof. Edna M. Baxter Addresses Church School Workers of City

Professor Edna M. Baxter of Hartford, Connecticut, addressed a representative group of church school workers and others from the city churches in the Tabernacle Church on Thursday evening. For eighteen years she was assistant and associate of Professor Myers in the Hartford Seminary Foundation.

Miss Baxter developed the thesis that religious teaching is helping people live. It is not a matter of formula and abstraction but is vital. The church school is a place where pupils work together to discover facts and to learn how to cooperate and to do valuable service for others. Religion abstracted from life — religion in a vacuum is not religion. The teachers' work is to inspire and direct living persons. The presentation was made concrete by the citing of actual cases that were very illuminating. The interest throughout was keen and intelligent questions revealed the deep impression made.

Miss Baxter is a very able teacher, lecturer and writer. One of her books, "How Our Religion Began," is widely used as a basis of study in churches of many denominations. She has also written a number of other texts especially for juniors.

CONFERENCE NEAR CLOSE, DECISIONS OF WORLD IMPORT

Future Meetings of British Prime Minister and U. S. President May Take Place

CANADA AND PACIFIC

By FRANK FLAHERTY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Quebec, Sept. 15. (CP)—The second Quebec Conference is in its "closing phase" and will conclude tomorrow after reaching world-changing decisions relating to the final phases of the European and the intensification of the Pacific war.

Future meetings of President Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill, however, may take place. At today's press conference Stephen Early, presidential press secretary, emphasized that it is the "conference at Quebec" which is ending tomorrow but declined to elaborate on the possibility of any future meeting.

"I can't say" was his only reply.

It was also disclosed today that the Canadian conferences being held in conjunction with the direct British-United States talks are being broadened to include discussions by the Canadian chiefs of staff with American as well as British chiefs of staff.

Canadian-British Discussions.

The Canadian-British discussions have been in progress at intervals for two days and are believed to concern the relative roles of Canadian and British forces within the framework of the over-all military plans approved by Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill.

The Canadian-American discussions are believed directly related to the Pacific war and Canadian participation therein. In that theatre Canadian forces are expected to operate in more direct co-operation with the American than they have in Europe.

Dumbarton Oaks Talks.

A British spokesman told reporters Mr. Churchill has been away from the United Kingdom a good deal this summer, first in Italy and then in Canada. The Dumbarton Oaks talks between British, United States, Russian and Chinese experts on Foreign Affairs looking to the formulation of a plan for a world security organization started while he was away.

"It's news to me", said Mr. Early when a reporter asked if there was any truth in a published report that Cardinal Villeneuve, archbishop of Quebec who is on his way to Rome, was carrying a message to the Pope from one or both of the principals at the Quebec conference.

Eden Sits in on Deliberation.

Foreign Secretary Eden sat in on the Quebec Victory Conference deliberations today as Mr. Churchill and Mr. Roosevelt apparently switched their deliberations from the Pacific to the speedy downfall of Germany and means of curbing any war-making tendencies by that nation in the future.

There were indications before Mr. Eden's unexpectedly-early arrival from Britain last night that decisions relating to the war against Japan had been made in short order by the President and Prime Minister. Now it is taken for granted that the plan for moving great Allied forces from the European theatre to the Far East are virtually complete.

From the job Mr. Eden holds in the British Cabinet—Minister in Charge of Relations with Other Nations—it seems likely the meetings he attends with Mr. Churchill and Mr. Roosevelt will centre on the political and diplomatic implications of military operations now in progress or in prospect.

These problems are more pressing in Europe than in the Pacific zone at present, for the war in Europe is nearing an end and the job of re-establishing a continent on a sound, peacetime basis is about to begin.

Ordnance Depot In Neb. Rocked By Explosion

Hastings, Neb., Sept. 15. (AP)—The second explosion within six months at the Hastings Naval Ordnance depot rocked Hastings and surrounding communities this morning.

Windows all along Hastings' main street were knocked out by the blast.

Ambulances and fire departments and police squads from Hastings went to the scene immediately.

The last explosion, April 6, left eight dead.

The depot, largest of Nebraska's four ordnance installations, covers 48,000 acres and is constructed in such a way that an explosion in one unit will not detonate explosives in other areas.

The first casualties brought to the dispensary in the depot area were negro sailors. The number injured and their names were not learned.

General Council Of United Church Concludes Session

London, Ont., Sept. 15 —(CP)—The 10-day meeting of the 11th General Council of the United Church of Canada came to a close here last night with the adoption of a number of resolutions commending the Ontario and Federal governments.

Council also decided that henceforth the Board of Foreign Missions will be known as the Board of overseas missions. Religious observance by Canada and Newfoundland and the closing of all liquor outlets on the day the war ends was recommended.

The meeting praised the Ontario Government for its "willingness to take responsibility in the field of religious education" and urged that representatives of the Christian church share in carrying out the program for schools of the province.

The Board of Colleges and Secondary Schools was instructed to initiate a campaign for recruiting candidates for the ministry from the armed forces and to provide for educational courses of special character to be made available to them after the war.

Council commended the Federal Government for drafting the National Health Bill, approved of the Dominion's program of physical fitness and requested that directors of temperance education as well as directors of vocational, physical, nutritional education and mental health be appointed so "that education against the use of intoxicating drink may become an actual rather than an implied objective of this program."

By a majority of five a motion was passed that Dominion and Provincial government heads should meet as soon as possible "in the best interests of the Dominion."

Another endorsed motion suggested that ministers meet with and address local unions and that representatives of labor be invited to address local congregations, church boards and presbytery gatherings.

Girl, 8, Injured When She Runs in Front Of Car on Wooler Road

Trenton, Sept 15. — Joan Shirley Lambert, age 8, suffered severe abrasions to her legs and arms about 3.30 Thursday afternoon, when she ran in front of a car driven by Sidney Andrews of Brighton, on the Wooler Road, one mile from Trenton.

She was attending the Wooler Road school and as she ran across the highway to her home which was on the opposite side, she failed to observe the car.

Dr. E. A. McQuade of Trenton, was called and removed the child to his office where her injuries were attended.

Provincial Police from Belleville investigated the accident along with Constable Youmans of the Trenton Police but the driver was not held.

Car Almost Demolished.

A sedan, owned and driven by George Peake, Campbellford, was almost completely demolished at 6.45 a.m., Thursday when it was struck at the intersection of Front and Dundas Streets by a heavy transport truck.

Peake was driving south on Front Street, making a left turn onto Dundas, while the truck owned by Harold Holmes Transport, Brockville and driven by Jack Hicks, Mutual Street, Toronto, was proceeding west.

The transport is alleged to have struck the car broadside carrying it a distance of 100 yards along Dundas Street.

The middle portion of the car was completely wrecked and the grill, rad and fender of the truck damaged. Damage to the car was estimated at $500, but neither driver was injured.

It is understood both drivers claimed to have had the traffic signal in their favor. Constable McColl of the local police department, investigated the accident and charges were laid against both drivers.

Bus damaged.

Trenton police were called to investigate four more or less serious accidents during the past thirty-six hours.

At 10.35 p.m. Tuesday a Rathbun bus driven by H. Barr, Trenton, was forced into the side of the town bridge at the west end when two Motorways transports passed in succession. The second transport is said to have crowded the bus to such an extent that it was forced into the splash boards of the bridge doing considerable damage to both the bridge and the bus.

The transport failed to stop but was stopped by Belleville police at the request of Sergeant Taylor of Trenton, who investigated the accident, and the driver was found to be Ernest Bastien of Ottawa.

Cars Hits Calvert.

At 7.30 p.m. Wednesday, the driver and two passengers were all injured when their car struck a culvert on Byron Street, just north of McCann Street, as it was being driven north by Edwin Chard age 23, of Frankford.

It was raining heavily at the time and Chard is reported to have pulled too close to the side of the road as he was approaching another car. He suffered abrasions, while Pte. J. F. Armstrong, of Vernon, B.C., who has been spending his leave at his home in Frankford received a cut on the back of his head and right hand. Eugene Monahan, of Wooler, suffered forehead abrasions.

Damage amounting to $200 was done to the car. The accident was investigated by Sergeant J. F. Taylor of the Trenton police.

Value of Prevention

A striking illustration of what can be done in the prevention of diphtheria is provided by Brantford, Ontario. This city with a population of 34,843 in 1943, in the year 1928 had 28 cases of diphtheria with 4 deaths. In 1930 a big toxoid campaign was inaugurated. During the campaign the help of every doctor in the city was enlisted and funds were provided to remunerate the doctors. During the campaign clinics were set up in all schools and 3,524 children were immunized. The last case of diphtheria occurred in November, 1930. Since that date almost fourteen years ago the good work has been kept up with the result that there has not been a single case of diphtheria since. There is not immediately available a record of any other city of comparable size in which there has been no diphtheria for as long a time. Hamilton, Ontario, with no cases for ten years in a city with a population of 174,547, has probably achieved a world record for cities in its own population group.

In the last year of record there were 687 cases of infantile paralysis in Canada and 64 deaths from this cause. This is a disease which is regarded with veritable terror by the average parent, who is apparently comparatively indifferent to the ravages of diphtheria, scarlet fever and whooping cough, three diseases, the seriousness of which has been stressed during National Immunization Week.

In 1942 as compared to 697 cases of infantile paralysis (poliomyelitis) there were in Canada, 2,955 cases of diphtheria, 18,384 cases of whooping cough and 20,648 cases of scarlet fever, a total of 41,987 cases and 943 deaths. What the end results in the children infected and surviving will be is not known.

The point in which parents should be interested is that scarlet fever, whooping cough and diphtheria are preventable and in the absence of immunization more to be feared than the dreaded "polio." Parents are urged to see to it that their children are protected. It is no credit to our intelligence or our patriotism that the lives of more than 40,000 little children should be endangered by diseases which could be prevented.

On Footwear

More variety is coming in footwear for women. Restrictions have been lifted from two-tone and ornamented shoes. Makers will be allowed two complete new patterns and may vary their present lines by substituting patterns used prior to October 1941, when many of the existing restrictions were imposed. Bows may now be used along with more than one color of leather in the uppers if the leather content of the upper is not more than 30 per cent. Metal may be used for ornaments.

In addition to these changes for women's shoes men's and boys' footwear may now be in white leather. Prohibition against antique finishes to make two-tone effects have been dropped, and there will be allowed perforations in any number.

But there is also just this—these shoes cannot be bought right now. Makers are not allowed to put them into the hands of the retailers for sale until January 1945. There is also the question of labor and material shortages to be considered.. That is for the manufacturers to worry about.

But there is the prospect of the variety the changes will offer milady, the girl, the man about town and the boy.

Canadians have fared well during the war years in respect to boots and shoes. In spite of the heavy demands on the production of the manufacturers they have been able to buy the boots they need without ration. Many as far as the restrictions of style go may not even have known these ever existed.

What of Coming Winter?

Is there the possibility of a mild winter ahead because of the sun spot minimum? Remembering that last winter was very mild especially in the early part, people may hesitate to say "yes," even though there is a view in Ottawa that "if sun spots keep on behaving true to form, Ottawa can expect a mild winter, but one with clear, cold nights."

The sun spot minimum occurs approximately once in every eleven years and it means that the temperature for the average day is from one to two degrees higher, which had perhaps something to do with the hot summer. It also means clear, frosty days and nights. The nights are colder because the clearness of the atmosphere allows more heat to escape.

The Ottawa Journal notes that "according to the sun spot cycle the nights last winter should have been clear and cold but a new volcano starting up in a Mexican farmer's field changed all that, says Dr. R. E. DeLury, Dominion Observatory, authority on sun spots. The blanket of volcanic dust that floated as far north as Canada kept heat from escaping and allowed drops of water in the atmosphere to condense around the particles forming fogs.

"Another result was that sunsets last winter were orange-red in color, instead of the steely-green that usually comes with a cool, transparent atmosphere."

The Journal adds "Dr. DeLury would not make any exact prophecies about the weather this winter. However he is looking forward to the time when records have been kept long enough to enable experts to deduce accurately in advance how much coal he ought to put in."

The general public knows little about sun spots and so can form no opinion. It would be natural for them to think that as variety is an element in the weather, the coming winter might be colder than last winter's comparatively mild weather. But they will watch the coming months to see how the spots affect the weather generally. And wisely they will put in their coal as advised.

It is explained that sun spots are large circular disturbances of burning gases, rushing out from the sun's surface in a motion like a whirlwind. Above them are white clouds giving ultra-violet rays which break up the atoms in the earth's atmosphere. As a result the electrons form water vapor to form clouds around .

Rainfall is definitely associated with the spot cycle. Near the coast with lots of moisture in the atmosphere, heavy rainfall comes at the maximum part of the cycle and inland where air currents have a chance to come into effect, heaviest rainfall comes with the minimum of cycles.

A Solemn Moment

(Belfast Telegraph)

It is a solemn thing for any people to send out its youth to fight on a foreign shore in the certain knowledge that at the best the price must be grievous. For many of the bravest and best it is a rendezvous with death "on some scarred slope of battered hill" or "at midnight in some flaming town," like Caen. That is why it is right that people should assemble in church, even while the issue is in the balance, to give thanks for the courage of these men and the idealism that inspires this whole crusade and to pray that the purpose may be worthy of so great a sacrifice. By so doing can the people manifest an unshakable belief in its fighting men and those at home with lesser anxieties can sympathize with those who are bound to the fighting line with the closest ties.

Salvaged Radium

(U.S.S.R. Bulletin)

During the blockade of Leningrad there was a shortage of radium for the front.

A building in which radium had been used for 20 years was thoroughly scrapped, the plaster removed from the walls and ceilings and a sufficient supply of radium extracted from the waste.

The scientist responsible for this was awarded the Order of Red Banner of Labor.

AT HITLER'S DEATH

I could write a bit to gloat,
But I choose a sadder note,
That a man could rise so high and fall so low;
That one man could come to birth
To lay desolate the earth
And leave behind a trail of utter woe!

Now the little loss of breath,
Known as Adolph Hitler's death,
Howsoever just men hold it, comes too late.
For a generation marred,
Mind and soul and body scarred,
A single death can never compensate.

They must live when Hitler's dead,
For destruction born and bred,
Knowing nothing but his methods and his creed.
Every single German boy
Has been tutored to destroy,
And a thorough mental cleansing he will need.

Oh, a cheer is sure to rise
'Round the world when Hitler dies,
But the evil of his life will long remain.
For a generation stays
Stamped with Hitler's bloody ways,
And is waiting for the chance to fight again.

Hidden Makers Of Opinion

(Ottawa Journal)

Under rules laid down by General De Gaulle for the French press it will be necessary for newspapers and periodicals hereafter to publish regularly the source and amount of their revenues.

Commenting on this, Andre Geraud (Pertinax), famous French journalist, says

"Why was it so difficult for the French press to be independent? Because the advertising business was not sufficiently developed, papers had to look to other sources for their revenue. The French people will have to develop the advertising habit or be prepared to pay much more for their papers."

In other words, falling revenues from advertisements clearly labelled as such, the newspapers were compelled to obtain money from undisclosed and frequently doubtful sources. Newspapers in France have been almost entirely "organs of opinion" presenting views rather than news. Publications sprang into existence that had no visible means of support, lasted only as long as the necessary funds were forthcoming from special interests but long enough to bedevil the public mind.

Advertisers buy space in newspapers because it pays them in business returns, not because they love the publishers, and the only reason it pays is that advertisements are read. An advertisement-reading public is created by attractive commercial advertising; the revenues from it are used by publishers in presenting true and unbiased news creating thereby the reputation for honesty. In France one of the biggest news agencies was also an advertising agency; the newspapers paid the news agency with advertising space. The whole method of newspaper publication was defective and wide open to dishonesty. It will be interesting to watch whether the new De Gaulle regulations bring about the desirable change.

WOULD REMOVE PRESS CONTROL WHEN WAR ENDS

British Newspaper Weekly Critical of French Provisional Government's Plans for News Dissemination

London, Sept. 15 (CP) — Asserting "the craft of journalism must not be reduced to the level of a messenger boy who knocks at the governmental door," the newspaper weekly World's Press News urged in a special article the removal of all restrictions on the press immediately the war ends.

The article was particularly critical of press arrangements made by the French provisional government, observing "their new press arrangements provide in effect for a government monopoly in news."

"The French information agency would circulate the communiques and official statements in the press and radio and acquire the copyright of foreign news," it added.

"Thus they would reintroduce the bad old days of 1919 to 1939 when the government departments masquerading as news agencies kept a strangle-hold on news and views, telling their own people and the world outside what they thought would suit their purpose.

"Their action raises an acute issue which goes far beyond the interest of the press or of France itself. With the exception of such control as must be applied to the German press until the poison of Nazism has been eradicated, there must be no government control of news and views.

"We may as well admit that some of the exiled governments now in our midst have a far from democratic tradition so far as the press is concerned. It is necessary therefore all concerned with newspapers and craft of journalism to decide what their attitude will be should other governments attempt to usurp the function of newspapers and journalists or to exert control, direct or indirect, of any kind.

Misleading Designation

"What, for instance, is the future of quasi news agencies now operating in London under the auspices of various Allied governments?

"There are numerous so-called news agencies of this sort, all of them publicity departments reflecting the views and aspirations of their respective governments.

"It is a pity that any of these departments should have given themselves the description of news agencies, because it is quite misleading.

"A news agency is a news gathering organization run by skilled journalists who, as representatives of the public to whom they address themselves, observe, describe, report or comment on contemporary affairs with complete objectivity and no ulterior motive.

"The function of the two is diametrically different. We must, therefore, watch the future of these quasi news agencies with especial interest lest they should be tempted to follow the unhappy precedent of the French provisional government.

"Reuters and The Associated Press have very properly sent the French provisional government away with a flea in their ear and a similar answer must be given to any other embryonic press dictator, whatever his nationality or professed intentions.

"The craft of journalism must not be reduced to the level of a messenger boy who knocks at the government door."

SYMPATHY

Some time ago you had an article in which some one told of a fear of impending death. I have had the fear for the past year . . . (Mrs. D. R. H.)

Probably the article to which this reader refers was one in which I attempted to point out the difference between angina pectoris and the more frequent minor but alarming complaints that are mistaken for angina pectoris.

But let Mrs. H. continue:

This fear is with me constantly and doesn't seem to let up. I haven't the nerve to go any place or to do anything. My nerves have become affected by this fear.

I've been to a local doctor and a psychiatrist (si-ki-a-trist, first two i's pronounced eye, third pronounced as in wrist, accent on the ki) several times but haven't got any relief . . . The psychiatrist wants me to go to a sanitarium but I can't afford that. However, if there is no other way I'll do it.

The reader gives no further information than the bare statement that she has had the phobia or morbid unreasonable fear for nearly a year.

Obviously it would be impossible for me to advise her by mail.

Still, I hate to send her a cold impersonal reply explaining that it is impracticable to give advice without having examined the patient or without having obtained information through personal observation or study.

On the other hand, Mrs. D. R. H. is just one of a good many readers who write me in similar fashion, and if I take time out to compose a message of sympathy for Mrs. H.'s trouble it would be only fair to do the same for all the others. Now I do take time out for that very purpose in some instances—dammit, after all, I'm Irish—but I doubt whether I am justified in doing so. The hardest kind of writing is the writing of a note of sympathy to a stranger without going morbid about it.

Still, I never could bring myself to shovel it out ready-made—sympathy. So whatdaya say, folks, shall we say God bless you all—and give our undivided attention to personal health service?

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Venereal Disease

Is there any way you can find out if a certain person has or has had a venereal disease? (R. F. H.)

Answer — Medical examination will determine whether the individual has gonorrhea, syphilis or chancroid. There is no other way. Blood test (Wasserman) for syphilis, not always conclusive, but usually confirm or cast doubt on the opinion or diagnosis.

Tired

Please send your pamphlet "How to Lose Weight." I work 9 1-2 hours a day. At night I am so tired I never have time to exercise, and I believe I eat too much bread, potato and sweets. (D. G.)

Answer—Like most young persons, middle aged persons and elderly persons, you probably get more than half of your daily calories from refined white flour, refined white sugar. That leaves you malnourished, even though you may be overweight, for your intake of vitamins and minerals is less than half what it should be, what it would be if whole wheat (instead of refined white flour) and old-fashion unrefined brown sugar and molasses (the kind everybody used up to the time of the Civil War) supplied the calories you get from refined white flour and refined white sugar. It's pretty sad, isn't it? But I'll tell you what I'll do—give me your dimensions—height, weight and age—and a stamped envelope bearing your address. I'll send you instructions for correction of the error in your everyday diet. If you heed the simple advice therein you'll gradually recover your former vite and say at breakfast every morning "And God bless Ol' Doc Brady".

LAWS WRITTEN IN BLOOD

Extremely severe and saguinary laws are referred to as "Draconic."

The word is derived from "Draco," the name of a Greek lawmaker in the seventh century B.C. who is reputed to have been the author of the first written code of laws in Athens.

These laws became proverbial for their severity, and the great orator Demandes, who lived three centuries later, said they were "written, not in ink, but in blood."

Draco was of distinguished birth, respected for his severe and simple manners and regarded as an able statesman.

The Athenians, without a written code of laws, were a prey to anarchy and besought the archon to give them a satisfactory code of laws.

Draco's code put an end to anarchy, deprived the rulers of their arbitrary powers and set up a high court of appeals.

But these first written laws covered nearly all the civil, moral and social acts of the citizen from birth to death and virtually made him a ward of the city-state.

According to the Draconian code, slight offenses, such as vagrancy, laziness and petty theft, were punished as severely as murder, treason and sacrilege.

In fact it was said that Draco made the violation of every law a capital offense.

Once, according to tradition, Draco was asked why he punished such petty crimes with death. He replied: "The smallest of them deserve death, and there is no greater punishment I can find for the greater ones."

In process of time, however, these severe laws of Draco were hated by the people and Solon, one of the seven sages of Greece, was appointed to draft a new code. Solon softened most of Draco's laws, but retained the death penalty for murder.

After he became unpopular in Athens, Draco went to Aegina, where he introduced a similar code of laws.

The story is that he was accidentally killed in a theatre, smothered to death by the garments thrown upon him as a gesture of admiration by the people.

The War Today—

U.S. Occupation of Palau Isles Sets Stage for Philippine Drive

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
(AP War Analyst)

The team of MacArthur, Nimitz and Co. now is set for invasion of the Philippines by its occupation of strategic islands in the Palau and Molucca (sometimes called Halmahera) groups.

The powerfully-fortified Palau islands, which have been successfully invaded by Marines and assault forces from Admiral Nimitz's command, have been the main Japanese shield for the eastern approach to the Philippines. They are only 600 miles from Davao, chief city of Mindanao in the Philippines.

MacArthur's amphibious troops landed on the little island of Morotai, only 300 miles south of Mindanao. Morotai is the northernmost of the Molucca islands, and in electing this spot MacArthur again tricked the enemy who had looked for a landing on Halmahera, the principal island.

The operations were continuing at latest reports, as both commanders expressed confidence in the outcome. MacArthur, who landed with his men, told them in beachhead talk:

"You now dominate the last stronghold which barred you from the Philippines. . . . Our campaign is entering upon its decisive stage."

When these two bases are fully established the Allies will be able to hit at the Japanese in the Philippines from close range, both by air and by sea.

Nimitz and MacArthur have presented the Churchill-Roosevelt conference in Quebec with a mighty fine and appropriate gift, since that meeting is said to be heavily concerned with planning the final assault on Japan.

CROSS

The Warsaw zone, proclaimed by Hitler as the "interior defence line of Germany," was the objective of an all-out offensive aimed at reaching Germany itself.

Rokossovsky's 1st White Russian Army and the 1st Division of Lt.-Gen. Zigmund Berlin's 1st Polish Army seized Praga after an all-night street battle, much of it hand-to-hand fighting.

Picked troops of Russians and Polish origin volunteered to liberate the city and free the Polish patriots still battling its Nazi occupants.

15 Villages Captured

In addition to Praga the Russians and Poles captured 15 villages and railway stations up and down the Vistula for a distance of 25 to 35 miles.

Northeast of Warsaw the Russians drove westward from captured Lomza and seized Nowogorod, on the southern bank of the Narew river 5 miles south of East Prussia and on the road to Allenstein.

In Transylvania the Russians advanced to within 13 miles of its capital, Cluj, and captured Turda, directly south.

East of Cluj the Red Army took Gheorgheni on the western side of the Carpathian mountain wall 71 miles north of Brasov in advances of 35 miles in the last 24 hours that threatened to cut off Hungarians and Romanians almost trapped in the Muresul Valley. The fall of Praid put the Russians within 25 miles of Targu-Mures.

Penetrate Frontier

The Russian war bulletin made no mention of operations against Germans and Hungarians seeking to bar the Russians from Czechoslovakia, but Czech sources in Moscow said patrols have already penetrated the frontier in some of the higher passes.

Dispatches from Praga said the Germans had established a prison camp outside Warsaw, horrors of which would match the gruesome execution grounds at Lublin.

The rising of Polish patriots in Warsaw continues, it was learned in Praga, although hundreds and perhaps thousands who participated in the uprising have been killed.

ALLIES INVADE

No Confirmation

(The Tokyo broadcast, as recorded by the Associated Press, claimed without any confirmation that 2,500 American troops were killed in the first 2½ hours and that the "enemy was repulsed" after a landing in which the invaders used "more than 40 ships of all tonnage," in the Palau attack.

(Tokyo thus far has not made any reference to the invasion of Morotai Island.)

Japan's ability to send immediate aid to the invaded islands was knocked out by the crushing aerial battle of the Philippines which in four days of U. S. carrier plane attacks wiped out 501 enemy planes and 173 surface craft.

Invasion of Palau represents an 825-mile advance from Guam.

Powerful Base

Japan had developed the islands as a powerful naval, air and seaplane base, but their defences were badly battered under an almost continuous nine-day American air bombardment. Surface ships shelled the islands repeatedly during this period, finally moving in for the barrage immediately preceding the invasion.

Conquest of Palau will cut off the 2,000-mile Caroline Island chain, which has been bombed from end to end, and leave its large garrisons, including Truk, faced by the prospects of surrender as the only alternative to starvation and continued bombings. Palau was the Japanese headquarters for the mandated islands.

End of War Cannot Be Far Off Says Nazi Paper

By WADE WERNER

London, Sept. 15 (AP).—Gestapo Chief and Home Army Leader Heinrich Himmler announced last night a strengthening of the Berlin Police Command only a few hours after broadcast of an unconfirmed French radio report, that a small group of rebels had "routed an S. S. (Elite Guard) formation" in a peace riot and then fled into hiding before the arrival of reinforcements.

Unmistakable evidence of the growing panic in Germany after the Allied crossing of the Western Reich frontier came meanwhile from the Nazis themselves as well as from neutral border points.

One Nazi newspaper complained that a belief the "end of the war cannot be far off," was sweeping the country "like a psychosis." Army desertions were reported increasing and there was "open absenteeism" in German war plants.

Himmler "retired Lt.-Gen. Otto Klinger, Berlin security police commandant, naming Maj.-Gen. of Police Erik von Heimbur in his place, the Berlin radio said.

The French Lyon radio did not give the source of its report on rioting in the capital but despatches from Switzerland said war production and communications inside Germany had been disrupted and that civilian nerves were so frazzled as to be getting out of control. German gauleiters were armed with arbitrary powers under total mobilization decrees and they threatened "relentless measures" against ill-managed war factories and wobbling workers therein.

Paul Joseph Goebbels, Nazi Propaganda Minister, in another commentary on Germany's plight appearing in the magazine Das Reich admitted Germany's "territorial losses are grave," and that German troops lack equipment because of the defection of former Axis allies.

A Stockholm despatch quoted a Swedish traveller who returned recently from Germany as saying that civilians were being evacuated from imperilled Western Germany, and that the majority of Germans clearly desire peace.

Thousands of foreign workers in Germany were reported to have gone into hiding, as urged by Gen. Eisenhower.

A Stockholm despatch quoted the Free Danish Press Service as saying the German Gestapo had conducted widespread raids throughout Copenhagen Wednesday night in what appeared to be the greatest mass roundup of Danish patriots since August, 1943.

THE PASSING OF SUMMER.

There's a hint of keen frost in the evening,
There's a wonderful sun in the day,
And the wind of the south-west keeps whispering
Of a summer that's passing away.

And we sigh to see her departing,
Dear summer! With dress frayed and brown,
With the flowers, all withered and faded,
That encircled her brow like a crown.

But barns filled with gold of the harvest,
And vines drooping low with their load
And orchards with fruit freighted heavy,
Are gifts the past summer bestowed.

Then grieve not for life's passing summer,
Nor for hopes, nor for joys taken wing,
In the gold and the fruitage of autumn
Will come true, the fond dreams of life's spring.

WEDDINGS

READ—CORNEAL

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Kelvin Corneal, 95 Gibbon Street, Oshawa, was the scene of a pretty wedding at three o'clock Saturday afternoon, September 9th., when their daughter, Helen, became the bride of Pte. Howard Charles Read, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Read. The bridegroom was a member of the 1st Canadian Division overseas and the 8th Army in Italy. He recently returned home from overseas.

Rev. J. V. McNeely performed the ceremony before the living-room fireplace which was decorated with red, white and blue steamers and flags. Mrs. Clemenger played the wedding music.

Mr. Corneal gave his daughter in marriage and she wore a gown of white satin fashioned with panels of lace and a pleated bodice, which was trimmed with small matching buttons. The long sleeves ended in points over the hands. Her fingertip-length veil was arranged from a heart-shaped coronet and she carried a sheaf of coral and white gladioli. The bride wore the bridegroom's gift, a string of pearls.

Mrs. William J. Severs, sister of the bridegroom ,was matron of honor and she wore a becoming floor-length gown of pink flowered silk marquisette. She wore the bride's gift, a sapphire pendant and carried a sheaf of white and pink gladioli. Mr. Eric Buechler was groomsman.

Treatment for the Hands

Ann Miller applies nail polish after giving herself a hand treatment.

By HELEN FOLLETT

VEGETABLE growers, canners and picklers regard their stained, weather beaten hands, consider that their beautifying endeavors must be speeded up. Pulling up turnips, washing string beans, shelling limas just hasn't done their hands a bit of good.

As for wrestling with plums and other fruits that discolor the nimble fingers, that brings a state of utter dismay. But think of the rewards! Look at the shelves of good things to eat. Anyhow, hands have been useful, and what they have saved on the grocery bill will suffice for permanent waves for a year to come, not to mention a shampoo and wave set now and then.

Beauty shops are as busy as all get out, giving hand and arm treatments. But you can give yourself one if you can spare half an hour. The expense for materials is practically nil, or anyhow, so little that it doesn't count. Get a small bottle of mineral oil and some almond meal.

Give hands and arms a rousing old scrubbing, using warm soap suds and a heavy brush. Rinse and dry. Apply the oil, frictioning from finger tips to shoulders and back again. Thumb your elbows; elbows are always out of form, as the flesh is coarse there, color seldom good. Fluff on the meal, then wrap around the arms large turkish towels that have been wrung out in hot water.

Remove the pack with the moist towels, apply talcum, give the flesh a good friction.

Now for the hands. Plunge the finger tips in a cut lemon to whiten the nail eaves. This treatment works like a miracle. Use the orange wood stick, remove nail polish. Put a little oil on each nail, lift the cuticle with the stick. If you flush up any hang nails, nip them off. Don't press downward at the base of the nail with the stick; you may injure the matrix. Wash hands again, rinse, dry and on with the rosy glow.

Mrs. Churchill's Charm Permeates Personality

"A Queen among women" was the regal accolade recently bestowed on Mrs. Winston Churchill, wife of the Prime Minister, by Lord Riddell, and to this he added: "And she manages Winston very well."

No woman in Britain, except possibly the Queen, lives closer to the centre of great world events, nor under greater pressure. Her interests are many, but her main task is keeping the Prime Minister in fighting shape.

Has Great Charm

She is tall and slim and always well dressed. At first sight people are impressed by a certain quality of youthfulness. She has grey-green eyes in a pale face with fine sharp features. Her hair is silver. She is vivacious, and has a quick, unaffected smile and she once was described as suggesting a heroine out of a novel by George Meredith.

Mrs. Churchill is of Scottish descent, a grand-daughter of the seventh Earl of Airlie. She married Winston Churchill in 1908 and he has described that marriage as "much the most fortunate and most joyous event which has happened to me in my whole life."

Not in Limelight

Throughout the years of their marriage Mrs. Churchill has managed to keep out of the limelight without cultivating a conspicuous obscurity. She is an accomplished speaker, but does not write and no one has written about her except for a few lyrical allusions to her in her husband's autobiography. She does not give interviews and had her portrait painted only once.

But Mrs. Churchill has always been deeply interested in politics. In Parliament when Mr. Churchill rises to speak, whether it be to quell criticism or to bring good news of battles, he turns first to his wife. And from her place in the gallery, she responds with a soft and personalized gesture.

His Critic

Mr. Churchill usually rehearses his speeches before her — not for flattery, but for her keen comments and observations.

Mrs. Churchill often has substituted on the platform for her husband. Her voice when broadcasting is in quality rather like the Queen's voice.

Her interests are not limited to politics. She has definite views about the nursing profession and its status. She is on the council of a maternity hospital. She visits air raid shelters, public kitchens and restaurants, blitzed towns and all manner of war-time places. She has been active in the Aid-to-Russia fund, which she sponsors.

"She bucks us up just like the King and Queen do," said a woman caught in a crush of people who turned out to see the Churchills in London.

Domestic Person

Despite all of her activities and interests and her great part in her husband's chief affairs she finds time to give the closest attention to her family, to perform the intimate, domestic services that are routine in most households.

Although often called the best-dressed woman in any company, her wardrobe is not extravagant. Her taste in furniture and home decorations partake of the same simplicity; she asks little more than fine contours, authenticity and an atmosphere of restfulness.

Woman's Real Power

A woman friend once said of Clementine Churchill:

"She is, of course, a fine success in her own right, but it is a success of infinite tact and amazing subtleties. She has the proper conception of a woman's power. She knows the strength of companionship and understanding which is the basis of marriage. She understands that woman's real power is always behind the scenes, in all walks of life, but especially in politics and diplomacy."

Ten Rinks Play In Ladies Trebles

Five local with the remaining ones from Cobourg, Campbellford and Stirling comprised the rinks. Winners for the high three win were Mrs. D. Storey, Mrs. E. Ford and Mrs. J. Scott, skip, and of the high two win, Mrs. W. Price, Mrs. A. Wonnacott and Mrs. C. Hyde, skip. Winning laurels for the high one win went to a Stirling ring composed of Mrs. Bastedo, Mrs. W. Huff and Mrs. W. Whitty, skip. The prize for a no win was captured by a Cobourg rink skipped by Mrs. B. Nayler. Afternoon tea was served between games and a pot luck supper "topped off" the tournament.

With the R.C.A.F. Overseas, Sept. 15 (CP) — Distinction of being the first pilot of Coastal Command to land in France on an operational sortie since D-Day went to 32-year-old Wing Commander A. K. Gatward, D.S.O., D.F.C., of London, commanding a Canadian Beaufighter squadron. He was on an anti-shipping sortie over the Channel Islands and then went on to land in Normany.

Gatward gained his D.F.C. over France in June 1942 when he dropped a French tricolor flag over the Arc de Triomphe in daylight.

With only one wing, a JU188 just won't fly. WO. Fred Henke of Trail, B.C. (550 Rossland Ave.) R.C.A.F. "Night Hawk" squadron pilot found that out when he shot the wing off one over Normandy on a sortie in a Mosquito night fighter. Henke made two attacks on the German plane, which he spotted in the bright moonlight.

Mark up one more German sub in the "attacked" column for the Canadian Demon squadron of the Coastal Command. The squadron's latest victory came during a recent patrol over the Bay of Biscay when a U-boat was hunted down by a Wellington bomber crew led by FO. Fred Foster, Vancouver (1066 W. 12th. Ave.) Depth charges straddled the conning tower and brought the submarine to a dead stop. It remained surfaced for ten minutes, following the attack, and before submerging its Nazi gunners tried to shoot the Wellington out of the sky.

Although the Canadians circled the area for long after the U-boat submerged, no further trace of the enemy was seen. Foster's crew included FO. E. R. B. Gray, Amherst, N.S.; Sgt. E. L. Road (332 St. George St.), Moncton, N.B.; WO.1 J. K. Andrews, Blenheim, Ont. WO1 H. D. Godin, (492 D'Arcy St.) Pembroke, Ont., and WO1. J. E. France, Markham, Ont.

FO. Jack Hall of Morden, Man., a bomb-aimer with Bison Squadron has completed his first tour of operations and his log shows he baled out of an aircraft, "ditched" into the North Sea and was shot up on his final trip when three members of the crew were wounded. While Hall was flying as a spare in a Halifax bomber attacking Nuremburg, two Junkers 88's shot up the bomber and forced it down into the sea. The pilot was drowned but all other members of the crew survived.

Bomber Sortie: Both aircraft were burning—a Lancaster and an enemy fighter. They continued to fire at one another until at last the fighter was destroyed and fell blazing through the clouds. By that time there was a gaping hole in the floor of the bomber and the rear gunner had been killed, but the pilot, Flt. Lt. W. L. Foote, of Halifax, N.S., (17 Rosebank Ave.) went on and bombed the target.

That was on the night of July 28 when the Lancaster was on its way to attack Stuttgart. Mid-upper gunner was Sgt. R. A. Smith of Toronto (39 Silverthorne Ave.) who finally got the fighter when it made its second attack. The hydraulic system for his guns was out of action, but he worked them by hand.

BILL VOISELLE WINS 20 GAMES FOR N.Y. GIANTS

Dick Wakefield of Detroit Notified to Report to His Draft Board

MAY WASH-OUT GAMES

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sport Writer)

Draft Board calls and a professional football exhibition added further confusion overtones to the American League chase today as three of the four contenders went back into action after a four-day "holiday."

Dick Wakefield, Detroit's slugging left fielder, was notified by his Chicago Draft Board he had passed his army physical and was subject to call at any time. He said he did not expect to be called before mid-October. Notice also was sent to pitcher Denny Galehouse of the St. Louis Browns to report Monday at Camp Blanding for his pre-induction physical.

Philadelphia's pro grid exhibition Tuesday had an indirect bearing on the race. Steady rules coupled with the condition of the field forced two successive postponements of a scheduled important Athletic - Yankee game resulting in a transfer to New York to be part of a Sunday double-header.

If Sunday's game hits bad weather, they will be taken off the books. At this stage, one game less than the regular 154 might make the percentage point difference that could win or lose the flag.

Although the Philadelphia game probably would not have been played because of the hurricane, even if no football game had been held, President Barrow of the Yanks was prepared to ask the majors for legislation at the December meetings, forbidding any team from renting its park for football before the close of its home season.

Bill Voiselle became the first New York Giant pitcher in seven years to win 20 games as he stopped the Phillies, 12-1, yesterday, to tie Chicago for fourth place. The Cubs bowed to Cincinnati, 3-2, in 13 innings but got an even break in the nightcap, 4-2, as Ray Mueller of the Reds stretched his record to 135 straight catching jobs. Brooklyn climbed into sixth place by stopping Boston, 5-4.

PLAYOFFS AGAIN ARE RAINED OUT

(By The Associated Press)

After rain had forced two consecutive postponements of the International League playoffs, last night's hurricane delayed the start of the big show once more.

As a result, Newark and Toronto will try to hold their first game at Newark tonight at 8.30.

The pennant-winning Baltimore Orioles, however, will not meet the fourth-place Buffalo Bisons until Sunday at 2.30 p.m. Playing tonight at Baltimore would necessitate a Sunday game at Buffalo, conflicting with the Chicago Bears-New York Giants Football game at Buffalo's civic stadium that day.

Baltimore announced that Charles (Red) Embree, its pitching Ace, would start, while Buffalo's choice will be Forrest (Joe) Orrell.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By HAROLD FREEMAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Montreal, Sept. 15 — (CP) — The new ruling by the National Hockey League's Board of Governors, barring players who have deferment from military service for other than physical reasons, drew plenty of adverse comment from Montreal sports writers but apparently the league management doesn't plan to get into an argument about it.

"I have no intention of getting into any imbroglio on the subject," said General Manager Lester Patrick from New York after N. H. L. headquarters here had sent him some of the local clippings. President Red Dutton, home in Western Canada was unavailable for comment.

The champion Montreal Canadiens are commonly regarded as hardest-hit by the new regulations but the Montreal Star has reprinted comment of Jim Coleman of the Toronto Globe and Mail and Andy (Toronto Star) Lytle to show that the opposition isn't confined to Montreal.

Dink (Montreal Gazette) Carroll makes probably the strongest attack on the new set-up in an article asking: "Will National Selective Service come to the defence of those to whom it has granted deferments; or will a wartime governmental agency permit a particular industry to make its own rules about jobs and deferments?"

Dink asks if the N. H. L. had in mind "a rejection of the whole conception of selective service," says the ruling "tends to bring into contempt all those who for special reasons, unknown even to the N. H. L. governors, may have been granted deferments," and hints that he thinks the stand of the league has taken it into the field of political action.

Baz (Montreal Star) O'Meara said: "There is a pretty widespread feeling that some of the hockey hierarchy in the Maple Leaf Gardens who are political opponents of the government inspired this plan with the two-fold purpose of hamstringing Canadiens and rejecting the government policy regarding hockey which was to the effect that they could go along the same as last year."

Elmer (Montreal Herald) Ferguson concedes that he has no quarrel with the rule in principles — "in fact it is a very good rule" — but finds it "passing strange, or even stranger than that, that the governors of the National League waited until the sixth year of the war".

Meanwhile Senator Donat Raymond, president of the Canadiens hockey club, remarks soothingly that "one should not be unduly alarmed . . ."

MILLS, LONDON BOX FOR TITLE

(By ALLAN NICKLESON)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Manchester, England, Sept. 15. (CP-Cable)— A onetime booth boxer and a balding giant with a 35-pound weight advantage battle for the vacant British and British Empire heavyweight titles in a 15-round bout here tonight, but many in the crowd won't believe it until they see the thing begin.

This clash between favored Freddie Mills, "The Bournemouth Bomber", and Jack London, has the dubious distinction of being probably the most-postponed title fight of all time.

This is the fifth attempt to stage it after a series of setbacks ranging from training injuries to buzz-bomb attacks.

Wild-swinging Mills, who used to take on all comers at County Fairs and learned to hit but not to box, already holds the British and Empire light-heavyweight crowns. Some ring experts figure he will knock out the former West Hartlepool truck driver in quick time. London is 35 and five years older than Mills. Both are sergeants in the R.A.F. Physical Training section.

London has been chasing a title bout for years and already has been beaten once by Mills. That was three years ago when Len Harvey held the title.

London has not had a serious contest for a year. Mills has had only a few in the last two years and the most recent fight was when he knocked out Al Delaney, mediocre Canadian light-heavy from Windsor and Oshawa, Ont., a couple of weeks before D-Day.

BRITISH PUBLIC PUTSMOREMONEY ON FAVORITES

17 Expensive Colts Will Go On Saturday in Famous St. Leger

TEHRAN BEST LIKED

Newmarket, England, Sept. 15. (CP Reuter)—The names of 17 highly expensive three year-old horses and their all-star jockeys were issued here last night as the probables for Saturday's classic race at Newmarket, the St. Leger.

Bookmakers were in an almost electrical state of anxiety tonight as the British public poured more and more money on four favored horses.

Tehran, owned by Ali Khan, son and heir of the Aga Khan, was backed to win more than $1,000,000 in pre-race bets alone, apart from the "Bobs" and quids" which will be laid on its nose on the day of the race. Gordon Richards, England's champion jockey, is slated to ride the colt.

The three other popular fancies in the long-distance race for three year-olds each will carry around $1,000,000, too, and will be mounted by some of the leading money-making riders in the country.

The Derby winner, Ocean Swell, is second favorite and will be ridden by E. P. H. Smith. Lord Derby's Borealis, carrying a small fortune in bets from the hard-headed north, has the veteran Harry Wragg in the saddle and Hycilla, pre-race selection in thousands of English back-street pubs, will be whipped along by G. Bigland.

The rest of the field for Saturday is as follows:

Fair Glint, D. Smith; Triona, Arthur Wragg; Causeway, W. Pearson; Hunsingore, Sammy Wragg; Happy Landing, T. Lowery; Hyder Ali, Cliff Richards.

Orests, T. H. Carey; Renwood, C. Jarvis; Red Fife, C. Elliott; Glide Away, M. Beary; Growing Confidence, K. Mullins; Monsoon, P. Maher and Model, R. A. Jones.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
(Associated Press Sport Writer)

New York, Sept. 15 (AP)—Prexy Ed Barrow of the Yankees is threatening to introduce legislation which would forbid Major League baseball clubs to lease their parks for football before the end of the season... that's contrary to the Branch Rickey-Phil Wrigley theory of supplying year-round activity for ball parks, but it helps bring out the fact that pro football is old enough to control its own fields...The ball parks, except maybe the Polo grounds and Cleveland stadium, aren't suited to football....There has been talk of building new stadia in Philadelphia and Washington and one story has it that the National Football League delayed awarding a Los Angeles franchise because Bing Crosby plans to build a plant for a team there after the war....So if the baseball clubs shut down, maybe the footballers will build their own—and lease the premises to colleges for Saturday afternoons.

Today's Guest Star.

Don Donaghey, Philadelphia Evening Bulletin: "A praying mantis teetered on the press box rail yesterday and too late we realized it might have made a more appropriate 1944 battle emblem for the home club than the Blue Jay."

Gunnery School Holds Track Meet

Picton, Sept. 15 — In spite of unfavorable weather, the annual Sports Day of No. 31 Bombing and Gunnery School, R.A.F., held Wednesday afternoon at the fair grounds was a success. Rain the previous night made the track heavy and the final event, a soccer game, was played during a heavy downpour of rain. One event was not held and the exhibition 100 yard dash by A.C. Sandiford, could not be held owing to the condition of the track. The speedy airman from Trinidad was seen in the 100-yard and 200-yard dashes and won both handily.

The athletes were divided into sections, with Ground Instruction School amassing 28 points to take the James Hepburn trophy. Maintenance was just two points behind, Training Wing third with 22 while Station Headquarters had 19 points.

LAC. Melkin of Mountain View R.C.A.F. won the open mile race but Picton athletes triumphed in all other inter-station events.

Throughout the afternoon, music was provided by the Band of No. 3 A District Depot, Kingston.

Group Captain C. J. Collingwood, D.F.C., Commanding Officer, was referee and presented the prizes at the dance in the evening, this ceremony being cancelled at the grounds owing to the rain. S/Ldr. Brampton Excelsiors Defeated by St. Kitts Brampton, Ont., Sept. 15. (CP)—St. Catharines Athletics last night won an easy 22-15 victory over Brampton Excelsiors in the first game of a best-of-five semi-final series in the Senior Ontario Lacrosse Association playdowns.

Winner of the series meets Mimico Mountaineers, who recently eliminated Toronto Lakeshores in the other semi-final bracket.

Second game of the series will be played at St. Catharines Saturday night with the third game here Monday.

Playing before more than 700 fans, Brampton went into an early 2-1 lead before their defence broke down and allowed St. Catharines to fire six consecutive goals past goalie Cecil Chambers without a reply. The smooth-working Athletics maintained the advantage to the finish.

Half-time score was 15-5 for St. Catharines.

Boucher Engaged as Coach Of Rangers for Another Year

By The Canadian Press

Manager Lester Patrick yesterday announced at New York the signing of Frank Boucher of Ottawa for another year as coach of the Rangers and stated the N.H.L. team would train at Winnipeg for the 11th consecutive season. A hockey school will get under way Oct. 3 in the western Canadian city and the regulars have been ordered to report Oct. 11. The pick of the school are to be assigned to the New York Rovers in the U. S. Eastern Hockey League, he said.

Taking two of three heats, Billie Patch, owned by H. McLean, Port Elgin, yesterday captured the 2:26 pace at the Hanover, Ont., fair while Dr. Simpson's Lady Peters from Harriston won two or three dashes in the free-for-all, her best time being 2:15. Ex-ray, owned by G. S. Elliott of Clinton, was second. Geo. McMull won the special prize for the best driver.

Hamilton juniors squared the Ontario softball playdowns at one game apiece in taking the second game, 3-2, from Windsor Dayus Mic Macs at Hamilton last night.

Playing in Toronto on a stopover before competing in the U. S. Women's National softball tourney at Cleveland, Vancouver Neons bowed to the Sunday Morning Class nine 4-1 last night.

Must Be Prepared To Serve 3 Years On Allied Commission

London, Sept. 15 (CP) — Officials being considered for posts in the British section of the Allied Commission to administer Germany after the war are being informed they must agree to stay at least three years.

Under the plan outlined by many here, Berlin would be the seat of the commission, representing Britain, the United States and the Soviet Union. Each country would have a controlling sphere—the Russians the eastern section, Britain the northwest and the United States the southwest.

All trade and production would be under the control of the commissioners. Hitler's 'People's Court' and other Nazi instruments would be wiped out immediately and a new judicial system set up.

The Nazi gauleiters—local dictators—will go, and the Allies are expected to maintain close supervision over schools. It is possible British teachers may be installed in some institutions.

SOUTH AFRICAN MINES

Pretoria — (CP) — It is expected that two new collieries to be opened in the Transvaal will produce about 100,000 tons of coal a month at the start. After three years the output should be about 295,000 tons monthly.

30 CATHOLIC PRIESTS SHOT

London, Sept. 15, (CP) — The French Brazzaville radio said in a broadcast early today that seized German Gestapo records revealed that thirty Catholic priests had been shot and at least 100 others still in the hands of the Germans, 13 of which have been taken to the Reich. The broadcast did not say where in France the purported records were taken.

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 481

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

The Vienna coup is nothing but a glorified squeeze play. It is a squeeze after losing control of the top card in some suit. See it done in this deal:

NORTH
♠A K 9
♥A Q 2
♦A K Q 2
♣A J 2

WEST	EAST
♠J	♠6 3
♥10 9 8 6	♥K 7 7 5 3
♦9 7 5 4 3	♦J 10 8
♣Q 9 4	♣K 10 8 6

SOUTH
♠Q 10 8 7 5 4 2
♥J 4

South is declarer in spades, aiming to take all 13 tricks. The opening lead from west is the heart ten. North wins that with the ace and declarer starts preparing for the coming squeeze.

To squeeze, the south spade suit must be employed for reducing the number of cards in each hand. A squeeze is most likely to work when all hands are down to three cards apiece.

At exactly that moment, south must be in the lead with the last spade as a squeeze card. So provision must be made to be in that spot when the time comes.

Dummy pulls opponent trumps with his two top spades. Three top diamonds are then led from that hand. In these, south sluffs two of his small clubs.

Entering his own hand with a spade, south leads spades until he has only one spade left. By this time, each player has only three remaining cards.

South has left a small spade, the heart jack, a small club. Dummy has kept a small diamond and A J of clubs. West hung to the diamond nine and Q 9 of clubs. East clung to heart king and K 10 of clubs.

Notice that west has a set-up diamond and east has a set-up heart. And both west and east still have the club suit blocked in some manner between them.

South now leads the last spade and the opponents are squeezed. No matter what opponents do, declarer and dummy can contrive to take the remaining tricks. Do you see it yet?

Accuracy Marks Allied Bombing

Florence, Sept. 15 (CP) — Information has been made available here regarding historic buildings and art treasures in the rest of occupied Italy which have been damaged or destroyed through effects of Allied bombings.

When the station at Padua was a target some months ago, the Chiesa degli Ermitani, a medieval church, was hit although some hundreds of yards away from the target area.

The church became a legitimate military target, however, when it was later learned that its adjacent convent had been used for the local German military district, which although unknown at the time of the raid, more or less justified the error.

Milan bombings have destroyed the Church of San Ambrogio, while at Modena, the Church of San Lorenzo has been damaged, together with the famous Portale dei Principi, and certain of the 12th. Century sculpture in the cathedral. At Bologna, next big city on the Allied list in Italy, the churches of San Domenico and San Francesco have been sincerely mauled.

With the exception of the Bologna damage, most of the known destruction of valuable art has been consequent upon bombing of legitimate targets nearby, and arises mainly from blast effects. Only in Bologna where, according to the Italians, damage has been in the heart of the town and not too obviously connected with military reasons, have the Allies appeared inconsistent with their practice of scrupulous accuracy of bombing, and selection of targets of exclusively military importance.

HURRICANE

A majority of the smaller towns of Long Island were without light and power after the storm, communications and transportation were almost completely disrupted and roads were littered with torn wires and toppled trees.

The New York City area and Connecticut escaped with comparatively little damage, although seven of the recorded deaths were in greater New York.

The storm winds reached a record of 95 miles an hour in New York, a 100-mile reading was recorded at Camp Edwards on Cape Cod and Boston reported a wind velocity of 98 miles an hour.

Water Rises Two Feet.

Water rose to a depth of two feet in Providence, R.I., streets, but subsided quickly. The Rhode Island capital was strewn with debris this morning. No casualties were reported.

In states all along the coast, state guards, civilian defence and Red Cross disaster workers were mobilized before the storm struck. Ample warnings from the weather bureau made possible the evacuation of hundreds of seaside resort communities.

Railroad traffic, halted in many places by damaged signal systems and water over rails, was expected to return to normal this morning. State police and highway departments, however, reported it might be a day or two before all roads are clear. Some towns may remain without electricity throughout today.

Ship Breaks in Half.

One ocean-going vessel was lost in the hurricane. The Thomas Tracy, a 250-foot freighter, was driven ashore near Reboboth Beach, Del., and broke in half under the pounding sea. Its crew was rescued by the coast guard.

Wind overturned a tanker in the Hudson river.

Dozens of smaller craft were torn from their moorings and damaged at points all along the coast.

High winds continued in the early morning hours from Portsmouth, N.H., to Portland, Me., but the rain was diminishing and the sky was expected to clear by afternoon.

WAR'S DEMANDS UPSET ENGLISH VILLAGE LIFE

For Five Years Men and Women of Rural Communities Have Been Ready for Air Blitz of Invasion

By MARGARET ECKER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

In An English Village (CP) — There's one story about Britain at war that Canadians and Americans don't read about—the story of Mr. and Mrs. John Jones who live in a small English village like this, anywhere in England, and who haven't had any private life to speak of since September, 1939.

Mr. Jones belongs to the Home Guard and Mrs. Jones is a Red Cross V.A.D.

If this were London, there would be lots of drama in that. Maybe one or both of them would even have won a decoration for heroism under fire. But this is Blankshire and, happily, there haven't been any serious incidents. However, like hundreds of little villages not too far from London, the stray buzz bomb plummets over and the warnings go almost as often as they do in London. And so Mr. Jones and Mrs. Jones are on duty at their posts several times a week.

It's pretty dull. There are no thrills or scares, but the cots at the posts are hard and they get little sleep. But even after five years of it, neither of them would dream of wriggling out of their duty.

It was a hot, lazy afternoon, and people were sitting in their gardens or strolling along the canal. Mrs. Jones—that isn't her name—just carried a tea tray onto the terrace when the siren sounded.

"You'll have to look after yourselves," she said, "I'm on duty."

Many of her group volunteered to the British Red Cross Society years ago for first aid and home nursing. About the same time their husbands were volunteering as A.R.P. wardens and fire-fighters.

Ready for Anything

When the air raid siren went for the first time there was confusion. But now the veterans are ready for anything that might happen within 50 miles of the village. They have a mobile van—the local green grocer is its driver—and a team of four first aiders are always on call.

"It sounds exciting," said Mrs. Jones. "Actually nothing has happened, but we have to go on being ready. It certainly disorganizes one's home life."

All the women in the first aid team do three eight-hour shifts a week and are on duty two nights. One of these nights they can sleep at home, the other they spend at the post.

Mr. Jones—a very soldierly captain in the Home Guard—said, "The Home Guard has become part of our lives. We'll hardly know what to do when we have our evenings to ourselves again."

When France fell, it looked as if the men of little villages like this one might have to obey Churchill and fight in the fields. So while the cartoonists lampooned them, they prepared road blocks, built block houses, made wire entanglements in the fields and took down signposts that are just finding their way back now.

"All these defence measures look ridiculous when you think what invading German panzers would have done," said Mr. Jones. "But it made us feel much better to make them."

There was no invasion, but the Home Guard has kept on training for at least 48 hours a month and at present they're being operational, helping farmers with no helpers, to take in the crops.

Anglo-Canadian Phase of Parley Being Considered

By FRANK FLAHERTY
(C. P. Staff Writer)

Quebec, Sept. 15 (CP) — Within the framework of the overall military and economic plans being worked out at the Churchill-Roosevelt conference, Canadian and British chiefs of staff are getting down to the job of planning the division of work among Canadian and other Empire and associated forces, it is evident today.

Already the Anglo-Canadian phase of the second Quebec Conference has started informally and, following Wednesday's meeting of the cabinet war committee here, the Canadian chiefs of staff will meet more frequently with their British counterparts.

It is possible the Anglo-Canadian talks will end about the same time as or soon after the main Anglo-American talks since the two will proceed simultaneously to the extent that the British chiefs of staff are free.

Stephen Early, press secretary to President Roosevelt, announced the conference is making "excellent progress" and will be finished at the weekend as far as the president is concerned.

A hint of the nature of the economic discussions came in the announcement that the United States treasury secretary, Henry Morgenthau, Jr., will join the meeting. He is believed primarily concerned with the stabilisation of currency in liberated and occupied enemy territories. His recent visit to Italy is understood to have resulted in increased attention to the importance of providing economic stability in the wake of Allied victory to lay a sound foundation for peace.

Says This War Could Have Been Prevented If League Supported

London, Sept. 15 (CP) — Prime Minister Churchill commented in a letter made public that "this war could easily have been prevented if the League of Nations had been used with courage and loyalty by associated nations."

Hailing the 80th. birthday of Viscount Cecil of Chelwood, president of the League of Nations Union, Mr. Churchill wrote that in 1935 and 1936 there was still a chance to contain Germany and "we tried our best."

"The opportunity surely will be offered again to mankind to guard themselves at least for a few generations from such frightful experiences," he added.

In answer, Viscount Cecil said it "all depends on whether peoples can be made to understand the plain truth of the future and are not led away to put their faith only in social and economic reforms."

COLLEGE HEAD DIES

Oxford, England (CP) — Dr. A. E. W. Hazel, principal of Jesus College, Oxford, and former Liberal member of parliament for West Bromwich, died here after a long illness. He was 75.

. . . AND ALL THAT

Sydney, Australia — (CP) — New South Wales state lottery No. 1066 was opened on the day the Allies landed in Normandy.

AT THE BELLE — In rhythm with M.G.M.'s enticing Technicolor musical, "Broadway Rhythm," the attraction at the Belle this weekend, are George Murphy, Ginny Simms, and Tommy Dorsey. A stellar supporting cast contributes humor, music, and novelties galore, and to boot there's Tommy Dorsey and his musicians.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Bell Bottom George"

George Formby opens his mouth and puts his foot in it with a vengeance in Columbia's "Bell Bottom George", which comes to the McCarthy theatre this weekend. Here this popular star, in a picture produced and directed by Marcel Varnel, appears in a story strong in nautical incident. George, as usual manages to get into all kinds of chucklesome trouble, but for one sequence, in the character of a would-be matelot, he manages to do all the right things for once, and in a romantic mood, too. The setting is a modern restaurant aptly named the Sea-Horse a spot much frequented at an unnamed port by service men and their heart-throbs, smartly decorated and boasting a good band and dance floor.

Here George brings the attractive young Wren played by Anne Firth, who has stolen his heart but has yet to be won. By the time their evening is over and George has sung a most appealing number, "If I Had a Girl Like You," he has at last succeeded in making the right impression and the girl is all but "aboard the lugger."

Alas, for George, in the very next sequence to be filmed, he ruins his prospects of getting into the navy. He is a stewart at the Senior Service Club and the Admiral who had half considered helping him to get into the navy is a member. A series of wildly funny scenes follows, showing the well-intentioned George coming to grief slowly but surely. Not only does he upset the Admiral's drinks all over him and his party but finally crowns him with the black-out shutter.

TRUCK RUNS AMOK

Bordon, England (CP) — Twenty Canadian soldiers were injured, some seriously, when an army truck skidded near this Hampshire town, dived into the garden of a public house and overturned.

ENDS LONG VOYAGE

London — (CP) — The submarine H. M. S. Tactician recently returned to home waters after voyaging 50,000 miles in 19 months.

AT THE CAPITOL — Bob Steele, Rufe Davis and Tom Tyler currently starring in the new Republic picture, "The Phantom Plainsmen," now at the Capitol Theatre, with the added comedy with music, "Sing You Sinners," starring Bing Crosby and Fred MacMurray.

SUSPICIOUS SAUSAGES

Sydney, Australia (CP)—A flourishing trade in horseflesh for pets sprang up here after stringent meat rationing, but rumors that it was going into sausages and pies resulted in bills being passed enforcing strict control of the meat.

INDIAN NAVY GROWS

New Delhi — (CP) — The Royal Indian Navy now has a personnel 13 times greater than at the outbreak of war. There are an increasing number of Indian officers in command of ships and in other high posts.

"THAT KEITH WOMAN"

By Phyllis Moore Gallagher

CHAPTER 20

VICTOR CORLISS CONFESSES KEITH MURDER

I experienced a sinking sensation. So I was right!

"That tube of blemish cream was probably loaded with that guy's prints," Peter said, fumbling for a nickel. He crossed swiftly over to the news-stand ahead of me, plucked a paper from under the doorman's arm, and spread it out on the glass counter.

As Peter read, he told me: "Corliss would swear to a dozen murders if he thougt Sandra Keith were guilty. Of course, he and Sandra may have done the job together." ...Peter's voice thickened .... "Somehow I just can't believe Victor is guilty. He must know Sndra did it, and he's taking the blame." I felt cold all over. Sitting before a squat little table in the hotel's cocktail lounge snaking potato chips out of a blue glass bowl, Peter Gibson and I read what Clem Barkley had written about the arrest of Victor Corliss. It was easy to see that all concerned with law and order were industriously measuring the young college boy for the chair. Clem's story read, in part:

> Precint Detective Horace Heath tonight typed THE END across the bottom of the last page of a 5,000 word confession dictated by 22-year old Victor Corliss, college student, who murdered Mrs. Pamela Keith and her butler, Reginald Fielding.
>
> At 11:30 Monday morning, Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald will conduct an inquest at the disrict morgue into the death of Mrs. Keith, popular society matron. By midafternoon the case is expected to be given the grand jury.
>
> Last night, the prisoner reenacted for police the murder of Mrs. Keith, and of Reginald Fielding who was murdered in his basement room at the Keith house.
>
> "I hated Pamela Keith," young Corliss said. "And she hated me. She woukdn't let me marry Sandra. So I killed her and I'm glad I did. I'm sorry about Reginald. He knew too much. I had no choice.
>
> "I tried to kill Miss Letitia Randolph. She followed me on the grounds of the Keith estate shorty before I murdered Mrs. Keith. I attacked Miss Randolph and in the scuffle my throat was scarred."

I read that part three times. Apparently Victor Corliss had said nothing about the attack on me in my apartment, or else Clem had deliberately omitted it. I wondered why,. drew a blank, and went on reading:

> Upon returning to police Headquarters, Corliss was visited by Sandra Keith. On emerging, Miss Keith showed signs of strain, said she'd found Corliss quite composed and resigned to whatever fate a jury may decree. He had asked that all his friends and acquaintances pray for him, disclosing that Corliss had requested that no money be spen on his defense....
>
> The police department announced last night that Sergeant Roger Hornblower whose work resulted in the solution of the murder of Mrs. Pamela Keith and Reginald Fielding will be promoted....

"Well," I commented, pushing the paper away, "I guess that's that, Peter! But why didn't Victor incude the murder of Marcella Kingsley in his confession? You get electrocuted just as completely for three murders as you do for two or even more."

Peter said, "That's explainable: If he told about the Kingsley girl —and providing, of course, Sandra wasn't in on it when he killed Pamela — Sandra would hate his memory."

"She'll hate it anyway. Her own mother, Peter!"

"Sandra didn't love her mother a lot. If she had, she wouldn't have gone near Vic at the police station."

"I don't know." I sighed. "Love's a funny thing—"

"At times," amended Peter, grinning at me. Then he said, "Well, that tube of blemish cream evidently led to Vic's arrest and confession. So I guess you helped solve the case, after all, Letty. How does it feel to be a Grade-A Super-Sleuth instead of a Grade-A Suspect?"

"I—I don't know," I faltered. "I wish I'd never fooled with this murder. I wish I'd stayed out of it. What—I—discovered is going to send Corliss to his death—and he may not be guilty. Somehow I can't feel he's guilty. Something's wrong somewhere, Peter."

"Listen Letty," Peter blazed, "don't be a jittery jack-ass! Victor killd Pamela, didn't he? And Reginald, too. He said so—officially. He re-enacted both crimes. It suited the police. He might have killed you. So quit that sniffling!"

"Just the same I wish—I wish I'd stayed out of it," I sobbed. "He and Sandra were so much in love. So—terribly in love!"

"Blah!" snorted Peter. "Now isn't that just like a woman! Stop that weeping."

"I'll stop," I said, but I couldn't....

"You must snap out of it." With that he turned sideways in his red leather chair and flicked his hand sharply across my face. Peter was telling me he was so sorry he'd had to frighten me, when I became vaguely conscious of the stately, gray-haired dowager who had materialized out of nowhere and was glaring down at Peter.

I wiped my eyes and stared up curiously at the woman who spoke to Peter in stern ones.

"Why, you cad! Slapping a nice child like that! I'm ashamed of you, young man!"

Peter half rose from his chair and began, "Please let me assure you—"

But the woman didn't give Peter time to assure her of anything. In the next second a plump jeweled hand thumped my escort's nose. Really thumped!

With a groan of resignation, Peter slumped back ino his chair.

"It doesn't feel so good, doest it young man?" queried my angry champion. "Now you take that child home to her mother!" She shot Peter another outraged look, turned on her high heels, and marched off, gray head serenely in the air.

Peter's face was white except for a nose which he was rubbing cautiously. The music had become a terrific blare, necks were craning ostrich-like from every cubicle, and several waiters were bustling around us, worriedly.

"That was Mrs. Van Sturvescent," one of the waiters said in a tone which implied that a Van Sturvescent could do no wrong.

We both stared at each other, then we burst out laughing. He asked: "Well, what now? Bed for you and a sedative, child?"

"Let me think."

"Please don't. It would only lead to trouble."

"Well, I couldn't sleep if I went to bed. I'm too wound up. How does a nice long walk strike you?"

"Suits me," said Peter, and he waved to our waiter.

Out in the street, the cold November wind touched our faces with steadying refreshing fingers. I pushed along, Peter tramping beside me, hands dug into his pockets, pipe locked between his teeth. Turning into Massachusetts Ave. we heard newsboys crying. "EXTRA! EXTRA! KEITH SLAYER CONFESSES." "EXTRA! VICTOR CORLISS CONFESSES TO KEITH MURDER! EXTRA!"

Walking block after block, shivering from a chill that had nothing to do with the night air, I found I was utterly miserable over the fate of young Corliss. I tried to talk to Peter about it, but he wouldn't listen.

When we reached the white blaze of electricity that is Connecticut Avenue, Peter paused beside a yawning chasm where a row of buildings had been demolished. In a miraculously short time another Government building would be feverishly constructed, rising from that black chasm in lines of steel and stone. I told Peter that no boom-town in the history of the country could match Washington right now, but he didn't hear me; he wasn't even listening.

Suddenly Peter remarked: "You know, Letty, I like Washington. Yes, I like this town—except for one thing: There's something in the climate here that disolves folding money!"

"Maybe it's the humidity," I suggested, "combined with the gold rush for defense contracts?"

"In my pocket now reposes two dollars and two thin dimes—with war approaching most of us must start counting pennies."

"Is this your none-too-subtle way of telling me we won't live in Washington, Peter?"

"Well-l, I don't know. I've thought about it. Writing politics maybe until war comes. But if we do live here, we might find ourselves up to our necks in a sort of hair-cloth shirt existence. At first anyway. You have to keep up with the Joneses in this town or no one will play with you."

"And that means you're not going to sue for your inheritance?"

"Maybe," said Peter. "Letty would you love me just as much in a hair-cloth shirt as you would in fine linen?"

"I'd love you in no shirt at all, Pet; you know that."

And that's as far as I got on my favorite subject, for a police car with its black body and yellow lettering rolled up to the curb.

Sergeant Roger Hornbower and Heath stepped out.

The Sergeant's broad face was all grin. He bowed to me and said: "I thought I recognized you two, I was just up to the hotel looking for you, Miss Randolph. I wanted to thank you for all you've done. It was the tube of blemish cream you found that turned the trick. It was loaded with young Corliss' prints and yours, of course."

"You have my prints?"

"Yes. Yours and everybody else's. On water glasses," confessed the Sergeant.

"Now wasn't that clever of you!" I chirped, remembering how daintily Heath had taken my water glass from me the night Pamela was murdered.

Hornblower hung his head sheepishly, I thought I wondered for a moment why I had ever been afraid of him.

"Well, you know how it is in cases like this, Miss Randolph. Everybody's a suspect. I was sorry I had to suspect you in the beginning. And you, too, Mr. Gibson."

Peter made a Court of St. James bow, and I declared: "Oh, that was all right, Sergeant. You were just doing your duty."

A black cat came out of nowhere and backed up against Peter's long legs, purring noisily. Suddenly the cat ran furiously across the street, darting in and out between speeding cars. I stood looking at that fleet feline, holding my breath a little for I was certain a car would strike the animal. But the black cat reached the other sidewalk safely.

At that moment, an idea—based on a hunch suggested by the cat's incredible escape—shot through my mind.

I said swiftly, "Sergeant Hornblower, are you absolutely convinced Victor Corliss is guilty?"

He paused a second, his black eyes narrowing. "Why, yes. Of course. But why do you ask, Miss Randolph?"

"I — I don't know," I replied. "Would it be too much trouble for you to tell me exactly what happened before he signed that confession?"

Little Benny's Note Book

I was sitting on our front steps feeling hungry, and pop came home and I said, Hello pop, how are you?

Exceptionally well, thank you, pop said. And how are you, and to complete the chain of civilities, how is your charming mother? he said, and I said, Not so good. She had one of those days when everything went wrong and nothing went right, and here you are pretty near late for supper to make it still worse, I said.

Well, perhaps I'd better make a hasty trip around to Pockadopolo the florist and cheer her up with a buntch of roses, pop said, and I said, But G, pop, then you'd be all a ways late for supper.

That's so, too, by gollies, pop said. Well, there's nothing like somebody else's troubles to take people's mind off their own. Maybe I'd better walk in with a long face and a sad story, he said, and I said, G, I know, pop, just go in pretending to limp a little, as if you'd hurt yourself, but not bad.

It's in a good cause, pop said, and he went in walking as if one leg was shorter than the other, and ma said, Well, now what on earth happened to you?

Now dont get excited, it's a mere trifle, I'll be all over it in no time, pop said, and ma said, Well I hope so for land sakes. I know what you're like when you imagine you're an invalid, and if I have to wait on you hand and foot for the rest of the evening after what I've been through today, it will be like a nightmare following a bad dream, she said.

By gollies it's gone already, pop said. And he stamped both feet with a surprised expression, saying, Apparently all it needed was a shock, thanks very much, my dear.

And he started to eat supper like somebody feeling lucky, me feeing the same way on account of it having been my idea.

Believes Air Currents Bring Bullets Back

Long Branch, Ont., Sept. 15 (CP) —Bullets from machine guns in use at the small arms training centre and the small arms proving grounds, both near Long Branch, have been landing on the streets of this town, Reeve Sam Wright reported to the town council last night. The spent bullets of the 20 mm. variety—are said to have been fired out over Lake Ontario at a 70-degree angle.

Officials at both camps believe a strong air current is bringing the bullets back to shore.

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE

Toronto, Sept. 15 (CP)—Mining groups recovered slightly this afternoon on Toronto exchange. Industrials were lower. Volume totalled 358,000 shares.

Gains of 10 cents or more appeared for Cochenour Willans, Bear Exploration, East Malartic, Giant Yellowknife and Madsen. Lake Shore firmed 1-4 and Dome was down 1-2.

Steep Rock was the strongest of the base metal issues. It gained 25 cents to 3.45. Labrador added 10 cents and Smelters and Nickel added fractions.

Mild weakness was shown in the industrials section for the papers and senior oils. Canada Packers gained 3 points to 115.

WALL STREET

New York, Sept. 15 (AP)—Leading stocks, paced by steels, motors and rubbers, effected a recovery shift in today's market although animation on the comeback was notably lacking.

Customers generally still leaned to conservatism as transition doubts again were stressed by the sweep of the Allies into Germany but bidding revived to some extent on the idea the recent decline had at least partially taken into account numerous post-war problems.

Gains, running to a point or so at the best, were whittled down in assorted cases near the fourth hour.

In the Canadian list, C.P.R. gained 1-8 and Lake Shore 1-4. Dome Mines was unchanged. Better performers included U.S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, Graham-Paige, U.S. Rubber, Goodrich, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, American Telephone, N.Y. Central, Kennecott, Douglas Aircraft, Boeing and Union Carbide.

CANADA FACING GREATEST PERIOD OF EXPANSION

Ontario Premier Says the Empire Needs Some Type of General Staff to Meet Peace Problems

POOL OPPORTUNITIES

By CHARLES BRUCE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Sept. 15 — (CP Cable)— The future welfare of the British Commonwealth "depends on the extent to which we can carry into the years of peace the co-operative activity developed in war," Premier George Drew of Ontario said today at a luncheon given by Ontario House to Canadians prominent in London business life.

"We need some type of common general staff to meet our problems in peace as in war," he said. "We need to pool all the opportunities we have under the British flag."

Canada, he said, was facing the greatest period of expansion in her history. The three greatest sources of raw materials were Russia, the United States and Canada. Russia would be busy with her own rehabilitation for years. The United States would need a great part of her production for her own people. In raw materials, power and skill to produce, Canada was offered the greatest opportunity in the world.

Canada would need people who through the test of war could turn into the finest finished products the raw material available in the Dominion. Only after the war would the whole magnitude of the contribution made by inventive British brains be understood, he said. A relatively small group of highly-skilled minds had met new enemy threats as they developed and had mastered them.

Premier Drew, who was an artillery officer in the First Great War, spent the last two days of the flying-bomb blitz with ack-ack batteries on the coast and said that the defeat of the robots was the "greatest artillery achievement of all time." It was evidence of the type of scientific skill developed in Britain and the time was soon coming when this type of skill could be turned to peaceful needs.

Baby Boy Found Abandoned Along Side of Highway

Chance passing of a motorist who heard a child crying in the bushes a short distance from the road north of Belleville is credited today with saving the life of a 16-month-old baby boy who had been abandoned by its mother on Thursday afternoon it was reported by provincial police.

Suffering from exposure to the elements over night the baby is now under the care of the local Children's Aid Society, while the mother stands charged with abandonment and will appear in next Thursday's police court. The mother gave her name as Mrs. June Elizabeth Nevay of Ridgeway, near Welland. According to police she had abandoned the child when lack of financial means had made it impossible to care for it any longer.

Responsible for the child's discovery is Mr. T. A. McMullen, local Rawleigh's representative, who heard the child as he motored north on Highway No. 14 this morning. About a mile north of the city he thought he heard a child crying at a point where there were no houses. Investigating he found the child in a terrible condition as it lay in the mud at the foot of the bushes near the road.

Provincial Constable Chas. Siple proceeded to the scene when called by Mr. McMullen and after turning the child over to the Children's Aid Society investigated among neighbors if anyone had been seen in the district. It was learned that a woman had been seen standing on the road Thursday afternoon at about the approximate point where the baby had been found.

Following the finding of the baby and its being turned over to authorities, it was said the mother of the child revisited the scene and finding the child gone had questioned a close resident as to whether it was true a baby had been abandoned by the road. While the woman was speaking with the neighbor the police car drove up and she was taken into custody. According to police she later admitted abandoning the child and identified herself as Mrs. Nevay.

The child had been abandoned by the mother yesterday afternoon following her return from Montreal, where she had not the means to continue its support.

Couture has received the British Empire Medal. He turned the document over to Gernaey, his superior officer, who in turn gave it to officials at Washington. MacArthur Says Campaign Enters Decisive Stage

Allied Headquarters, New Guinea, Sept. 15 (AP)—Gen. MacArthur, who landed with American troops at Morotai in the Halmahera islands today declared "our campaign is now entering upon its decisive stage" and "defeat now stares Japan in the face."

"Our position here is now secure," he said in a talk on the beachhead where men and equipment were still pouring ashore, "and our immediate operation has achieved its purpose.

"We now dominate the Moluccas. I rejoice that it has been done with so little loss. Our campaign is entering upon its decisive stage.

"Japanese ground troops still fight with the greatest tenacity. The military quality of the rank and file remains of the highest. Their officer corps, however, deteriorates as you go up the scale. It is fundamentally based upon the caste and feudal system and doesn't represent strict professional merit. Therein lies Japan's weakness."

U-Boat Destroyed In Five Minutes

Ottawa, Sept. 15 (CP) — The Canadian destroyer Haida and the British destroyer Eskimo took less than five minutes to score their most recent U-boat victory once the submarine had been flushed to the surface with depth charges, the Royal Canadian Navy said last night in a press release giving further details of the sinking, announced in London last week. The submarine leaking like a sieve, surfaced after repeated depth-charge attacks by the destroyers, which were attracted to the scene by an R.A.F. Liberator, that had bombed the U-boat.

As soon as the sub broke surface, the destroyers blasted away with all their guns while the U-boat's crew dived into the water without even attempting to fight back. Less than five minutes elapsed from the time the first shot was fired until the U-boat's stern lifted and then disappeared under water.

Cmdr. H. G. DeWolf of Bedford, N.S., captain of the Haida, and Lt.-Cmdr. E. N Sinclair, captain of the Eskimo, ordered boats away to pick up survivors.

The wounded men were taken care of by Surgeon-Lt. H. M. Wallace of Toronto and North Bay, Ont.

It was an exciting time for Lt. John Coates, Paris, Ont., and Halifax, who had never been in on a submarine kill, although he had participated in numerous attacks.

When the Haida steamed into her base port to unload her prisoners, ship after ship in the harbor signalled congratulation to Cmdr. DeWolf. In acknowledging the messages, the Canadian captain said the Eskimo did most of the work during the sinking.

Pte. I. W. Stata To Be Charged With Murder

Toronto, Sept. 15—(CP)—Private Irwin William Stata, 18-year-old native of Chesterville in Eastern Ontario, will be taken to Sarnia in a few days for preliminary hearing on a charge of murdering Mrs. Austin Smith 43-year-old Detroit resident, who was fatally shot last weekend at her summer home at Port Franks, Lake Huron summer resort.

Son of Mrs. Frances Stata, Toronto war worker, the soldier was arrested here yesterday afternoon by Provincial Police who were waiting for him near his mother's apartment on Euclid Street in the west-central section of the city. The family came here from Ottawa in April 1943.

Police said that a fully-loaded .32 calibre automatic revolver was found in Stata's possession and that today he will be taken to the area where officers hope to find a .303 calibre rifle believed to have been the murder weapon. "We have a rough idea where it is," said one officer.

A search for Stata started shortly after Mr. Smith found his wife's body last Monday in the bedroom of their summer cottage at Port Franks, 53 miles northwest of London, Ont. The search was intensified when Mrs. Smith's stolen car was found near Kingston Wednesday night.

Arrested in Uniform.

Col. Harold Ballantyne, commanding officer of Camp Ipperwash, near Port Frank, said Stata absented himself from the camp last Sunday. When arrested he was in uniform.

Mrs. Stata said last night her son was in Toronto last Monday when Mrs. Smith's body was discovered. "He told me he had another 48 (48-hour leave)," she said, adding she was asleep when he came and he told her he was going to visit his girl friend.

"I went back to sleep and that's the last time I saw him."

Irwin, she said, worked on lake freighters at the lakehead until last spring when he came to Toronto and during the early summer was employed on a ferry and tugs in Toronto harbor. He joined the army in July.

Chinese Forces Make Contact In Yunnan Prov.

Chungking, Sept. 15 — (AP) — Chinese forces in North Burma and China's Yunnan province have established contact somewhere in Yunnan and the Chinese now are in full control of a trail between Myitkyina and Tengchung, a Chinese Army spokesman announced today.

The two Chinese forces have been driving toward each other for months over wild, mountainous country in an attempt to open an over-land supply route to China from India.

Myitkyina, the former Japanese stronghold in North Burma, has been in Allied hands for some time. Tengchung, 70 miles southeast of Myitkyina, fell to Chinese troops yesterday following a siege which began last June 26. Preceding the final assault American bombers had skip-bombed holes in its ancient walls. Tengchung is 35 miles from the Burma border and for two years was a Japanese bastion commanding Allied approaches to the Burma Road.

Farther east Japanese troops surging down the Hunan-Kwangsi railway now are just a little more than 60 miles from Kweilin, the army spokesman said.

Czechoslovak Forces Establish Contact With Russian Troops

London, Sept. 16 —(CP)— Czechoslovak forces fighting in eastern Slovakia were reported officially today to have established contact with advanced elements of the Red army.

Scout Nazi Positions.

Moscow, Sept. 16 —(AP)— Red army patrols have crossed the Vistula from captured Praga and scouted German positions at Warsaw while Russian and Polish troops hurled back the first heavy German armored attack upon their positions in the east bank suburb field dispatches said today.

Eleven localities north of Praga were declared seized by Russian and Polish units, increasing the pressure upon Warsaw.

The patrols were reported to have brought back information on the disposition of Nazi defences in the besieged Polish capital, but Moscow had no information on whether a crossing had been accomplished in force.

The army newspaper Red Star said the Germans sent numerous tanks and self-propelled guns to aid their troops between the Vistula and the western Bug, "but nothing helped."

Fierce Tank Warfare.

Tank warfare in the Praga sector is becoming the most severe of the entire war. Most of the 110 tanks which the midnight Russian communique reported destroyed were in the Praga area.

The Red Star dispatch said the blazing, smoking city of Warsaw was in full view of the Russian forces on the banks of the Victula at Praga.

First photographs flown back from Praga to Moscow showed that many of Warsaw's buildings were shattered and where the flames and smoke were not billowing the buildings looked gutted and ruined.

Reconnaissance disclosed that Red army artillery and air power had already driven Nazi troops from a 100-yard strip between the west bank of the Vistula and the first line of buildings in Warsaw.

Initiative With Reds.

Meanwhile there was reason here to believe that violent fighting was breaking out in many new sectors of the eastern front, with the initiative completely with the Red army.

Preparations were said to be complete for the Russians' autumn and winter campaign. It was believed to be only a matter of days before German forces from Finland to Yugoslavia will bear the brunt of drives by veteran Russian armies refreshed and eager to march into Germany.

Moscow reports said the Soviets were particularly eager to resume their Baltic campaign.

Fighter Bomber Group Has Difficult Time Keeping Up With the Army

Written for The Canadian Press By Sqdn. Ldr. R. D. Forester, R.C.A.F. Public Relations Officer.)

With the R.C.A.F. in France, Sept. 16 — (CP) — Maintaining its mobility without dislocation of operational continuity, Air Vice-Marshal Harry Broadhurst's fighter-bomber group of the Second Tactical Air Force, composed largely of Canadian wings, has been leap-frogging eastwards across France in close support of the British 2nd. Army.

It has not only been confronted with the mammoth task of providing air cover for the ground forces in their lightning dash towards Germany, but it also has been faced with the necessity of moving its airfields continually forward to keep within fighter range of the battle zones. The group has been faced with a test of its mobility without parallel in war.

Highest-scoring R. A. F. unit in France, both in aircraft victories and the destruction of motorized transport, Group Capt. G. R. McGregor's wing, led in the air by Wing Cmdr. D. B. Russel, Westmount, Que., presents a typical example of the gypsy life these fighter-bomber airmen now live. They occupied three different airfields within 10 days.

Ground crews which did so much to contribute to the air victory of Aug. 18, when the group destroyed 1,074 German vehicles, damaged a further 1,929, in addition to 73 tanks destroyed and 91 damaged, have enjoyed the opportunity of seeing the fruits of their labors.

Rolling eastwards in tremendous convoys through the country, they have passed along roadsides littered with burned-out tanks and vehicles. They have been jolted over filled-in craters on the roadways where their own fighter-bombers had dropped their explosives to impede enemy retreat. They have seen for themselves the havoc wrought by the aircraft they service.

Life has been one constant succession of packings and unpackings, pitching tents, pulling stakes, long hours of toil, meals hastily prepared. They haven't been staying long enough in one place to really get settled.

Canadians Regain Bridgehead Over Leopold Canal

2 Canadian Planes Reported Missing

London, Sept. 16 — (CP Cable)— More than 200 Canadian Lancasters and Halifaxes took part in the R.A.F.'s raid on Kiel early today, it was announced. Two Canadian planes are missing.

Returning fliers said the smoke rose 8,000 feet over the Baltic port after the attack and fires were visible for 100 miles.

SHORTEST MARINE KILLED

Philadelphia, Sept. 16 —(AP)— Francis E. Kelly tried for nine months to squeeze his five-foot-two frame into the United States Marine Corps, but repeatedly the recruiters rejected him for lack of height. Finally he obtained a special waiver and enlisted. The Navy Department has notified his family that Philadelphia's shortest marine has been killed in action on Guam.

Canadian Officer Finds Day in No Man's Land Rather Unpleasant

By BILL BOSS
(CP War Correspondent)

With the Canadians on the Adriatic Coast, Sept. 16 — (CP) — A day in no man's land with friendly and enemy shells displaying the most unanimous agreement in probing out your tiny dugout isn't a pleasant experience.

Yet Capt. Gordon Proctor, Calgary and Edmonton, acting commander of a company of the 48th Highlanders of Canada during the break through the enemy's pre-Gothic defences, put it down to "all in a day's work" when he endured such an experience to get all men out of a ticklish situation.

The Foglio River represented the first obstacle of the Gothic Line and just south of the riverbank was a high ridge occupied by the Germans. The 48th's were ordered to capture the feature.

The night was moonlit and clear and they had almost reached the top of the feature before a rain of bullets came down.

The Germans had allowed the unit to come right into their area before opening fire. Capt. Proctor's men, then in the lead, deployed and fell to the ground. The following two companies were able to worm their way out of the area to locations where they were later pinned down by shell-fire.

Between the time of the action and dawn Capt. Proctor was able to get two of his platoons out and into houses a little behind. The third platoon made its way into a nearby house from which it brought down covering fire on the brigade's right flank.

Daylight found the western officer crawling about the area looking for stragglers. His movements only served to draw the enemy's fire and he wasn't happy either when Canadian shells began falling in the area.

By noon he had carved a slit trench out of the hard soil. Shrapnel from shell bursts nearby struck him.

Pressure was relieved in the evening by an attack launched by another 48th Company under Maj. Gordon Beale, Toronto, which in a sharp clash drove off the Germans allowing Capt. Proctor to pick up his platoons and bring them back into the battalion area.

Protects Naval Base Defended by 40,000 Japs and Took 25 Years To Build

FEW CASUALTIES

Pearl Harbor, Sept. 16 — (AP) — Veterans of Guadalcanal drove against 8,000 Japanese today on Peleliu in the invaded Palaus, closing in on a big airdrome within 515 airline miles of Davao to the west.

Nearer that principal city of the southern Philippines, American conquerors of Morotai, 375 miles south of Davao, worked on air bases within fighter-plane range of Mindanao.

These co-ordinated drives of Admiral Nimitz and Gen. MacArthur were launched simultaneously Friday (Manila Time) against bases from which it will be possible to launch an all out push into the Philippines.

Marines of the 1st Division hurled back counter-attacking Japanese soldiers and tanks to gain 1½ miles of beachhead on Peleliu near the south end of the Palaus. Capture of Peleliu promises to unlock all the Palau islands, a big naval base Japan spent 25 years building, which is defended by an estimated total of 40,000 enemy troops.

Japan's Singapore

From Peleliu airdrome, American planes could prevent reinforcements from being sent to the Palaus and interfere with enemy regrouping attempts among those islands known as "Japan's Singapore" one of two usable airfields in the Palaus, its capture would isolate the other on Angaur to the south.

n Morofal, northeast of Halmahera in the Moluccas, where Gen. MacArthur landed with his men, he announced today all objectives were won in a matter of hours. MacArthur put ashore army engineers with the assault troops and they are expected soon to have Pitoe, an unused enemy airfield, ready for powerful blows against Mindanao, 300 miles to the northwest.

Overwhelming air and naval cover at both invasion scenes helped hold down American losses.

A field dispatch said only one American casualty was suffered in the initial landing on Morotai.

KIEL IS BLASTED, BERLIN HAMMERED 5TH NIGHT IN ROW

441 Hun Trucks, 10 Armored Vehicles, 125 R. R. Cars Damaged or Destroyed

BARGES SMASHED

London, Sept. 16 — (CP) — A fleet of perhaps 1,000 R. A. F. and R. C. A. F. heavy bombers dumped high explosive and incendiary bombs last night on Kiel, German Baltic port and submarine base still smoldering from Tuesday's attack by U. S. heavy bombers.

Improving weather today gave promise of a resumption of grand scale Allied air attacks. The German radio interrupted morning programs and reported fighter formations were penetrating to central Germany.

In addition to Kiel the R. A. F. hit objectives in Berlin for the fifth night in a row and carried out what was officially described as an "extensive minelaying operation." No further details were given. Eleven planes were lost, including two Canadian craft.

Targets at Dunkirk

U. S. 9th Air Force Thunderbolts flew 363 sorties in spite of rainy weather yesterday and destroyed 441 trucks and 10 armored vehicles, and damaged or destroyed 125 railway cars, 17 locomotives and 15 artillery pieces between Strasbourg and Cologne. One Thunderbolt was lost.

Spitfires patrolling over Holland last night smashed at a concentration of barges near Veere.

Rocket Typhoons and bomb-carrying Spitfires of the 2nd tactical Air Force provided close support for ground forces in going after selected targets at Dunkirk.

The Berlin radio said German guns shot down two Lancasters which attacked a naval strongpoint in northern Norway. The planes came from Russian bases, the report added, and claimed also two more planes were brought down off the east coast of northern Norway.

Destroyer of Turino Class on Fire

The Mediterranean Allied Air Forces flew about 1,300 sorties and lost five planes yesterday in attacks on airdromes in the Athens area, a submarine base at Salamis and over the battle areas in the Balkans and Italy.

In the attack on the Salamis base bombers set fire to a destroyer of the Turino class and a torpedo-boat of the Solfering class and heavily damaged the harbor installations and a munitions factory.

Reconnaissance showed 60 tri-motored German JU-52 transport planes were destroyed in the bombing in the Athens area. These were included in the total of 77 grounded aircraft destroyed, 20 damaged and two probably destroyed.

WELL KNOWN TURFMAN KILLED IN FLYING ACCIDENT

London, Sept. 16 — (CP)—Lieut. Frank Furlong, well-known turfman and amateur rider who joined the Air Arm of the Royal Navy at the outset of the war, was killed in a flying accident near Stockbridge Sept. 13, it was announced today. Furlong won the Grand National Steeplechase on Reynoldstown in 1935.

ROBOMBS BELIEVED FROM AIRPLANES STRIKE S. ENGLAND

Lord Woolton Appeals to Evacuees of London to Stay Away From Capital

HOUSES STRUCK

London, Sept. 16 —(CP)—German robot bombs which may have been launched from airplanes smashed into southern England and the London area shortly before dawn today, underscoring the government's warning that evacuees should not flood back to the capital.

One flying bomb wrecked seven houses. In one of them five children and an adult were killed outright. Four others in the same area were seriously injured.

Today's buzz-bomb attack followed one Friday night, first launched in more than two weeks.

Some persons here said the bombs appeared to be the type discharged from aircraft. A few flying bombs previously are said to have come from due east on pick-a-back planes. This form of attack could be carried out from airfields in the heart of Germany.

The last flying bomb raid on southern England took place the afternoon of Aug. 31.

The 1st Canadian Army is overrunning most of the coastal regions of the continent from which the flying bombs were first launched, but the Germans still hold Calais, Boulogne and Dunkirk on the French coast, unspecified areas on the Belgian coast and all the Netherlands coastal regions.

Last night Lord Woolton, Minister of Reconstruction, appealing to those who have been evacuated from London to stay put, declared "We should be foolish to assume that the enemy has exhausted his capacity to invent devilish instruments of destruction, which can be discharged from a safe distance, until the time when the R.A.F. finds out their hiding places."

WARNED TO BE ON GUARD

London, Sept. 16 (CP — Radio Orange, the Free Netherlands broadcasting station, yesterday broadcast an urgent warning to the people of occupied Holland, saying that strong reinforcements of the German security service have arrived in Holland, underground groups throughout the country were particularly warned to be on their guard.

Surge Through Ten-Mile Breach East of Aachen

Only Part of Strong Forts Held by Machine-Gunners

(By JAMES M. LONG, AP WAR CORRESDONDENT)

London, Sept. 16 —(AP)— American 1st Army troops surged through a 10-mile breach in the main Siegfried line east of encircled Aachen today, deepened two other wedges in the system and made a fourth crossing of the German frontier.

Their assaults were part of a grand Allied drive which Allied Supreme Headquarters said was thrusting eastward along a curving 500-mile front from the Swiss frontier south of Befort to the Channel Coast around the Schelde estuary near The Netherlands border.

Fight For Toe-Hold.

It was in the latter region that Canadian troops of the 1st Canadian army were fighting for a toe-hold on the northern bank of the double-channel 270-foot Leopold Canal across which six patrols had advanced last night after fierce German resistance had forced Lt.-Gen. Crerar's troops to relinquish an earlier bridgehead.

Today's Allied communique did not mention this action but reports last night said the Canadians were closing in all along the canal north east of Brugge.

Ross Munro, Canadian Press War Correspondent, said in a field dispatch that the Canadian Army's role in the western European fighting is unspectacular but added: "The rapidity of the British and American assault on the Reich will be determined by the success of Canadian operation".

British Repulse Attacks.

Farther west the British 2nd Army beat off more German counter-attacks upon its Escaut Canal bridgehead and continued to mop up resistance north of the Albert Canal where Germen troops were trapped between the two waterways.

Although there was no doubt that the main steel and concrete defences of the Siegfried Line had been breached, headquarters took the official view that more of the line's positions lie ahead of the U.S. 1st Army spearhead which was driving the last 30 miles toward Cologne and the Rhine River and pointed toward Berlin 315 miles away.

It was said to be difficult to tell immediately when the American troops actually were through the last of the deep defence zone. At least one more belt of mine-fields, pill-boxes and gun-posts may be found west of the Rhine.

Aachen itself, the first great centre to be pinched out and a guardian of the invasion route to the German capital along the northern European plain, was closed in a tightening iron lung and appeared about to fall.

Fighting Inside Aachen-Berlin.

German broadcasts said there was fighting inside the city, indicating the American clean-up assault has broken through its last line of defence.

A front line dispatch said Field Marshal Von Rundstedt, Prussian strategist, was believed to have returned as the top German commander in the west, apparently replaying Field Marshal Von Model. This was viewed as possibly a desperate attempt by Hitler to reorganize his battered forces.

Both Field Marshal Von Kluge and Field Marshal Rommel were defeated in the battle for Normandy. Von Kluge now is reported dead and Rommel is said to be seriously injured. Model was reported in command only a few days ago.

The new thrust across the German frontier was made 63 miles south of Aachen and east of the Luxembourg city of Diekirch. It is midway between the cross-border drives near Trier and Prum which already have buckled the Siegfried line system.

The Germans put up an unexpectedly weak defence of the Siegfried line in the Aachen sector where they left only part of the formidable forts occupied by machine-gunners and had comparatively light artillery.

In the breakthrough area the Americans were almost exactly the same distance from Berlin as the Red army was on the eastern front.

Finland Moving Closer to War With Germany

Stockholm, Sept. 16 (AP)—Finland apparently was moving today toward a formal declaration of war against Germany, her former ally.

The Finnish newspaper Vaestra Nyland declared the Nazi invasion of the island of Suursaari (Hogland) in the Gulf of Finland had converted "the question of diplomatic relations into a direct act of war."

(A Finnish declaration of war on Germany "is expected after the rupture of diplomatic relations between the two countries," the BBC said in a broadcast heard by CBS.

(The German radio indicated today Soviet troops are attacking in Finland, saying German "disengaging movements in Finland are proceeding according to plan, despite Soviet attempts to impede the movements.")

The Swedish foreign office confirmed that German troops intended to close the border of northern Finland effective today. The Finnish parliament was scheduled to meet in secret session as the deadline for the Nazi withdrawal from Finland under the terms of the Russo-Finnish armistice agreement which expired at midnight last night.

What Service Men and Women Would Like in Their Christmas Boxes

By HELEN BANNERMAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Sept. 16—(CP)—Service men and women know what they want to find in their stockings this Christmas—clothing, cigarette cases, cosmetics and Christmas cake.

A survey by The Canadian Press showed that sailors serving at sea put a water-proof wrist watch as first choice followed by small portable radios, flannel pyjamas, bedroom slippers, comb-and-brush sets, monogrammed writing paper and pen-and-pencil sets.

The shore-based seaman adds to this list white broadcloth shirts, hard collars and black ties, books, and toilet articles. Both want underwear, identification bracelets and phonograph records—provided they arrive in one piece.

Army men overseas ask particularly that gifts be wrapped in Christmas paper and tinsel to bring a breath of homelike, Yuletide spirit. They appreciate toilet articles such as razor blades, toilet and bath soap and shaving cream, and chocolates, cigarettes, Christmas cake and cookies and canned meats.

Airmen overseas want cigarettes, tobacco, pipes and pipe cleaners, lighters and flints, films, flash-lights, handkerchiefs, pen-and-pencil sets, chocolate bars, sweaters, socks, slippers, pyjamas and soap.

Servicewomen hope especially to find small cosmetic kits that will fit into their pochettes when they open their parcels. Sports clothes to wear off duty, notepapers and stamps and hand-knit sleeveless sweaters are favorites with them.

Wrens will appreciate gold "Canada" flashes and hooks, supplies by jewellers, black silk stockings and broadcloth shirts, black ties, white silk scarfs, bath mats and soap.

Members of the R.C.A.F. (W.D.) and the Canadian Women's Army Corps both urge pretty feminine lingerie with plenty of lace and frills, but Wrens have little use for them since the type of underwear they wear is controlled by navy regulations.

W.D.'s want pyjamas and flannel dressing gowns, regulation silk stockings books, theatre tickets and clothes lines with pins.

C.W.A.C.'s would like fleece-lined gloves, cameras, alarm clocks (if you can find them), sewing kits, writing kits and fountain pens, books, cameras and bedroom slippers.

Nursing Sisters stationed in North Africa and India would be pleased with gay swim suits, light-weight sports clothes, housecoats, lingerie, sun glasses, skirt hangers, zippers and sheer stockings. Nursing Sisters stationed in other parts of the world would appreciate the same sort of presents as members of the other women's services.

ALLIED TALKS END LATE TODAY WITH STATEMENT

Further Parleys of Western Leaders and Meeting With Stalin Seen Possible

PHASES OF CONFERENCE

By FRANK FLAHERTY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Quebec, Sept. 16 — (CP) — The Second Quebec Conference of President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill ends today with a 3.30 p. m. E.D.T. press conference at which a generalized summary of conference deliberations will be announced.

But while the meetings here are finished this afternoon, further talks apparently are in prospect between the two western leaders and there are indications a meeting with Marshal Stalin of Russia is on the card.

On the terrace at the stone-walled Citadel over the St. Lawrence River, Mr. Churchill, Mr. Roosevelt and their host, Prime Minister Mackenzie King, will meet newspaper and radio correspondents to describe their meetings of the last six days.

Presumably the statement—vague as it must be to maintain the necessary military security — will deal with planning of the final onslaught against Japan and decisions relating to the post-war curbing of German militarism, both militarily and economically.

Russia's part in the final acts of the European war and her possible participation later in the Pacific War were believed to have been major subjects of discussion during the final phase of the conference.

(An Associated Press report from London said the decision of Rt. Hon. Anthony Eden, British Foreign Secretary, to fly to Quebec, was prompted by his desire to see Mr. Churchill and the President use a stronger hand and reach a clearer understanding with Russia at a moment when elements of Soviet discord were reported to have crept into Anglo-Soviet relations.

(One reliable London informant said the lack of complete understanding resulted from the Polish-Soviet dispute, uncertainty over Soviet war aims in Europe and some military problems upon which Britain and Russia do not see eye to eye.

Transfer to Pacific Theatre

One of the major tasks of the conference here was to work out details of the transfer from the European theatre to the Pacific of vast land, sea and air forces during the course of the next few months.

Ancillary to the military discussions there were political and diplomatic talks concerning such things as the administration and policing of Europe during the transition from war to peace, economic assistance to subdued enemy countries and liberated Allied countries, and longer-range plans for the maintenance of permanent peace.

Before today's official statements by Mr. Churchill and Mr. Roosevelt it was indicated that these political and diplomatic discussions did not end in firm decisions like those taken on the military questions before the conference.

Crippled Children Will Benefit From Proceeds of Draw

Many children who are crippled and in need of medical treatment and orthopaedic appliances will derive inestimable benefit from the proceeds of the draw for $1,000 in prizes being held by the Belleville District Shrine Club at the Belleville Exhibition on Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons.

The draws for the many handsome prizes will take place in front of the grandstand.

The prizes which are on display in the windows of the Percival Furniture Store windows on Front St., have elicitated many laudatory comments from those who have viewed them.

Members of the Shrine Club are anxious for this, their first appeal to non-members for funds for this worthy cause, to go over the top. There are a number of children whose physical handicaps through poliomyelitis or other deformities are proving a serious detriment to their progress in life, and who cannot be assisted by their parents.

All the proceeds derived from the sale of tickets will be placed in the Crippled Children's Fund of the Shrine, and many youngsters will obtain real happiness, and surcease from suffering through the contributions of the general public to this humanitarian cause.

Constable and Mrs. Thomson Burned By Flaming Grease

Colliding with his wife as she attempted to rush out of the kitchen with a large pan of flaming grease, Police Constable Peter Thomson and Mrs. Thomson, 270 Dundas Street, received severe burns about the hands and face and were taken to Belleville General Hospital shortly after five o'clock Friday evening.

The resulting fire ignited the kitchen and slight damage was done to the room before City Firemen arrived to extinguish the flames.

Mrs. Thomson had the pan of grease heating on the kitchen stove. It suddenly overflowed and ignited. She quickly grasped the container and started to run out of the house. Constable Thomson, who was working in his garden, noticed the heavy smoke issuing from the kitchen door and ran quickly inside. The two collided and the flaming grease splashed over their hands and faces.

Severely burned, especially about the hands, Constable and Mrs. Thomson were ordered to hospital where at present they are recovering from burns. Dr. Mathieson is in attendance.

Abandoned Baby In Good Condition Despite Exposure

Despite the fact that it had remained in the open throughout the night during which rain fell for a considerable time during the evening, the 16-months' old baby, which was found Friday morning abandoned one mile north of Belleville along No. 14 highway apparently has suffered no ill effects from its exposure to the elements. Although he had not yet received the doctor's report following his examination of the baby, T. D. Ruston, of the Children's Aid Society intimated to the Ontario Intelligencer this morning, that the child appeared to have suffered no harm.

Mrs. June Nevay of Ridgeway, Ontario, is being held by local police on a charge of abandoning the baby. According to police the mother admitted leaving the child in the bush north of the city on Thursday afternoon.

A&N Veterans May Change Official Dates

Newly-elected officers of Belleville Branch No. 201, Army and Navy Veterans in Canada, will take over their duties at the regular meeting in December instead of October, if a notice of motion to this effect, placed before the general body Friday night carries through to a successful conclusion.

The notice of motion was aired before the main body of the organization at the regular monthly meeting held in the Front Street club rooms.

Previous to this, newly-elected officials have been nominated and voted upon at the regular October meeting, and have assumed their new duties on the spot. There was a feeling that this part of the constitution should be changed in favor of adoption of duties in the later month of the year.

The meeting held under the chairmanship of President Thomas York, and his officials, was well attended and heard reports from the chairmen of various committees. Of particular interest was the report of the Cigarette Fund which revealed that hundreds of thousands of cigarettes have already been forwarded to members of the armed services overseas through the media of members of the club and the organization itself.

The banner and flags of the association will float over the marching ranks of the veterans in the Grand Military Parade scheduled for Tuesday night when the members will march to the Exhibition Grounds to the annual Belleville fair.

Membership of the branch is expanding with the influx of youthful returned veterans of the present war, it was revealed. A large number of applications have already been received and officials are making all preparations for the reception of the youthful "old soldiers" into the club. Ten members were formally initiated at the meeting last night.

Much interest is being centred on the forthcoming election of officers which takes place next month. It will also be the annual meeting of the branch and business of much interest to the returned soldiers in this city and district will be discussed.

Man Killed, Three Injured When Car Runs Into Truck

One killed instantly and three seriously injured was the toll exacted in a transport-car accident one mile east of Odessa, Ont., early this morning.

Clarence Hartman, 32, is dead and Mrs. Ida Ashley, Mrs. A. Skinner and William Dolan, all of Kingston, are in Kingston General Hospital badly injured.

An eastbound car driven by Hartman crashed head-on into a large motor transport driven by Duncan Bowman of Oshawa, travelling west just beyond the outskirts of Odessa.

After treatment at the scene of the accident the injured were removed to hospital. The truck driver, it is believed, was uninjured. Traffic Officer Morden of Napanee investigated the accident.

JewishNew Year's Message 5705

Editor's Note — Beginning on Sunday evening the Jewish New Year will be celebrated by members of the local Jewish fraternity with special services to be held in the local Synagogue and at intervals during the following celebration which concludes on the evening of Sept. 27th when Yom Kippur is observed. Each year a special New Year's message is prepared. The following message was prepared by Rabbi Gordon Felder of Belleville.

• • •

"And there is hope in thy end and that thy children shall come again to their own border." (Jeremiah 31.16). "The wicked have drawn out their sword and have bent their bow to cast down the poor and needy. Their sword will enter into their own heart and their bows shall be broken." (Psalm 37).

Five long years have passed since first we girded ourselves for battle against the enemy of mankind and civilization. As we enter the New Year of 5705 we look back upon the events of the past years. We have, despite great tragedy and terrible anguish, much to be thankful for. For the first time after many trials and hardships, Fortune smiled upon our arms. The forces of tyranny and cruelty are being destroyed and driven back on all the fronts.

The descendants of Titus, who, not long ago were contemplating (in their imagination) how they would celebrate victory, or how they would render their own version of poetic justice, are now losing on all battle fronts. Certainly, as we look back upon the years which passed, we have much to be thankful for. But, even as we remained undaunted in those tragic and awful days, so partial victory must not weaken our resolve, or cause us to relax our efforts. Great effort must be made, great sacrifice must still be endured before freedom and justice is won for all.

The scripture to be read in the New Year's services in the synagogues deals with the sacrifice of Isaac. This is to convey that the law of life is sacrifice. Human progress entails trials, efforts and testing. We must realize that much sorrow will yet be our portion before the day of deliverance comes. Many will still sacrifice themselves at the summit of the mount of vision. Many Moriahs will be erected. Yet that vision of Moriah must be kept. It is just the test of God as it was the test of Abraham to certify the power of resistance. We must learn that even the darkness is temporary and prove our confidence.

"Rosh Hashonah", New Year's, also known to us as "Yom Hazikoron", a day of history and memorial, urges us to develop the historical consciousness, the long view of history. Not only once has his catastrophe occurred. Many times have tyrants arisen to annihilate and destroy those moral and ethical teachers. Not once have the wicked drawn out their sword and bent their bow to cast off those who cherish freedom. But the sword of the wicked shall be broken and the Lord upholdeth the righteous. May we, in this sacred hour of meditation, strengthen our faith in God and unite in a common purpose.

May we carry within our hearts the significance of our martyred history and may it teach us to place the noblest of us on the altar of human freedom. Above all, at this time, when we blow the "Shofre", may the voice of righteousness be sounded and may good tidings be heard that the fortifications of tyranny may collapse as did the walls of Jericho.

May we realize that the reign of evil is passing and that the children shall come again to their own border.

Aga Khan's Tehran Wins St. Leger Classic

Newmarket, England, Sept. 16 (C.P. Reuter) — Tehran, owned by the Aga Khan, won the fifth wartime running of the St. Leger classic today.

Lord Derby's Borealis was second and Ocean Swell, this year's Derby winner, owned by Lord Roseberry, ran third.

Bettors saw the first three horses finish in the order in which they had been installed on the odds board.

Tehran started as favorite at 9-2, and the place and show winners each left the barrier at 11-2.

Seventeen horses finished.

Tehran started at 9-2, with place and show horses being backed at 11-2. Hycilla, the American-owned filly that won the Oaks earlier this year, went to the post as favorite in a last-minute betting flurry, but finished eighth in the field of 17.

Tehran's convincing victory before a small crowd—even by wartime standards—brought the Aga Khan his fifth victory in the classic, and a purse of about $22,000. It was also the fifth St. Leger triumph for Gordon Richards, veteran jockey champion.

Richards swung his mount in front early and brought him down in front by 1½ lengths over Borealis, who was another length ahead of Ocean Swell.

Time for the three-year-old test over the distance of one mile, six furlongs, 150 yards, was 3:06 1-5.

The Aga Khan—now in enforced exile in Switzerland where he was caught when Italy declared war on the Allies in 1940—gives all his racing purses to the Indian Army comforts fund.

Traditional Color Will Feature Belleville Exhibition Which Gets Under Way Here Monday Sept. 18

The stage is all set. The principals are ready as are the hundreds in the supporting cast. Scenery and other production necessitities are in position. And with the Belleville Exhibition grounds a large outdoor auditorium, the curtain will rise on Monday on one of the most attractive shows the Belleville Agricultural Society has staged in many a year.

Interesting, informative, educational, and entertaining, this year's Exhibition should climax in all phases of autumn fair activities, any preceding attraction of its kind.

Towards this end President Elmer Sandercock, Secretary Erle Denyes and the entire board of directors, have centred their efforts. They have extended beyond the perimeter of previous years activities and the result has been the accumulation of an outstanding number of exhibits and attractions that should place this year's show well above the par of former successful exhibitions.

They looked before they leaped. In other words every branch of fair activity was studied in detail. Criticism of former exhibitions was aired—and the cause remedied as far as possible. Livestock, horses, sport, entertainment, the Midway, agricultural, both senior and junior departments received careful attention and made more attractive not only to the potential exhibitor but the general public as well.

Prize Lists Improved.

Prize lists were studied—and improved. New classes, especially those pertaining to wartime activities, were included. Women's departments underwent the careful scrutiny of the directors and were expanded. School children exhibit classes were made more elastic to give more pupils the opportunity to become prize winners.

In short the entire exhibition structure was "overhauled" and is now proudly awaiting the consensus of thousands of fair-goers whom, it is expected, will break all previous attendance records. There isn't any doubt in the minds of the directors that this year's edition of their show will receive a general stamp of approval from a usually critical Mr. and Mrs. John Q. Public.

And so, Monday is expected to bring out a record-breaking number of "first-nighters." The grounds will be open all day, starting at 8 a.m. During the afternoon extensive judging activities will take place in many classes of exhibits.

The feature, of course, of the first day, will be the formal opening of the exhibition at 8.30 p.m. by Mr. John Bracken, Progressive Conservative leader, himself a successful farmer as well as an outstanding figure in political life of the Dominion.

Many Attractions.

Following the opening ceremonies, the Exhibition will get into full swing. A scintillating stage show, produced by the well-known Billy Garden, will flash across the large colorfully decorated dais erected in front of the grandstand.

The Conklin Shows a midway that has proven extremely popular with Belleville and district fair patrons, and said to be bigger and better, will be there in all its color, noise and illuminated beauty. Games, rides, tented shows, educational features, are but some of its highlights.

On Tuesday, is the long-awaited Baby Show. On the same day outstanding harness horses will speed around the track. Running horses should provide some thrills as well as comedy. Races will be held on Tuesday and Wednesday.

Interspersing the track and other attractions will be grand parade of livestock and horses. Carriage equines, hackneys, draft horses, those in harness, and other prize winners will be shown the grandstand public.

It is needless to point out all the exhibits that will be on display in the different fair buildings. These will be taken in stride by the patrons as they wend their way through the crowds both at night and in the afternoon.

On Tuesday night there will be a Grand Military Parade complete with marching troops, mechanized vehicles and the stirring tempos of military bands. A military demonstration will take place in front of the grandstand later in the evening.

Wednesday has been designated as Citizens Day when it is expected that urban residents will show their appreciation of the efforts of the directorate by attending the exhibition in numbers which will surpass those of any previous year. The same stage program and other attractions will be on hand.

Programs of the various days' activities will be published in this newspaper on the day previous.

Fruit Aplenty On City Market

The scene at the Saturday market could aptly be called dollar day insofar as prices on a heavy offering of fruit was concerned. For the majority of colorful apples, plums, peaches, gages, hovered around that price especially at the ninety-cent levels.

Elberta peaches were plentiful selling at ninety cents. Burbank and Bartlett pears demanded the same and peck quantities of MacIntosh apples were likewise. Eleven-quart baskets of gherkins were worth a dollar, as were prune plums although the latter could be bought at lower levels in certain quarters.

Melons were down to anywhere from two for a nickel to thirty cents each. Corn was offered at 20 cents the dozen while tomatoes were 25 cents the basket. Potatoes sold at from $1.40 to $1.60 the bushel with commensurate prices for smaller quantities.

Duchess, St. Lawrence and other varieties of apples were plentiful selling at from 35 to 50 cents the basket. Cauliflower ranged from ten cents the head and bunched vegetables sold at ordinary levels.

Grade A eggs were quoted at 45 cents the dozen with lower grades selling at from two to three cents less. Chicken sold at roughly 37c the pound with individual birds offered anywhere from $1.50 to $2 each.

POLICE BLOTTER

Light-fingered motion picture impresarios, apparently anxious to get a start in business, quietly but efficiently removed a moving picture machine from the garage of C. A. Richardson, 207 Foster Avenue in the early hours of the morning. They likewise possessed themselves of several business papers.

Changing their mind apparently, they later left the equipment in a ditch on Herchimer Avenue where it was recovered by investigating city police.

Leo Sylvain, alias J. P. Lepine, held by Toronto police arrived in the city yesterday in charge of Inspector Claire Hayes. Sylvain will face charges here on Tuesday of obtaining motor cars under false pretences and issuing worthless cheques.

Maybe it was somebody's birthday, or just an ordinary celebration. Anyway six local laddies who gazed on the wine when it was too much of a ruby hue, ran afoul of the law and repented of the error of their ways in the police cells last night. All will be charged at the next session of city police court.

ALLIED TALKS

In the first place, Russia was unrepresented and Russia's views and powers of independent action must be taken into account. In the second place, while Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill are clothed with vast powers for the conduct of war their powers in the making of peace are limited.

Thus it is reasonable to assume the conference did not:

1. Deal finally with any peace proposals which may have been made by Germany;
2. Settle finally the terms on which German capitulation would be accepted;
3. Make final arrangements concerning the occupation of Germany, European border disputes, or economic or other assistance to European countries.

Although the actual work of the President and Prime Minister is about finished, the discussions on the military staff level continued today.

Though God took you from us, we cannot forget.

THROUGH THE DIAL SIGHT

A Weekly Column Devoted to the Activities of the Members of the Armed Services at Home and Abroad

By G. H. G.

Marching feet of two wars, accompanied by the rumbling of mechanized equipment will feature the parade which will be the highlight of Military Night at the Belleville Exhibition next Tuesday.

The Operational Order just released by Lieut.-Col. B. C. Sisler, commanding officer of the Belleville Garrison, and officer in charge of the parade, reveals that the show should be one of the most colorful in years.

Heading the parade will be the crack band of the Royal Canadian Air Force, Trenton, appearing with the permission of the station commanding officer. Blue-clad squadrons of Mountain View air force personnel will follow. In line will come the trailers and guns and other vehicles of the Royal Canadian Artillery followed in turn with the reconnaissance equipment of the Argyll Light Infantry.

Canada's fighting divisions in the last war will be represented by the colored berets and divisional colors of the Canadian Legion, the Canadian National Railway Veterans Association, and the Army and Navy Veterans in Canada, Belleville Branch. Then the blue-uniformed Belleville Municipal Band followed by the Belleville Squadron of Air Cadets.

The parade will form on the Armouries Lawn and will move off a few minutes after eight o'clock. Lieut.-Col. Sisler will lead the parade while the salute will be taken by Group Captain A. D. Bell-Irving, commanding officer of the Trenton Air Station during the march-past scheduled to take place in front of the grandstand shortly after arrival of the participating units.

Augmenting the artillery will be the personnel and equipment of the 47th. Field Battery of Napanee, under command of Major E. G. Jamieson.

Another feature of the evening will be a demonstration, "Harboring of an Assault Troop," staged by personnel of the Argyll Light Infantry. The demonstration should give the general public an educational insight into the manoeuvres of such a military movement and the splendid work now being done overseas by reconnaissance regiments.

MARSEILLES HANGOVER.

S/Ldr. Les Powell, the first Canadian officer to enter Marseilles had a "harrowing" experience in the liberated French city. The good burghers of that famous town did right well by our Les if you can call being "hugged, kissed, cheered, applauded, kissed again, plied with wine until we could hardly stand, literally and figuratively, and winding up with a dance at 5 a.m." can be called good treatment.

And all this mind you, while Maquis, were busy clearing out Nazi snipers who held tenaciously to ruined buildings. Les writes:

"Our reception started as we neared the city yesterday and mounted in intensity as we drove through the city itself. Then we came to la rue Aubagne and that's where the trouble started. Cheering people flocked into the street and surrounded our jeep and insisted we stop for a drink. We refused politely but not too firmly and in a few moments had been persuaded. We literally fought our way through the mob. It was terrible, in a very pleasant sort of way.

YOU'VE GOT SOMETHING

Once in the little cafe the drinks began to flow. Neilly Prat, Cinzano, Byrrh, and other almost forgotten aperitifs were thrust into our hands, and if your lips were free long enough, where all the women came from I will never know, you managed to sip or two. I still found time to explain my Canada shoulder badge, the habits and customs of my country, its liquor laws—" mais, c'est drole"—and all in my best French-Canadian. The Marseillais found my accent peculiar and believe me, when a Marseilais finds anybody's accent peculiar, you've got something!

After an hour we finally broke away from the cafe after solemnly swearing to return as soon as we had dropped our things at the hotel. Our new-found friends doubted our promise so they kept Pearce's hat to ensure our return. We did, and that reminds me. Don't ever enter any liberated French city until the population has got over the celebrating stage—it's fatal.

From miles around came flocking people who insisted on buying a drink and it was impossible for us to pay for one. Finally, M. le patron just lined up about 50 glasses on the bar and kept filling them and every once in a while somebody would pay him. It didn't seem to make much difference.

One of our new-found friends—I don't remember much about her except that she is about 25, weighs about 130, is 5-6, dark brown hair, brown eyes, is named Lulu, and her telephone number is, well, never mind that—offered to cook our rations and what a job she did. That gal should be in the army for it's the first time I've enjoyed eating bully beef. What a meal!

LIKE MACHINE GUNS

Back we went to the Grand Bar where Charles opened the cellar and champagne corks started popping. At times they popped so fast that it sounded like machine-guns at work. At 2 a.m. Charles decided it was time to close so we repaired to a nearby air raid shelter where we danced. Dancing in an "abri" is thirsty work and Charles soon repented of his decision so up we went again to Le Grand Bar for another session. At 4 o'clock his stock was sorely diminished so after one or two, or perhaps more, farewell rounds of Blackberry Brandy, we returned to our undergound dance palace.

At five we called it quits much to the disgust of our friends who wanted to know if Canadians and the English were really decadent races. That revived our energy but not for long so we bade our friends, especially the female ones, a fond farewell—and I do mean fond."

"DON'T FORGET YOUR RATION BOOK, YOUR 'IGHNESS".

Another amusing incident that occurred overseas and dubbed "a piece of unadultered nerve" by Canadian troops, is the request of an alleged "baroness", suspected of Nazi collaboration, and who lived in a palace, for information as to where she could get a quantity of butter, sugar, bacon, and what have you.

After the Canucks got over their surprise and amazement they penned a note to the lady, "Try Loblaws."

WINTER TRAINING.

Sergeant Bankier, sigs., nco of the 34th. Battery is a delighted young gentleman these days. The powers-that-be have issued the unit with two No. 11 R/T wireless sets and the sarge is in his figurative glory. He is looking forward to the day when he can take his section with vehicles out on the country roads and get in some real training. Incidentally a special course of signals training that will specialize in R/T is being arranged for the 34th. and 47th. Batteries. Officers of the battery will start "plugging" for another promotional examination come December. If successful in this and at the subsequent "practicals" the unit will be in the unique position of having five captains on its roster—all within the establishment. The Argylls, likewise are arranging an extensive and interesting training syllabus for the coming months. With a number of qualified officers and nco's the battalion is well equipped to "give out" with the instruction necessary for the training of recruits and advanced members of the unit.

Incidentally, the 34th. Battery, with the permission of Lieut.-Col. B. C. Sisler, officer in charge of the Armouries, are arranging for a series of social events for members of the unit during the coming winter. The first get-together has been arranged for the end of the current month by the committee in charge when wives and sweethearts of the battery will be their guests. Hotdogs, buns, cheese and crackers and soft drinks will feature the refreshment angle, while cards and other entertainment will keep the gunners and their friends busy for the remainder of the evening. All members of the battery are cordially invited. Off the record, an official presentation will feature the affair—but more about that later.

Mess Room Chatter Of Canada's Airmen

By The Canadian Press

With the R.C.A.F. in France, Sept. 15 — (CP) — The army's admiration for the way Spitfire pilots clear the skies of the Luftwaffe in no way exceeds the regard in which the pilots hold the army for the way it is chasing the Germans on the ground.

As soon as pilots report to the intelligence officers concerning their own business, they scan the war maps which Army liaison officers have set up in a canvas-covered space between two vans. The pilots ask: "How're we doing?" and the A.L.O.'s show them how the red line marking Allied positions has advanced.

The A.L.O.'s with the Canadian fighter wing under command of Group Capt. W. R. MacBrien, Ottawa, who keep the maps up to date are: Capt. Eric N. Clarke, Windsor, Ont., Capt. L. Hugh Denison, Winnipeg, and Capt. C. Roy Compston, Edmonton.

German troops in an enemy strongpoint at Le Plessis Grimoult, four miles south of Villers, were so panic-stricken when Typhoons of an R.C.A.F. fighter-bomber wing in Normandy dived, that they dashed about in the central square until they were blotted out in the bomb bursts. This attack, in close Army support, was made by the City of Ottawa "Beaver" squadron led by Sqdn. Ldr. William Pentland of Calgary. (311 37th Ave., W.)

"All the bombs hit the target area, where troops were concentrated," reported Pentland. "Going down in the dive I could see these men running around in the street below, and I aimed for them. When I looked back after the pull-up, I could see houses blowing up."

Most topical and popular part of the educational program on a French-based R.C.A.F. Spitfire airfield commanded by Group Capt. W. R. MacBrien is the inauguration of French classes. There is an enrolment of more than 100 men under educational officer FO. E. M. Sanderson, Wetaskiwin, Alta. He is assisted by Sgt. M. R. Saunders, Elgin, N. B. Sanderson secured the services of a native Frenchman as teacher. Classes, held every evening, have been divided into beginners' and advanced courses. And at the moment, Sanderson is looking around for a German teacher.

Emergency cases are not rushed to an operating room on an advanced R.C.A.F. airfield in Normandy. Instead the operating room is rushed to the patient. This unique system has been devised by the station medical officer, Sqdn. Leader Frank Lundy, Portage la Prairie, Man., who ingeniously converted an extra ambulance into a compact surgery, complete with oxygen equipment, additional lighting and steriliser and instrument table.

"I have used this affair and I find it to be extremely good for minor suturing, and, if the situation is urgent, as in the case of a serious accident, we can move it to the scene for antiseptic surgery," he commented.

PICTON

Burford's Truck Destroyed by Fire

Picton, Sept. 16. — A spectacular blaze last night destroyed a truck owned by Burford's Transport and also the big load of freight. Included were barrels and cans of inflammable material for local garages and several exploded. Tires were included in the load and for a time, flames shot fifty feet into the air. The engine and metal cab, were all that remained. More than a mile of cars were held up on Highway No. 2 near Bloomfield as a result of the fire.

Origin of the fire is unknown when the truck passed through Bloomfield, residents saw a small fire in the tarpaulin. The driver did not hear their calls. A motorist caught up with him after a mile chase. The driver escaped but before anything could be done the inflammable cargo was ablaze.

Memorial Service.

A memorial service is being held Sunday night at the Baptist Church in honor of Pte. Edward Weidmark, who gave his life in France, August 30. Rev. A. W. Motchman will speak. Members of the Canadian Legion and Ladies' Auxiliary will attend.

Jack Goodwin has been appointed manager of Picton Cold Storage plant. He succeeds C. B. Teskey

Picton service stations have announced that they will close Wednesday afternoons, with one station remaining open during the holiday. This move is in connection with the 48-hour week.

Wounded.

Lieut. William Graydon has been wounded in action in Italy. He suffered a compound fracture of the left leg. Word was received by his wife in Kingston. He is the son of Mrs. J. L. Graydon, Picton, and is serving with Hastings and Prince Edward Regt. His brother, Lieut. Jack Graydon, is serving overseas.

Ft. Lieut. Homer Walters, who has been overseas three years, is expected home soon. He escaped injury when his plane recently cracked up. He has taken part in many raids over enemy-held territory.

Capital Closeups

By JACK BRAYLEY

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Sept. 16 —(CP)—LULL: This greened and gardened capital marked time this week as Allied armies crunched at the Siegfried line and the nation's most important business was conducted from Quebec.

Canada's key ministers are in Quebec with service chiefs of staff and a corps of departmental heads and high officials.

Teletypes carry reports from the Canadian forces to Prime Minister Mackenzie King and his advisers and an R.C.A.F. courier plane makes two flights a day from the capital to Quebec with voluminous dispatches and reports.

DEBTS: Canada invoked a policy of mutual aid in this war but she is not without war debts. Some of the most important of these are ones for which she will never receive a bill.

They include the great, humane work of neutral countries such as Switzerland and Sweden in administering protective rights over Canadian government property in enemy countries and most important—in keeping an eye on the treatment and comfort of prisoners of war.

The protecting powers assumed their onerous duties without asking payment and in some cases they have been put to great expense.

An External Affairs Department spokesman here said Switzerland had never mentioned billing Canada, or any other country for that matter, for the work she is doing "but, of course, we will insist on reimbursing her when the war is over."

NATURE STUDY: Group Capt. Rod MacInnis, former R.C.A.F. Public Relations Chief in London, has been back in Canada for a couple of weeks. The other day he walked into the office of Laurie McKechnie, good-humored R.C.A.F. Deputy Director of Public Relations. Rod flourished a mysterious letter.

It was from customs officials in Liverpool, Eng., and it informed him very formally and not a little coolly that a package had arrived in Britain, consigned to him and that he was thus responsible for "an infraction of the Plummage Act of 1872."

"Now," said Rod with a wry grin as Laurie broke into a laugh, "How in heck have I broken the Plummage Act regulations, what is the Plummage Act and what is the package?"

The story soon unfolded. An overseas squadron had decided to adopt the name "Snowy Owl." A Toronto newspaper (The Star) thinking to encourage the new outfit, ran a front page box soliciting a stuffed snowy owl which it volunteered to send to the squadron.

Torontonians went to their little mantle shelves and attics and dug up 23 fairly well preserved snowy owls. The paper selected the best and asked Laurie where to send the specimen.

Laurie suggested Rod, who heard the story to the end, and then shrugged: "Well, no matter what happens I guess I get the bird."

Support Belleville Fair

Fall fairs have come again as inevitably as the season of late summer and early autumn. Throughout the land for the next few weeks they will be the most talked-of events next to the amazing developments of the war in Europe now drawing to a close. Throughout the times of peace and war this institution of the fall fair has carried on, a reflection of the developments and spirit of Canada's great industry of farming and an inspiration for the highest achievement in the history of Canadian agriculture.

The present time is too close to the war, to the vast production and to the multitude of activities which have gone into making Canada a vast granary and a huge foundry and manufacturing plant for the Empire, for the Dominion and for the other Allies of the United Nations, for the full story yet to be told. It is realized by everyone that agriculture, industry, the home front, those in the seats of authority have backed up the fighting front of the Dominion and also the effort of the United Nations in a most effective manner. The achievement is one supreme in Canada's history.

In the wisdom of those who have charge of the historic institutions of the autumn fairs, which are representative of every part of the country, these exhibitions have been carried on to lend their influence and encouragement to the highest development of production in Canadian history. Because of their great value fairs have not been allowed to lapse. The farmers who have been burdened with work due to shortage of help have done a great task for which they have earned the thanks of the nation and yet they and their wives and families are the foremost supporters of the institution of the fairs and give of time from their busy lives to make the fairs serve their purpose best at this time. How well they have done and are doing this is indicated everywhere in the Dominion as the records of the agricultural societies show.

The fall fair serves in several ways; as the show-window of farming in every phase and in its inspiration in competition and in making each other and everyone proud of his own and her own achievement and of the achievement of agriculture in general. It also serves as a meeting place—one of the historic forms of meeting of the country and the town, something like a magnified market place. Fair time is a busy time and an instructive time. It has brought the most highly prized stock and products of the field and orchard and shown them to the world.

Belleville fair like other fairs has striven successfully to educate and to exhibit, to inspire and to offer a means of maintaining and building up morale both urban and rural and keeping the two classes together as in this district where the lines of town and country are not sharply divided.

On Monday, Sept. 18th., Belleville fair gates open for another exhibition. The officials give assurance of fine stock exhibits. They know and the people, who know them and the district, know that this year's show will not fall behind past successes and they are hopeful that it will exceed all past achievements.

As the farmers and others have given of their time to keep alive the spirit of the fair, the people of the city and of the entire district too can give of their time to attend the exhibition, support it for what it has done especially in the war years. The officers, directors and exhibitors deserve the loyal support of everyone. They have done their part with great enthusiasm and wisdom and as a fair is a great undertaking because it is so important they trust to the fine attractions which the fair offers in exhibits, in competitions, in music, and in entertainment to make this year's show the best in the long line of successful exhibitions.

The fair will be officially opened on Monday evening, by Mr. John Bracken, Progressive-Conservative leader of the Dominion and former premier of the Province of Manitoba, who will be the guest of the society.

Support of the fair by everyone is urged. Citizens of Belleville and of the countryside can be assured that the officers of the society have spared no effort to make this a successful exhibition in exhibits and in every other form of attraction which it possesses. Past years have proven that the fair board has the confidence of the people and this is the proof that the 1944 exhibition will rank high among the fairs of the province.

Germans' Wanton Destruction

In recent years the development of the Russian theatre has been one of the marks of Russia's progress. Before the war the Rostov region had nine drama theatres and many cinemas attended by workers, collective farmers, students and others. In pre-war days there had been erected in Rostov a magnificent theatre dedicated to Maxim Gorky. This had a seating capacity of 2,000 and the largest stage in the Soviet Union.

The U.S.S.R. Bulletin tells of the pedantic consistency and bestial brutality with which the Germans have attempted to destroy every institution of Russian culture and science. After the Nazis were routed out of the Rostov region, the expected was evident, of the nine theatres in the area only remained intact, eight had been reduced to heaps of hubble by the Germans.

The Germans have not only tried to destroy the body but they have steadily striven to crush the spirit and remove every vestige of the various civilizations they have encountered outside Germany. That was apparent in the former World War and it has been even more evident in this struggle where the Germans have destroyed the evidences of the civilization of vast populations, uprooted populations, consistently seeking to destroy the men, women and children as well as those things in which they believed, their institutions, their homes and their native lands. To do this it required that Germany should become the most brutal warring nation in history, linked up with the most heinous crimes against humanity. Her course has been marked by a mania for destruction.

The striking quality of the Russian theatre has been recognized by other nations and Russian art occupies a high place in the world's regard. The reaction of the Germans to this was to blast and burn, to destroy the shrines of memory of the poets, painters, musicians, dramatists and of Russia's leaders of the past.

Noble Animal

(Port William Times-Journal)

The horse can live off the land and perpetuate a supply of horsepower by raising a family. With mechanized power, such as tractors, repairs, gas and oil have to be taken out of the pocket of the farmer.

The horse can forage and, to a considerable extent, live on its own.

A horse can rest while waiting, thus automatically refueling himself.

The horse is a handy source of mobile power on the farm. He can be taken to any corner of the farm and he can stop and start, wheel about, or turn this way or that way hundreds of times a day without running up expenses.

Lady Diana

Lady Diana Duff Cooper, one of England's most English beauties, onetime actress (in Max Reinhardt's "The Miracle"), now wife of the British Ambassador to Algiers, found North African markets poor, promptly borrowed a cow and set it to graze on the grounds of the British Embassy, also populated by two partridges, a gazelle, says Time. Lady Diana further astonished Algiers by practising the dairymaid chore she had learned on her farm in Bognor, England—she milked the cow.

FAMILY TRAIT

I know that I was taught to read,
To add, subtract, divide;
A certain form of prayer and creed,
Before the mother died;
But who, in ages long gone by,
Endowed the heart of me
With love of bloom and butterfly
And sky and rolling sea?

I know the father tried to teach
The ways of worthy men,
And oft I heard our pastors preach
How life is won again;
But who, I wonder, fixed my mind
A thousand years away
That round about me I should find
Enchantments, night and day?

I know the mother often stood
Enraptured by a song;
With pleasure looked upon the good
And shuddered at a wrong;
But of this tendency to dream
Till useful hours have fled,
This love of hill and field and stream,
No word to me was said.

My brothers better stand to care
And waste less time in play.
While I go wandering here and there,
At duty's post they stay.
And this is what I'll never know
Until my life be done,
Who stamped me in the long ago
To be so fond of fun?

Varying Views About Louisiana

(By J. E. B.)
(In Windsor Daily Star.)

It is, after all, in the point of view. Like this for instance: "I am sure that I shall never forget the torpor and stupidity and degeneracy that hangs over Louisiana like an evil fog; the misery of its sordid inhabitants, the coarseness of its vulgar politicians".

That was written by a newspaper man named Booton Herndon who may still be and was a few years ago a member of the staff of The New Orleans Item-Tribune. He wrote the letter to me after I had written him about the beauties of Louisiana and the splendid people I had met and known there. Our viewpoint obviously differed greatly..

Letter Exchange.

It all came about, this exchange of letters, through the fact that I had been traveling on the Gulf coast doing a series of newspaper articles for the hometown paper. Once at a little place called Gramercy half way between Baton Rouge and New Orleans on the southern Mississippi, I met a gentleman named Meade who kept snakes and snapping turtles and alligators in backyard. It was quite a display he had, especially the saurians. On occasion I found it interesting to watch neighbor boys make five cents a day catching green lizards, tiny green things that resembled for all the world the alligators themselves. They were to feed the snakes. And it was a sight too to see the chameleons, which the Louisiana lizards sometimes were, battle for their existence as the great King snakes would try to gulp them down whole.

I had written a feature about Mr. Meade and his snakes. Several weeks later, back in Canada, a Louisiana friend sent a page from the Item-Tribune complete with a feature and pictures on the Meade snake farm. It was done by Booton Herndon. It was well done, too, and I wrote to congratulate Mr. Herndon.

The coincidence of the articles was striking, and it was not without pride to be the first to do a feature on the subject. In the letter to Mr. Herndon there were remarks about the wonder of the water orchids that float on the bayous of Louisiana, of the Spanish moss which hangs from the trees, of the picturesque bayou dwellers and their shabby houseboats.

His reply was a masterpiece of writing which I have never made public before. But it ought to have a place in classic literature. It started this way:

"The Item has been scooped before, God knows, and as a rule we take it philosophically, but this is the first time that we've been beaten a year to a story by a Canadian newspaper. Especially when the setting was in our own back yard.

"Although my head is hanging to a point almost beneath the typewriter in shame anrd mortification I thought I should write you, agreeing that it is a strange coincidence indeed. Everyone on the paper here agrees.

"Are you sure you are writing of Louisiana? I am sure that I shall never forget the torpor and stupidity and degeneracy that hangs over Louisiana like an evil fog; the misery of its sordid inhabitants; the coarseness of its vulgar politicians. Bloated snakes crawl under the orchids on the banks and the lovely bayous are alive with crabs and fetid with decay.

"I don't know New Brunswick (whence I had come and where my snake article was published) but I imagine that its hills are rugged and strong, its water dashing and carefree, its people willing to work and strong enough to demand their pay. In the winter I imagine that there is a dry, healthy cold, and in the summer there is probably life-giving, gentle sun.

"Here the winters are cold and damp and the summers are humid and insufferable. People are cowards or they are brutes." There is not one brave man in the State of Louisiana.

"You guessed it. I'm not from Louisiana. I'm a Virginian and I wish to h— I was away from this cesspool".

Rereading that letter six years later is to remind one of Emile Zola or of that southern gentleman, Lafcadio Hearn, "The Raven". Thoroughly do I disagree with Booton Herndon, of Virginia, in many respects, but he lived there and I didn't. Though he had never been in New Brunswick he wrote of it as though it were his native place and he wrote accurately. Perhaps he was right, and what was beautiful in old Louisiana was all on the surface.

But I had met and, for a few weeks at least, lived with the people and I had like them, even some politicians, for I spent most of my time at the home of one of them and I have not since met a finer man. That heat of summer was not intolerable, I found. It was no worse than that of Windsor and Chatham on some humid summer days. There was always a breeze, a gentle breeze from the Gulf. But again, Mr. Booton Herndon had lived there and I hadn't.

Every once in a while when I am in the literary dumps I dig out the letter which he wrote in 1938 and give myself a lift. I wonder, of course, if he still is there but of course he couldn't be . . .and yet Life is strange.

(The New York Times.)

American absorption with the exploits of the United States Navy in the spectacular fighting in the Pacific may have obscured what is made abundantly clear in a current report of the British Information Services on the job the British Navy has done in helping hold control of the seven seas during almost five years of war and the punishment it has taken.

A compilation of British losses since September 18, 1939, when the aircraft carrier Courageous was attacked and sunk by a German submarine or submarines for the first combatant loss of the war, to August 13, 1944, shows 561 vessels flying the white battle ensign to have gone down. This total does not include landing craft nor the hundreds of transports and merchant vessels that have been lost. On the list of losses are three battleships, two battle cruisers, seven aircraft carriers, twenty-eight cruisers, fourteen armed merchants cruisers, 124 destroyers and sixty-four submarines. The American list of 173 reported losses to date, including one battleship, six carriers, nine cruisers, twenty-seven destroyers, is less than one-third as long as that of the British, although we have been at war one-half as long a time.

The areas of British combat losses cover all the great sea surfaces, the North and South Atlantic, the Mediterranean, the Arctic and Indian Oceans, the Bay of Bengal, the South China Sea, Savo Sound in the Solomons, the Dover Straits, the Ionian Sea, the Java Sea, the Adriatic, even Heligoland Bight. For the first two and a half desperate years of this world struggle the British Navy fought alone, its forces spread over half the world's surface. The most violent Anglophobe can hardly deny that the thin line of His Majesty's ships was the principal deterrent to Hitler's North African and South American ambitions.

Despite the loss of its great fleet the British Navy now is stronger than it was at the start of the war. Most of the construction was done in shipyards in the British Isles under the very nose of the Luftwaffe and quite often under attack.

The task of the British Navy in European waters appears to be nearing an end. When Germany capitulates, Prime Minister Churchill has promised, it will sail with the even greater United States Fleet against Japan. Speed the day.

WHAT MAKES A MOUTH CLEAN?

In a preceding talk I confessed I don't know what a dentist or a professor means when he describes the condition of the mouth of a person who does not brush his teeth as "filthy." Certainly he cannot mean that the mouth presents one or more decayed (carious) teeth or that the gums are atrophied, wasted, degenerated, for the world-wide investigations of competent authorities, such as Dr. Weston A. Price, show that people who never use toothbrushes or dentifrices have far less decay of teeth and degeneration or disease of the gums than do the misguided persons who believe they can keep their gums from degenerating if they brush their teeth with this or that dentifrice several times a day.

Not that there is any harm in brushing your teeth as often as you wish with almost any soap, detergent or dentifrice or with ordinary salt or willow charcoal or whatever agent you or your dentist may fancy. Only don't deceive yourself that the practice of this rite makes regular inspection of your teeth by your dentist unnecessary and don't imagine that such practice saves either teeth or expense for dental prophylaxis, cleaning, scaling, polishing, burnishing of minute fissures in the enamel or filling of cavities the dentist discovers in his periodic inspection of your teeth.

If saving the teeth is the object it would be wiser to invest in such regular care by your dentist.

Now my notion of a clean mouth is as follows:

1. A complete equipment of functionally efficient teeth, your own or your dentist's.
2. Reasonably good occlusion or "bite."
3. Healthy gums.

These factors depend on nutrition primarily, and nutrition goes back to the antenatal (before birth) period of development of the teeth, jaws, gums; as well as the nutrition of infancy, childhood and youth. Hence the daily intake of milk, cheese and greens by the expectant mother and the daily intake of vitamin D (or exposure to sunlight) by the expectant mother, by the newborn infant, by the growing child and the developing youth determine whether the mouth will be healthy and clean.

But still another factor is essential to make and keep the mouth clean—mastication of natural food. Every individual must chew a reasonable amount of whole raw fruit, fresh raw vegetables, greens, whole wheat or other grain every day.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Vaccination

Daughter, 8, was vaccinated twice at age of 3, and it did not take at all. Is she immune, or should she have another vaccination?

(F. S.)

Answer—She should have another vaccination. If the third fails to take, it is fair to assume she is immune to smallpox. Such immunity may be inherited.

Courage

Kindly inform me where I can procure a copy of the little magazine called "Courage" published by the Fraternity of the Wooden Leg. I was much interested in the article of a member who gave practical advice which you quoted in your column.

(G. A. H.)

Answer—I'm sorry, but the copy of the magazine has been mislaid and I cannot recall the name of the publisher. No doubt any representative of the manufacturers of artificial limbs, or any dealer in that line would know.

Bath Pruritus

After a bath I experience an unbearable itching and smarting all over the body, for half an hour or more.

(D. M. M.)

Answer—Well, as I always say, why . . . the shorter and rare the wet wash the better; the less hot the better; the less soap the better. Send stamped envelope bearing your address, ask for pamphlet "Pruritus" (itching)—but no clipping, please.

NUGGETS OF KNOWLEDGE

"Noon" is derived from Latin "nonus," meaning "ninth."

Originally it was applied to the ninth hour (about three o'clock in the afternoon) reckoned from sunrise according to the Roman method.

"High noon" signifies exactly midday by sun time. In this phrase, as well as in "high day," "high is an old English adjective meaning far advanced or fully come. The underlying thought in "high noon" is that the sun is then at its highest point in the heavens.

Hammerfest on the Island of Kvalo off the coast of Norway is regarded as the most northern town in Europe. Its latitude is 70 degrees 40 minutes north, or about 10 minutes farther north than Pt. Barrow in Alaska.

In spite of its northern latitude Hammerfest, which has a normal population of several thousand, has a comparatively warm climate, owing to the mild westerly winds and the Gulf Stream or the North Atlantic drift current. The average January temperature there is little below freezing and the harbor is ice free.

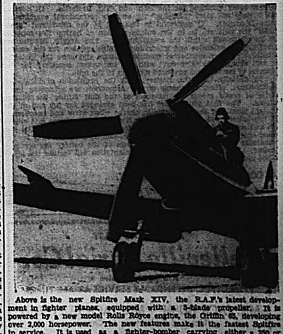
The ancient Greeks and Romans made death masks of gold and silver to preserve the features of distinguished persons.

Mexico is called the Storehouse of the World because of the fertility of the soil and its almost inexhaustible mineral and other natural resources. This popular designation was probably suggested by a statement made by Alexander Humboldt (1769-1859), German naturalist and traveller, who referred to Mexico as "the treasurehouse of the world." The same writer also compared that country to "a beggar sitting on a bag of gold."

In 1519, one of the Spaniards with Cortez, reporting upon the valley of Mexico, wrote: "I stood looking at it and thought that never in the world would there be discovered other lands such as these."

King John of England was known as John Lackland because, unlike his elder brothers Henry, Richard and Geoffrey, he had no considerable possessions in land while he was a prince. His father, Henry II, parcelled out his continental territories to his three oldest sons and John was given no domain worthy of the name.

SPITFIRE HAS FIVE-BLADED PROPELLER



Above is the new Spitfire Mark XIV, the R.A.F.'s latest development in fighter planes, equipped with a 5-blade propeller. It is powered by a new model Rolls Royce engine, the Griffin 65, developing over 2,000 horsepower. The new features make it the fastest Spitfire in service. It is used as a fighter-bomber carrying either a 250 or 500-pound bomb or a drop tank. Its armament may consist of four 20 mm. cannon or two 20 mm. cannon and either two .5 or four .303 inch machine-guns.

Community singing of "Home Sweet Home" and "The More We Get Together" just seemed to create the right atmosphere for the very excellent paper on Home Economics which Mrs. Stoneburg gave. Her paper certainly contained a wide area of knowledge. The motto of the home, was to live daily at our best and to work unitedly and unselfishly for the sake of home and country, we were urged to make our home life a pattern for the nation. The vital importance of right food was ably discussed, and many important points of the satisfying home were brought to all. An appropriate solo by Mrs. T. Parrott provided a fitting climax for the splendid paper. Discussion on the paper was led by Mrs. Palmer.

Mrs. Morrison, president of the Home Makers' Club in her locality, brought greetings from Saskatchewan and expressed her pleasure in attending the meeting.

Major Marsh spoke of the activities of the Red Shield, and expressed thanks for the donation of $5 given him for Red Shield work at the meeting. A collection of new and used clothing and quilts was also given in at the meeting.

Mrs. Marsh spoke briefly thanking all for their help.

The program went on with community singing "My Old Kentucky Home" and a contest conducted by Mrs. Palmer, the winners being Mrs. H. Grills and Mrs. B. Portt.

Mrs. H. Grills convener of war work asked for donations for a layette for the next meeting.

Mention was made of Mr. C. Clarke's serious illness and silent prayer followed by prayer by Major Marsh was made for his recovery.

Lunch was served by Mrs. H. Shetler and conveners and a social time was enjoyed by all.

Arrangements were made to start the winter dances and it was decided to apply to the Red Shield for twelve ditty bags. The address of the evening on "Citizenship" was delivered in a very impressive manner by Rev. E. M. Cadigan who pointed out that a new world could be built upon the Bill of Rights, and the Ten Commandments. In the absence of Mrs. E. Belanger, the duties of pianist were taken by Mrs. L. R. Rundle. The program consisted of a song by Mrs. P. Gray and a Quiz contest conducted by Mrs. E. C. Prentice.

The matter of adopting another ship is being held in abeyance. Each member handed in a nursery bag. The motion was carried that $50 be donated to the Marmora War Workers. Service women's personal comfort bags were filled after the business meeting. The meeting closed with the National Anthem.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

This Happy Couple Seems to Get All the Breaks.

Suppose you went out not long after sunrise in a certain orchard in France in the hope of picking up a nice ripe apple you could enjoy. Apples are still green in France, and you have to wander about in search of a ripe windfall.

And while you are searching for that nice ripe apple and dreaming about the handsome husband you'd left on the other side of the Atlantic and wondering where he'd been sent, possibly across the Pacific, and if you'd ever meet again, you heard a voice call out "Hi Babe, Hi there—it's Charlie—me!"

Naturally you'd imagine you were hearing things. Were the longing, loneliness and constant inferno of combat perhaps getting you down? But again that ringing voice "Babe, it's Charlie!" And there, coming across the orchard, was Nurse Eleanor McKillip's husband—Captain Charles Krumbhaar, Jr. And of course, they had the jolliest kind of a laugh that she had gone out to look for a ripe apple, and found her husband whom she thought was thousands of miles away.

Howard Whitman, a war correspondent, told the story of this pair, strangely united not only in the battle-scarred orchard in France, but again and again, by the chances of war.

You see faith, and real love apparently had much to do with the miracle. It was a case of love at first sight with those two— the pretty nurse who had taken her training in the Exley Memorial Hospital in Chicago and the Army Captain. Eleanor was busy taking patients' pulses one day in April 1943, in La Garde General Hospital in New Orleans, when in walked Captain Charles Krumbhaar.

You couldn't count on a pulse-reading of either of these two as reliable, for they experienced that much quoted miracle of fiction but infrequent happening in real life—love at first sight. And so they were married.

After a twelve-day honeymoon, Nurse McKillip was transferred to another hospital. Again she was transferred this time to Massachusetts. Strangely enough the Captain managed to see her at both these hospitals. But when she was sent overseas last October, it looked definitely as if the honeymoon had gone into an eclipse.

But with the faith of real love, the young nurse with no idea that her husband was overseas, wandered out in the apple orchard that lovely morning, and found him.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

A Letter of Condolence

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

A man whose son is married to a distant relative of mine has recently lost his brother. I did not know about this until after the funeral. I met this man and his brother only once, at the wedding of my distant cousin and this man's son. But since there is this family tie, I feel that there is a duty to my relative to write a message of condolence. Don't you agree that I should? If you do, will you kindly outline a suitable note of sympathy?

M. A.

Yes, I do think you should write a message of sympathy . . . to be remembered by one's friends and acquaintances in these days of sorrow is a great comfort. Your note might read:

Dear Mr. Forbes,

I was deeply grieved to hear of the death of your brother, and I do so very much want you to know of my sincere sympathy and my understanding of your great loss. I know how devoted you were to him. And although I had the privilege of meeting him only once, at your son's wedding, I have a beautiful memory of him and his fine, upstanding personality.

Most sincerely yours,

(If you are married, the first "I" in your note should be changed to "My husband and I", the following "I"s to "we", and "my" to "our".)

Attire For Guests at Evening Wedding.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

My husband and I are invited to an evening wedding; ceremony in church at eight o'clock, reception following at a hotel. Will you kindly let me know the proper attire for both lady and gentleman at a wedding such as this? Shall I wear a hat, or a flower in my hair?

E. L.

I don't know what you mean by "a wedding such as this", for you didn't tell me if it is to be formal, semi-formal or informal. If formal, you may properly wear an evening dress and wrap, or, if you prefer (and it's more customary nowadays) a simple long dinner-type dress; if semi-formal, a dinner dress; if informal either a simple long dress, or street-length dress with hat. In churches of some denominations women are required to wear headcoverings (if you are not sure about this requirement of the church in which the wedding is to take place, the bride's mother will inform you if you ask her.) If the bride is to wear a long dress, your husband correctly wears a tuxedo; if a street-length dress, he may wear a dark, preferably dark blue, business suit.

A Golden Wedding.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

We are planning to celebrate the Golden Wedding anniversary of our parents. Will you please answer two questions for us?

1.—We are having two couples as their "attendants"; my oldest sister and her husband, and my only brother (a few years younger) and his wife. Who should be first to lead the "bride and groom".

2.—Including my mother and father and their children, there are nine of us. Should any other guests be seated at the dinner table?

D. B. L.

1.—I think the fairest thing to do would be to abide by seniority, and have your sister and her husband lead the procession.

2.—I judge that there is to be only one seated service, and the rest buffet service? If possible, at this table might also be seated any guests who were attendants at the wedding of your parents. After that it would be a question of convenience whom you invite to sit at this important table but it would be proper, if you wish, to invite several close relatives or life-long friends of your parents.

Twentieth Wedding Anniversary

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Toward the middle of October my husband and I will celebrate our Twentieth Wedding anniversary. We have been trying to think of some way we could have a reception without sending written invitations, which might suggest gifts. We definitely do not wish our friends to feel obligated to bring gifts. Would you suggest a solution to this problem?

2. We want to invite guests of varying ages. The older ones we know would enjoy a rather formal reception, while the younger ones would enjoy more lively entertainment. Have you any suggestions about this? Would a musical program be appropriate? And what should we serve?

W.P.

1. Could you make the informal simplicity of the wedding of your invitations "cover up" the fact that the date is your wedding anniversary? (Just as invitations to adult birthday parties usually do.) For example, notes worded like this:

Dear Betty,

Now that vacations are over and our friends are "settled down" for the winter, Tom and I thought it would be a nice plan to have a "get together" on Sunday afternoon, October 15th. So won't you and Jim please join us here at about four-thirty? Please say we're to have the happiness of welcoming you two dear friends!

Devotedly

(You might warn any relatives or intimate friends who are likely to remember the significance of the date, not to divulge it!)

2. If you can arrange a musical program (not too long), you have the makings of a delightful party, a party that all ages will enjoy. I suggest you have a late-afternoon party (on Sunday, this kind of party has a particularly leisurely mood), have them arrive at four-thirty, chat together a while, serve the refreshments, and then gather for the music.

The customary tea-menu would be appreciated, small, assorted sandwiches, tea cakes, tea or coffee. Then, perhaps after the music you might like to divulge the party-motif, by serving punch or other drinkable (for a toast) and have the anniversary cake brought in (white cake, with white icing). Have a male relative (pledged to secrecy beforehand) propose a toast to "The bride and bridegroom", and after the toast is drunk, you, the "bride", should cut the first piece of the bridal cake and share it with your husband, as you did at the original wedding reception. This would be a gala epilogue to your anniversary party!

War Bonds as Wedding Gift

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My brother is to be married shortly, and we want to give him a War Bond as a gift. Since we are very devoted to his wife-to-be and do not want to offend anyone, whose name should appear on the bond? If both names, in what order and how worded?

E.K.

Since all wedding presents should be sent to the bride-to-be, the War Bond should carry her name only. You may either have it made out in her maiden name now, to be changed after the wedding to her married name; or tell her this bond is to be your wedding present to her, and give it to her after the wedding, made out in her married name (and this form, on a War Bond is — Mrs. Mary Smith Brown).

GOLDEN-ROD

Fringing all the meadows brown
And the dusty way,
Brightening all the browning sod,
Flaunting banners gay,
Harbinger of Autumn's train—
Golden-rod has come again.

Gladdening vales and hills obscure
Whence the summer's sped,
Brightening all the roadside ways
Where the rose lies dead—
Valiantly you lead the way
For autumn's train with trappings gay.

All day long you flaunt your flags,
Golden banners gay,
Just a splash of color bright
When the skies are gray,
Proving that though summer's past
Autumn's joys will follow fast.

The Experts Say

(By The Canadian Press)

Ottawa (CP) — RABBIT FOOD: If the man of the house growls "rabbit food!" at the sight of a salad, it's a sure bet that he has been fed on some pretty uninteresting greens in his day. It's time to change and turn out a salad so crisp and delicious-tasting that even the worst scoffer will eat his words along with his vitamins.

Work on a good piquant French dressing and don't just make a salad of lettuce, tomatoes and cucumbers. Think of the possibilities of endive or escarole as a change from lettuce. Make use of small flowers of raw cauliflower (vitamin C); slivers of turnip (vitamin C); tender young spinach or chard (vitamin A and iron); broccoli leaves (calcium, vitamins A and C); bits of green pepper (vitamins A and C); parsley (vitamins A and C plus iron); watercress (vitamins A and C, iron and calcium.)

It's important to eat raw vegetables frequently. The Nutrition Division at Ottawa points out that vegetables contain more vitamins and minerals when they're raw than when they're cooked.

TO CONTINUE in salad vein, did you know that tomatoes and cucumbers can go out of the salad bowl into the frying pan and come golden brown and sizzling hot right to the lunch or dinner plate?

The Agriculture Department Consumer Section makes these suggestions on method: allow two one-half inch slices of firm, ripe tomatoes and one one-half inch slice of crisp, peeled cucumber, or vice versa, for each serving. Dip cucumber slices in flour, seasoned with salt and pepper and cook in a small amount of hot fat in a covered frying pan for five minutes. Add tomatoes also dipped in flour and cook uncovered for about five minutes or until both tomato and cucumber slices are lightly browned.

CANNING CAUTION: To get best results from the summer's canning, the sugar should be warmed before adding it to the boiling juice, the Agriculture Department Consumer Section says. To warm the sugar, place it in a shallow dish in a warm oven.

SCHOOL LUNCHES: With Mary and Johnny back to school swinging their lunch box along with their school bag, the Agriculture Department Consumer Section and the Pensions Department Nutrition Services have collaborated on a series of lunch suggestions which are also delicious for the factory or office worker who cannot get home at mealtime. Each menu includes the three essentials of every lunch: meat (or fish, eggs or cheese), a fruit or vegetable other than potato, and milk to eat or drink.

The first suggested lunch includes tomato juice, home-baked beans, buttered rolls, cole slaw, fruit tart and milk. The second, potato soup, devilled egg, carrot and cabbage salad, rye bread and butter, fruit cup, muffin and milk.

BEAUTY By Helen Jameson

Why Beauty Shops are Crowded

Times have changed the beautytoriums from havens of rest into madhouses. Shortage of woman power means that the fussy customer has disappeared; she's grateful for such attentions as she can get. Shops that once had thirty operators are lucky if they now have ten. Many schools that once trained beauticians have closed; young apprentices are helping as best they can—washing feminine heads answering telephones, picking up linens. The bosses are in a dither.

You make your appointment ten days ahead and consider yourself lucky to have your name marked down on the book. You wouldn't think of being late. In the past, the tardy ones threw an operator's schedule offtime for the whole day.

Dorothy, the beautiful hair stylist, takes care of three cash customers at once. If she suggests that you bake your head an extra half hour under the dryer, you do that little thing, and there's not a peep out of you. You keep your eye on the door, see the throngs that are turned away. Poor disappointed dears. They'll have to go home, wash their own heads, wrestle with metal curlers. What can they expect in war time? Sudsing the old mop isn't much of a hardship. Nothing like wondering about the boy out on the Pacific. There must be no grumbling. It's not patriotic to be a howler.

To the observing woman, a beauty shop is an interesting stage. Comedy and tragedy walk through the doors.

Tragedy is represented by the faded, middle-aged woman who in a frantic effort to retain the admiration and affection of a husband younger than herself, has dyed her hair, taken to excessive make-up and cutie clothes. The more she does to make herself look better, the worse she looks. Jet black hair and heavily rouged cheeks accent every wrinkle, every mark of age. I know of no sadder spectacle among the sisters.

There's a flurry when the bride comes in to be prettied for the morrow, her wedding day. Ah! Here is a job the operator loves. Hair is beautifully waved, complexion creamed and massaged, fingernails treated with extra gentleness. And how sweet she looks! Nothing like love to make the face radiant.

Grandmother, with her cane, sinks slowly into the chair. Her snow white hair is trimmed, arranged in fascinating undulations. Isn't it nice that the desire to be appealing to the eye never dies? When grannie goes home, that big grandson of hers will say: "Gosh, but aren't you the glamor girl of the family?" giving her a grand hug and a smacking noisy kiss.

They're all there — career girls, lonely girls, busy wives and mothers, gallant war workers, teen-age girls, girls not yet in their teens, all getting heads washed, hair curled. Truly, the beauty shop is a grand institution.

The Marry-Go-Round

Mixed Grill.

Next to a Black Marketeer's conscience, the hardest thing on earth is that callous place in a man's heart where it has just been healed of his latest infatuation for some girl.

If a man boasts of the girls who fall for him he is a tyro. The expert girl-tamer or "wolf" is always perfectly silent concerning all women except the one he happens to be flattering at the moment.

Has a young woman the right to have her nose changed by plastic surgery if it does not please her? This question was brought up in a recent discussion on Mr. Alexander's program.

I should say she HAS! Just as much right as she has to have her teeth straightened or a wart removed from her chin! Her family insist that she is going against nature and should be content with her face as Heaven made it.

Why? This young woman earns her own living and is entitled to make her own decisions. Why, in this day of scientific discoveries, should anyone go through life with any disfigurement which makes him or her unhappy.

I once met a young man in Hollywood who was so dazzlingly handsome that I asked him if "it hurt".

"No", he said with frank pleasure. "I enjoy being good looking—but I owe most of it to Dr. So-and-So, who operated on my nose. I wanted to go into pictures; but while the rest of my face was all right, my nose was too long and too crooked. I was a "natural" for Cyrano.

"No. I'm not in pictures. I'm in real estate. Still, it has been a great relief to me to have a face that people like to look at. I might have worn that ugly nose all my life, you know!"

This is not intended as a plug for the plastic surgeons, although they will have a lot to do with making life worth living for some boys after the war. But what I am plugging for is the right to change your countenance, the color of your hair, your first or last name—or anything that fills you with unhappiness and an inferiority complex. Why does a man with a bald head feel shy about wearing a wig or toupe, for instance? Just old-fashioned prejudice! Self-immolation and suffering are out of date.

A cynic is a man who suspects every girl of having designs on him; but he doesn't know whether he suspects her of trying to take him "for better or for worse" or of just trying to take him "for a ride".

A kiss may be technically a kiss, when it is in reality only an experiment, a diversion or a husbandly duty. A kissless world would be as flat as an egg without salt, but an automatic kiss is as unpalatable as the salt without the egg.

Detroit Muffs Chance To Take Control of American League By Splitting With Cleveland

St. Louis Browns Move Up to Tie for Lead With Yankees

A TIGHT RACE

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sport Writer

Detroit muffed a chance to take control of the American League pennant race last night and sat idly by today as the St. Louis Browns got their turn to nip at the heels of the front-running Yankees.

While Paul (Dizzy) Trout was losing his second straight and the Tigers were splitting a double-header with Cleveland, the Brownies thumped Chicago to pull into a second-place tie with the Bengals. They were half a game back of Joe McCarthy's men.

Trout's 12-inning loss to Cleveland's Steve Gromek, 4-3, came on Myril Hoag's double, scoring Gromek in the 12th.

Hal Newhouser earned the Tigers a split by turning back the Indians with eight hits and striking out nine for a 9-1 "convincer" as Detroit slugged out 19 safeties, five by the veteran Roger (Doc) Cramer.

Denny Galehouse hurled the Brownies to a 5-1 decision over the Chicago White Sox with the help of Vern Stephens' 18th homer.

Boston dropped 3½ games off the pace in a hard-to-take walloping by last-place Washington, 5-2. Joe Cronin led with rookie Clem Dreisewerd who yielded all Washington runs before bowing to Red Barrett. Mickey Haefner shackled the hard-hitting Red Sox with seven blows and stopped George Metkovich's consecutive game hitting streak at 26.

Cincinnati took first blood in the National's second-place scrap with Pittsburgh by eking out a 5-3 edge in 10 innings over reliefer Xavier Rescigno. The Pirates' margin on the third-place Reds was cut to 4½ games.

Ray Sanders hit the 100 R. B. I. mark as St. Louis split a pair with Chicago, losing 2-1 but bouncing back 3-2 as Ted Wilks earned his 18th victory. New York finished a "suspended" game for an 8-3 edge over the Phillies but bowed to Ken Raffensberger in the regular tilt, 7-3, and remained tied with the Cubs for fourth.

Today, Dew rides again, but it's Dale Dew, Earl's younger brother. Dale, now 18, and riding on Ohio tracks, resembles Earl in the saddle.

Sexton Given Return Bout With New Referee

Promoter Frank Tunney announced today he had to consider Frank Sexton's protest over the result of the unsatisfactory termination of the Katan-Sexton brawl here Wednesday.

"After all there was considerable question as to the final verdict as the Belleville patrons proved when they swarmed the ring following Referee Maxwell's final decision that saw Sexton defeated for the first time in two years," admitted Promoter Tunney as he assured Sexton he personally would seek the sanction of the Wrestling Commission for a return bout.

"That fellow Maxwell must be some relation to Katan and unless I get the satisfaction of a return bout I will personally protest to the Commission. After all I can get the support of hundreds of Belleville fans to prove that Katan used the ropes as a leverage to gain an illegal and questionable fall," quietly added Sexton with much feeling in his protest.

Never in the history of wrestling in Belleville was there such a decided public protest against a decision as handed down by Maxwell against Sexton. Not only has Sexton a logical beef, but when the patrons to a man revolt, well the Commission could do little less than order a return match, which should prove the greatest attraction yet made by Maestro Tunney.

Two of those guaranteed Queensbury A.C. preliminaries will precede the Katan-Sexton return grudge bout. "It's a frame up between Sexton's friend Tunney and the Commission, but the next time there won't be any doubt. I beat him before and I'll do it again, but worse," snarled Katan in his best Palermo Panther style as he affixed his signature to the contract today.

EDWARD M. SMITH WINS BATTING CROWN OF INT.

Tony Constano of Toronto Leafs Ends Up in Fifth Place With .304

MOSS HITS 27 HOMERS

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sport Writer

New York, Sept. 16 — (AP) — Edward Mayo Smith, 29-year-old veteran centrefielder of the Buffalo Bisons, won the International League batting title with a mark of .337.

Smith, who never before had reached the .300 mark in his 10 years in the circuit, closed out the season Sept. 10 with a total of 169 hits in 501 at bats to attain the identical figure with which Rochester's Al Schoendienst led the league last year.

A consistent .300 swatter all season, the six-foot 170-pound native of New London, Mo., increased his pace to take over the league lead for the first time Aug. 9, and despite furious opposition furnished by teammate Eddie Kobesky, held on to win by a 12-point margin.

Kobesky batted .325 for runner-up honors.

Only three other players in 100 or more games hit over .300 for the season. Howie Moss of Baltimore and Chico Rodrigues of Syracuse tied for third with .305, and Toronto's Tony Castano was fifth with .304.

Individual departmental honors went to Howitzer Moss, who led in home runs, runs batted in, total hits, and total bases, finished 2nd in runs scored and doubles, and was among the leaders in triples. Moss' 27 homers exceeded by one the total of last year's leader, Kobesky, who this year trailed Moss in runs batted in, 128 to 141, and in total bases, 284 to 307. The Oriole slugger amassed 177 hits to 176 for Maier, and with 43 doubles was one behind Montreal's Morrie Aderholt. Moss also trailed Blas Monaco of Baltimore in runs scored 123 to 135, and poled eight triples. Lakeman led in three-baggers with 11, two more than Felix Mackewicz of Baltimore and Elmer Durrett of Montreal. Mickey Burnett of Rochester, despite missing about 30 games, led the base stealers with 40, two more than teammate Jack Sturdy.

With rain in the Queen City holding up the men's softball playdowns, Max People's local SACO Marines have been kept in a state of hot water during the past week just wondering what their opposition will be and where their next game in the Intermediate O.A.S.A. playdowns will be played. It was not until late Friday evening that definite information was forthcoming from O.A.S.A. officials.

The matter was all cleared up last evening, however, with the announcement by Vice President Harry Rollins that the first game of the Toronto series would be played in the Queen City this afternoon with the strong St. Denis Kodak club being the locals' opposition. The team left by motor for Toronto this morning.

Just what strength the Kodak club will show against the local SACO'S has not been indicated but the fact of their winning the Toronto district series is proof enough they will provide plenty of opposition for the Belleville club. Max People's pets are not one whit deterred by pregame stories of Kodak strength, however, and went to the Queen city with only one thought in mind—to come home with the first game of the series under their belts.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

New York, Sept. 16 — (AP) — The minor leagues can't do much about that conflict with the majors in the winter meeting dates because the National Association agreement specifies the Wednesday of the first week in December . . . it took a hurricane to convince the Dodgers that the Brooklyn fans were right but they finally took the advice they've been getting all season and didn't show up for a game.

Coincidental Items

The office of Defence Transportation has requested all football teams, college and pro, to restrict ticket sales to residents of the area in which games will be played . . . Columbus, O., hotels report they're sold out for the week ends of the Ohio State-Michigan and Ohio State-Minnesota games . . . Bet all those folks don't come from Circleville and Worthington, either.

Shorts and Shells

Everything seems to be happening in the Cards at once — Musial's injury, Kurowski's eye trouble, etc.—but they can console themselves by remembering that when the 1906 Cubs won 116 games and finished 20 games in front, they were knocked off by the "Hitless Wonders" in the world series.

STEWART-WARNER GIRLS DEFEAT RELIANCE 5-3

Outhit and Outplay Losers to Even the Title Series

L. CALCUTT HURLS

Showing a complete reversal of form from the first game of the finals when they lost out by a rather lop-sided score, Tommy Colden's SWACO girls jumped right back into the city girls' softball playdowns Friday evening at the Armouries, when they outhit and outplayed the Reliance girls to walk off with a neat 5-3 win. It was one of the best girls' games seen on the local park this season.

Third game of the city girls finals will be played on Monday evening when both teams will begin hostilities on even terms. The series is the best four in seven games.

To L. Calcutt goes the lion's share of last night's SWACO victory as after the third inning she set the opposition down scoreless for the balance of the pastime. The winners went out in front in the first innings and were never headed counting once in the second, three times in the third and crossing the plate four times in the fourth as their batters got to Millie Foster for a flock of safeties.

Essentially it was a battle of two-base hits with the majority of the winner's bingles being of the two-sack variety. SWACO clouted out ten safeties of Millie Foster's delivery, while the best Reliance could do was four hits off L. Calcutt. Although both teams played heads up ball, the winners outshone their opposition slightly in the defence department.

The teams: Reliance, Wright lf; Stairs and Buker rf; Garrpw ss; Colden 2b; Elliott 3b; Semark and McKenna cf; Blaind c; Coathup 1b; and Foster p.

SWACO—Fralick 2b; Meens c; Colden ss; Rowbotham 1b; Haslip 3b; Corneal cf; Kelleher rf; Ronsky lf; and Calcutt, p.

Line score
Reliance......... 021 000 0—3 runs.
SWACO.......... 101 300—5 runs

Edmonton, Sept. 16 (CP)—Champion golfball hunter of Alberta, and maybe the world, is an eight-year-old Alsatian called Teddy, owned by Charlie Holmes of Edmonton.

Teddy, who has been hunting golfer's pellets since he was a year old, has, according to his master, found an estimated 15,000 balls during the past three years.

His hunting grounds are the fairways and roughs of Edmonton Highlands golf course.

Teddy's knack of locating lost balls provides his 66-year-old boss with a living. Unable to work because of a heart ailment, Holmes sells the good balls found back to club members who are willing to pay as much as 50 cents in this day of shortages.

Teddy locates as many as 25 balls during a busy weekend, as he can scent the rubber of the ball from 30 yards away under dry conditions.

He does not pick up balls players are using. "He was taught what to pick up and what to leave early in his training, Holmes says.

In the neighboring providence of Saskatchewan, Dunc Sinclair, 58-year-old Scot, gave golfers something to talk about. Out of golf for 21 years after the first Great War due to war wounds, Dunc became the first player to win both the open and amateur North Saskatchewan titles. He had a par 71 to top 196 starters in the open. Alex Wilson of Saskatoon dropped a 2 and 1 decision to the veteran in the amateur final.

Big Red Offensive With 40 Divisions Reported by Germans

London, Sept. 15 — (CP)—Today's German communique reported another great Russian offensive with 40 divisions up to 600,000 men in "the northern sector of the eastern front" — possibly in Finland. Today was the deadline for the withdrawal of seven German divisions in north Finland. The Germans did not further identify the locale of the offensive, which might be south of East Prussia or in the Baltic States around Riga, rather than Finland.

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 482

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Bridge and war find many things in common. I'm not referring now to the fights they both indulge in. My thoughts at the moment are of the manoeuvres.

Look at the cards in these hands:

NORTH
♠ None
♥ None
♦ 2
♣ A J

WEST
♠ None
♥ None
♦ 9
♣ Q 8

EAST
♠ None
♥ K
♦ None
♣ K 10

♠ 2
♥ J
♦ None
♣ 7

This is not a four-handed three-card monte game. What you see is the tail end of a bridge deal after ten tricks have been taken. Spades are trumps. South and north must take what is left.

North is the dummy hand. South is in the lead and leads the remaining spade. West must play next; either a diamond or a club. And dummy will hold whichever suit west discards.

If west lets go of the diamond, north merely sluffs the jack of clubs. Thereafter, a club lead from south lets dummy take the last two tricks with the club ace and the diamond deuce.

When south leads his last spade, suppose west elects to hold the diamond and dump the club nine instead. If he does, dummy will throw the diamond deuce and hang onto the A J of clubs.

Dummy is then a threat on east's flank. East dare not give up the club ten. If he does, dummy will take the last two tricks with ace and jack of clubs.

Suppose east refuses to cough up the ten of clubs. Instead, he may decide to disgorge the heart king. If he does, the south heart jack and dummy ace of clubs are good to the last drop.

This shows a relentless triple squeeze in a Vienna coup. It is like a war plan that creates a pincers movement after the enemy is sucked into protecting several positions.

It takes brilliant thinking against shifting forces. Beginners start out by playing cops and robbers.

The Moon's Delivery of Sardines

(By Charles A. Bowman in Ottawa Citizen.)

Nowhere does the moon visibly bring in more food for mankind than around New Brunswick's islands off Passamaquoddy Bay. The moon makes a prolific daily contribution toward the yield of fish.

Astronomers will say that the moon is sometimes credited with exercising more influence on fishing or on the weather—without mentioning love's young dreaming—than it really does. But the visible evidence of the moon's part in producing fish to be packed by an enterprising New Brunswick firm at Black's Harbor is no romance. The sardine packing plants of Connors Bros., conveniently located around the southerly coast of the Bay of Fundy are described as the largest in the world.

There is no mystery about the influence of the moon on the sardine haul. The tides are made by the moon's pull on this planet: it is called the force of gravity. Daily the tides come sweeping up the Bay of Fundy. They rise and fall twice in the twenty-four hours, or nearly so: there is a lag of about twenty minutes in every tide, due to the moon's receding position daily as it swings majestically around the earth. The tides bring in the bountiful harvests of seafoods, especially sardines.

There are daily tides everywhere, of course, over the ocean expanses. Tides were a determining factor in the Allied military plans for the liberation of Europe. There is a strong tidal sweep up the English Channel, through the Straits of Dover to the North Sea. Troopships and landing craft could move in close to the shore at high tide. They still do, to land reinforcements, munitions and supplies. The flat-bottomed ships can stay over between tides, high up on the dry sands during the ebb, where cargo can be discharged directly over the side into trucks.

Up the Bay of Fundy, however, the tides come in with a tremendous scouring effect. The rise from ebb to flood tide is about 26 feet around the islands where the silvery sardines run. Around Grand Manan, Campobello, Deer Island, Frye's Island, the Wolves and a hundred other verdant or rock-bound isles there is the choicest food for sardines.

There is doubtless similar food elsewhere at the bottom of the sea, but the mighty tidal flow of billions of tons of seawater has the effect of stirring up the food provided by Nature for sardines. They are a tiny fish, in vast, unimaginable numbers. They need whatever particles of food there are, so abundantly stirred up by the sweep of the Fundy tides. So the swirling currents around lovely islands, sometimes through narrow channels—but ever leading out to the broad Atlantic—make an ideal feeding ground for the little fish.

The New Brunswick fishermen garner in the daily harvest with simple ingenuity. Weirs are built along the shores where the tides run. The weirs consist of nets fastened to stout posts. At low tide, the posts with nets attached project nearly thirty feet above the water level. They are set out in the form of a horseshoe, enclosing an acre or more of sheltered seaway offshore. The horseshoe opening is so situated that the silver stream of sardines will pour in as they dart along in the cool Fundy current, with the flow of the tide.

The daily yield of one weir is generally sufficient to keep more than one fisherman employed, and—under fair marketing conditions—well paid. At some of the more fruitful weirs, most favorably located for the catch, two fishermen will work one weir in partnership.

By the time of high tide, the sea level is up to the top of the weir nets. The fishermen have methods of gauging the size of the catch in the weir. When they are satisfied that sardines have entered in quantities to pay for the labor of harvesting them, a net at the mouth of the weir is let down—to keep the little fish from escaping as the tide goes down.

At a suitable time, about two hours before low tide, the fishermen row with small boats to the weir. In one boat they have a seine—a large net provided with sinkers at the lower end, and with floats at the top. The seine is let down from the small boats immediately inside the weir. Reaching down to the full depth, it is dragged across while there is still ten or more feet of water in the weir. The catch is brought up in the seine—in one grand haul.

A fair yield would be about ten hogsheads in the seine. Sometimes it is less, but the fishermen like to haul nearer twenty hogsheads as the day's catch. Without being sure of the weight of a fisherman's hogshead, a catch of ten hogsheads would look to be about five tons—a prodigious number of sardines. They come in over the side into the seine boat in a shimmering cloud of animation, with silver scales flying everywhere.

There will likely be other fish too in the seine—herring, mackerel, flounder, skate, squid and ling—for the streaming miles of sardines are sources of food supply for the larger fish. Sometimes a tuna fish or other big fellow will follow the sardines into the weir, where they thrash around, damaging the netting and driving the little fish out again to the fisherman's loss for the day.

Fundy's harvest is so plentiful, however, even a whale could make little dent on the daily yield. The tides come around with unfailing regularity, under the impelling lift of moon-power. The silvery little sardines reflect the lovely sheen of the moon on a summer night over Passamaquoddy Bay.

In Manhattan

By MICHAEL O'MARA
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Sept. 16. (CP)—Latest show to open along Broadway—and first light musical of the new season—is the Paul Small vaudeville presentation, "Star Time". It's held together by raconteur Lou Holtz who presides with restrained abandon over a group of old-timers and would-be finds.

Benny Fields, a minstrel long a favorite in these parts but now dating badly, and the two De Marcos, who combine ballroom dancing with a vast display of high-speed swirling somehow reminiscent of a six-day bicycle race, are featured, and a number of vocalists, acrobats, harmonica-players and one really exciting acrobatic dance act—the Berry Brothers—also rally around.

But it's Holtz the teller of strangely shaggy stories, and the creator of the deathless figment, Sam Lapidus, who gives the show its pace, which is fast most of the way.

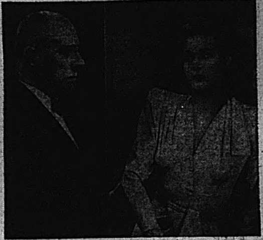
"Star Time" may not stand up against the competition which will come along when some of the more ambitious musicals planned for this winter hit the boards; but right now it's one of the better shows in New York.

Opening late last week at the National Theatre, "The Day Will Come", met a mixed reception from the critics but most of them agreed that its star, Harry Green—who played the part of the mythical Wandering Jew—scored a personal success.

The play drifts from realism to phantasy, opening with a scene just behind the Red battle-line in the early days of Germany's invasion of Russia, and closing with a meeting between the Wandering Jew and Adolf Hitler. Its argument is hackneyed and the rest of its cast only fair.

Department of utter confusion: one member of the cast of "Down to Miami", Brian O'Mara, plays the part of a character named Michael O'Hara . . . .this bewildered reviewer washes his hands of both of them.

AT THE BELLE—Well, now what do you suppose George Murphy and Ginny Simms, the stars of M.G.M.'s Technicolor musical, "Broadway Rhythm," are listening to? Why, it's Tommy Dorsey and his orchestra, of course. Yes, they're all there in the swell cast, which includes Charles Winninger, Nancy Walker, "Rochester" and a host of others.



AT THE CAPITOL—Erich Von Stroheim and Vera Hurba Ralston, in a dramatic scene from the feature attraction "Storm Over Lisbon," which will have its first Belleville showing at the Capitol Theatre Sunday midnight. The added comedy "Danger, Women at Work," stars Patsy Kelly.

Training Nighthawks Of the Air Force

(From the Canadian Government Publication "Canada At War.")

In the selection of air crew, eye characteristics are more important than any other single factor—whether the airman be pilot, gunner or navigator he must meet certain minimum requirements after which his particular job in air crew is determined by his visual qualifications.

Of the number of recruits accepted into the service as physically fit 10 to 14 per cent, are rejected for air crew because of their eyes. A gunner needs visual acuity—the sharpness to see and recognize small objects in space. Because of instrumental aids he does not require depth perception of the highest order. A pilot, on the other hand, needs above all else perfect co-ordination of both eyes to be able to tell his position in space. A navigator does well with normally good vision as he usually works from maps and charts.

Another important study has indicated that color vision of a high degree is required for safe flying.. Extensive tests with color signalling devices such as flares and Aldis lamps have been carried out at an experimental vision range. As 9 per cent, of all males are color defective this deficiency becomes an important factor in the selection of air crew.

* * *

Night flying being such a vital part of the airman's actual war participation, a great deal of research has been carried out. In winter this work was done in laboratories, but true lifelike conditions had to be met out-of-doors. This problem was to select an area where such authentic night conditions existed and where there was no sky lume from nearby cities. Thus a range was set up at Domaine d'Esterel, high in Quebec's Laurentian mountains. Following these experiments, which are still going on, night vision training and testing have been in practical use in the R.C.A.F. for more than a year.

A 45-minute demonstration and training period is given the men in small groups of about 12 during which their eyes become "dark adapted." Training is carried out by means of lighted panoramic silouettes on a screen with some animation such as moving motor cars or aircraft. Then more elaborate devices grafted on specialized situations appear—actual three-dimensional towns built on a scale to appear 2,000 feet below a flying level—actual reconnaissance photos—artificial moons which show how whole areas of landscape disappear or change appearance as the direction of the moonlight changes—everything which may explain distortion of the bomber's vision and help his aerial interpretation is portrayed on this Lilliputian stage. As the eyes become dark adapted many interesting facts are learned. The night vision comes in a waxing and waning effect; a stationary object may appear to be moving; imaginary points of light seem to flash like tiny airplanes.

* * *

Once night vision has been obtained there are several methods of maintaining it. If sudden exposure to light becomes necessary one eye can be kept closed to preserve its use in the subsequent darkness. Red light does not diminish the ability to see in the dark as does white light. Hence red goggles can be used. Trainees are taught to look to one side of an object, not at it, so that the image may fall on that part of the retina which is most sensitive to dim light. Protection of night vision is also obtained by keeping the level of white light illumination low. For this purpose "mock-up" cockpits have been built for night vision training in which correct use of cockpit lighting in instrument and map reading is taught. The correct use of special night binoculars is also demonstrated. By these many objects can be seen which are invisible to ordinary sight.

"Bell-Bottom George"

Marcel Varnel, producer and director of the new George Formby starring vehicle for Columbia, "Bell-Bottom George" opened at the McCarthy theatre today has included a number of outstanding interior scenes in the film.

The first of these is a portion of Broadcasting House, including a studio in which Formby is a member of a naval concert party. "The Spick and Spans" is brought to the microphone with his uke. Cinema audiences will see in these scenes not only the whole procedure of a broadcast, with its technical details and actual entertainment but also George's discovery of a transmitter which gives him the clue he needs to the activities of a gang of Nazi agents.

The number which George broadcasts in the studio is the title song of the film "Bell-Bottom George" a rollicking ditty which puts syncopation into the sea shanty.

The romantic elements is catered for by a lilting number, "If I had a Girl Like You," which George sings to his Wren sweetheart (Anne Firth). An unusual character in the film is Egbert, Formby's pet goldfish, and for his benefit "Swim Little Fish" has been written. This is, without doubt one of the song hits of the film for not only is the lyric intriguing, but it has a catchy and swingy melody that is going to capture the public and set it whistling the country over.

"THAT KEITH WOMAN"

By Phyllis Moore Gallagher

CHAPTER 31

And standing there on the corner of Massachusetts and Lawn Avenues, Sergeant Hornblower painted orally a grim picture.... I could see the detective reporting that Victor's finger prints and my own had been found on the tube of blemish cream. I could see the City Pathologist declaring that a tiny stain on Vic's trousers was human blood, and that a pair of blood-stained gloves, which had been hidden in the incinerator at the Keith house, belonged to Corliss. I could see men with their coats, vests and ties off surrounding the frightened lad who sat in a chair with a 200 watt bulb shining in his eyes—men were hurling questions at the tall, thin stooped figure. Five hours of this and Victor Corliss slid off the chair in a dead faint, only to be aroused with see Corliss re-enacting the mur- Corliss re-enacting the two murders, signing the confession at last and being led to a cell, stripped of everything on his person with which a guilty man might commit suicide...I could see him on the hard cot, head in hands, rocking silently, after awhile beginning to groan....Then Sandra Keith coming in to see him...and Victor Corliss pulling himself together, saying calmy he was glad it was over, that he wanted no lawyer....

"I'd like to see the confession," I remarked, when the Sergeant finished his story.

"I think I could manage that," he told me.

Peter and I piled into the back seat of the official car, and soon we whizzed up to the tall, gloomy, red-brick Third Precinct building. Hornblower brought the confession from a safe in the Captain's office, and I read it through carefully....

"Well?" queried Peter.

"Well," I admitted, "I guess my hunch was just—a vanishing black cat!"

Sergeant Hornblower said, "You mean, you didn't think Corliss was guilty?"

"Something like that. After all, I'm not a professional detective Come on, Peter. Thanks a lot for everything, Sergeant."

Out in the street, Peter said, "Don't tell me! Let me guess. We're going to do something, of course. What? Set fire to the Washington Monument? Come, Letty—give!"

"For one thing, Mr. Gibson, you're going to hit me on the head with a rock. That's the beginning."

"Holy smoke!" breathed Peter. "Are you trying to tell me you think the murderer is still on the loose?"

"Exactly."

"And I'm to hit you on the head with a rock, the police will find you, and maybe free young Corliss because you—with head in bandages—will prove that our killer is still killing?"

"Right!"

"And the police will get on the scent again, with your help?"

"Right, again!"

"Well, I won't do it. I'm not going to enlarge your head with a rock. I'm no skull specialist. I wouldn't know where to hit you—safely."

"If you don't do it, then I shall have to do it myself," I said firmly. "I don't think Victor murdered Pamela or Reginald or Marcella. He's confessed because he thinks—or knows—Sandra Keith is guilty. You know those blood-stained gloves he identified as his? Well, they were his, all right. But I happen to know about them. He gave them to Sandra for use around the gardens. I remembered her telling me, wistfully, that Vic had so little to give her and yet he'd give her anything he possessed. 'Even his last shirt,' she said that day. And remember in that confession, Peter. Surely those two sentences struck you forcibly: "I lost my head. I picked up a large rock and"....

"We all agreed it was a premeditated murder, Peter," I pointed out. "Even Sergeant Hornblower decided it was, but he's so excited over that confession and publicity that may lead to promotion. Hornblower's darned glad to get a signed confession, no matter how ....I'm afraid if his solution of this case is not exploded, Victor Corliss will be electrocuted and the guilty party will be free to murder again when he or she — feels like it."

"Corliss would rather die than see his Sandra go to the chair," Peter re-emphasized.

"I didn't say Sandra was guilty. I only said Vic probably thinks so."

"Then who—?"

"I don't know I've got a couple of hunches. One of them might be right, but how to prove it? Please, Peter, hit me with a rock, will you? Just gently."

Five minutes later we were in the garden of the Charlton-Arms, Peter with a rock in his hand. He threw it on the ground, saying: "Letty, of all the super-silly ideas. I can't do this. I mean it."

"You mean it. You won't hit me? Not even gently?"

"Not even gently."

I slipped on my gloves, picked up the ugly-looking rock and started off swiftly toward the B-Wing door. Peter was right behind me.

"Letty, if you're fool enough to hurt yourself—"

"I know," I said, pushing through the door and marching down the corridor. "What time is it?"

"Nearly 1:30 A.M."

"Another hour should find all of our suspects in bed, don't you think?"

"I think they're in bed now," said Peter.

"All right, now listen carefully to this..."

When I'd quite finished my instructions, Peter mopped his brow with a handkerchief.

"I don't know whether we could be arrested for that or not," he remarked. "Anyway, let's get it done. It's now going on two. I'll go to the desk in the front lobby, buy some stamps. I'll start toward your suite and, when I reach the elevators, I'll ask one of the colored boys for a light.... At exactly fifteen-of-two I should hear you scream. Check?"

"Check," I said.

We parted in the corridor. In front of my apartment door I stood with rock in hand, studying my wrist-watch. At exactly 1:45 A.M., I sent the rock crashing into the plaster wall. Then I screamed—took another deep, long breath, and screamed to the top of my lungs. It was a blood-curdling shriek. Yes, I could make a living screaming in anybody's horror movie....

At three A.M., that Sunday, I was in the drawing-room of the Keith house, as I had hoped I would be. Peter Gibson having heard me scream and found me in a dead faint in the corridor just as "the murderer" had tried to eliminate me and had failed...immediately 'phoned Sergeant Hornblower at the Third Precinct. That worthy in record-breaking time was on the scene, examining the battered wall, the rock, questioning bellhops, night maids, a desk clerk, and Peter. Fortunately my parents were still out at someone's party.

Hornblower asked Peter and me to follow him to the Keith house, which we did. There, the Sergeant ordered a maid to awaken everyone. He commanded Heath to have Victor Corliss transported from his cell....and to summon Pines and Dr. Courtney.

So here we all were once more: Sandra Keith in a blue chiffon negligee, Marvin and Elsie Eustace in identical yellow terry cloth robes, Countess Fanella Castigena fully dressed which confirmed my belief that she slept in her clothes. Earle Pines and Wayne Courtney had obviously dressed quickly and carelessly. Luke Cramer was a symphony in maroon, and Charlotte Cunningham had a brilliant red kimona with a gold dragon crawling up its back. Victor Corliss was the last to arrive. He looked horrible. Hornblower hadn't said anything about using a rubber-hose on the lad, but I rather suspected it.

Hornblower took his place in the centre of the room, glaring at all of us.

"I thought this case was solved," he began. "Maybe it is; maybe it isn't. Maybe we're no further along than we were a week ago. Except that two people have been murdered instead of one."

"Three!" I corrected, and felt every pair of eyes in that room turn on me.

I've never seen anyone having a champing fit, but, glancing at the Sergeant then, I thought he had a good start on one. His face was blood-red, his black eyes were wild and, when he jerked a thumb over his shoulder, indicating he wanted to see me in the library—alone—my nerves stuck out two inches all over my body. I was just as afraid of him as I'd ever been and, when the big doors closed and we were alone, I was trembling absurdly.

"And who is the third victim, Miss Randolph?"

I told him everything I knew and suspected about Marcella Kingsley. When I'd finished, he was looking thoughtful and crafty.

"There are some questions I want to ask Miss Newcomb," the Sergeant said and rose; a polite dismissal.

At the door I paused. "Sergeant Hornblower," I began, rather tremulously, "may I have exactly one-half hour out of this house? Mr. Gibson and I? I want to make a test, and I need Mr. Gibson to assist me."

"What kind of a test?" he asked, and I told him. He agreed and, back in the drawing-room, I caught Peter's hand in mine and led him to the solarium door.

"We're going to do some running, Pet," I said. "We're going to start here at this solarium door, run to Wayne Courtney's door at the hotel, give ourselves five minutes while we make an imaginary ten o'clock telephone call, and return here lickety-split. I want to see how long it takes."

"How jolly!" murmured Peter. "But why?"

"Timing, stupid!" I said. "Look, Peter: There are some former athletes mixed up in this case. Wayne Courtney was one at college. A track star, Kate Lote told Mother at a reception the other evening...and incidentally that's what started my mind off on this angle."

"Tangent!" corrected Peter.

"Okay. Anyway, Mother also said that Marvin Eustace won a fifty yard dash at a clam-bake down on the Potomac this fall."

"A fifty yard dash competing with obese politicians. So what?" scoffed Peter.

"And Gladys Newcomb is the best dancer I know. You couldn't wind her. Charlotte Cunningham has three cups for winning jitter-bug contests. Elsie is an amateur swimming champion and Earle Pines looks as solid as an oak. Given proper incentitive, I'll bet Pines could run like the wind."

"Don't tell me the Countess is wing-footed," poo-ed Peter.

I ignored that. "I don't know that this running business has anything to do with the case at all. I remembered what Mother said, and tonight we saw a cat running like mad to get across the street between speeding cars—and well, I want to check up on this speed angle. Someone phoned Pamela at ten o'clock the night she was murdered. Someone had to run in that connection."

We did, running like whippets across the lawn, up the terrace steps....

We made half a dozen of those running tests and figured that it took about eight minutes in all, pausing three minutes for the imaginary telephone call.

"I think it could be done in less time than that," I said.

"Not without a transfusion from Superman," Peter declared.

We tried once more, and cut the time down one minute. "See," I said. "Anyone in this house could have slipped out, phoned Pamela from the hotel...and if it were the doctor, from his own room...returned to meet Pam, murder her, and then go to the house again. It's simple.

"Oh," I exclaimed suddenly.

"Another idea?" asked Peter.

"You know, no one needed to leave the house. It could have been like this: Someone lifted the receiver in the Keith house, asked the operator to call back so that the bell-ring could be checked. When the phone rang, Reginald answered it and the outside party asked for Pam. Or they could have slipped upstairs and telephoned from Pam's private wire,caling the other number. There are three separate phones in the Keith home.

"Suppose someone phoned Marcella Kingsley at the hotel, someone who knew her well, and asked her to ring this number at exactly five minutes of ten, say and then get off the line. From one of the extensions in the house that person could have talked with Pamela, asked her to meet him—or her—outside immediately. Follow me?"

"Yes. But let me get this clear. That call must have been made FROM the hotel. It was charged to Wayne Courtney, you know."

"I am thinking about that," I said. "But as I just told you, someone here might have asked Marcella to ring this number. We've got to check everything, Peter, if we want to be thorough."

"But why should Marcella charge a call to Courtney if he wasn't the one calling?"

"Maybe Courtney was the one who did call," I countered.

"All right," said Peter. "You win. What do we do now? Make an imaginary call from this house and see how long it takes?"

"Yes," I said. And in the solarium I picked up the telephone from its box on a wicker table, requesting the operator to call back so the bell might be checked. I hung up, and the phone rang instantly. Picking up the receiver, I heard Heath say, "Hello."

Plans for D-Day Started in 1942

London, Sept. 16. (CP)—Preparations for D-Day began early in 1942, Gen. Riddell Webster, quartermaster general at the War Office, disclosed in a broadcast.

A system had to be worked out by which men, vehicles, stores and equipment could be landed on the beaches in the exact order required. For the assault and immediate follow-up each craft load had to be worked out in detail to the last man, vehicle and class of stores.

"The flow of troops, vehicles and stores has gone on unchecked and despite unfavorable weather is up to the target we set ourselves", the general added.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was looking at the headlines on his way to the sporting page, and a said, Really, William, I mean really, I'd be the last person to be the first to disparage my friends.

What else are your friends for? pop said. If they weren't your friends you wouldn't know enough about them to talk about, and all you have to do to ballence the scales of friendship is to grant them the same rights and privileges when their turn comes to disparage you. But why, for example? Who's been doing what? he said.

Oh, it's just the whole ot of them in general, I mean their thoughtless extravagance and reckless lack of foresight for the future when it comes to matters of economy, ma said. I mean now of all times, when you cant turn on your radio without hearing the voice of someone high in authority warning you that this is the time to save if you dont want to see inflation rolling downhill like a raging snowball. Now take Maud Hews for instants, she said, and pop said, If she's bought a new car I wish you'd find out where she located it.

She's gone and had the entire inside of her house repainted, ma said. There might of been some shadow of a lame excuse if she'd had the outside done, but the inside, for land sakes, that nobody ever sees except people who know she couldn't afford it, ma said, and pop said, But maybe there's some extenuating circumstance, maybe she doesn't intend to pay the painter bills.

Dont try to excuse her, ma said. I assure you I obeyed my first reaction and hied myself right down to Hookbinder's Beauty and Charm department to treat myself to that bottle of Essence of Night that I've been wavering abou: I assure you, my dear, compared to Maud Hew's extravance I felt as if I was practically putting money in the bank when I payed out my 9 dollars for that little bottle of perfume, she said, You win, it's still a woman's world.

Saying it from in back of the sporting page.

Stacking Beans

(Editorial in New York Times.)

When the nights are crisp and frosty and the first time silvery sheet of ice forms on the watering trough in the barnyard, comes the time to stack the beans. The splotches of yellow foliage in the clumps of gray birches along the pasture wall match the color of the dried, frost-seared rows of beans. There are several favorite varieties of beans for baking. Some prefer the rich, mellow Red Kidney; some vote only for the mealy-crunchy Yellow-Eyes others see virtue in the small nutty Pea Beans. The farmer knows that whatever the variety, the stacking of his winter's supply of Saturday night baked beans is an important autumnal task.

First one takes a light axe and goes to the pasture or woodlot for a gray birch of just the right size. It must be from two to three inches in diameter; it must be studded with small sturdy branches. The branches are cut off about eight inches from the trunks; the base end is cleared to a height of two feet. The tree is cut off so that the total height is about seven feet. Around these trees, with their dozens of prickly, wooden quills, the beans are stacked.

After the base has been jammed into a hole made with a crowbar, a few flattish stones are placed under the branches around the small trunk. Then the stacking begins. Handful by handful, the bean stack is built. The root ends go next the pole. Round and round the stack the farmer works, fitting the roots tightly against the pole, pushing and pressing the pods and dried leaves together. There's an art to building a good stack of beans as there is to building a load of hay. The same rule applies: keep the centre lower than the outside edges. The top cap is carefully finished, rounded and compact.

Through days of mellow fall warmth and nights when the Black Frost touches field, pasture and meadow, the beans stand on the stacks, drying out for their destiny in earthen pots in steady, hot ovens. Then, before the storms of late autumn lash the land, the farmer moves them to the edge of the barn floor. Some windy December day he will pull them from the stacks, spread the plants in a layer on the barn floor and flail out the nuggets.

Barber Tended Customers While Temporarily Blind Thru Cataracts

New Orleans, Sept. 16 —(AP)— A sign on the door of Vito A. Carey's barber shop here read, "Closed temporarily for an operation." A few days later, after the barber had recovered from a cataract operation, the shop was reopened. Carey said during the past 18 months he had been tending his steady customers while blind. His faithful dog barked a welcome to each comer, and when some one appeared who was unfamiliar to the barber, Carey said he found an excuse to turn him away.

Nazi Ace 'Chutist, Meissner, Killed

Coastal Command A Silent Service With Deadly Blow

By DOUGLAS AMARON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

R.A.F. Coastal Command Base, Sept. 16, (CP)—They call it the silent arm of the air force for its deeds are not as spectacular as those of the fighters and the bombers, but Coastal Command is waging a vicious war that is rapidly driving German ships and submarines out of the seas.

From bases such as this one, fleet Beaufighters armed with cannons and torpedoes or eight rocket projectiles strike surely and mercilessly at almost any Nazi ship that pokes its prow into the waters between Norway and the Bay of Biscay. The bigger planes of the Command are constantly helping Allied surface craft add to the score of smashed submarines which now totals more than 500.

Coastal Command played a part in invasion plans that might almost be called vital. The great flotillas carrying troops and supplies to Normandy had to get there safely and part of the burden of making this possible fell to the Canadian, British, Australian and New Zealand crews of Sir Sholto Douglas' command.

Both ends of the Channel had to be sealed off so that E-boats and U-boats would not run amok among the convoys. Waters outside the Channel had to be guarded with even greater vigilance. Plans were made, checked and re-checked and just before D-Day squadrons were moved secretly to new bases. Others were considerably strengthened to meet the enemy threat to our invasion flanks.

Details of all Coastal Command's successes are still a matter of security, but some at least of the 17 U-boats sunk in the Channel in the month after D-Day fell to this force. In the first seven days of the invasion, the Command's planes flew a distance equal to 50 times around the world.

More word has come of strikes on the flanks where five attacks alone between June 15 and July 1 left 30 enemy ships sunk, blown up or blazing. The Germans now crawl along the coast with their shipping, but even the shelter of shore doesn't save them.

Canadians Prominent.

Canadians, as in other branches of the air force, figure prominently in Coastal Command. The first Canadian airman to win a Victoria Cross, Flt. Lt. David (Bud) Hornell of Mimico, Ont., gained the coveted gallantry award for a successful and daring attack on a German submarine in the North Atlantic after his big flying boat had been severely damaged. He lost his life in that attack.

The Demon Squadron, the oldest and most famous, is still flying and striking hard and the newer Buffalo Squadron with its Beaufighters is winning a name for itself and for men like FO. Sydney Shulemson of 5150 Decarie Blvd., Montreal, who won a D.S.O. for work against enemy surface ships.

Since D-Day, scarcely a week has gone by without one or more Canadian names coming to the fore, despite the Germans' naval wariness.

Albacore crews, among them Sqdn. Ldr. J. T. Davis, Como, Que., FO. H. J. Thompson, D.F.C., Gelbert, Ont., PO. O. H. Menny, Timmins, Ont., and WO. R. A. Leech, Smiths Falls, Ont., have had some notable successes against small coastal boats in the Channel and off the Pas de Calais.

Farther up the coast, among the Frisian Islands, the Beaufighters struck, sinking two and damaging five of a 40-ship convoy, blasting three of 11 merchant ships. Flt. Lieuts. J. A. Reynolds, D.F.C., Winnipeg, and A. H. Hodson, D.F.C., Alberni, B.C. were on these "shows".

Three Airdromes In Athens Area Hit by U.S. Planes

London, Sept. 15 — (CP) — American heavy bombers from Italy blasted three airdromes today in the Athens area — all crowded with German transport planes rushed to the south for the evacuation of military personnel in Greece — a few hours after the R.A.F. had raided the same fields for the second successive night.

Between 250 and 500 American heavy bombers showered fragmentation bombs, which are particularly destructive to aircraft, on Elevsis, Tatoi and Kalamaki airfields and obtained good results, it was announced.

Other bombers dropped heavy demolition bombs on the submarine pens at Salamis, on an island off the port of Piraeus near Athens.

Only two enemy fighters were encountered and they were shot down by fighters, which also strafed the Athens area.

In the previous bombings of the airfields numerous Junkers-52 transport planes were burned out. A supply ship was sunk by Allied planes off the Greek west coast and another 2,000-ton vessel was sent down in the upper Adriatic. Greek and Yugoslav railroads were strafed and attacked with rockets.

Weather grounded Britain-based heavy bombers last night but the enemy today reported attacks on northwestern Germany.

R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. Beaufighters of the coastal command and R.A.F. Mosquitos from Britain blew up an escort vessel and set afire three merchant ships in a German convoy surprised off Kristiansand in southern Norway early last night. One Canadian Beaufighter is missing.

BRITISH 8TH ARMY STEADILY MOVES

More Than 1,400 Prisoners Have Been Taken Since Tuesday

With the Canadians in the Adriatic Sector, Sept. 15 (CP-Cable)—British 8th Army troops, including Canadians, seeking to push the stubbornly resisting Germans to the Lombardy plains have registered a steady advance.

A French-Canadian unit (possibly the Royal 22nd Regiment of Quebec) neared a point between San Lorenzo hill and the airfield of the Adriatic port of Rimini, about five miles to the northwest, yesterday after establishing advantageous positions on the Marano river which skirts San Lorenzo.

(Headquarters reported today that Canadian troops were within a mile of the airfield.)

Meanwhile a Nova Scotia regiment (presumably the West Nova Scotia Regiment of Bridgewater, N.S.) of the Canadian Division commanded by Maj.-Gen. Vokes of Winnipeg and Ottawa crosses the Marano on the French-speaking unit's left. The Nova Scotians reached the river before the enemy had time to destroy a bridge.

Farther to the left, British infantry descended the forward slopes of the Coriano-San Savino Ridge, about six to 10 miles south of Rimini.

Since Tuesday more than 1,400 prisoners have been taken.

Fall of Brest, Brittany Port, May Be Near

London, Sept. 15 — (CP) — Suggesting the fall of the Brittany port of Brest was near, the German radio said today that the Nazi commander had advised Hitler that the siege had reached its climax with all fortifications destroyed and the garrison fighting "to the last with only a few guns."

"Fires rage at Brest," the broadcast message from Lt.-Gen. Hermann B. Ramcke said. "All ships in the harbor have been scuttled. All installations have been destroyed. The invaders will find only ruins.

"In the eastern part of the fortress, several nests of resistance are holding out. All approaches to the centre of the town have been mined. The Americans succeeded in overrunning a German strongpoint in this part of the town."

Police Seek 3 Men Who Flee Into Woods

Ottawa, Sept. 15 —(CP)— Provincial and city police today sought three men who eluded police constables last night after stealing an automobile here, $100 worth of clothing from Hy Bessin's store at Winchester, Ont., and a truck from a South Gloucester service station where they attempted to take some gas.

The men fled into the bush near here when the truck, which they took after the automobile ran out of gas, struck a post shortly after the pursuing constables fired at the men.

Police said blood was found on the seat of the truck, but they could not ascertain whether one of the men had been wounded. They said it was possible one of the men cut himself before the chase began as blood also was found at the service station.

Carries Own Cake To Arctic Wedding

Winnipeg, Sept. 15 (CP) — One of Canada's most unusual wedding ceremonies took place aboard the Hudson Bay Company's boat, the Nascopie, at Southampton Island, August 19th.

The bride was the former Lorna Mary Johnston, an aircraft worker in Winnipeg, and now the only woman on Southampton Island. Wm. C. Brownie, an H.B.C. post manager in the north for 17 years, was the groom.

Attendants were Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Heslop, who were rescued from Fort Ross last winter by an American plane, and who were on their way north to a new post.

The bride made her own cake and took it with her. She left Winnipeg August 7, went by train to Churchill to board the Nascopie there. A Winnipeg florist ordered Amcidium orchids and packed them for her to take along for her wedding corsage.

Many of the guests were members of the inspection party of the Northeast staging route air bases.

AIRBORNE ARMY MAY OUTFLANK SIEGFRIED LINE

Allied 'Chutists Win First Round; Opposition Light

Canadians Smash Through Boulogne to Dock Area

By JAMES M. LONG
(AP War Correspondent)

London, Sept. 18. (AP)—A continuous stream of sky-borne reinforcements and supplies was reported flowing into the Netherlands today and Allied Supreme Headquarters announced that the Allied 1st airborne army had won round No. 1 in the battle to lay open the flat lands of Northern Germany for an invasion around the Siegfried Line.

The British 2nd Army plunged forward from its bridgeheads across the Schelde-Meuse Canal. Its coordinated offensive aimed at linking up with the bridgeheads established by the air army—the seventh Allied army thrown into the battle of the western front.

Spearheads of the U.S. 1st Army which had pierced the Siegfried Line south of encircled Aachen held on grimly to their positions 20 to 25 miles from the Rhine City of Cologne, turning back waves of hoarsely screaming Germans making shoulder-to-shoulder "psychological" attacks.

Twenty thousand more Germans surrendered en masse in a mid-France pocket south of the Loire.

Americans Move East.

The U.S. 3rd Army along the Moselle in Eastern France hammered eastward into the Vosges from Nancy and northward behind the fortress City of Metz after throwing back repeated German counter-attacks.

The Franco-American 7th Army from the Mediterranean threw the Germans out of Lure 17 miles due west of Belfort in the Gap leading to the Upper Rhine frontier of Germany, and were slugging their way north of Pont De Roide toward Montebeiard down the last 15 miles to Belfort from the south. The Paris radio said without the confirmation that the 7th Army had entered Belfort, 30 miles from the Rhine.

South of Switzerland, the 7th Army drove northeast 11 miles from captured Modane at the entrance to the Mount Genis tunnel into Italy, and reached Lansle-Bourg, less than five miles from the Italian border.

Break Through Defences.

A front dispatch today said 1st Canadian Army troops had reached the dock area of Boulogne in their all-out thrust on the port where some 4,000 Germans were believed to be holding out and the fall of the city cannot be far away.

Ontario assault infantry broke through the defence perimeter of the English Channel port and swept into the town. This port which would give the Allies yet another entry for supplies into the continent apparently was about to fall.

The heavily bombed defence system was being carved up into pockets and hundreds of prisoners were being taken.

The attack was launched yesterday following an R. A. F.- R. C. A. F. bombing in which more than 3,500 tons of explosives were dropped within four hours. Last night the Canadians were reorted still advancing through the great channel port's defences.

Near the Belgian-Netherlands border other Canadian units deepened their bridgehead across the Leopold Canal—270-foot, double-channel obstacle the crossing of which had entailed some of the fiercest and most difficult fighting for Lt.-Gen. Crerar's troops since D-Day—as they took Eecloo and fanned around the town, 15 miles east of Brugge (Bruges).

Polish units of the 1st Canadian Army presumable continued to probe into the Netherlands which they entered Saturday near Hulst, 15 miles west of Antwerp.

Clean up Ports.

Canadian forces Saturday also took strongpoints about Dunkerque in their drive to clean up the channel ports. Calais also is under siege.

Announcing only that the airborne landings in Holland were "going well," Gen. Eisenhower kept a security blackout on this latest blow, a blow which might break the back of German resistance strained by the piling up demands of many fronts.

But the Germans said unbroken streams of Allied sky trains were carrying reinforcements and supplies into the original landings made by Lt.-Gen. Brereton's winged striking force.

"One of the greatest airborne operations in military history," as it was described by Brereton, was said by the Germans to be centred

Finn Declaration Of War Against Germany Expected

Stockholm, Sept. 18 (AP) — A formal Finnish declaration of war against Germany appeared imminent today as Finnish fury mounted against German troops who wantonly burned villages and farms as they withdrew from Northern Finland.

The Finnish cabinet met last night in Helsinki, where the press asserted flatly a state of war already exists with Germany, and there were strong indications action could be expected momentarily. A declaration of war against Germany is one of the demands Russia is said to have made upon Finland as the price of peace with the Soviet Union.

Two Finnish brigades and Russian troops are fighting the Germans in Northern Finland, where the Nazi-set fires blazed, Finnish advices said. Villages and farms were reported left aflame by withdrawing Germans in the Suomisalmi district and at Kussamo, south of the Arctic Circle near the Russian frontier.

Meanwhile the Russians were said to be demanding the right to occupy the northern half of Finland.

Gunnar Mullern, first Swedish correspondent to return to Stockholm since the Russian terms were carried to Helsinki, said the Russians wanted air bases in northern and central Finland and along the western coast for the duration, and were asking for most of the islands in the Finnish Gulf.

A report that two Nazi destroyers fired on a Finnish passenger plane flying over the Gulf of Bothnia from Helsinki to Stockholm was interpreted here as an indication the Germans were attempting to blockade Finland.

A Moscow dispatch said Premier Hantti Hackzell, chief of the Finnish armistice delegation who was taken seriously ill in the Russian capital, had rallied but that his condition still was grave.

Rumor 10 Airplanes At Hitler's Disposal Made Ready Sunday

New York, Sept. 18. (CP)—The Stockholms-Tidningen, quoting a "private" dispatch, said today that "all 10 Messerschmitt-164 airplanes at the disposal of Hitler and his travelling staff were suddenly made ready for start yesterday, each taking on 28,000 litres (approximately 7,400 gallons) of gas".

The Swedish newspaper dispatch was reported to the United States Office of War Information.

NAVAL TASK FORCE SINKS 8 ENEMY SHIPS OFF GREECE

Three Other Ships Beached After Being Attacked and Another Damaged

CARRIERS USED

Rome, Sept. 18 (AP)—An Allied naval task force, including aircraft carriers, has sunk eight enemy ships in the Aegean Sea off Greece, it was announced today.

Three other enemy vessels were beached after being attacked and another was damaged.

At the same time naval aircraft accompanying an escort carrier force under command of Rear Admiral Thomas Troubiidge, R.N., made low-flying attacks on enemy motor transport on the island of Crete, destroying 23 vehicles and damaging others.

The Germans earlier were reported concentrating the Crete garrison in the vicinity of the city of Khania (Canae) preparatory to evacuation to the mainland.

Five of the vessels sunk were sailing craft encountered by naval fliers off the island of Melos, 80 miles north of Crete. The fliers also damaged a merchant ship there with near misses and gunfire.

On the same day the British cruiser Aurora bombarded Melos and scored three hits on a merchant ship, which subsequently was beached. It also sank three small ships and caused two others to be beached.

All the Allied planes returned from the Melos and Crete attacks.

FIERCE FIGHTING RAGING ALONG BROAD FRONT

Canadian and Greek Troops Reach Edge of Rimini Airfield

BRIDGEHEAD EXTENDED

By NOLAND NORGAARD
(AP War Correspondent)

Rome, Sept. 18 — (AP) — Powerful assaults by both the British 8th and Allied 5th Armies against heavily-fortified German lines in northern Italy made scant progress yesterday and fierce fighting continued to rage along a broad front, Allied headquarters announced today.

On the Adriatic coast Canadian and Greek troops fought their way forward a few hundred yards to reach the northwestern corner of Rimini airfield, scarcely more than two miles from the southern limits of Rimini itself.

On their left a bloody battle was being waged for the village of San Martino on Monte L'Abate and surrounding high ground dominating the airfield from the west. German parachutists, strongly supported by big Tiger tanks, fiercely contested every British attempt to gain ground.

Fighting forward against stiff opposition the 8th Army yesterday drove well forward in the inland portion of the Adriatic corridor which with the Marano bridgehead now represents an eight-mile front.

Gain Dominance

British troops, sweeping over ridge after ridge beyond Mulazzano, captured Cerasola and gained dominance over the Ausa Valley.

The most savage fighting continues for Mount Olivio at the southwest end of Cerasola Ridge near the frontier of the San Marino Republic.

An official report from Allied headquarters, meanwhile, gave warm praise to the Brazilian Expeditionary Force which, it was revealed yesterday, has now gone into action with the 5th Army.

"During their first day of battle the Brazilian Expeditionary Force, although it has not yet met the calibre of resistance encountered along the eastern and central 5th Army front, already has demonstrated considerable aggressive ability and has advanced more than a mile to take a town," the report said.

British and American units of the 5th doggedly hammering into the heart of the Gothic Line repulsed a number of strong German counter-attacks in the course of yesterday's fighting and inflicted heavy casualties on the enemy.

In addition to massive concrete fortifications in this area the Allies are encountering thick minefields and deep wire entanglements.

PLANS MADE AT CONFERENCE NOW GOING INTO EFFECT

Second History Making Parley Held at Quebec Concluded

STATEMENT MADE

By FRANK FLAHERTY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Quebec, Sept. 18—(CP)—Orders incidental to vast new war developments in the pacific are sifting out to the fighting fronts, war factories and governmental offices today as Quebec settles down to normal after its second history making visit from Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt.

Their 11th wartime meeting and second at Quebec ended Saturday in complete agreement on plans for the wind-up of the European war, the adjustment of certain military and quasi-military questions in Europe after the end of hostilities and finally the unloosing of a giant combined offensive on the Japanese in the Far East.

As Mr. Churchill put it at the press conference which brought the meeting to a close, that "greedy and barbarous nation," Japan, will learn in due course what was decided at Quebec in 1944 just as the Germans learned what was decided here in 1943.

In guarded statements to the corps of some 150 newspaper and radio representatives who covered the meeting from the outside and got little really concrete information, the two leaders made it clear that:—

Reduce Jap's Strength

1. Plans for the reduction of Japan's strength were made.

2. The date for the next big operation is not yet set and depends on the time when the Nazi power makes unconditional surrender.

3. The war against Japan will not be a private fight by the United States forces but a combined assault by all the forces — land, sea and air — of the United States and the British Commonwealth.

4. Canada has been assigned an important role in the Pacific War; Mr. Roosevelt said American and Canadian forces will fight side by side across the Pacific.

5. No unified super-command for the Pacific is contemplated for the area is too big and the present three separate commands under Vice-Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten in Southeast Asia, Gen. MacArthur in the South Pacific and Admiral Nimitz in the Central Pacific will continue.

The two leaders declared they had reached complete unanimity on their plans in a shorter space of

ABSOLUTE DEFEAT OF GERMANY SEEN BY MONTGOMERY

Enemy Losses Are Immense - Prisoners Taken Number Over 400,000 Men

HISTORIC EVENTS

Allied Supreme Headquarters, Sept. 18 —(AP)— Field Marshal Montgomery told his troops yesterday that "no human endeavors" can prevent complete, utter and absolute defeat of Germany.

"The Nazi leaders have ordered the German people to defend their country to the last, and to dispute every inch of ground," he said in a broadcast as thousands of Allied troops swarmed over German borders at more than a dozen points.

" . . . The great mass of German people know their situation already is hopeless and they will think more clearly on this subject as we advance into their country. They have little wish to continue the struggle."

He said the Germans suffered immense losses in men and material—more than 400,000 prisoners have been taken by the Allies in the west—and added that "it is becoming problematical how much longer he can continue the struggle."

"Such a historic march of events can seldom have taken place in history in such a space of time," Field Marshal Montgomery said. "You have every reason to be very proud of what you have done.

"The triumphant cry now is, 'forward into Germany.' Good luck to you all and good hunting in Germany."

Smother Violent Counter-Attacks South of Capital

Aim Is to Crush 200,000 Nazis in Latvia, Estonia

By EDDY GILMORE
(A.P. War Correspondent)

Moscow, Sept. 18 (AP) — The mounting Russian offensive in the region of Jelgava, 25 miles southwest of the Latvian capital of Riga, has smothered violent German counter attacks marked by reckless use of large numbers of tanks and self-propelled guns, front dispatches said today.

(Berlin broadcasts declared the Russians had advanced to within 14 miles of Riga in a three-day offensive. The drive was aimed at crushing two German armies in Latvia and Estonia estimated at 200,000 men.)

Moscow reports said the Red army was consolidating and building up the last phase of preparations for the coming assault on every Nazi-held position on the eastern front.

(The Soviet-sponsored Free Germany Committee, in a broadcast recorded by United States government monitors, called upon German troops in Estonia and Latvia to lay down their arms or turn them against the Nazi S.S. units who might attempt to force them to continue the battle.)

The Russian war bulletin did not mention the battle for Warsaw, where Polish and Red army troops were last reported probing for bridgeheads across the Vistula from the eastern suburb of Praga.

Patriots Receive Supplies

(Gen. Bor's communique said his patriot units in Warsaw had been receiving supplies from Soviet planes since Sept. 13.)

Capture of more localities in the drive on Targu-Mures, German-Hungarian stronghold in Transylvania, was disclosed by the Soviet communique. The Gurghui rail station 18 miles to the northeast fell to Red army units. Another Soviet column was only six miles east of Targu-Mures.

(A dispatch from Bari, Italy, said German forces fighting their way from Bulgaria across northeastern Yugoslavia in an attempt to flee from Yugoslav Partisans had recaptured Negotin, near the Danube six miles inside Yugoslavia.

(Radio France at Algiers relayed reports from Istanbul which said the Red Army had crossed the Greek-Bulgarian frontier and was advancing toward Salonika, Greek port on the Aegean Sea. The broadcast was reported by the United States Federal Communications Commission.)

Millions of Russian youths now are prepared for war by the intensification of the universal military training program begun three years ago on order of Marshal Stalin, it was disclosed.

Canadians Meet Tough Opposition In Battle of Moerkerke Bridgehead

By WILLIAM STEWART
(C. P. War Correspondent.)

With the 1st Canadian Army in Belgium, Sept. 18 (CP Cable) — The battle of the Moerkerke bridgehead across the Leopold Canal northeast of Brugge (Bruges) from which Ontario troops withdrew Thursday was one of the stiffest engagements by Canadian forces since the attack into the Lalonde forest on the Seine river south of Rouen.

Later field dispatches said Canadian patrols Friday night recrossed the Leopold Canal in six positions and added the position since the earlier withdrawal was "greatly improved."

The bridgehead was held for about 14 hours from the time the first infantry moved across the 300-foot-wide Leopold Canal in darkness Wednesday night until they were ordered back to the west bank of the double waterway.

The Canadians were under fierce enemy shelling and mortar fire. They were in the midst of cross-fire from German machine-gun positions and even shot at by some Germans who remained in pockets on the west bank.

The men in the narrow bridgehead were outnumbered at least two to one but they believed that the Germans opposing them, because of their lack of fieldcraft, were only half-trained and cut them down like experienced farmhands mowing ripe wheat.

The toll of German casualties were heavy and although the Canadians lost men killed, they brought back most of their wounded.

The withdrawal across the Dual canal, with a bank dividing the two channels, was carried out hastily and in good general order although some of the men didn't wait for the shuttle service of assault boats and swam for it.

Some of the Canadians regard the withdrawal from the bridgehead as a defeat. Some platoons wanted to stay and fight it out although ammunition was runing short and other troops wanted to go right back. Some of the troops were reinforcements in battle for the first time and battle-wise troops who fought alongside the newcomers said they bore up well.

Lieut. Dick Steenberg, of Kitchener, Ont., and comanded one of the forward platoons on the bridgehead, which at no time was more than 500 yards deep, said the battle involved practically all types of fighting infantrymen can encounter in modern warfare.

Ontario troops started across the canal at about 10 p.m. in pitch

Swift Extension New Beachheads On Angaur Islands

Pearl Harbor, Sept. 18 (AP)—Swift extension of new beachheads on Angaur Island and gains against heavy Japanese opposition on adjacent Peleliu reported last night, paced the accelerating American conquest of the strategic southern Palaus.

One army division held the northeast third of Angaur a few hours after infantrymen stormed ashore Sunday, a Pacific fleet communique reported.

Another marine division advanced approximately one third of a mile Saturday on Peleliu, six miles northeast, against stubborn Japanese resistance.

In the southwest Pacific, American forces reached all their objectives around the perimeter of Morotai Island, 375 miles south of Davao against still-negligible Japanese opposition.

'World's Fair' at Shannonville Favored by Ideal Weather And Large Crowd Saturday

More Than 4,000 Crowded Way Into Grounds to View Exhibits

GOOD RACING

This story does not have to be read in order to find out the "World's Fair" held at Shannonville on Friday and Saturday was a success. Four thousand fairgoers from this county and others will testify to that. The biggest "little" Fair in this part of Ontario lived up to its reputation and as usual left a pleasant taste and a "We'll be back next year" in the mouths and minds of the large crowd in attendance.

But it must be said that President Lorne Lazier, Secretary Ken Vivian and their directors had the weather man on their side. The old boy smiled benignly on proceedings and Saturday afternoon proved almost a "day in June".

And with it came a typical "Shannonville Fair" crowd. Old ones and young ones, fat ones and thin ones, greybeards and beardlings, the comely buxomness of the matron and the modern style of youth mingled and munched with one another like their forebears did seventy-five years ago.

It was their own fault if they did not enjoy themselves. The Fair directors saw to that. Under a cloudless September sky, its blueness disturbed only by the flashing yellows of a trio of R. C. A. F. training planes, they gorged their fair appetites to the limit. The menu was variable and colorful. Some of them became dizzy trying to watch several attractions at once. One venerable gentleman became so excited watching his favorite tug-o-war team win, that he jammed a be-mustarded hot dog in his right ear.

Colorful Midway

The Midway was a riot of typical fair color and noise. Close-packed humanity saw grotesquely made-up clowns, musical and otherwise "do their stuff". A synthetic car of Crimean vintage, wobbled its way, oblivious to human obstacles. Barkers voiced their wares, regardless of damage to their tonsils, and the eardrums of the audience.

One could have his fortune told, weight guessed, or a leg pulled for a nominal sum. The skirling pipes of the Aryll Light Infantry Pipe Band, drew attention to the stern vehicles of war, armored equipment of the regiment which stood on display. Personnel of the unit added a touch of military color to the already colorful throng.

On a raised dais, the Royal Canadian Air Force Band, Trenton, dispensed sprightly tunes to an appreciative audience. Behind them, Danny Smith, Belleville entertainer, thrilled the children and grownups, too, with ventriloquism and guitar and voice entertainment. On the baseball diamond, the Latta team defeated the Melrose nine, 14-2 and dropped "foul balls" at random among the crowd. No injuries. To the accompaniment of cheers, and later fiery argument, the "Palefaces" defeated the "Redmen" of the Tyendinaga Reserve in a hard-fought tug-of-war.

Exciting Contests

Husky rural ladies, and urbanites too, for that matter swung powerful hammers in nail-driving contests. Hardy woodsmen, vied for honors in a log-sawing contest. Old time-fiddlers whirled flexible fingers over strings to resurrect the tunes their grandfathers loved—and their grandsons dance to. Ancient and modern feet tapped in rapid tempo in a dancing contest. Gurgling, crowing entrants in a popular baby show attracted a lot of attention.

There was plenty of action at the track. Red-coated postilions, garbed in hunting costume, rode as marshals. Two classes of fast harness horses competed in trials of speed, while farmer jockeys showed outstanding equestrian ability aboard their running Dobbins. A greasy pig darted in and about the crowd oblivious to marks left on milady's dress or her gentleman's trousers. "Cute" ponies vied for racing honors to the delight of the children.

Livestock, horses and other entries were well above those of former years. In the Exhibit Building, ladies' work, fruits, roots and vegetables, home-cooking, grains, preserves, handicraft, dairy products and other entries attracted fairgoers.

Blood Serum Need Greater Than Before

Toronto, Sept. 18 —(CP)— Need for Canadian Blood Serum now is greater thn at any previous period in the war, Dr. John T. Phair, chairman of the National Blood Donor Committee of the Canadian Red Cross Society, said today. Drastic depletion of overseas stocks due to their emergency use for robot bombing victims was given as the reason.

Dr. Phair said the time now has come for Canadians to "give every ounce they can spare" of their blood.

The Red Cross is shipping all available blood serum not being used by Canadian forces for use in treatment of members of the British forces and British civilian bombing casualties. This was requested by the British Research Council which stores and distributes all blood and blood derivatives in England.

Large reserves of serum also are needed for the Far East, said Dr. Phair.

IN MEMORIAM

BOWERS — In loving memory of our dear father, Daniel Bowers, who passed away one year ago, September 1943.

When days are dark and friends are few,
Dear Dad how we often think of you,
Friends are friends if they are true.
We lost our best friend when we lost you.
—Ever remembered by daughter, Nellie and Elmer.

REYNOLDS — In loving memory of a dear mother and grandmother, Mrs. John Reynolds, who passed away September 17, 1943.

We do not forget her, we love her too dearly,
For her memory to fade from our lives like a dream.
Our lips need not speak when our hearts mourn sincerely,
For grief often dwells where it seldom is seen.
—Always remembered by daughter Flossie, and family.

On one occasion he was navigator of an aircraft detailed to attack Frankfurt. Shortly after the take-off all navigational aids failed but by skillful use of astro navigation the aircraft arrived over the target at the correct time and made a safe return to base. TINY—TERRIFIC

Equipped with a new and devastating incendiary bomb, R.C.A.F. squadrons, together with other units of Bomber Command, are spreading destruction wherever they drop this innocent-looking but lethal weapon. Perfected by research and scientific workers of Ministry of Aircraft Production, the new fire bomb weighs only 30 pounds. Mainly filled with a solution of methane in petrol under pressure, its descent is controlled by parachute which reduces its terminal velocity. Approximately 21 inches long and 5.5 inches in diameter, the bomb on reaching its target throws from its tail a jet of flame about 15 feet long and two feet wide which burns for two minutes. On impact the striker of the bomb fires the detonator. The flash from the detonator ignites the priming in a central tube. The priming ignites the Thermite and this heats the interior of the bomb, raising the internal pressure. When this pressure has been raised enough the petrol is forced through the flexible tube into the valve chamber, through the outlet hole in the jet, and through the hole in the bottom of the parachute container. As it passes out of the jet the petrol is ignited by the flame issuing from the vent holes in the striker housing, as a result of the burning Thermite. — (R. C. A. F. Photo.)

CANADIANS MEET

blackness and had to find their way to the bank through bushes and ditches and across fences.

They made the crossing in assault boats and some infantry were under fire from the time they got into the boats until they were back in them again, returning to the west bank.

There were German snipers on an island between the canal waterways and in several places the Germans had compact concrete positions topped with wire as well as the usual slit trenches.

The Germans on the east bank of the canal realized the attack was developing and kept up a stream of fire. From some positions they opened up with 20-mm. anti-aircraft guns.

Infantry companies were in command of Majors George Cassidy, former Cobalt, Ont, school teacher, Jock McLeod, also of Cobalt, Keith Stirling of South Porcupine, Ont., and Wally Johnson of North Bay, Ont.

The crossing was preceded by a barrage from 25-pounders and self-propelled guns set up behind the west bank gateway and infantry support weapons also were in position there.

The twin canals represented the most formidable obstacle the Canadians had yet faced, not only because of the breadth of the canals —which are approximately 120 feet across—but also because they flow between dikes high above the ground level and during the withdrawal particularly the troops moving over these banks had to silhouette themselves against the skyline.

Engineers who tried to throw bridges across the water gaps while the infantry held the bridgehead were heavily bombarded and exposed to small arms fire and had to give up the attempt.

Cassidy's company got to the eastern bank of the waterway without great difficulty and formed hte bridgehead during the night. The foremost point of the Canadian perimeter on the east bank was a road outside Moerkerke, where some of the heaviest engagements were fought against the Germans, who crawled in to attack in waves.

Ontario troops dug in on crossroads and established themselves in buildings, some of which also were occupied by Germans.

It was still dark when they took up their positions and the Germans were so close the Canadians heard them talking.

When dawn came visibility was cut down by a heavy ground mist which hampered artillery observation but the Canadians cleaned out most of the pockets in the immediate area of the bridgehead.

But the Germans had fresh troops about three miles away and they were brought up quickly for counter-attacks. The Canadians saw them from buildings in a village on the east bank and there were targets for small arms fire everywhere.

The Germans also laid down thick machine-gun fire on Canadian positions, as well as an artillery and mortar bombardment and many Ontario troops were pinned down.

The German counter-attacks, although numerically strong, seemed poorly-organized and enemy troops came into Canadian positions without making proper use of available cover, they were killed by the dozens as they crawled ahead.

Among the prisoners taken were youngsters and veterans of the Russian war, although there were no S. S. troops. Once captured, they were co-operative.

Counter - attacks gradually squeezed the bridgehead into a small area and because it was impossible to go ahead with bridging and the renewal of ammunition and supplies was difficult, the withdrawal was ordered.

There were many deeds of heroism. L. Cpl. E. F. Brady of St. Catharines, Ont., took command of one of the forward platoons near the road junction, maintained perfect organization and withdrew his men in good order only when the last round of ammunition was fired.

A private went back for a wounded sergeant and died when a shell exploded near him as he carried the sergeant away on his back. Two stretcher-bearers remained behind with a group of wounded men. The other wounded were removed in assault boats.

German prisoners helped in the evacuation by rowing some of the boats. Two prisoners in one boat unloaded Canadian troops, they rowed back to the east bank for a new load.

The bridgehead troops had good artillery support and for the daylight evacuation gunners spread a smoke screen across the east bank.

Canadian Nickel
THE ACHIEVEMENT OF THE PAST IS THE PROMISE OF THE FUTURE

1928

Ships got Nickel Alloy lungs

When the C.P.S. liner "Duchess of Bedford" slid down the ways in 1928, a new era opened in the design of power plants for ships at sea. This liner was the first to use high pressure steam necessitating the use of highly corrosion-resistant condenser tubes.

The condensers are the lungs of the ship's power plant. They condense the steam so that the fresh water in the boilers can be used over and over again.

The "Duchess of Bedford" provided the final proof that Cupro-Nickel condenser tubes (70% Copper, 30% Nickel) could resist the severe corrosion and give much longer life than previously used metals and so cut down repairs and costly tie-ups.

The Canadian Nickel industry, depressed through the loss of its wartime markets, was quick to take advantage of this new market. Definite improvements in the quality and finish of this Nickel alloy were made. Soon Cupro-Nickel condenser tubes were being used in practically all new ships.

Today Canadian Nickel is again diverted to war purposes, and again the industry looks to the future with confidence. Plans are ready to develop and expand old and new peacetime markets, so that the Nickel industry may continue through its own initiative and enterprise, to make still greater contributions to Canada's welfare.

At the Fair Grounds

Something of the infinite amount of work which goes into the preparations for a fair was indicated over the weekend at the Belleville Agricultural Park, the arrival of entries, the putting on of the finishing touches and the setting up of that vast organization, the midway. Sunday and early today gave a preview of the annual exhibition which holds sway for the first three days of this week.

Any fair is an undertaking which calls for a great deal of co-operation or teamwork as well as skill, experience, and knowledge. It is a year-long organization as far as preparations and work of the officers and directors are concerned. The fair does not just happen, it does not just happen that valuable livestock and other exhibits are on exhibition here, it does not just happen that large crowds will attend and it does not just happen that the public is witnessing a complete modern midway in action. The whole story is work and thoroughness of organization as well as the knowledge of what people want. That makes the fair.

The fair is educational for it satisfies the desire of the people of country and city to see what has been taking place in the rural world as the produce of a season is viewed and as livestock are judged and given the awards indicating their superior merit.

Interest which forecasts and foreruns the fair attracted many hundreds over the weekend. It was something to see the final plans and preparations for the exhibition going into the form that will make the 1944 exhibition what it is to be. Crowds visited the grounds and there got more than an eyeful of satisfaction as the exhibition park became alive and there was the stirring and moving that indicated that in a few hours the whole aspect of the grounds would be changed and the whole surroundings and conditions there would indicate the fall fair. The curiosity of the boys and others was satisfied as they witnessed the fair city being set up as if by a wand, but it was a work of experienced hands, building as they knew how. To see the midway moving together, as it were by magic—and it is the magic of the organization in man's mind—to see the stalls and sheds coming to life today with the incoming livestock, to see the last operations for the habitation of the buildings and placing of exhibits—was to see the annual miracle of the fair launched on its short but important career.

For many ages fairs everywhere in the world have been the goal of men and women, boys and girls. Into a few days they pack away attractions which give the fair a distinct reality, something different and only like a fair. Two fairs are never the same, they have a vitality that is new with every year. It is one of those institutions which have life and it is a life which compels the interest of everyone.

The attention which the Belleville fair has been attracting from exhibitors as well as from the fair board and the people of the countryside and urban centres is the finest augury of the success of this year's show. It is held in a year and at a season when the thought of victory dominates every mind and every tongue.

Come the British Doctors

Behind the Allied armies in the Pacific islands come the British doctors. They begin at once to take up again the threads of the medical services, broken at the time of the Japanese occupation. Even in wartime, Britain puts a high priority on medical services for the peoples of the British Colonial dependencies.

In the war against tropical disease much of the pioneer research was done by British scientists; and research still continues unremittingly. The results are being applied increasingly to the improvement of the health of the Colonial peoples. As they are won over from prejudice or superstition to confidence in the technique of Western medicine, the supply of medical staff becomes of major importance. Personnel is increasingly recruited from among the Colonial peoples themselves, to work in co-operation with British medical experts. The outstanding problem is the provision of the necessary vocational training.

The Central Medical School in Suva, Fiji, provides training for students from all the British territories in the Southwest Pacific. There is also a central Nursing School at Suva open to native student nurses from all the islands.

The Ceylon Medical College is already training Ceylonese students to the same professional standard as that of doctors in Great Britain. Graduates of the Singapore Medical College and the University of Hong Kong were qualified to practise anywhere in the British Empire as their degrees were recognized by the British General Medical Council.

Lights Again

Remember when the church bells of Old England, Scotland and Ireland sounded again for the victory of El Alamein, the bells which had long been silent.

Now Sunday night September 17th., 1944, will be remembered for the night of war blackout has passed and the lights come out again. It had been a period of real darkness of unlighted streets and a period of symbolic darkness indicating the Hun aggression.

The darkness in which London shrouded herself has served its purpose, yet darkness is one of the conditions that is difficult and hard to bear. For Britain's sake and the world's Britons endured it.

Now they have won the security which means that the lights have again begun to shine.

With dimout, not blackout now, the whole world realizes by the change that in very truth light is overcoming human darkness—in this instance the darkness of Germany's threat to the whole future of mankind and the light of Britain the light of freedom for freedom is light.

There was joy in the world's metropolis as London began to relax the blackout of about five years of war.

British Farm Labor

Perhaps the biggest problem that British agriculture has had to meet during the war is that of labor. That it has been solved at all is due to the Women's Land Army and to the great response by voluntary and part-time helpers. Agricultural workers were "frozen" to their jobs in June, 1940. In general, men over 25, if they are bona fide farm workers, are retained on the farms, and men under 25 are deferred if they are key workers. The Women's Land Army, with a membership of 83,000 in July, 1943, has done much to relieve the shortage, and land clubs and holiday camps for city dwellers provide additional labor when required. Conscientious objectors, prisoners-of-war, and, for emergencies, some members of the armed forces have been other sources of labor supply. Mobile farm labor is available to transfer to areas of acute labor shortages.

Millions of Meals

(C.N.R. Bulletin)

To provide materials for the millions of meals served on Canadian National Railways dining cars calls for gigantic shopping operations on the part of the commissary department. For instance, last year Canadian butchers were called upon supply 1,947,006 pounds of meat; more than half a million pounds of fowl were bought and almost the same quantity of fish. Milk purchases ran to 157,761 gallons; butter to 183,556 pounds; 41,257 pounds of cheese were needed and 290,914 dozen eggs. More than half a million loaves of bread were baked for C.N.R. dining cars. Coffee purchases totalled 99,763 pounds and tea 16,135 pounds. Nearly 300,000 pounds of sugar were used.

NO FAIRY TALES!

I used to think before they came how very nice 'twould be
To tell them many a fairy tale when we had finished tea.
A story-telling Grandpa I was eager to become,
Relating all the splendors of the Land O' Sugar Plum.
But now the time is here for me to bring the fairies out
I find it's fighting supermen they want to hear about.

"No, Grandpa!" Edgar Third exclaims. "Forget the fairy stuff!
I want to hear of Pirate Pete who likes the going rough.
Let's have a tale of Bandit Bill and all his evil crew.
I like the way he tells his gang: 'We've dirty work to do!'
Let's have a battle with the thugs and strew the place with dead,
And imitate the tommy guns when they are spitting lead."

Now I had planned for thirty years a Grandpa wise to be.
In fancy I had seen myself with youngsters on my knee.
I'd kept a store of pretty lore which I proposed to tell,
Fit stuff for little ones to hear before to sleep they fell,
But all the fairy tales are dull; on them the children frown.
They want their heroes supermen who mow the mobsters down!

British Airmen Serving in Russia Perform Heroic Feats of Valor

(By Constantin Simonove in Britain)

The tokens on the collars of their tunics indicated that many of the pilots were volunteers. The badges on the sleeves of others showed that they came from Australia or Canada. They had, in fact, come from all parts of the globe.

The commander himself, a thickset, sturdily built man with greying hair and a tanned face—Lieutenant-Colonel Neville Isherwood—hailed from New Zealand.

The war had brought him here, to the far north, thousands of miles away from his native land. But he, an old soldier, was not at all dissatisfied.

For years he had been a test pilot. There was not a single make of plane now in use in the British force the world over that he had not tested in the air. The red ribbon of the highest award in the British air force embellished his modest grey tunic.

He had seen service in the Sudan, in Burma, in Egypt, in France, in Abyssinia. And now he was here in the Soviet Union—brought here by a soldier's espirit de corps and a soldier's hatred for the common foe.

He told us with a tinge of pride that his "wing" included fliers from all the countries of the British Commonwealth: Australians, Canadians, Rhodesians, South Africans, men from the West Indies, Scotsmen, Welshmen, Irishmen.

"We are fighting here just as stubbornly as we fought in England," Lieutenant-Colonel Isherwood said to me, "fighting together with your men and under the command of your general. I am glad to be here with the Russian people.

"On land we speak in different languages, but directly we go up your fliers and ours immediately find a common language — and that's what's most important."

And that indeed is what is most important. On land the Britishers are rather a taciturn lot. When I asked the major, the commander of a squadron, who had a dozen or so "Jerries" to his record, how he had done it, he said to me after a moment's thought and without even a trace of a smile:

"Sheer luck. When we went up, well, just at that very moment and in that particular locality, the 'Jerries' also showed up. They simply paid for this coincidence. That's all.

* * *

"That's all." This phrase has become international among our men and the British pilots. Neither like to go into details. "We went up, brought them down, got back—and that's all."

And if you want to learn the details of various feats of our airmen the best thing to do is to go to the Britishers, who, discarding their usual taciturnity, go into lengthy descriptions of the splendid fight put up by the Russians.

If you want to know what the Britishers are doing, the best thing is to ask our men.

They will tell you how Captain Rooks, at the height of a battle, dived into a group of Messerschmidts and tackled nine enemy planes single-handed, how he fought, climbed, dived from an altitude of 3,000 metres down to the very sea level, bringing down one Messerschmidt and damaging another.

They will tell you how, during a sudden raid on their airfield, Pilots Bush and Houghmans, with bombs bursting all around them, reached their planes and, speeding down the runway in between the yawning craters, went up and attacked the enemy.

The pilots of our fighter planes who are fighting shoulder to shoulder with the Britishers, here, in the far north, above the icy waters of the Barents Sea, above the bleak rocks of the Polar Circle, will tell you all this and more.

The pilots of our bomber planes speak with soldierly esteem and pride of the British fighter planes who escort them on their raids far behind the enemy lines. No matter what the circumstances, they stick to them like true Britons; our pilots tell how, having brought them to their goal, the British wait for them notwithstanding the terrific barrage put up by enemy anti-aircraft guns, hang on like leeches warding off the attacks of the fighter planes and, with the job finished, escort the bombers back safely home.

However, their respect is mutual. The Britishers highly praise the Soviet bombers. To risk one's life is no easy matter. But they are ready to do so because they know that, here, the results are worth it. They know that no matter how stubborn the enemy's resistance may be, how heavy the odds, no matter in what weather, the Soviet bombers they escort will nevertheless get through and demolish their objective.

* * *

In the underground canteen, the British pilots were chatting and smoking, drinking tea, warming themselves up.

The fortunes of war had brought them here to the far north. Soldiers, in general, have a deep love for their own country and these, too, had brought with them to this remote spot a bit of old England. Inside the canteen we were given a selection of English songs.

At the commander's observation point, on a crate which served as a desk for the field telephone, one of them had printed in bold letters some sort of inscription.

I asked one of the Englishmen to translate it for me.

Captain Cotton smiled.

"It's not so easy to translate," he said. "What's written on that box is the name of a famous London police station in which drunkards of all ranks and classes usually come to rest. The implication is that 'Jerries' of all ranks and classes — from Junkers to Messerschmidts — will find eternal rest here."

Colonel Isherwood offered me a cigarette.

"That's my wife," he said, passing me his cigarette case. In the inside lid was a miniature photograph. "I haven't seen her for ages and that's why I'm getting to be a heavy smoker, so as to see her more often.

"Everything would be fine if only we had some mail. We haven't received a single letter from England yet. But that's a detail. The main thing just now is to fight. As for the letters they're sure to turn up some day . . ."

We said goodbye to our hosts. On the way back we looked in at the headquarters of the Soviet Command.

What interested us was our general's opinion on the work of the Britishers.

"My opinion? Splendid men. They came here to fight and they're fighting like real soldiers. Staunch and disciplined men. There's one thing I have against them—they don't like doing patrol duty. They say it's boring."

COUGH, DEAFNESS, HEAD-NOISES.

Ear specialist informs me that for twenty years he has been curing coughs, deafness and head noises by washing out the ears—to remove plugs or accumulations of hardened ear wax. In fact nearly every day he has one or more patients who come for precisely that treatment, a considerable clientele who call once or twice a year. He says it is too bad people don't know about this common trouble.

A number of patients who have had this ear syringing have experienced so much improvement in hearing that they have been able to lay aside their ear phones. The specialist says it is astonishing what quantities of hardened cerumen careful syringing removes in some such cases.

"By the way," adds the ear specialist, "this ear phone racket should be looked into. Some concerns will sell a phone to anyone, even by mail, without an examination." In the pamphlet on Deafness and Head Noises (for copy send stamped envelope bearing your address, but please do not send a clipping—ask for it yourself) I say "There is no reason why a reputable firm should ask one to make a payment before one is convinced that the instrument will be a help in hearing—and one would be an easy mark to advance a single penny on such a deal." By that I mean, don't sign a contract to buy and don't pay anything down, except perhaps a reasonable rental charge for the time you are using the instrument on trial, or a cash deposit to assure the owner that you will return the instrument.

The ear specialist does not mention dizziness or vertigo, but this complaint, as well as the other complaints the doctor mentions, is common when hardened wax or other foreign body is lodged in the ear canal close to if not in contact with the eardrum.

A peculiar characteristic of the condition is autophony, that is, increased resonance of one's own voice, breath sounds, or heart sounds, such as a thumping, pumping or blowing sound synchronous with the heart beat—this complaint does not necessarily signify an accumulation of hardened wax in the ear canal, as it may occur from other ear troubles. But it should at least arouse suspicion and warrant careful examination of the ear by a physician equipped to diagnose and treat everyday ear troubles.

In the past I have attempted to give detailed instructions for syringing the ear. But the infinite capacity of even fairly intelligent laymen to misunderstand such instructions has cooled my ardor for that sort of thing. I advise any one with any of the complaints mentioned here to visit the physician for examination and, if syringing is required, for instruction by the physician, so that if necessary one can repeat the syringing at home.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Warm-Blooded and Cold-Blooded.

Are some people warm-blooded and others cold-blooded? My husband says no. I am always warm, want windows open, the lightest of clothing, bed covers, etc. My husband wears winter pyjamas all summer, wants two or three blankets over him every night, always closes the windows. He thinks I must be feverish, but whenever my temperature has been taken it was always 98.5. I am 33, he is 36. (Mrs. W. F. O.)

Answer—You are normal, your husband is subnormal, probably he has a slow or low metabolism rate, needs either thyroid feeding (by his doctor) or other treatment to improve metabolism. The Iodin Ration might warm him up a bit.

Late in the Day

Would you advise a man aged 56 years to have an operation to correct lameness from congenital hip dislocation? (D.W.)

Answer—No.

Superstition

If a white family is suspected of having a mixture of colored blood generations ago would there be a danger of having a colored child, grandchild or great grandchild? (Mrs. M. H.)

Answer—No, that is a superstitious notion of ignorant people.

NEW FADS GO TO THE HEAD.

New York, (CP) — Chances are you'll be wearing a hair decoration this fall if you haven't succumbed to the fad already.

Victorian jeweled combs, popular two generations ago, are tucked in upswept hairdos. The casual, simply combed bob is held in place with a jeweled hair clip, or a plain silver or gold beret.

The colored snood is more popular than ever. It is worn tacked with flowers or tiny bows made of felt or ribbon. Or it is worn plain to match or contrast with the color of a hat.

DOMESDAY BOOK

Domesday or Doomsday Book is a digest of a survey of England ordered by William the Conqueror in 1085 to ascertain and record the fiscal rights of the king.

It is in Latin and consists of two volumes, one considerably larger than the other. The smaller deals with the three eastern counties and the other with the rest of England minus the more northern counties.

Commissioners visited each shire and used the hundred as a unit in gathering information. Each entry in the register was made upon the verdict of a jury of twelve men, six Normans and six English.

When digested and written down the data were arranged according to the names of the landowners. Most of the work deals with the valuation of rural estates. The acreage of pasture, timber and arable land is generally indicated. In some shires the number of tenants, cottagers and serfs is included and often water-mills, plow-gates, salt-pans and fish-ponds are enumerated.

A total of 60,251 fiefs were catalogued. Livestock is listed only in the smaller volume.

It was in the nature of an industrial census taken with a view of extending the central power of the government to the entire people and requiring allegiance to the king from the peer down to his serfs.

Although the reckoning is rather crude and confused, the volumes incidentally contain a great store of personal, political, ecclesiastical and social history of that period.

They supply the basis for many land deeds, and in tracing genealogies Domesday Book is to England what the Mayflower Log is to America.

Originally the book was called "the Book of Winchester," after the cathedral city where it was kept, but in the 12th century, during the reign of Henry II, it was already referred to as Domesday or Doomsday Book, supposedly because, like the day of doom or judgment, there was no appeal from the abitrament of its record.

Although the name is generally spelled "Domesday" rather than "Doomsday," it is pronounced "DOOMZ-day" regardless of spelling.

DO STONES GROW?

No belief is more firmly fixed in the minds of many people than that rocks, stones and boulders grow larger, especially if they are in the right kind of soil.

Stones and rocks may contain some of the elements also contained in living things, but they are inanimate and not alive according to any ordinary definition of life.

Consequently they do not grow in the biological sense of the term.

Some rocks, however, do get larger.

A stone that is gradually saturated with water will increase in size.

Stones may also get larger by accretion; that is, they get larger because of the addition of material from without.

They also may expand with heat without contracting again to their original size.

The U. S. Geological Survey once explained why so many people believe that rocks grow in the following way:

Freezing and thawing of the ground causes loose rocks to work up toward the surface.

This is because ice expands when it freezes, and a rock or boulder is lifted slightly by ice that forms underneath it.

When the ice melts the stone does not settle back to its original position, due to soil that has worked its way beneath.

The rocks removed from a field in later years are often larger because the larger rocks work to the surface more slowly than the smaller ones.

It is easy to see how processes like these might lead farmers to think that the rocks grow in size and number in his cultivated field.

The notion that stones grow in size and multiply in numbers in the fields has existed in Britain for centuries.

Canadians Find German West Wall at Dunkerque No Myth

By MAURICE DESJARDINS
(C. P. War Correspondent.)

With the Canadians in France, Sept. 18 (CP Cable)—South and east of besieged Dunkerque, Canadian troops slowly are tightening the net around the formidably-defended objective.

The German garrison has turned some of Dunkerque's coastal defence guns inland and is using anti-aircraft batteries as field artillery. Moreover, a Canadian officer said he believed that in Dunkerque there is one machine-gun to every three or four Germans.

Civilian refugees from the port—scene of the "miracle of Dunkerque" when the bulk of the British Expeditionary Force was evacuated four years ago—said the besieged German garrison had been told that a formidable German army, led by none other than Field Marshal Erwin Rommel, is smashing forward to the rescue. But there was no sign of any relief force to back up that tall promise as I drove around the Dunkerque perimeter.

A survey of the landscape gave a good idea of the tough task facing the Canadians. As far as the eye could see there are enormous concrete blockhouses, pill-boxes, naval gun sites and barbed wire.

"I would like all those who said there was no west wall to be here with us today," said Capt. Camille Gay of Ottawa, a brigade staff officer who took Lieut. Les Callan of Toronto, a war artist, and me on a tour of the sand dunes.

Showing the trousseau were Misses June and Rayma Lowery, Georgina Fox and Mrs. Francis Cormier. Inviting the guests to the tea room was Mrs. Howard E. Hall. Mrs. H. O. Eastman Mrs. W. L. Lockyer, Mrs. Mabel Marshall and Miss Dorothy Kirkpatrick poured tea, assisted by Misses Kathleen and Margaret Moore, Dorothea Hetherington and Jean Cook. Over fifty guests signed the bride's book.

WEDDINGS

BURNETT—McGEACHEY

Ida Mary McGeachey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Freeburn, well-known Flinton residents, was married at St. Simon's Church in Toronto, on Saturday, September ninth, at four p.m., to Mr. Edward Burnett of Toronto, and England.

Rev. Thomas officiated at this quiet ceremony which was held in the chapel, where friends of the bride and groom were invited. The bridal couple were attended by Pte. and Mrs. V. M. Stephens, also of Flinton.

BRIGNELL—FOX

Bridge Street United Church decorated with baskets of gladioli in shades of pink and cream with a background of ferns was the setting for a lovely early Autumn wedding on Saturday afternoon, Sept. 16, when Dorothy Winnifred, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Fox, became the bride of Sergeant Gerald Arthur Brignell, son of Mr. W. W. Brignell and the late Mrs. Brignell, of Halifax, Nova Scotia.

Rev. Dr. J. E. Semple, B.A., Th.D., performed the ceremony and Mr. Alec Gordon presided at the console of the organ. During the signing of the register, Miss Helen Cook was soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiantly lovely in a long fitted gown of ivory satin with insets of lace and a full skirt ending in a slight train. The shirred bodice had a sweetheart neckline and long sleeves ending in points over the wrists. Her floor-length veil of blush tulle illusion was fastened to her hair with a tulle coronet and she carried a cascade bouquet of pink Rapture roses stephanotis and fern. Her only adornment was a double strand of pearls, gift of the groom.

A charming picture was created by the bride's attendants. The maid of honor, Miss Ivah Fox, of Oshawa, was gowned in rose dawn corded silk taffeta, made on fitted lines with a tiny taffeta hat to match trimmed with a pink ostrich tip. She carried a bouquet of pink Delight roses, blue gladioli florets and bouvardia.

Two little nieces of the bride, Miss Shirley and Miss Marylea Fox, were Junior bridesmaids and wore matching long dresses of turquoise corded silk taffeta with pink ruching. They had tiny doll hats of taffeta tied with pink ribbon and they carried nosegays of pink Sweetheart roses and baby 'mums.

Sergeant Douglas Anderson, R.C.A.F., of Malton, attended the groom and the ushers were the two brother of the bride, Herbert W. Fox and Wilbur M. Fox.

The reception followed at the home of the bride's parents. Mrs. Fox received her guests in an ensemble of wood violet shade with hat and three quarter length coat in pencil blue. She wore a corsage of Talisman roses and Bristol Fairy baby breath.

Mrs. J. E. Semple and Mrs. Welland J. Reed, of Montreal, presided at the tea table and the serviteurs were Miss Olive Delaney, Miss Lenore Wilkes, Mrs. Lillian Lafontaine, Miss Elizabeth Laughlin, Miss Irene Miller, Mrs. Iva Barriage and Miss Mildred Wickerson.

For the wedding trip, the bride wore a lime green English wool dressmaker suit, a brown velvet hat and accessories to match and carried a top coat of cocoa brown shade. Her corsage was of Sweetheart roses and bouvardia.

The groom at present is stationed at Winnipeg, Manitoba.

GOODCHILD—BEDORE

Marmora.— Fall plants, snapdragons and asters formed the setting in St. Paul's Anglican Church, Marmora, September 15, at 12.30 p.m., when Doris Joyce Bedore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert Bedore Marmora, became the bride of Clifford L. Goodchild, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. George Goodchild, Deloro. Rev. E. M. Cadigan of St. Andrew's United Church, performed the ceremony. Mrs. W. H. Litt played the wedding music and Mrs. Thomas Dickson, aunt of the bride, sang "Because".

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was wearing a floor-length dress of white lace and long tulle veil with white flower headdress. She carried a bouquet of American Beauty roses.

Mrs. Clayton Bedore was matron of honor, wearing a floor-length dress of blue net over taffeta, blue finger-tip veil and matching flower headdress.

Mrs. Eric Bedore was bridesmaid in a floor-length dress of pink net over taffeta and pink fingertip veil, with matching flower headdress. The attendants carried matching Colonial nosegays of Fall flowers.

Eric Bedore, brother of the bride, was groomsman and Raymond Goodchild, brother of the groom, was usher.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents with fifty guests present. Mrs. Bedore was wearing a navy crepe dress, blue and white hat and corsage of red roses. The groom's mother wore a green dress, tan hat and corsage of red roses.

For travelling the bride donned a brown tailored suit with yellow blouse, brown hat and accessories. After a trip to Toronto and Niagara Falls, the couple will take up residence at Deloro.

Following the singing of a hymn the meeting closed by all repeating the Mizpah Benediction.

IDEAL for a smart occasion is a two-piece frock of chocolate brown moire. It is made with a softly gathered peplum held by a self belt that ties in a casual knot at the side, where it holds two apricot velvet roses. Tiny turn-down collar and tiny rhinestone buttons all the way down the bodice.

The Marry-Go-Round

WILL YOU MARRY ME?

"How can you make a man propose marriage?"

You CAN'T! But that is neither here nor there. This hoary question is always being asked and answered as though every woman since Eve hadn't tried to find the answer.

It came up for discussion amid a brilliant group of women recently, and the answers were something as follows:

"Let him do all the talking. Lead him on to talk about himself."

"Feed him. Lure him with your cooking."

"Flatter him. You'd be surprised how much flattery a man can swallow."

"Try making him jealous."

Well, I expect every woman has tried one or all of those old standard recipes at some time or another. But if any girl ever got a man to propose marriage by one of those methods in these days, she should be kept under glass in the Metropolitan Museum as a positively unique specimen!

As a matter of fact, girls DO "make" men propose, lots of times; but every case is totally different from all the others. And there is no one formula which will work with every man. It's all a matter of chance and circumstances, and of how much the man happens to be in love with you. After that it's up to you to know when to play your winning card.

Why on earth try to "MAKE" a man propose? If I were asked "how to make a man propose" I think I should answer "Tie him to a chair. Write it out, plainly — and make him say it over after you."

Men seldom "propose" in the standard manner, these days, anyhow. One of the most beautiful women I know, and the veteran of three marriages, tells me that she has had only one genuine bona fide proposal of marriage in her life.

Her first was at a friend's country house. He said simply, "Don't you wish this were our house?" And lo, they were engaged.

Her second was standing on a hillside watching the sunset. He suddenly kissed her and said "This is our sunset!" And behold, they were engaged!

Only once in her life, did any man say "Will you marry me?" At the momen they were waiting for an elevator; and so surprised was she, that if the door had been open she would have fallen down the elevator shaft!

It seems to be harder for a man to say "Will you marry me?" in plain English than to recite poetry in Sanskrit. You can sometimes make a man love you—but you can't make him propose to you!

Pickling Pointers and Popular Recipes Tested in Canada's Experimental Kitchen

By LAURA C. PEPPER
Chief, Consumer Section
Dominion Dept. of Agriculture

Behind the imposing stone facade a mountie stands guard; long corridors honey-combed with offices branch off the central hall of this dignified federal government building. Nothing here to bring

And yet . . suddenly the visitor on government business.

And yet .. suddenly the visitors finds himself reminded of home. Strange .. the tantalizing, spicy aroma is stronger now. Surely someone's making pickles! Yes .. someone is making pickles. Downstairs in Canada's experimental kitchen, home economists of the Dominion Department of Agriculture are tested and re-testing innumerable varieties of pickles.

Pickling pointers and a few of the outstandingly good recipes based on recent experimental work are given today.

Pickling Pointers

Start with fresh, prime-quality vegetables or fruits; use ingredients called for in the recipe and follow directions accordingly.

Use a good quality pickling vinegar. If the vinegar is weak and poor in quality, pickles will be greyish in color, cloudy and may not keep.

Use common table or refined dairy salt for pickling. Salt treated to make it free-running in damp weather makes a cloudy brine. Iodized salt is not recommended for pickling.

Whole spices give better color and flavor than ground spices. Spices should be tied in a cheesecloth bag, cooked with the vinegar and then removed. The bag should be large enough to allow the vinegar to boil through the spices and get the flavor out.

Don't let utensils of iron, copper or zinc come in contact with pickles; vinegar and salt react in an unpleasant way with these metals.

Don't be in too much of a hurry to taste pickles. Almost all pickles need time to mellow and will not be at their best for several weeks after making.

Pickles, like other preserved foods like to be stored in a cool, dark, dry place.

Fruit Tamale

8 large or 12 medium sized ripe tomatoes (3 lbs.)
3 peaches (1½ cups, chopped.)
3 pears (1½ cups, chopped)
3 apples (2 cups, chopped)
3 medium onions (1½ cups, chopped)
1 cup celery, chopped
1 small hot pepper (2 tablespoons, chopped) or 6 small dried chili peppers
2 tablespoons whole, mixed pickling spice
1 cup brown sugar
2 teaspoons salt
1 cup pickling vinegar

Blanch, peel and chop tomatoes and peaches. Peel, core and chop pears and apples. Peel and chop onions; chop celery. Remove stem and seeds from pepper and cut very finely, using scissors. Tie spices (including dried chili peppers when used) loosely in a cheesecloth bag. Add spice bag, sugar and salt to vinegar, bring to boiling point and add other ingredients. Bring slowly to boiling point and boil for 45 minutes or until pickle has thickened. Remove spice bag; pack pickles in hot, sterilised jars and seal. Yield about 4 pints.

Green Tomato Pickle

30 medium-sized green tomatoes (7½ lbs.)
6 large onions
½ cup salt
1 tablespoon mustard seed
1 tablespoon whole allspice
1 tablespoon celery seed
1 tablespoon whole cloves
1 tablespoon dry mustard
1 tablespoon peppercorns
½ lemon (optional)
2 sweet red peppers
2½ cups brown sugar
3 cups vinegar

Slice tomatoes and onions thinly and arrange in alternate layers with the salt. Let stand overnight in a crock or enamel vessel. In the morning drain thoroughly, rinse in cold water and drain well again. Tie all spices loosely in a cheesecloth bag. Slice lemon thinly; remove stem and seeds from peppers and cut in thin strips. Add spice bag to vinegar, bring to boiling point and add tomatoes, onions and peppers. Cook for half hour, stirring gently to prevent sticking. Remove spice bag and pack pickles in hot sterilised jars; seal. Yield about 5 pints.

Mustard Pickles

3 quarts pickling cucumbers
1 medium cauliflower
1 quart pickling onions
2 sweet red peppers
2 cups table or refined salt
4 quarts water
¾ cup flour
½ cup mustard
1 tablespoon turmeric
2½ cups sugar
2½ quarts vinegar

Peel onions and cut other vegetables into desired sizes. Make a brine of salt and water, pour over vegetables and let stand overnight.

In the morning, drain. Make a paste of flour, mustard, turmeric, sugar and a little vinegar. Add remaining vinegar, stirring until well blended. Bring to boiling point, stirring constantly until the sauce is slightly thickened. Cook ten minutes. Add prepared vegetables, bring to boiling point and pack in hot, sterilised jars; seal. Yield about 4½ quarts.

Green Tomato Relish

30 medium-sized green tomatoes (7½ lbs.)
½ cup salt
½ medium cabbage
3 sweet red peppers
3 medium onions
6½ cups vinegar
2 cups sugar
1 tablespoon celery seed
1 tablespoon mustard seed
½ tablespoon whole cloves

Put tomatoes through food chopper, using coarse blade. Combine with salt and let drain overnight in a cheesecloth bag. In the morning put cabbage, peppers and onions through food chopper. Combine vegetables, sugar, vinegar and add spices, tied loosely in a cheesecloth bag. Cook over low heat until vegetables are tender, about 20 minutes. Remove spice bag; pack pickles in hot sterilized jars; seal. Yield 6 to 7 pints.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

TO GRADUATE SOON

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am going to graduate soon, and I want to invite a friend from out of town. I know him quite well myself, but neither of my parents have met him, although they know his father.

1. Would it be correct for him to stay at our home for the weekend? We have not much room, but could double up if necessary. If this is not proper where would he stay? Should I arrange for the room and pay for it, in this case?

2. In case it would be late when he arrived should I order my own flowers before hand?

3. I wanted to have my friends come in about nine-thirty before the dance to meet my guest. What could I serve for refreshments? Would it be proper to call this a cocktail party?

4. Should I tell my guest what our crowd wears to formals?

5. If I take him out to dinner would it be correct for me to give him the money to pay for it?

6. At a formal dance is it necessary to introduce your guest to the receiving line? If you only knew the lady's name would it still be necessary?

—CONNIE.

1. If the idea is agreeable to your parents, I think it quite all right for the young man to stay at your home for the weekend of the dance. On the other hand, if he would rather go to a hotel, it is up to him to look after his own expenses.

2. If all the graduates are to wear corsages at the dance which is nearly always the general rule, you would by all means order your own. If your escort wishes to pay for it, that is entirely up to himself. Nothing, of course, should be said to him concerning it.

3. Yes, I think it a very appropriate idea for you to have your friends at your home to meet your escort. This could be called a cocktail party with a fruit cocktail or such together with small sandwiches, pickles, cookies, or cake, served on the occasion.

4. In these war times, dress is quite optional for the men, so I do not think it necessary to inform your friend of what your crowd wears to formals. Of course, if he should ask, that is entirely a different thing.

5. Your escort would be somewhat embarrassed, I should think, for you to offer to pay for the dinner, so I would let him do the honors.

6. It is entirely up to yourself whether or not you wish to introduce your escort to the receiving line.

Rev. H. McCready Speaks of India At WMS Meeting

A special meeting of the W.M.S. of the Wesleyan Methodist Chapel was held in the chapel on Thursday last with the President, Mrs. J. S. A. Spearman in the chair. Following the opening exercises, the guest speaker, Rev. Harriet McCready, missionary and evangelist, was introduced. Rev. McCready has spent several years on the missionary field in India, and her word pictures of her experiences in that land were extremely vivid.

The speaker said, that India is one of the finest countries in the world. It contains some 400,000,000 of people, about one-fifth of the world's population. "If I took a stand", she went on to say, "and the people of India filed past me at the rate of twenty persons per minute, it would take thirty years for, the entire population of that country to pass by". The speaker touched lightly on the possibility of Home Rule for India, a point much in discussion at the present time, establishing the fact, that it is difficult to a common unit of government, where the populace is composed of two very distinct religious sects, the Mohammed and the Hindu She also told of the different castes of the people, and gave some details concerning the bondage of Hinduism. The Hindus and other sects in India do everything religiously. They wash and eat religiously and they go about every phase of their existence religiously. "So", said the speaker, "you can see how exceedingly difficult it is to come in a foreigner with another religion".

She continued to say, that there are many languages in India. Upon arriving at the mission field in the morning, she commenced her language study the same afternoon. "The only way to appeal to these heathen people", she said, "is to live the Christ Life in their midst. Let them see, that you do not want their silver, gold or family goat".

India is full of disease, especially of the skin. There are also many blind and sufferers from eye infections. There is a marvellous opening for medical missionaries for as they bind up the body they can minister to the soul, so stated Rev. McCready.

Rev. H. McCready beseeched the parents to give their children ungrudgingly to this noble course for she said, "Think of it when time will be no more, you may see your son, your daughter leading a file of the blood-washed before the great White Throne". She pleaded with the audience to think of this great work, pray much for it and give unstintingly. Rev. McCready concluded with saying, "At the close of this war, there shall be such an opening up of the foreign field. It behooves us in the homeland to keep the missionary slate burning brightly and to do everything in our power to further the cause of Our Blessed Lord Jesus in distant lands".

Fashion Flashes

Two fabrics are better than one, especially for evening clothes. A charming model is a long, slim sheath in black crepe with an overtunic in net trimmed with silver sequin circles. The tunic flares is rippled and curves deeply in back. Full sleeves and shoulders are of the sequined net.

The nautical look is always a sure-fire hit. A grand little topper of 25-inch length is of navy blue melton with sleeve stripes in dull gold braid and gold stars embroidered on the buttons. Coat is double breasted with high, rounded revers.

First prize for the most attractive coat of the season, we believe, should go to a coat with a skirt and shirt look. The shirtwaist-type top is of boldly striped black and white tweed with big round jet buttons fastening to the waist. Stripes used in chevrons on the wide sleeves. Skirt is of small black and white checken woolen. Black calfskin belt.

No need to complain about the fur coats that are not in the luxury bracket. A grand budget coat, and highly durable, too, is a 33-inch top coat in natural Australian opossum. The blue-gray fur with feathery white markings is "let-out" like mink. Collarless, with muff-wide sleeves.

Nothing yet devised can beat the black and white color scheme. It is used for a splendid coat of above-the-knee length; double breasted, fitted tunic coat of black woollen with collar and high, wide, pointed revers of ermine. Ermine cuffs, too. Collar is upstanding.

A perennial each autumn is the smartly handled silk afternoon-into-evening suit. Wine-colored moire makes a beauty with rippled back peplum and cut-steel buttons. Deep ruffled frills of pale pink mousseline de soie down the deep V neckline and for the cuffs.

ANOTHER REVIVAL that is catching on is the loose coat that is side wrapped and held to the figure. Black woolen with rolled collar, wide cuffs and facings of snowy ermine make a very smart coat of this type.

Beef Pot Roast

Tender and juicy, a pot roast brings you all the goodness of meat and vegetables

More than once in these weekly notes, I have put forward the view that many delicious dishes are less popular than they should be just because they are inexpensive.

People seem to think that what costs less can't be as good. Well, say I, it all depends on how clever a cook you are! Beef rump or chuck cost less—and are often easier to get—than some other cuts; but properly cooked as described in the panel they are as delectable, as tender and as juicy, as any hungry family could desire. Try a Pot Roast next week-end.

Martha Logan

TO COOK A POT ROAST
4 lb. beef rump or chuck
1 tsp. dry mustard
1 tbsp. Silverleaf Lard
1 cup well-seasoned stock or bouillon
6 onions, peeled
8 carrots, scraped

Rub the meat with dry mustard and brown on all sides in hot lard. Season. Place on rack in heavy pot, add stock, cover closely, simmer — never boil — for 3 hours. Add vegetables, allowing just enough time to make them tender.

Saco Marines Rally To Win Game Against Amalganated Electrics 4-3 in 11 Innings

Trailing 2-0 in Ninth but Locals Put on Pressure to Tie it Up

PLAY HERE SATURDAY

Max Peoples' SACO Intermediates are just one game out of the provincial softball finals today as the result of their staging a strong late inning finish in their game against the Toronto champions on Saturday to come home on the long end of a close 4-3 score. Trailing 2-0 going into the ninth the locals applied the pressure to tie the score with the game going eleven innings before the winner was decided.

The second game of the best in two series between the two clubs will be played at the local fair grounds on Saturday evening with a win for the locals putting a Belleville team into the provincial softball finals for the first time in a decade.

First of all it was not the St. Denis Kodaks which the locals stacked up against in Toronto on the weekend. Contrary to reports reaching Belleville before the team left for Toronto on Saturday morning, the Queen City championship had not yet been decided. When the locals arrived in Toronto, Kodaks and Amalgamated Electric were replaying a protested game which Kodaks had previously won. Kodaks lost the protest and the replay so the locals stacked up against the Amalgamated Electric.

Jim Hunter Good

Once again it was big Jim Hunter who stood between the SACO nine and defeat as he set the opposition down with a stingy five safeties over the entire eleven-inning route. Only in three innings did the Toronto nine get runners aboard. Hunter setting them down in order for eight frames.

But despite the fact the locals garnered ten hits off Findlay, the Toronto hurler, it was a pitcher's duel all the way. Held to three hits going into the ninth, the Belleville boys suddenly found the range and at regulation time had the game all sewed up. They scored another run in the tenth, and when the Electrics tied the score in their half, had to go into the eleventh before they maintained their winning margin.

Amalgamated Electric went into the lead in the third frame when Davis singled over short with Verney getting a life as he bounced a single off Hunter's foot. Gibson hit into a forceout at third as Carson and Wardhaugh combined for the out at the hot corner, but McGraw came through with a rousing triple that Phil Loft just failed to reach and the Toronto boys were two runs out in front.

That was the only score until the ninth, although the locals got single runners aboard in the fourth and fifth and also in the eighth innings. It was in the ninth that the fireworks really started.

Three Hits in Row.

Three hits in a row by Barriage, Henn and Carson filled the sacks and with the local fans praying for another safety, Murney Green hit into a forceout at the plate. LaBonne, however, came through with a timely single and two runs raced across the plate. Loft and Wardhaugh were easy outs to end the innings. Amalgamated went scoreless in their half and the game went into extra innings with Whitehead beating out a bunt to start the tenth. Hunter was safe on an error by the second sacker and all moved up on an infield out. Herbie Henn then came through with a long fly to the centre fielder with Whitehead racing home after the catch to put the locals one up.

On a hit which went through Henn's legs at second the Toronto nine got their first batter aboard in the tenth. Davis walked and Verney hit into an unassisted forceout at second. On an error of judgment Henn tried for the double kill at first and the run scored from third on the play. Deller hit a double with Davis stopping at third but McGraw lofted to first to end the frame, and likewise the Toronto threat.

Payoff in Eleventh

The payoff came in the eleventh when LaBonne drew a walk with Loft being safe on the first sacker's error. Wardaugh then was safe on a fielder's choice as the Toronto nine tried too late for the kill at third. With the bases loaded Whitehead again came through with a single and the winning run raced across. Next two outs were made at the plate.

Whitehead's catch of Findlay's short fly to left was the feature of the game, it coming at the start of the eleventh. Next two batters were easy outs to end the game.

Fireworks were added to the pastime when Carson was ruled out of the game in the tenth as he protested the field umpire's decision as he slid into second base. This resulted in a switching of the local's lineup with Whitehead being pulled in from the field to take short and Latchford going into the pasture.

NEW REFEREE

It was officially announced today the Wrestling Commission would appoint a new referee for the return bout between John Katan and Frank Sexton at the Hume Arena Wednesday.

"We don't know who it will be but I'm sure it will be one of three, either Cliff Worthy, Ernie Powers or Billie Nelson of Buffalo," stated Promoter Tunney today. Sexton was in Buffalo over the weekend and claims he was given the business in Belleville. Today Tunney was on the long distance telephone seeking new faces for the preliminaries for what he considers the greatest main bout he ever presented in Belleville.

Detroit Tigers Head American League and History Favors Team Taking the Pennant

Squad Not Forced to Use Best Pitchers in Beating Cleveland

YANKS LOSE TWO

By JOE REICHLER
(AP Sports Writer)

If baseball history repeats, the Detroit Tigers, who surged into first place yesterday, should win the American League pennant this year. The present scramble is following the pattern of the closing days of the furious races of 1908 and 1940. On each occasion three teams came roaring down the stretch neck and neck with only two games separating them. On each occasion the Tigers finished first.

Not to be overlooked is the important fact Detroit jumped to the top on Sunday by beating Cleveland twice without having to use their pair of aces, Paul (Dizzy) Trout and Hal Newhouser. It was Stubby Overmire and Rufe Gentry, a couple of in-and-outers, who turned in a pair of brilliant pitching performances, as the Tigers won 7-2 and 3-0. Overmire hurled eight scoreless innings in the opener, giving up only three hits until the ninth. Gentry had a no-hitter for eight innings in the night-cap, yielding a pair of safe blows in the final frame.

After momentarily staving off the onrushing Tigers by winning the opener from Chicago White Sox 5-1 with the help of Vern Stephens' 19th homer, the Browns lost their hold on first place by dropping the second game 5-2.

Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics dealt the Yankees a severe jolt by winning a double-header from the McCarthymen, 5-4 and 9-2. The double defeat dropped the Yankees into third place, two games behind the Tigers. A former Yankee, Larry Rosenthal, gained sweet revenge when he hit a pinch-hit homer with one on in the ninth to win the opener for the A's.

The Red Sox dropped a costly decision, in losing to Washington 7-6, with Joe Kuhel driving in four of the Nats' runs, three with a base-clearing double in a big six-run 2nd inning.

Chicago Cubs delayed St. Louis Cardinals' pennant-clinching by taking both games by 2-1 scores. Andy Pafko's two-run homer in the seventh won the nightcap for Claude Passeau after Hank Wyse won the opener from Max Lanier.

Pittsburgh and Cincinnati divided their twin-bill, Rip Sewell winning his 18th for the Pirates 7-1 in the opener, and the Reds taking the night-cap 2-1 in 10 innings.

Philadelphia made it four straight over New York Giants winning 7-0 and 5-4, as Bill Lee hurled a two-hit shutout in the opener. Brooklyn and Boston split, Jim Tobin blanking the Dodgers 3-0 for his 17th in the opener and the Dodgers winning 3-2 in the nightcap.

PAPERS REVEAL ZULU HISTORY

Pietermaritzburg, South Africa, (CP)—A valuable collection of documents dealing with the early history of Natal have been handed to the South African High Commissioner in London, Col. Deneys Reitz. The documents belonged to the late James Stuart, who was assistant secretary for Native affairs in Natal and a great research scholar on Zulu history. Most important among the papers is the diary of Henry Fynn, one of the earliest Natal traders, who became adviser to the Zulu kings Chaka and Dingaan.

NEWARK BEARS TEAM TO BEAT IN THE PLAYOFFS

Defeat Toronto Twice Over Weekend to Hold Distinct Edge

BISONS BEAT BIRDS

By The Associated Press

Newark Bears loom again as the team to beat in the International League Governors' Cup playoffs.

The Bears are now two games up on Toronto in their semi-final series, as they racked up a 3-2 11-inning decision yesterday at the expense of Leaf ace Al Jarlett. Jarlett, who had singled home the tally that sent the Leafs ahead 2-1 in the seventh, walked two to start the 11th. Bill Rabe then decided things with a clean base hit.

Phil Page, who came in to pitch the 10th, was returned the winner. Frank Hiller started and was succeeded by Don Johnson in the 8th. Jarlett went all the way for the Leafs.

Buffalo started its series with Baltimore by scoring an upset over the pennant winners, 9-4, before a playoff record crowd of 25,562. After reaching Red Embree, top pitcher in the league, for four runs in the 1st three innings the Bisons staged a five-run rally in the eighth to break a 4-4 tie.

GALT TERRIERS EVEN SERIES

By The Canadian Press

No less than 16 errors, 10 of 'em by the losing nine, were chalked up in the senior "B" clash of the Ontario baseball playdowns yesterday at Windsor when the visitors, Galt Terriers, walked off with a 7-2 verdict to square the duel with Windsor Local 195. A dispute ensued over the playing of a third and deciding game immediately on the same diamond, the Terriers declining to take the field. Windsor lined up to accept the award but the issue has been referred to the O.B.A.

At Tilbury, Chatham eliminated Tecumseh 6-3 in the intermediate "A" playdowns yesterday, Jim Kearns being the heavy-stick man for the winners with a double and three singles in four trips to the plate.

Kitchener Rangers were shoved out of the O.B.A. junior "B" playdowns at home Saturday when St. Catharines Lincolns walked over them 6-3, marking up a four-run splurge in the ninth against Lucien Laflamme.

Woodstock Lions Saturday drew first blood in the O.B.A. juvenile semi-finals with a 7-6 verdict against Sarnia after a 12-inning battle on the Woodstock sandlot.

London juveniles took their series from Windsor Saturday by defeating the Border City nine 4-0 at Windsor for the second straight triumph.

In the Niagara Senior League playoffs Saturday, Hamilton walloped Welland Atlas 10-3 on the Hamilton diamond to square the series at one apiece, Deacon Wasser being the winning twirler.

New York, Sept. 18 — (AP) — Overseas sports roundup:

In the swim

The Allied swimming championships in Rome were held about a month ago but the results just reached this dept. . . . The Allied 5th Army zone team, composed mainly of Japanese-Hawaiians and led by Halo Hirose and Charlie Oda, won the meet in which contestants included British, American, French, French-Moroccan, Palestinian and Yugoslav-Partisan soldiers . . . Climax of the three-day meet was a water polo "exhibition" between the North African champion soldier team and a team of Yugoslavs who had been pulled out of the front lines by Marshal Tito . . . Stars and Stripes reported: "and won by six goals to three, three torn headdresses and a couple of strangled screams."

Pacific Playboys

From the Southwest Pacific, Cpl. Dick Case, who used to write mostly about trotting horses, turns his attention to boxing to report: "I have seen some truly great Fijian boxers. The good fighters are tops and all are great show men. They want to go to the States after the war."

Football from France

Cpl. Doug Gary, who is busy punting Nazis out of France, takes time out for this request . . . Could you give me some idea how football stacks up this year? . . . We are playing another game over here, but it should be over by Thanksgiving and as football closes, we should close too." . . . How about a Berlin bowl game, Doug?

DOCTORS DISAGREE ON WOMEN'S SPORTS

London (CP) — Today's question: Should girls take part in tug-of-war sports events?

Writing in the British Medical Journal an ex-athlete doctor says no, that tugs-of-war are the "least desirable form of athletics taken by adolescent boys. The female muscles .. are less adaptable to tug-of-war."

Another doctor says, "If a woman can give birth to a child she can certainly take part in a tug-of-war. The objection is really a relic of Victorianism when women were wrapped in cotton wool."

As for the girls' schools, few of them allow tug-of-war anyway.

What's Doing in Sport

(By The Canadian Press)

The Neons of Vancouver, B.C., advanced the first step yesterday in the women's division of the International Softball Tournament at Cleveland by handing a 4-1 defeat to the T.N.T. girls team of Rochester, N.Y.

The National Pro Football circuit got under way yesterday with three games. Philadelphia handed Detroit a 27-7 lacing; Green Bay Packers outscored Brooklyn 14-7 and Chicago Bears measured New York 20-10.

The favored Equifox was beaten by a neck by Night Shadow, four-year-old filly, in the $13,300 autumn handicap at Hawthorne, Chicago, Saturday.

At Detroit fair grounds Saturday, 15,569 fans saw T. C. Melrose's Restless come up from seventh place to cop the $15,000 Eclipse handicap by a head from the favored Seven Hearts.

Memphis turned back Nashville 4-2 yesterday in 10 innings to assume a 3-1 lead in the best-of-seven series of the southern association final baseball playoffs.

Maj. Conny Smythe, M.C., back from the war as a stretcher case, said Saturday at Halifax the question of whether he will accept the presidency of the National Hockey League depends on a lot of things—not the least of which is his recovery from a shrapnel wound. The former firebrand manager of Toronto Maple Leafs, who took a light anti-aircraft battery overseas almost two years ago, came back to Canada aboard the hospital ship Lady Nelson. He was on his back from a shrapnel wound along his spine that temporarily paralyzed him.

Ted Atkinson, Toronto jockey, booted home five consecutive winners at Aqueduct Saturday, following wins in the last two races Friday. He now has a record of 202 victories for the season, compared with 200 last year.

Paul Vineyard accounted for three winners on the closing card of grand circuit racing at the Trenton, N.J., fair Saturday when he drove Singapore to the fore in two straight heats of the 2:23 trot, sent Chuck Signal to victory in three heats of the 2:12 trot and piloted Milt Hanover to capture the 2:18 trot. Vineyard was second in only one of nine heats.

RESIGNS FROM WAAFS

London (CP) — Dame Katherine Trefusis-Forbes has resigned her post as air chief commandant of the Women's Auxiliary Air Force on completing special duties overseas. Her successor is Air Commandant Lady Welsh, wife of Air Marshal Sir Wm. Welsh.

LIFE OF NAVAL GUNS SHORT OFF NORMANDY

London (CP) — Although given a brand new set of six-inch guns for the invasion of Normandy the British cruiser Enterprise did so much bombarding that she soon had to be equipped with new guns.

After supporting the American landings for nine days she returned to Britain for more ammunition—with only 21 shells left on board. Altogether she fired more than 4,000 rounds. In those first nine days she attacked 22 enemy gun batteries and 31 other targets, mostly troops and tank concentrations, with great success.

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 483

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

When Elva Tyme gives you a piece of her mind, you don't get much. She is likely to say: "I had an extra plus." Or "That's not a plus any more. This year it is only half a plus."

The strangest thing about some bridge players is not that their heads soon come to a peak. It is that they are so gullible as to believe that the values of cards can change like the price of wheat; or that the counting of a plus or half a plus is essential.

When the world gives us plus values and halves, we may have some peace. Bridge players will then do what nature intended them to do. And there will be fewer arguments.

There are so many good things to learn in bridge. Good things that make bridge easy and efficient. Good things that make a player confident of what he is doing.

If you are interested in knowing how many tricks you can take, why do it the hard way? Why use fractions and cumbersome tables? At no-trump, just count one trick for each ace or king or queen.

Make eyes at this hand:

♠A K Q
♥A K J
♦Q 9 8 2
♣K Q 8

You see eight aces, kings, queens. Consider them as eight no-trump tricks. Open that hand with two no-trump, the signal for showing a hand that expects to take eight tricks at no-trump.

Why do you use such a signal? To tell your partner that you can make a game in no-trump if he has one no-trump trick. Because his one and your eight will make the nine tricks.

Maybe you would like to count your jack as a plus. If so, what for? Only as an excuse to see if it is worth a gamble for another trick. Then, call it a gamble and cut out the monkey business.

Horse Sense cuts out the double talk. It lets you understand what you are doing. That's why it is the bridge system of the future.

Sunday Morning Class Winners Of First Game

Racing home in the 6th inning on Tiny Morrison's drive to left field, Marie (Genereaux) Kirkpatrick, formerly of Point Anne assured the Toronto Sunday Morning Class a spot in the World's Ladies Softball championship semi-finals when they defeated Phoenix, Arizona, by a close 1-0 score on Saturday.

Thelma Golden, hurling for the Classers, pitched a one-hitter, striking out nine and walking but one. She missed a no-hitter, when the second-to last batter in the ninth banged out a single. Pitcher Pelara for Pheonix struck out five of the Classers.

According to Ken Colling, sport editor for The Family Journal, who is holidaying in Cleveland, the toughest teams to beat in the series will be Jax, New Orleans, Erin Brews and Cleveland. Jax and Brews played on Sunday. Classers have a splendid chance to cop the series, says our sports editor.

Pullman Section Of Fast Train Breaks in Two

By C. R. BLACKBURN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Three Rivers, Que., Sept. 18 — (CP) — Occupants of a heavily loaded 13-car Quebec-Montreal train today thanked their lucky stars for complete escape from injury when the Pullman section broke in two 12 miles east of this St. Lawrence city and the train was scattered along a quarter mile of twisted right of way.

The train left Quebec yesterday afternoon at 1.35 with an extra Pullman section to carry close to 100 news, radio and camera correspondents from Canadian and American centres who had been covering the Churchill-Roosevelt conference.

At Red Mill siding, an almost straight stretch of right of way, nearly two hours out of Quebec, the switch points were torn, possibly by a broken flange on the engine driving wheel.

The engine, off the rails but driving straight ahead over the ties, and the baggage and one Pullman car remained almost upright on the torn and twisted ties.

The third car from the engine, a Pullman, broke away and was whiplashed back and forth finally coming to rest with the front section but canted at a sharp and dangerous angle over the ditch.

The fourth car, after the breakaway, plunged at a sharp angle into the soft, black loam on the adjoining field, plowing ahead like a bulldozer until the vestibule was almost completely buried.

Remain Upright

That car led two others off into the field but the remaining seven cars, mostly coaches, remained on the track bed but most of them resting on twisted and broken rails.

The greatest shock was in the Pullman at the tail of the front section after the break and it seemed certain, for a time, that it would roll over.

Passengers were enjoying the Quebec countryside at its best when the crash occurred. It was a sunny, warm afternoon and the train, fortunately was not travelling at high speed.

Almost before the dust had settled moving and still picture men were clambering over the wreckage like monkeys with their cameras and reporters were chasing across the hot countryside in search of telephones.

From every car along the line the report came almost instantly that there had not been even a slight casualty nor even a sign of panic.

Relief Train Used

A field telephone was attached to the wires lining the tracks and in a short time a relief train from Three Rivers was transferring passengers and baggage.

R. K. "Andy" Carnegie, chief of the Ottawa Bureau of The Canadian Press, Dana Doten, Ottawa representative of the Office of War Information, and the writer, were in the car that got a whip-lashing and almost turned over.

Carnegie had just lighted a cigarette, passed the match to Doten who lighted his and passed the match on to the writer who used it with some misgivings about three on a match. Almost at that instant the grinding and swaying and bumping told us we were in a train wreck.

A number of people in that car had difficulty in preventing themselves from being tossed around and some slipped to the floor.

AT THE BELLE — Star headliners in M.G.M.'s Technicolor film, "Broadway Rhythm," are George Murphy and Ginny Simms, with a swell cast including Charles Winninger, Gloria DeHaven, Nancy Walker, "Rochester." Swinging in the rhythm is Tommy Dorsey and his orchestra.

PLANS MADE

time than at any previous conference. These plans, Mr. Roosevelt said, stretch as far into the future as it is possible to project them when world events are unfolding rapidly.

In a remark taken to have been directed to possible differences of view between the western Allies and Russia on post-war questions, Mr. Churchill declared there was no reason to despair of the future.

Pleased With Result.

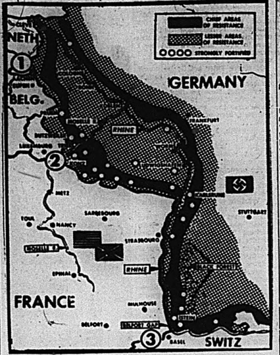
The British Prime Minister, obviously pleased with the results of the conference and with the trend of the war, said he could not pretend to be in a humble frame of mind and he turned on Japan the same wit and invective he was accustomed to hurl at Hitler and the Germans during the dark months of German triumphs and Britain's back-to-the-wall fight.

From all this and from the fact that Mr. Churchill stated it was at his insistence the conference was called correspondents deduced that one of his prime purposes was to make sure that Britain was in at the finish of Japan—and with large forces.

When he was telling of what he called "the only difference" that arose at the conference a difference as to who would do what, he said that Prime Minister Mackenzie King had come in and claimed a share for Canada.

Wartime Secrecy hides the movements of Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill since their appearance Saturday before reporters on the sun-bathed terrace of the citadel overlooking the St. Lawrence River Saturday. They received honorary degrees from McGill University at a unique special convocation, talked to reporters for half an hour, and then went "off-the-record" until their respective arrivals at Washington and in Britain.

CLOSE-UP OF SIEGFRIED FRONT



Against the Siegfried line, key defences of which are outlined on this map, the U. S. 1st Army now makes its mighty smash. First crack in the line (1) came just beyond Eupen when the tiny frontier village of Botgen fell in the smash on Aachen. In the battle of the Moselle, near Trier (2), the Patton 3rd Army hits with tank destroyers and infantry, while (3) the American-French forces, which met near Dijon, rapidly close the Belfort Pass gateway to south Germany, cutting off many thousand fleeing Nazis.

Child Star Subs Talent for Looks

By ROSALIND SHAFFER
(Associated Press Writer)

Hollywood (CP) — "I was sure there must be a place in Hollywood for a plain little girl with talent," said Peggy Ann Garner's mother as she sat in a dressing room on the set of "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn." It was a searing hot day and as is traditional in films, snow scenes were being made, with the cast in woollens and furs and the set piled high with synthetic snow.

Peggy Ann came in, beads of perspiration on her pert little nose. She tugged at the heavy costume she wears as "Francie," stymied by the back buttons customary in that era. She quickly wriggled her active little body out of the horror and put on a cool gingham jumper dress.

Peggy, whose father is Lieut. W. G. H. Garner of Camp Pine, New York, is a direct, natural sort of child, unspoiled by the adulation given glamor children. She's not pretty in the ordinary sense, but her sensitivity and quick intelligence and the wistful appeal in her round little face, make Peggy Ann attractive beyond the ordinary.

She loves pretty things. Her mother says her eyes filled with tears when she saw her wardrobe as the slum child, Francie. She had had a similar one in every role, in "The Pied Piper"; "Jane Eyre," and now "A Tree." She is looking forward to her next "Nob Hill," because she'll be an heiress, with curls and feminine finery.

A Heavy Role

Peggy Ann's role in the story has 367 speeches, 90 more than Jennifer Jones' role as "Bernadette."

When Peggy was three, a stranger passed her parents who had the child on a shopping expedition in New York and asked if she were an actress or a model.

"She has a fortune in her face," he said, and walked on. But he had planted an idea. When the child, as a Powers model, began to show she had unusual appeal and acting talent as well, it was decided to give her dramatic training.

Her first professional work was in stock in New York and Washington as "Europena" in "Mrs. Wiggs of The Cabbage Patch." In 1937 her mother brought her to Hollywood. It was some months before Peggy Ann got a role in "The Thoroughbred"; almost a year and a half before "In Name Only," as Carole Lombard's daughter; another year and a half before "Abe Lincoln in Illinois." "The Pied Piper" definitely set her as a dramatic actress of importance.

Toronto, Sept. 18 — (CP)—Plans were announced today for two conferences this winter for farm young people of Ontario — one at the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph and the other at the Agricultural School at Kemptville.

The conferences, each of which will last two days, were recommended by the executive of the Ontario Junior Farmers Association at a recent meeting in Toronto.

The War Today—
Hope of Lasting Peace Demands Germany Be Thoroughly Whipped

By J. M. ROBERTS, JR.
Substituting For Dewitt Mackenzie.
(Associated Press War Analyst)

Reports from the western front that the Allies expect a street-by-street defence of German cities and widespread guerilla warfare serve to highlight a situation which has been in the wind all the while and which is not entirely displeasing.

Every hope of any sort of lasting peace demands that Germany be thoroughly whipped on the field of battle, and that it shall be done under the very eyes of her people—all her people. Bombing is too impersonal. But millions of Britons, Frenchmen, Americans, Canadians, Poles, Russians, Czechs, Greeks, Italians, Norwegians, some Japanese—men from every race, marching through Germany, wiping out her army, burning the nests of snipers, hanging war criminals, may impress enough Germans to do some good. It is a lesson they have been needing for 100 years—that their habit of following any grandiose-talking warrior can lead them only to destruction.

That the war in Europe soon will be reduced to just this sort of rat-hole cleaning-out seems obvious. If it seems heartless to favor such, as against an immediate German surrender which would save many lives, you need only the answers of the men who must do the job—that they had rather pay the price now than to feel that their sons must go through what they have gone through.

The landing of a great airborne army behind the Germans in Holland emphasizes the pressure against the Reich from all sides. Where a few months ago she was losing men by the hundreds, she now loses them by the tens of thousands. If this is to take place before the eyes of all the Herrenvolk, so much the better.

Cardinal Carries Message Belief Of London Paper

London, Sept. 18 —(CP Cable)— The Daily Telegraph in a dispatch from Rome today reported that Cardinal Villeneuve, Roman Catholic Archbishop of Quebec who now is in Britain on his way to Italy, is believed to be carrying with him a message from Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt to the Pope.

The dispatch said: "The Prime Minister had a long audience of the Pope during Mr. Churchill's visit here (in Rome) and it is thought the matters they then discussed have been carried a stage further at Quebec."

"THAT KEITH WOMAN"

By Phyllis Moore Gallagher

CHAPTER 22

I said, "Hello pal. How about meeting me on the terrace and getting your head bashed in?"

There was a good deal more levity in that remark than I actually felt when I hung up, for I was trembling. Peter and I went into the dining room and were walking slowly toward the reception hall when Heath came charging toward us, eyes popping, chest heaving.

"The murderer's out there on the grounds somewhere with some kind of trick telephone connection!" he cried breathlessly. He tore off through the solarium door.

Peter and I went upstairs to Pamela's bedroom. We picked up her private telephone and called the other number of the house. This time Sergeant Hornblower answered and I said: "Come on out on the terrace, pal, and get yourself konked!"

When we came downstairs, Hornblower was racing out the solarium door. At the window, Peter and I watched the two officers on the lawn. Plain-clothes men were coming to them on the run, they huddled in consultation, then struck out in different directions, probing under pine trees, pushing up the willows.

"It didn't take any time at all," I said. "Not even five minutes. Anyone could have made a call like that, met Pamela on the lawn—and murdered her. So, Peter—no one has an alibi. No one!"

"I guess you're right," he conceded.

Peter and I wandered deep in the dark solarium and stood there thinking. Great drops of rain began to fall like leaden plummets on the patio. We could hear servants slamming down windows. The lightning flared balefully, the thunder was ominous. There seemed to be a warning in that incessant noise outside, in the rain that was now pouring in sheets on the solarium panes.

"Peter," I began. "I think I know how to solve this case. It will be a risk, but I can't see any peace for any of us until the murderer is behind bars."

I told him what I intended to do and Peter said thickly: "No! No! I won't let you do that."

"But the way I plan it, there wouldn't be much danger. Not—too much, anyway."

"No," Peter almost shouted, and he took me by the arm and led me to the drawing room.

Just as we reached the arched doorway there was another loud clap of thunder, and all the lights in the house went out. I heard Gladys Newcomb scream, and I saw Sandra's face lined against that darkness by another vivid flash of lightning. It was a horrible face in that moment. I wouldn't have believed Sandra Keith could look like that.

I clung to Peter, conscious of movement all around us, of Sergeant Hornblower coming in from the library, whispered voices, a door opening and Heath asking in a loud voice what had happened now. A bulk brushed past me and my blood froze...but no hands reached out to clutch my throat. Presently the lights came on, and there was Hornblower with a burnt-out fuse in his hands. I looked around the room, holding my breath...but there was no dead body in our midst.

Promptly the drawing room lights went off again, and Hornblower told us to go into the dining room. We did, gathering around the big table there. I looked at everyone carefully. Those white, tired, strained faces—and one of them was a murderer. This long horrible week had changed us all perceptibly...

"No one is to leave this house tonight," Sergeant Hornblower ordered. "Miss Keith, can you make arrangements to take care of everyone?" Sandra said wanly that she could.

Hornblower was still talking, but I had ceased looking at him. I wondered if I went over to Marvin Eustace and said suddenly: "You murdered Pamola!" would I see an utter stranger with blazing eyes that were white and venomous, and lips that were knife-thin and cruel and murderously ruthless?

I wondered what Gladys would do if I accused: "You and Reginald murdered Pamela together, and then you murdered Reginald because he knew too much...."

I closed my eyes then and saw the words, bright as letters in a neon-tube, running through my mind: PAMELA WAS KILLED BY A SINGLE MURDEROUS BLOW; REGINALD'S HEAD WAS PUMMELED. I kept my eyes closed, seeing the dining room as it had been on the night of Pamela's dinner party: Pam at the foot of the table; Wayne Courtney at the head, myself, Elsie Eustace and [illegible] Pines on the right; Gladys Newcomb, Marvin Eustace and Fanella Castigena on the left.... The only clue to the murder was right there at that dinner table, and I should have seen it days ago. It was such a little thing, and yet it was so very important.

Suddeny I began to shiver. I KNEW WHO MURDERED PAMELA KEITH. I KNEW! But I couldn't prove what I knew unless ...I tried the experiment I had told Peter about in the solarium! And I was afraid to attempt that.

I don't know just what I would have decided if the telephone hadn't intervened.

Heath answered the call and said: "For you Miss Randolph."

I crossed over to the phone in the corner of the dining room, trying not to show how my legs were trembling. When I picked up the golden instrument, I saw that my fingers were shaking. Purposely, I made my voice loud, for I was getting an idea: a terrible idea.

It was Dad on the phone, as I'd thought it might be.

"Well, so that's where you are, are you? Taking care of Sandra, I presume. Well, just wanted to check up on you, honey. Guess it's all right you're over there since the murderer is now behind bars. I read all the papers. The boy must be insane. ..Well, no use going into trat now. Look honey, where is my laundry? I want a clean night-shirt!"

I held my breath. This phone call was giving me the opening I needed and I stood there thinking furiously.

"Oh-h, yes?" I asked.

"Did the laundry come today, Letty?" Dad asked.

"Oh, now I undersand. Marcella Kingsley. Yes of course."

"Marcella Kingsley? What do you think I said?"

"Oh-h, on the roof," I declared, and it wasn't difficult to make my voice sound frightened for the benefit of my audience in the dining room—and—the murderer!

I was panicked and Dod was fit to be tied. "ON THE ROOF! Letty Randolph, why the blinkey-blank did you put my night-shirts on the roof?"

"Look, I can't explain anything now. I'll tell everything tomorrow, Clem," I said.

"Clem! Letty what is the matter with you? THIS IS YOUR FATHER. Who are you talking to?"

"Someone in this room."

"Oh," he said placated. "Where is a night-shirt, honey?"

"I don't know, I said. "See you tomorrow."

Dad was growling as I cradled the instrument. I turned and, out of the tails of my eyes, I saw the murderer—those wide dilated eyes, the hand moving up to the throat, and the lips thinly compressed, as if breathing was as difficult as inhaling threads of wool. My stomach contracted with a miserable feeling of loathing and a dreadful stirring fear....

I fixed my gaze on Sergeant Hornblower then. He was swollen with suppressed excitement.

"Well," he said—and I knew he expected me to tell him what I had promised to tell someone tomorrow morning. "Well, Miss Randolph?"

Thunder rumbled overhead. "Is there something you wanted to ask me, Sergeant?" I queried.

"Something I wanted to ...." His face grew a violent red. "That was Clem Barkley on the Tribune you were talking to, wasn't it? What about Marcella Kingsley on the roof? What are you and Clem up to? A scoop for that paper?"

"I wasn't talking with Clem," I said truthfully. "I was talking to Dad. He wants to know where his night-shirts are."

"At four in the morning, Miss Randolph?"

"Dad doesn't like to sleep raw at any time."

"You called him Clem."

"Did I? Clem must be thinking about me," I said, and pretended to yawn. Then asked: "May I have the yellow room tonight, Sandra?"

"Why, of course," she said, and her voice was somehow like the flick of a snake's tongue. Quick! Sharp! The edge of a nervous hiss in it!

I turned and walked, stiff and erect, out of the room and up the stairs. I know now how a condemned man feels on that short, ghastly stretch from the death-house to the chair. My mind revolved with thoughts... I had fixed myself.

Only the murderer knew that Marcella Kingsley had any connection with Pamela's murder and Reginald's...And I'd talked about Marcella over the phone; it sounded as if I knew and was going to spill it—and the murderer had been watching me, fear glazed in those wild eyes.

I wondered if Peter didn't understand what I was up to? If the telephone conversation had gone over his head? I had outlined this plan to Peter and he'd told me I coudn't do it and I'd said I wouldn't....

Of course Peter got it; he wasn't obtuse....Still, I wished I'd caught his eyes somehow....

The wind blew its fury against the house, panes rattled. Somewhere near the roof there was a long sigh, born of ice and rain and wind....

And death, I thought.

Death!

I lay in bed, feeling that any moment now—the next one—this very moment, perhaps — the door would open, slowly, stealthily...

And someone else would be in the dark bedroom with me. Someone else and fear too: destroying terror reaching out to kill—to murder. To murder me...

It helped to know that Peter Gibson was in the adjoining bath listening for the opening of that corridor door, ears strained for any intruder whose movements would be disciplined to silence... any shadow creeping inexorably closer to me through the thick blackness....

A flash of flightning slit the black clouds, and thunder reverberated through this House of Death! My scalp pricked. Homicidal hands had reached into this house twice, crushing Pamela Keith and Reginald Fielding ... And tonight they would reach for me.

I was not alone in nerve-wracked wakefulness, I knew. Peter was awake. The murderer was awake. Wakefulness seemed to perch like a ghoul over the whole house, while the storm's banshees shrieked nd, so it seemed, wailed. No one slept, I was sure of it! I could almost feel the spectral impact of their restless, frightened minds against my own.

The antique grandfather clock on the second floor landing tolled a musical signal, booming a slow, deliberate, funeral half hour .... Deadly doubts assailed me....Had the catch on the bathroom door been released before I climbed into bed? If not, the door was locked on my bedroom side and Peter would not be able to reach me in time .... Surely I hadn't touched that catch, had I? But Peter must have checked the door carefully for his entrance. ... Surely Peter had understood that phone conversation of mine, using Clem's name, talking about the roof and Marcella Kingsley — making the murderer realize I knew his identity.

I was just pushing back the covers to examine that bathroom lock when I heard the merest whisper of sound through the stormy night. Stiff from terror, my eyes straining through the darkness, I saw the hall door open—a narrow slice of light showing as it opened, and a second later a ghostly bulk slipped through and noiselessly closed the door.

There wasn't the slightest sound in the room now. Peter couldn't have heard! The tumultuous night smothered the merest whisper of sound as the door opened and the movement of feet creeping closer and closer to my bed . . If there were just some noise to startle the murderer! And alarm Peter . . .

The murderer was close!

I knew it. I knew that I had only to reach out my hand now, and I would touch the bulk of that shadow.

My eyes were closed fast, screams crowded my throat. Suddenly my eyes flew open and as lightning flashed, I saw the ghostly figure poised beside my bed and the blurred white patch that was—

SANDRA KEITH'S FACE!

A scream choked on my lips; a sound came scarcely louder than a sigh. Then the bed I was on seemed to be sinking . . . down, down . . .

The last thing I remembered was that a blurred white patch that was no longer Sandra's face but a grotesque foreshortened semblance of it, and an indistinct elongated shadow separating from the bulk of the shadow . . . An arm! And something glittering ... something catching the reflection of another single shaft of lightning ...

Then I managed to scream, and lights blazed up suddenly in the room. Peter's voice drew me back abruptly from that world of fainting darkness which had almost claimed me. I saw a great many things at once ...

Peter, his face gray his eyes blazing, leaping across the wide room from the bath, a small revolver in his right hand ... The figure beside the bed whirling, with fire-tongs upraised!

Just as those fire-tongs were swung, Peter swerved and fired once. A panel of the bathroom door splintered. The rigid figure beside me cried out in pain, the hand that clutched at my shoulder showed a trickle of blood . . . His eyes were darting about, seeking escape. One step was taken . .

"LUKE CRAMER!" I whispered, as he crumbled to the floor. "LUKE!"

I had expected it. I had known Luke Cramer was guilty. And yet seeing Sandra Keith beside my bed, and now Luke sinking to the floor, was a terrific shock. I tried to clear my head, shaking it miserably. ... Had I but seen Sandra Keith beside my bed in a bed dream born of hysteria?

Then I saw Sandra!

She was leaning against the wall at the head of my bed, white-faced, still too frightened to move . . . I stared at her. Finally she spoke.

"I came to talk with you, Letty. I didn't want anyone else to know. I came to ask you not to tell Clem Barkley or the police or anybody anything about Vic—and Marcella Kingsley. I was about to awaken you when—I heard the doorknob. I pressed up against this wall here. . . . Someone came in. I—didn't know it was Luke. I saw him raise those fire-tongs and I—screamed."

Sandra stood with her face buried in her hands. "I knew Vic wasn't guilty," she sobbed. "I knew it."

So it was Sandra who had screamed, diverting Luke's attention from me, just long enough... Thinking of what could have happened, I passed out cold.

Quebec French Rancor Still Runs Deep Says Australian

Sydney, Australia, Sept. 18—(CP Cable) — Don Whitington, who recently toured Canada with other Australian newspapermen, in an article in the Sydney Daily Telegraph today refers to the selection of Quebec for the Churchill-Roosevelt talks as "an apparent paradox" and says: "Quebec has no great affection for the English, little time for the Americans and is almost indifferent to the Pacific and the war against Japan."

The article is headed: "Quebec French rancor still runs deep."

After describing the history of the "special outlook of the Quebec people," Whitington says: "They would fight to the last man to defend Canada but see little reason why they should fight Japan. One reason for their rabid isolationism is probably their failure to merge with the British and Americans.

"Their leaders discourage intermarriage, encourage retention of the French language, insist on separate education, are adamant against conscription for service outside American waters and bitterly opposed to trade unionism. But the war has broken down many of these prejudices. French-Canadians may not be particularly fond of Britons but wouldn't support any move for the severance of Empire ties. Whether French Canada is prepared to go beyond that to the extent of sending her men to help Australia in the Pacific is another matter."

H.M.C.S. IROQUOIS MAKES HISTORY—SINKS 8 GERMAN VESSELS

A torpedo from Iroquois explodes with devastating violence against the hull of the flag ship. Foam and debris are thrown high into the air and the German navy has one less ship. H.M.C.S. Iroquois was a member of a striking force which included the cruiser H.M.S. Mauritius and H.M.S. Ursa. Eight German ships were destroyed during the action.

This heavily armed German flak ship was fleeing along the French coast about 30 miles south of Brest when this picture was taken by Sub.-Lieut. Roy Kemp, R.C.N.V.R., naval photographer, who was on board the Canadian Tribal class destroyer, H.M.C.S. Iroquois. In the background is the French town of Audierne. The Canadian destroyer didn't wait long to take advantage of the broadside target presented by the German ship.

SMASH STRONG NAZI ATTACK

In Germany, Sept. 18 6:30 p.m.—(AP)—In the bitterest fighting since D-Day, American troops smashed strong and repeated German counter-attacks supported by far heavier artillery and air action than ever was met in France or Belgium.

Supported by fresh reserves from the Russian front, the Germans are fighting desperately to stop at all cost the advance of American forces into Germany.

But the American's great thrusts still inch forward about Aachen, and their attacks to the north of Aachen have gained ground.

REACH CITADEL OF BOULOGNE

Allied Supreme Headquarters, Sept. 18 —(CP Reuters)— First Canadian army troops have reached the citadel of Boulogne, great French channel port which came under an all-out assault by Lt.-Gen. Crerar's forces yesterday, headquarters said tonight.

Fighting is taking place in the streets of the port, headquarters added.

SUPPLIES TO AIRBORNE ARMY

London, Sept. 18 —(CP)— A great armada of bombers and transport planes fed supplies today to the Allied airborne army which invaded Holland vertically, and destroyed 27 of 60 German fighters which tried to interfere.

TILBURG OCCUPIED

London, Sept. 18—The Paris radio asserted tonight that Allied air borne troops have occupied Tilburg, Nijmegen and Eindhoven in Holland—all points at which the Germans said the troops had landed.

52,791 PRISONERS TAKEN

With the 1st Canadian Army, Sept. 18 —(CP Cable)— Forces of the 1st Canadian Army have taken 52,791 prisoners since July 23 when the 1st Army Command started to function.

FEW LIGHTS SEEN IN OLD LONDON

City is Slow to React to Lifting of Blackout Restrictions

London, Sept. 18 — (CP)—Brief air raid alert plunged London and the southern counties into darkness again last night as the Germans quickly responded to the lifting of blackout restrictions throughout Britain by sending a few flying bombs hurtling across the Channel.

If the Nazis hoped to mar a celebration in the capital, however, they failed in their purpose, for lifting of the blackout brought no startling change in this great city which has lived in darkness for five years.

While some outlying cities were much brighter, London was slow to react. A few dwelling lights shone bravely here and there, and in the night club belt the doors of cafes, theatres and public houses reflected unwonted brilliance. But few street lights were on and it may be days or even weeks before they are fully restored because of the lack of a master switch system.

Only faint light showed from two downstairs windows in Buckingham Palace.

In many quarters there was evidence of reluctance on the part of home owners to make any radical change in their lighting arrangements. Every home and building in the city is equipped with special heavy curtains and other precautions to prevent the least glimmer of light showing outdoors and many are not disposed to disturb these while there is danger of further alerts.

Relations Officer Arrives in Britain

London, Sept. 18 (CP)—Paying warm tribute to his Public Relations staff in the field and at home, Joseph W. G. Clark, Director-in-Chief of Public Relations for the Canadian army, navy and air force, arrived in Britain today by air to inspect his overseas organization and discuss coverage of Canadian activities "in the event they participate in other theatres of war."

Mr. Clark will go to France to confer with Public Relations officers and Canadian war correspondents in the field.

Mr. Clark said:-

"Canadian publishers with war correspondents in France told me prior to my departure from Canada that their men spoke in the highest terms of the wise and careful planning done at the services' headquarters in London in their interests prior to the invasion.

"The correspondents themselves have done a really magnificent job of reporting to the people of Canada the achievements of our fighting men over the enemy.

"Without the intelligent and resourceful assistance of the Public Relations units in the field the people back home surely would have had a disjointed and far less colorful picture. Public Relations officials in London and in the field deserve the warm appreciation of the Canadian people."

Futile Opposition To Big Transports Carrying 'Chutists

London, Sept. 18 —(CP)— The German radio indicated a series of big new air blows were falling on Germany today from both the north and south in the wake of yesterday's spectacular airborne landings in Holland and last night's R. A. F. Mosquito attack on the big German port of Bremen, when two-ton bombs were dropped.

Late yesterday a small force of R. A. F. Lancasters attacked a German ammunition dump in Holland, not far from the scene of Allied airborne landings.

Many big fires were reported in Bremen after the Mosquito raid. The overnight operations, which also included attacks on enemy airfields, were accomplished without loss of a single R. A. F. plane. Two Nazi fighters were shot down.

Yesterday thousands of Allied aircraft hunted out the German air force and bombed flak posts, enemy barracks, gun positions and airports in a fiery scourging, that preceded the landings by the great Allied airborne army.

As a result the Nazis sent up only scattered and futile opposition to the big transports carrying the flying army.

Allied supreme headquarters disclosed more than 4,000 sorties, exclusive of the airborne operation, were flown over the continent yesterday with 7,500 tons of bombs dropped on the enemy.

More than 3,000 sorties were flown against targets in Holland in support of the skytroops before and after they arrived.

An air spokesman at headquarters said "more than 1,000 aircraft, including gliders," were used in carrying out the operation.

The entire supporting fighter and bomber operations cost only two bombers and 16 fighters, it was disclosed, while at least nine enemy fighters were desroyed.

Heavy bombers dropped more than 3,500 tons of high explosives on the enemy garrison at Boulogne in a four-hour assault.

UNRRA Arrangements Not as Speedy As Conditions Warrant

Montreal, Sept. 18 — (CP)—Herbert H. Lehman, director-general of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration, said in a report to the second session of the council today that progress is completing arrangements to aid liberated areas has not been as speedy as conditions make necessary.

Unrra was organized in November, 1943, and Mr. Lehman said that in normal times it might have congratulated itself on what had been achieved.

"But these are times of great stress and urgency and we must face the fact that we must do more and do it more speedily," he continued.

Delegates attending the 44-nation meeting which opened on Saturday said the rapid progress of Allied armies in Europe has brought close the time when UNRRA must step in to assist in the care of more than 100,000,000 persons who have suffered due to war.

Mr. Lehman said the supplying and assisting in the administration of relief and rehabilitation operations requires, among other things, the adequate and speedy provision of funds and supplies by the supplying governments, the co-operation of the member governments in making available capable personnel, the furnishing by recipient governments of adequate information on their needs and the close cooperation with military authorities having the initial responsibilities in providing relief.

Ten Million Dollar Budget.

Mr. Lehman said the first session of the Council approved an administrative budget of $10,000,000 for the calendar year 1944 and the balance of 1943. To July 17, a total of $7,565,650 had been received from 30 of the 440 member governments with 25, including Canada, having paid their contributions in full.

Contributions to operating expenses, on the basis of one per cent of the national income for the year ending June 30, 1943, have been approved by Iceland, United Kingdom, United States, and Canada ($77,000,000).

Mr. Lehman said a tentative estimate had been made that from $1,800,000,000 to $2,000,000,000 would be the total amount received for operating expenses.

However, a large number of the member governments had not made arrangements to create credits for operating contributions and had not indicated, the amount they would provide.

Statement of Policy.

The administration desired a statement of policy from the council on the care to be given displaced persons in United Nations territory, which never has been occupied by the enemy. If it were to assume the care of a substantial portion of such persons unexpectedly large financial and administrative burdens would be incurred. But there were urgent cases, such as the Greeks and Yugoslavs in the Middle East, which required the administration's assistance.

On June 3, the Unrra staff consisted of more than 985 persons at the headquarters office in Washington and in London, Cairo, Chungking, Algiers, Casablanca and Geneva. Nationals of twenty countries were represented on this staff. Arrangements were sought under which staff members would enjoy privileges and immunities similar to those granted the officials of foreign governments. Tax ammunities to avoid double taxation were of particular importance.

Japanese Have Only 110-Mile Gap To Close To Split China in Half

By SPENCER MOOSA
(Associated Press Staff Writer

Chungking, Sept. 18 — (AP) — The Japanese today have only a 110-mile gap to close to achieve their objective of splitting China in half.

The gap lies between Yungming, 70 miles east of Kweilin, and Waitsap, 85 miles northwest of Canton.

Balancing this news was the Chinese high command announcement that its forces have recaptured the important Burma Road base of Lungling. The Japanese were withdrawing to near Mangshih, 13 miles southwest.

But in the other, more critical sector, a column from the left wing of the Japanese forces advancing toward Kweilin took Yunming, while other invaders knifing across the Kwantung-Kwangsi border from Canton seized Waitsap.

When the 110-mile gap is closed, the Japanese will have a line — no matter how tenuous or vulnerable—stretching from Manchuria to the South China Sea.

"LONG TOM" RIPS ENEMY POSITION ACROSS MOSELLE RIVER

Leaving a smoke ring flaring out of its muzzle, this 144-mm. "Long Tom," mounted on a Sherman tank chassis, sends a shell roaring toward German positions across the Moselle river in Belgium. As the gunner yanks the firing janyard, left, the soldier in foreground crouches and clamps his ears to avoid concussion.

EISENHOWER SETS UP MILITARY GOVT. IN REICH

Will Soon Begin Job of Destroying Nazism in Germany

TEXT OF MESSAGE

New York, Sept. 18 —(AP)— A spokesman for Gen. Eisenhower in a broadcast to the people of western and southwestern Germany today said an Allied military government had been set up in occupied territory of the Reich and would begin the job of destroying Nazism.

Text of the message, as announced by the United States Office of War Information, follows:

1. Allied military government is established in the theatre under my command to exercise in occupied German territory the supreme legislative, judicial, and executive authority vested in me as Supreme Commander, Allied Expeditionary Force, and as military governor.

2. The immediate task of Allied military government during the course of military operations will be to secure the lines of communication of the Allied armies and to suppress any activities in the occupied areas of Germany which would impair the speedy conclusion of the war.

3. Simultaneously Allied military government will begin the task of destroying National Socialism. It will remove from responsible posts all members of the Nazi party and of the S.S. and others who have played a leading part in the National Socialist regime. This process begins immediately upon the arrival of the Allied armies in each area and the inauguration of Allied military government.

4. The civilian population will as far as possible continue in the normal occupations. Detailed instructions to them will be issued by Allied military government in each area.

More Than 100 R.C.A.F. Bombers In Boulogne Raid

London, Sept. 18 —(CP Cable)—More than 100 planes of the R.C.A.F. bomber group took part in yesterday's smashing Bomber Command attack on Boulogne's defences in which more than 3,500 tons of explosives were dropped.

All the Canadian aircraft returned safely.

Flt.-Lt. Stan Boyle of Toronto said his plane flew so low the bomb explosions "bumped the kite around" and W.O. Joey Pasey of Moncton, N.B., reported "the target area was so full of exploding bombs you couldn't see between them."

Wing Cmdr. A. C. Hull of Ottawa, commander of the Ghost Squadron, said they were low enough to see the Germans putting up an artillery barrage against attacking Canadian ground troops.

"Everything was in our favor and we couldn't miss," said Sqdn. Ldr. Clyde Marshall, D.F.C., of Kingston, Ont.

Flak penetrated the flying suit of PO. John Urquhart, of Ottawa, a gunner, but it dropped harmlessly into one of his boots. Other Canadians on the raid, some of them in R.A.F. Halifax squadrons, included Flt. Sgt. Roland Desroches of Penetang, Ont.

Ontario To Help In Freight Charges On Ground Limestone

Toronto, Sept. 18 —(CP)—Agriculture Minister Kennedy of Ontario today announced the Province will co-operate with the Dominion Department of Agriculture and the railway companies in paying a portion of the freight charges on ground limestone being shipped to farmers.

The announcement said that where shipment is made by rail the railway companies will reduce freight charges by 25 per cent and the Province will pay 50 per cent of the balance, not to exceed $1 a ton in Southern Ontario and $1.50 a ton in Northern Ontario.

In the case of truck transportation, the Department will assist in paying charges at the rate of three cents per ton per mile with the maximum $1 a ton.

The assistance will be available to individual farmers, two or more farmers buying collectively and to any organization purchasing on behalf of farmers.

Tag Day Nets $453 for W.H.A.

Members of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary today expressed their wholehearted appreciation of the generous response afforded them during their tag day appeal for funds on Saturday.

The sum of $453 was derived through the medium of the tags and sellers, all of which will be devoted to the purchase and maintenance of modern equipment and cost of treatment for inmates of public wards.

The Auxiliary also expressed their gratitude for the assistance given them by youthful sellers without whom the appeal would not have been the success it was.

2,802,200 Casualties Suffered by Chinese

Montreal, Sept. 18 (CP) — The Chinese army suffered a total of 2,802,220 casualties from July 7, 1937 to June 30, 1944 in their fight against the Japanese, a Chinese news service release said here last night.

The Japanese at the end of May of this year, the release also said, had incurred a total of 2,144,000 casualties on the China Front, besides 600,000 suffered by their garrisons, supply and transport units in the rear. The estimate does not include Japanese soldiers killed or wounded in the current Hunan campaign.

at Nijmegen, only about three miles from the Netherlands-German border and 12 miles northwest of Kleve where the Siegfried Line glorified by Hitler is reported to end.

Other Landings Reported.

Other landings were reported by the enemy radio at Arnhem, 10 miles north of Nijmegen, where a bridgehead would have been established across the famous water barriers of the Netherlands—the Waal River and the Neder Ryn (Rhine).

While these reported landings apparently were designed to secure he crossings of these barriers to open the way to a crashing offensive into Northern Industrial Germany, the Germans said yet other landings were made to the west at Tilburg and Eindhoven. There the sky-dropped troops would be only 10 to 15 miles beyond British troops stabbing across the border just south of both towns.

Landings North of The Hague

These latter aerial bridgeheads were along the main road, railroad and water channels of escape for the Germans who have been putting up a stiff resistance to the west along the Schelde-Meuse canal and the Schelde estuary in southern Holland. Air forces dropped there also protected the left flank of the skyborne force from counter-attack.

The Paris radio reported other landings nine miles north of the Hague, near the coast.

At Nijmegen the Allied force would have to hold out against German counter-attacks fully 40 miles north of the nearest bulge in Allied battlelines, and the Germans tried to convince their home population that the entire airborne force had been surrounded and the units wiped out at seven places.

But Allied supreme headquarters said landing places were firmly secured barely 300 miles from Berlin and several Dutch towns were captured in the first few hours of fighting.

An Allied supporting attack was said by the Germans to have driven to Neerpelt, 30 miles north of Maastricht and only 13 miles south of Eindhoven.

To the west, the British 2nd Army was two miles north of the Netherlands border in the drive from Gheel toward Tilburg.

Pockets Mopped Up.

Gen. Eisenhower's communique announced that pockets of resistance on the outskirts of Aachen had been mopped up and that the fighting had been carried well into the city.

There was no confirmation here of a broadcast, by the French National radio that Aachen had been abandoned by the Germans, but 1st army tanks and infantry had battered 12 to 15 miles beyond the border city toward the Rhine from the southeast.

Fierce German counter-attacks had been smashed and a German broadcast said heavy fighting had developed at Duren, only 20 miles from Cologne, Germany's fourth city.

Ten to 15 miles north of Aachen, the 1st army left wing which swept through Maastricht was believed to be almost to the German frontier.

Another 1st army bolt was driven into the Siegfried defences in the pill-box-studded fir forests beyond Rott, southeast of Aachen.

To the south of Aachen the 1st army pushed a half-mile into Germany at two more places, near the villages of Echternach and Bollendorf, four miles apart and eight to 12 miles southwest of Trier. This broadened the base of the 10-mile-deep wedge in Germany in this area.

There was no news of last week's eight-mile penetration into the Reich near Prum to the north, nor the mile-deep drive across the border at Wallendorf.

Big Tank Battles.

The German-controlled Scandinavian telegraphic bureau quoted a German military spokesman yesterday as saying, that tank battles were raging more than 20 miles within Germany on the road from Aachen to Cologne. The dispatch referred to a particularly big battle at Duren, a road junction 20 miles southwest of Cologne.

The Algiers radio gave the report that Brest, French naval base in Brittany, had been captured, but its fall was not confirmed by Allied Supreme Headquarters. The German communique indicated the hour was near, however.

The Paris radio gave the unlikely figure of 16,000 Germans already captured there.

The count of German prisoners on the western front meanwhile mounted to at least 434,000. The British - Canadian 21st army group under Field Marshal Montgomery up to Sept. 14 had taken 73,000, the U.S. 3rd army 86,000 up to Sept. 15, the U.S. 1st army 173,000 up to Sept. 16, and the 6th army group, which includes the 7th army, had taken 82,000 up to Sept. 16.

In addition the new U.S. 9th army boasted a bag of 20,000 just southwest of Orleans where the Germans gave up after a ruinous attempt to escape from southern France.

BRITISH TROOPS CAPTURE CITY OF EINDHOVEN

Airborne Forces Threaten German Flank in North

Berlin Says Some Troops Land North of Rhine Delta

By JAMES M. LONG
(AP War Correspondent)

London, Sept. 19 — (AP)—British troops, joining hands with a great sky-borne army dropped in the Netherlands in a thrust to break into northern Germany, have captured Eindhoven, seventh largest city in the Kingdom, a front dispatch declared today.

British forces charged forward 16 miles in 24 hours. They linked with some of the parachute and glider forces who by German account already were across the Rhine in the central Netherlands, threatening to roll up the Nazi flank just as the Brittany break-through did in France.

The Battle of the Rhine meanwhile began on a broad front to the south as three American armies ripped deeper into enemy cross-river defences shielding Cologne, Strasbourg, and Mulhouse.

Communications Centre

Eindhoven, a big communications centre, and Geldrop seven miles to the east, were swept up by the British 2nd Army plunge from Belgium. They lie about 10 miles from the Belgian border. British units already had struck on farther north, coming to aid of Allied sky soldiers ousting the Germans from village after village; and seizing strategic bridges and crossroads.

Berlin, which yesterday declared the airborne troops had been wiped out, today detailed the areas where Lt.-Gen. Brereton's plane-ferried men were fighting.

Front reports said the Germans rushed in heavy artillery in a desperate attempt to halt the forward shove of the airborne army.

Berlin declared more troops had landed from planes and gliders for the third successful day, and hinted some had descended north of the Rhine Delta, in the area where Rotterdam, Amsterdam and the Hague lie.

Evacuation of the Brittany port of Brest also was acknowledged by German broadcasts.

Closer to Cologne

While the flanking sweep developed in The Netherlands, the main weight of the Allied land assault was battering through the Rhineland on the last 20 or 25 miles to Cologne. Other U.S. columns were hitting through the Lorraine gap in new gains beyond Nancy, and closing steadily upon Belfort farther south, gateway to southwestern Germany.

The Germans hurled in reserves from the Russian front, risked some of their remaining planes and fired their biggest artillery barrages since the Normandy fighting. But despite their stiffened stand, Americans captured four more border towns, and reached at least three others.

Today's communique said 1st. Canadian Army troops driving into the great Channel port of Boulogne had made further progress but did not indicate how soon the fall of that supply-funnel might be expected.

Last night front reports said Canadian infantry were cutting Boulogne's garrison of an estimated four thousand into isolated pockets, and taking hundreds of prisoners.

A hundred miles northeast of Boulogne, Polish units under Lt.-Gen. Crerar's command restored their bridgehead across the Hulst Canal about 20 miles west of Antwerp. Canadian tanks and infantry moved up in strength to the eastern branch of the Leopold Canal after crossing the western branch of the tough, 270-foot water barrier.

Action Menaces Defence

The air vault into Holland—in the greatest airborne operation of history—carried the gravest menace to the stubborn German defence of the homeland.

The German-reported landings north of the Rhine Delta, plus the landings they said were made earlier at Nijmegen and Anhem on and north of the Rhine near the German frontier, would seal off every main east-west road from Germany to Rotterdam, The Hague and Amsterdam through the dike-guarded lowlands south of The Netherlands inland sea.

By this account, the Allied 1st. Airborne Army had leaped the last and greatest Netherlands water barrier, and put the fighting in the rich heart of The Netherlands.

Allied armor would need only to smash 35 to 40 miles north of Eindhoven to complete the link-up, and turn the Germans' Rhine defences.

In Inner Port of Brest

At Brest the Americans had smashed through the fortress wall of the inner port city at two places from the north. The German communique said the last of the doomed garrison had retreated across the Brest roadstead to Le Crozon.

Allied fighting men in Holland were assisted by a railway strike ordered by The Netherlands government, and Radio Orange, the Free Netherlands station, declared it had been a complete success.

CLASH IN DENMARK GERMANS REPORT

"State of Police Emergency" Declared by Germans Throughout Denmark

London, Sept. 19 (CP Reuter) — The German-controlled Danish radio said at 4 p.m. today that fighting has occurred on the square outside the Royal Palace at Amalienborg, where King Christian recently took up residence.

Fighting broke out between a detachment of German marines and Danish royal guards with losses on both sides, it was said.

The report of fighting at Amalienborg followed swiftly another Danish radio anouncement that the Germans has dissolved all Danish police forces and taken over, the task of maintaining order throughout the country.

"Anyone found in possession of firearms will be shot. All use of motor cars in the country districts has been prohibited until Sept. 21 when special German permits have to be obtained," the announcement said.

The statement charged the Danish police with having assisted "murderers and saboteurs" and announced the Germans have declared "a state of police emergency" throughout Denmark.

Spectacular War-Criminal Trials Not Likely To Take Place Says London

By WADE WERNER
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

London, Sept. 19 (AP)—Persons looking forward to spectacular post-war trials of war criminals are likely to be disappointed. There may not be any "war criminals" left to try.

The possibility of such an outcome emerged as the United Nations War Crimes Commission confessed after nine months' labor that its task of bringing criminals to justice is proving extremely complicated and to some extent slipping out of its hands.

The commission's headquarters in the London law courts has gathered voluminous files of evidence of Axis atrocities and the chairman, Sir Cecil Hurst, said a partial list of offenders recommended for trial has been compiled. He declined, however, to say who or how many are on it.

The plain fact is that the commission cannot do more than the United Nations governments authorized it to do. It is up to the individual countries to decide how to handle the cases of war criminals in their hands. The Soviet Union is not participating in the work of the Crimes Commission.

The Russians began conducting their own trials of war criminals last December when the commission was still busy with details of organization. Russia has condemned and executed a number of them.

Battle casualties, including guerilla actions, assassinations, suicides, air raids and insanity almost certainly will remove many war criminals from the jurisdiction of the Crimes Commission.

Offenders clearly insane could be killed by summary action but not punished in the legal sense. (Britain's most prominent Nazi prisoner, Rudolf Hess, is understood to be a mental case now.)

The status of tens of thousands of ordinary German, Italian or puppet soldiers who executed hostages or committed other atrocities under direct commands of superiors is somewhat doubtful.

The French forces of the interior and Belgian Patriots have been dealing with many collaborationists. This exuberant wave of popular justice is likely to engulf all Europe before the last shot is fired.

Inside Germany the situation may be complicated by disillusioned Germans inflicting vengeance on the thousands of Nazi officials and the Gestapo now browbeating them into a last-ditch defence. The Germans might even surprise the world by killing Hitler before the post-war argument over what to do with him could start.

FINLAND SIGNS ARMISTICE WITH RUSSIA, BRITAIN

Two Countries Sign As Representatives Of United Nations Moscow Reports

WILL PUBLISH TERMS

London, Sept. 19 — (CP) — The Moscow radio announced today that Finland had signed an armistice with Russia and Britain.

The first brief announcement, broadcast by the Soviet Information Office and recorded here by the Soviet Monitor, did not give the terms. They will be disclosed later.

The official statement, however, listed the names of those participating in the negotiations, which were in progress from Sept. 14 until today, when the agreement was signed.

Britain and Russia signed the terms as representatives of the United Nations.

A dispatch from Stockholm said it was reliably reported there that the armistice terms were formally approved by the Finnish parliament in an early-morning session.

A Finnish news agency dispatch to Stockholm from Helsinki said the deputies assembled in a closed meeting at 6:15 a. m., at which time the government presented "a document." Shortly afterward the parliament passed to the Order of the day which, under Finnish parliamentary procedure, constitutes a vote of confidence.

Finnish sources said they expected the terms would be published officially later today, the Stockholm dispatch said.

There still was no reliable advance picture of the details of the armistice, but the Swedish press generally, on the basis of fragmentary reports, characterized them as "hard."

Mother, 2 Children, Grandchild Burned

MOTHER, 2 CHILDREN—

Port Arthur, Sept. 19—(CP)— A mother, her two children and a grandchild were burned to death early yesterday when fire destroyed a two-storey farm home of Charles Laplante in McIntyre township.

The dead: Mrs. Mary Laplante, 37; Zed, three and Rene, 1½ years old and Judith Stone, two years old, daughter of Mrs. J. Stone, Port William.

Three other children escaped unhurt, one jumping through a second-storey window, while the other two made their way to safety through a back door. The fire is reported to have started from an explosion in the kitchen stove.

TEA AND COFFEE DRINKERS FREE OF RATION WORRIES

Commodities Are Removed From Ration List by Prices Board

SITUATION IMPROVED

Ottawa, Sept. 19 (CP)—Tea and coffee drinkers are free from ration worries for the first time since the spring of 1942.

The Prices Board announced last night that tea and coffee had been removed—from Canada's list of rationed goods at midnight.

The announcement also contained some heartening news for those who do their tea and coffee drinking in restaurants. The Board has cancelled regulations limiting hotels, restaurants, institutions and other quota users to serving only one cup of coffee or one pot of tea at a sitting.

Now it's up to hotels and restaurants to decide whether they will return to their former practice of serving additional tea or coffee. The question of charging for any extra serving also is left to them but if a charge is made pricing regulations remain and it must not be more than the regular a la carte charge.

However, the Board said that because of the tight sugar and cream situation, no extra sugar or cream may be provided with the additional servings of tea and coffee. Milk may be provided for the additional servings or for all servings.

These "minor' regulations are all that is left of the tea and coffee rationing policy first initiated on an "honor" basis May 26, 1942. Coupon rationing began Aug. 3, 1942.

The supply situation continued to improve as the war situation improved, and the Board decided that tea and coffee stocks were sufficiently good to lift the rationing regulations.

The Board said that ration book No. 5, secheduled for distribution between Oct. 14 and Oct. 21, already has been printed and consequently will contain coupons intended for tea and coffee. Retailers, wholesalers and quota users have been advised by the ration administration that all tea and coffee ration documents and forms in their possession may be consigned to the paper salvage authorities.

ALLIED 5TH ARMY TROOPS SCORE 'GREAT SUCCESS'

Three Strongpoints in the Gothic Line Northeast of Florence Captured

WIDEN BRIDGEHEAD

Rome, Sept. 19 — (AP)—Breaking through formidable Nazi fortifications and scoring what was officially termed a "great success," Allied 5th Army troops yesterday captured 3,300-foot Monte Partone, Monte Altuzzo and Monte Celli in the Gothic Line 20 miles northeast of Florence.

Meanwhile British and Canadian troops of the British 8th Army widened their bridgehead over the Marano River in the Adriatic sector and captured the villages of Cerasolo and Feetano.

The M.A.A.F. flew about 2,000 sorties, attacking targets in Yugoslavia and Central Hungary as well as hitting at shipping and battle-zone objectives.

American troops of the 5th Army took the heights northeast of Florence after one of the fiercest days of fighting in the entire Italian campaign, official field dispatches said.

British and Indian troops of the 5th Army contributed materially to the American success by executing flanking movements.

The Germans opposed the attack with extreme concentrations of artillery fire — in one barrage 2,000 shells were fired — and also made "maximum use of mortars and small arms," headquarters said.

Drive into Marino.

Meanwhile British troops of the 8th Army, beating back heavy enemy opposition, drove into the little republic of San Marino near the Adriatic coast.

Ralston Pondering Statement Made By Major Conn Smythe

Ottawa, Sept. 19 — (CP) — Defence Minister Ralston was understood today to be pondering whether to reply to last night's statement by Maj. Connie Smythe of Toronto that Canadian Army reinforcements arrived overseas poorly trained.

It was also understood Col. Ralston had sent a copy of the Smythe statement to high staff officers overseas and asked for their views not only on the statement, but on the matter of discipline involved in the case where a subordinate officer publicly offers such criticism.

Defence headquarters officials and Public Relations officers would not comment.

ONTARIO INFANTRY GAIN HOLD ACROSS PORT AT BOULOGNE

Canadian Shock Troops Encircling Western Section And Defences

STUBBORN RESISTANCE

By WILLIAM STEWART
(CP War Correspondent)

With the 1st Canadian Army, Sept. 19 — (CP Cable) — Ontario infantry today were fighting their way across to the western side of Boulogne after occupying most of the larger eastern section of the great channel port.

Canadian shock troops were encircling the western section of the town and remnants of strong Perimeter Hill defences to the north and northeast and had taken 2,000 prisoners.

German forces in western Boulogne and its southern fortifications were still resisting stubbornly and keeping roads leading into the town under a hail of shellfire but clearing weather promised a renewal of a blitz on these positions by the R.A.F.'s Tactical Air Force.

Ontario infantrymen who swept down on eastern Boulogne and the heavily-bombed dock area yesterday now have gained a foothold across the port and the river Liane which flows from it to the southeast.

Enemy in Strength

The enemy is holding the western section of the town in strength and have good observation points from their remaining hill positions, behind which are concrete defences.

From their captured high points such as Mont Lambert, however, the Canadians are able to observe nearly all the positions from which the Germans are still fighting and can bring down the full weight on their tremendous artillery concentrations and also direct attacks by aircraft.

Canadian assault forces which overcame German positions running northeast of Mont Lambert, today were clearing up enemy pockets along the coast and at Cap Gris Nez, where a German force still was holding out after being refused anything but unconditional surrender terms. R.A.F. Typhoons in poor weather yesterday attacked Cap Gris Nez coastal batteries with rockets.

In northwestern Belgium, Canadian infantry and armored forces were mopping up German positions around the eastern branch of the Leopold Canal while Polish troops continued to fight for a bridgehead over the Hulst Canal across the Netherlands frontier.

Survivors of U-Boat Sunk by Aircraft Picked Up by Canadian Destroyer

Ottawa, Sept. 19 (CP)—For the second time in her career, the veteran Canadian destroyer St. Laurent has had Germans aboard as "guests"—this time survivors of a U-boat sunk by aircraft.

The navy told today in a press release how the St. Laurent picked up the survivors—"a large number"—after their submarine was sent to the bottom by an aircraft of the R.A.F. coastal command during an air-sea battle.

The release did not say when the action occurred.

The first time the St. Laurent "entertained" Nazis was after she and the Canadian frigate Swansea shared in the destruction of a U-boat in the North Atlantic. That time 45 Germans were fished from the water.

On this occasion, the submarine was sighted on the surface five or six miles away firing at a plane, which was attacking with depth charges. The St. Laurent went full ahead, reaching the area to find the battle over and the submarine sinking.

"It looked like a big one and it must have been," said Lt.-Cmdr. A. G. Boulton of Russel, Man., "because we took a large number of survivors off it, including the captain. I thought they were never going to stop coming aboard."

The survivors were picked up in three bunches as the St. Laurent put scramble nets over the side. Each time the destroyer came alongside a group of survivors, the Germans were asked: "Where is your boat?" Each time the answer came: "Aw, she sunk."

Other survivors yelled: "You take us off?" "You take us off?"

During the rescue operations, H.M.C.S. Ottawa screened St. Laurent and overhead the aircraft circled.

The U-boat's crew were only average physical specimens. One officer professed to have lived in Vancouver for several years and spoke English well. Completely out of touch with the news, they expressed amazement that the Russians were at Warsaw and that nearly all France had been liberated by Allied armies.

As nearly as could be ascertained, there were only two or three casualties in the submarine.

Panzer Division Destroyed Daily By Russian Army

449 Tanks and 365 Planes Toll for Last Four Days

By DANIEL DE LUCE
(A. P. War Correspondent)

Moscow, Sept. 19 (AP) — Grinding down German armored reserves at the rate of nearly one panzer division a day, the Red Army has tightened a strangling grip on the enemy's mid-Baltic communications in Latvia in a gigantic five-day battle, which may be another fulfillment of Premier Stalin's classic strategy of "surround and destroy."

Front reports today indicated there still is no pause in the ferocious engagement begun Friday west of Jelgava, where the main Baltic roads and railways meet.

The Russians claim to have knocked out 449 tanks and 365 planes on the eastern front in the last four days. Most of this punishment probably has been inflicted in the Baltic sector.

The fate of the German northern army group, still estimated at more than 20 divisions, may be decided in the next few hours or days if the Nazis fail to keep open the lifeline from East Prussia through the Jelgava area to the forces in Eastern Latvia and Estonia.

A coastal corridor little more than 200 miles wide now connects the Germans north of Riga with those holding Western Latvia and Western Lithuania. The Russians once snapped this lifeline by plunging to the sea, but the Germans re-established it in heavy fighting.

Effort to Split Forces

(By German accounts the Russians were making their greatest effort to split the German Baltic forces 87 miles northeast of Riga instead of in the Jelgava area. Berlin said Red Army units in that area had outflanked Valga by crossing the Little Embajogi River, but the Russians said nothing of fighting there.

(Berlin declared that three Soviet armies totalling more than 500,000 men had been hurled against the German Baltic positions and one commentator predicted an imminent onslaught by a fourth in the Narva sector of Estonia's northeastern coast.

(Broadcasts from Germany said Red Army units had made "deep penetration" northwest of Tartu in the direction of Tallinn, Esontian capital.)

Details Screened

Official silence screened details of the Soviet-Polish operations in the Warsaw area, but German strong points in the capital continued under heavy Russian artillery fire.

In the Carpathian highlands of Southern Galicia, Col.-Gen. Ivan Petrov's 4th. Ukrainian army pressed on from the captured communications network centred in Ustriki-Dolnie, but the enemy retained a strong bulge of positions on the approaches to the Czechoslovak frontier.

Petrov's difficulties of terrain equalled or surpassed those of Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky in Northern Transylvania where the Russian-Romanian advance slowed down sharply.

For nearly 48 hours there has been no news of Marshal Feodor I. Tolbukhin's progress in Bulgaria west or south of Sofia; but he is believed continuing to fan out at the rear of the German garrisons remaining in the Southern Balkans.

British Catch Up With the Japanese

Kandy, Ceylon, Sept. 19—(CP)—The British 14th Army again caught up with the retreating Japanese 33rd Division today in the Burma border area and pressed the attack with artillery support.

Artillery was brought up despite terrain conditions after Indian troops developed their crossings of the Manipur River. Advancing Allied forces also had air support, indicating a strong effort at covering the remaining 20 miles to Tiddim.

The Japanese were falling back without taking time to bury their dead. More than 200 bodies were found unburied during a 12-day period.

Allied planes again were aloft throughout Burma attacking encampments and rivercraft in Arakan and similar targets on the Tiddim road and in Chindwin. Medium bombers left large fires at Bhambo while other aircraft scored hits on the west and east approaches of Okshitpin, 19 miles east of Prome.

In the battle for the Burma road Monsoon rains restricted both air and ground activity, a dispatch from Chungking said. Chinese forces were reported to have made slight gains in their attack on the northern and eastern outskirts of Lungling proper from the recently-captured "old" town just north of the Burma road base.

Port of Brest 'Only Smoking Ruins,' Huns in Peninsula

London, Sept. 19 —(CP)— The great French port of Brest was "only smoking ruins" today and the surviving German garrison has retreated to the Le Crozon peninsula just south by the harbor roadstead for a last-ditch stand, the German High Command communique said today.

The last days of elements of three German divisions under Lt.-Gen. Hermann Ramcke, besieged since Aug. 6, appeared at hand.

Position of Brest, France's fourth greatest port, in Hitler's Atlantic Wall was rendered untenable when American 3rd Army troops severed the Brittany peninsula in the break-through from Normandy. A tank column entered the city on Aug. 6, but was forced out. In recent weeks, the siege force has been built up.

Brest lies 389 rail miles west of Paris and has excellent communications with other parts of France. It has one of the finest naval stations in Europe, a mile of deep water quays and splendid deep water anchorages.

Progressive Conservative Party Leader, John Bracken, Officially Opens Exhibition

Splendid Stage Show and Parade of Livestock Features First Night

GOOD CROWD PRESENT

Under ideal weather conditions, and with pre-opening promises that this year's edition would be "bigger and better" amply fulfilled thousands of city and district fair-goers placed an unanimous stamp of approval on the Belleville Exhibition at its formal inaugural Monday night.

Long before the official party of Exhibition officials, directors and guests, who escorted Mr. John Bracken, Progressive Conservative party leader, who formally opened the Exhibition arrived milling crowds thronged the brilliantly lighted Midway, viewed exhibits of livestock and other agricultural products, or impatiently waited in the grandstand before which Billy Garden's talented group of stage artists later performed, in an outstanding show of outdoor entertainment.

Bracken Opens Fair.

Officially, the highlight of the opening night was the formal ceremonies conducted on the stage, when Mr. Bracken surrounded by Exhibition officials, members of Federal and Provincial parliaments and others, cut the figurative ribbon that sent the 1944 edition of the fair off on its three-day presentation.

Using excerpts from his address given before city service clubs and guests at a complimentary banquet earlier in the evening, a report of which appears in another column, the distinguished guest defined the challenge that now faces Canada if she is to contribute to an enduring peace and the welfare of her population.

After paying tribute to the effort of the Exhibition directorate, Mr. Bracken said, he knew of the troubles and problems of fair boards inasmuch as he was a farmer himself, and had acted on exhibition committees in the "wide prairies of the west."

"Ontario", he said, "had met and solved her agricultural problems in a splendid way although there was more to be done. He had been impressed with the splendid quality as well as quantity of the livestock raised in this province, and which in itself was a great contribution to Canadian economics. He concluded by saying there was a great challenge to Canadian agriculture.

Fair President Heard.

President Sandercock, of the Belleville Agricultural Society said that the aim of his organization had been to make the fair bigger and better, and he felt that such was the case. He drew attention to the splendid list of entries in all departments of the prize lists, which, he said, was not only a credit to the exhibition but to exhibitors from this and other districts.

Fundamentally an agriculture show, the Exhibition was proud of the representation of the efforts of this branch of Canadian industry.

Mr. Bracken then formally declared the Exhibition open.

Previous to the opening, the Belleville Municipal Band under Lieut. Fred Jobson, delighted the waiting crowds with the excellent music for which it is noted. The band will be in attendance during the entire run of the fair and will take part in the Grand Military Parade scheduled for tonight.

Stage Show Excellent.

Against a brilliantly illuminated background with Ken Goode's scarlet-coated orchestra providing accompanying rhythms, Billy Garden's Stage Show offered a variable menu of open-air entertainment that delighted the large grandstand audience that saw it.

Cleverly introduced with the radio and stage humor of Al. Harvey member of the famous airwaves duo of Al. and Bob Harvey, the production, that included music, comedy, acrobatics, pretty girls, dancers was "put across" in a sequence of acts, that was satisfying as well as highly entertaining.

Clever Roller Skating Act

Outstanding in a program of headlining acts, was the clever roller skating of the "Silver Cyclones". Offering a series of difficult movements the youthful duo climaxed their act with one of the most colorful and weirdly beautiful finales ever seen here. Using an ultra-violet and black lighting effect, the skaters, with all lights blacked out whirl in an aura of flashing colors. Only the white hands of the man, and the various hues of the lady's costume show in the clever lighting arrangement.

Lovely dancing girls are seen in various colorful routines, and an added touch of sophisticated musical beauty is seen in Louise Linden, tall Spanish type and a singer and accordionist of fine ability.

Donahue and LaSalle do a clever table-tumbling act that had the audience in a state of suspense and mirth throughout. The male of the duo climaxes his act with a fall from six tables and a chair.

"Zena" a clever and pretty blonde dancer is easy to look at and just as easy to watch in her various routines. She does a "Park Avenue" number along drum majorette lines and also appears in an Indian Dance, with a vocal "Indian Love Call" and appropriate orchestral music.

Cycling Kirks Good

The Cycling Kirks do hair-raising stunts on bicycles that range from the high-wheel vintage of the roaring eighties to miniature bikes not twelve inches high. It is a clever act and is well done.

Claire Rouse, the one-man band, and no stranger to Belleville audiences hasn't lost his musical ability nor his comedy. He "wowed" the grandstand with the mysterious appearance of large and small instruments from the capacious pockets of his hobo garb. Everything from a gazoo to a tenor horn was produced and played and he climaxed his act with a solo on his comedy "prison bars."

The Claremont Brothers, a French-Canadian team, display a touch of real acrobatic comedy in their act. The boys use tables and chairs and themselves in a series of laugh-provoking sequences that soon caught the fancy of the audience. They are one of the highlights of the show.

Stage performances will be given every afternoon and evening until the end of the Exhibition.

Midway Thronged

Conklin Shows, that feature the traditional colorful midway, lose none of their well-known reputation in the current presentation. All the glamor, color and noise without which a fair would not be a fair nor a midway a midway is there. A corridor of flashing lights, and tented shows and concessions; the vocal atmosphere of the "barkers" announcing their various wares, the peanuts and popcorn, hot dogs and hamburgers, whirling colored lights of rides and other characteristics of the modern midway, proved the mecca for thousands of first night patrons.

There are plenty of rides for children and grownups. The ever-popular merry-go-round and miniature automobiles proved a super attraction for the youngsters. The "rocket" and moon ride, the scooter and others furnished plenty of thrills for those who prefer their fair excitement along these lines.

"Pin-up Girls" a show featuring a bevy of beautiful girls caught the attention of old and young, while "Posing Beauties" is another show that was well attended. The Circus sideshow with all the features of the "big top" is an outstanding feature, while Frolicland is another novelty feature, that is more than interesting.

Military Parade Precedes Show At Grandstand

Headed by the crack band of the Royal Canadian Air Force, Trenton, playing with the kind permission of Group Captain A. D. Bell-Irving, commanding officer of the station, the military parade which will feature tonight's Belleville Exhibition attractions, will move off from the Armouries shortly after eight o'clock.

Behind the air force band will be squadrons of blue-clad airmen from the Mountain View Station.

Following will be the gunners and mechanized equipment including the famous twenty-five pounders of the Royal Canadian Artillery from Belleville and Napanee, then the Recce equipment and squadrons of the Argyll Light Infantry Tank Regiment.

Veterans of the last war marching under the respective banners of the Army and Navy Veterans in Canada, Belleville Branch No. 201; the Canadian Legion, and the Canadian National Railways Veterans, will follow and then will come the popular Belleville Municipal Band leading the Belleville Squadron of Air Cadets.

The parade will form on the Armouries lawn under command of Lieut.-Col. B. C. Sisler, senior military officer here. It will march along Bridge Street to Highland Avenue to the Exhibition Grounds where it will march past a saluting base with Group Captain Bell-Irving taking the salute.

Following the marchpast, a demonstration of manoeuvres of a reconnaissance unit will be given in front of the grandstand by squadrons of the A.L.I.

Home Craft and Agricultural Exhibits at Fair Outstanding

Pre-season efforts on the part of the fair directorate to bring about increased exhibitor interest in the home craft display and agricultural showing achieved no small measure of success, it is clearly indicated by a visit to the building set aside for this showing at the Fair.

Increased entries in the roots and vegetable and grain classes are at once evident, while school children of the district have shown encouraging response to the special classes which were instituted for them.

Good Display of Fruit

Amidst a decorative scheme enhanced by the regular floral display, the roots and vegetables section of the building presents an appearance which would delight the heart of any amateur or professional gardener. Outstanding is the display of apples with beautiful red McIntosh and other seasonal varieties presenting a fine appearance in this section of the agricultural display. Grapes, plums, pears and crabapples are also represented by fine displays.

The grains exhibit is up considerably over that of previous years with cereals being well represented, as well as grass and clover seed. There is also a large entry of seed corn.

Notable Exhibit

The vegetable display by R. E. Wallbridge of Prince Edward county, regular attendant at Belleville market, is bringing forth much favorable comment from those visiting the fair. Here on a background of evergreens are the choice of practically every conceivable vegetable, with hampers of rosy red apples lending color to the arrangement. There is but one entry in the vegetable display class.

The horticultural show with its riot of color in multi hues of lemon yellow, russet, orange, rose, and shades of red, blue, purple and green, creates a bright and warm greeting for the eyes of the visitors. There are arrangements of gladioli, zinnias, asters, petunias, dahlias, snapdragons, phlox, marigolds, violets, carnations, cornflowers, nasturtiums and various other blooms in a muted contest of beauty. There is on exhibition an impressive collection of foliage, not to forget mixed bouquets of garden flowers, house plants and numerous floral designs.

I.O.D.E. Display

The St. Julien Chapter of the I.O.D.E. has arranged a display of hand-sewn and knitted articles made for the boys overseas, also kiddies' clothing for the bombed-out babies of Britain. Reporting for the home cooking exhibit of the I.O.D.E., one member of the chapter said it was one of the finest in many years. The paintings and drawings display should receive special mention. A number of paintings by Mr. F. Down, Wooler, are in the collection.

Pupils of the elementary schools are well represented in their exhibits of hand-sewn and knitted articles, drawings and handicraft work, this work being proof of what fine training the children are receiving from these special classes of teaching in the schools today. The interest in this particular phase of the exhibits is steadily growing, so stated a member of the I.O.D.E. Quite an extensive show of handiwork in the women's department is being enthusiastically received by everyone.

Three-Fold Challenge Facing Canada Says John Bracken Speaking to City Service Clubs

Members of Fair Board, Political, Civil and Municipal Guests Invited

LARGE ATTENDANCE

A war to win; a peace to be made enduring and a world acceptance of the common man, is the three-fold challenge facing Canadians today, John Bracken, Progressive Conservative leader declared here Monday night.

Speaking to a joint meeting of city service clubs, the Belleville Agricultural Society and political, civic and municipal guests the former Premier of Manitoba stated that "Canada is living in the most challenging period in her history, because no generation like the present one knows how to lay the basis for a better world, and because it knows the physical forces, that are surrounding it."

Employment, responsibility and fair pay for every man; equity for farmers, profit for enterprise and opportunity for youth are the objectives of the nation, and Canada must start building for these objectives now, he declared.

A nation never prospered with non-employment and small wages for it cannot help but fail to keep its economic system functioning. Every man needs some responsibility for there has been too much tendency to "lean on neighbors. If we are not careful we shall be rationing scarcity."

Economics Must Function.

Comparing the 400 millions farm revenue of 12 years ago to the 1,800 millions of last year. Mr. Bracken declared that business and industry prospered accordingly. Equity can be obtained if the economic system is functioning properly.

"We must stand for maintenance of and profit for enterprise," the speaker said, "and we must assure the man who puts money in enterprise a reasonable profit so that it will give employment. And speaking of this one of the greatest threats to employment and production is over-taxation."

Two ways of proper distribution of wealth, Mr. Bracken stated, were payment of wages and gifts to those unable to earn. "These", he said, "should be as high as we can afford to have them short of a measure of taxation, which will prevent enterprise and people working."

"It is no good saying those in power, whoever they may be, will promise these things. There is no assurance that way. The only assurance is by having a high national income with everyone working."

Believes Canada Can Do It

"The challenge that faces Canada today is, 'Can we do in peace what we have done in war?. We faced the challenge of war five years ago—now we are challenged by peace. I believe we can do it."

Two new services, science and mechanization have been working for civilization, but have been prostituted by war because of a false philosophy of a nation, that it could dominate the world. The result has been that Canada has spent three times as much for war in one year as she did in the entire war of 1914-18.

"I don't believe we shall always have war, as some people seem to think. Who is there to say it cannot be abolished. We are living in one of the greatest moments in history for we have mastery of physical forces such as never before, and in this some see dangers of other wars. It is our job to find a way to banish war by trade and by understanding," Mr. Bracken said.

"It is our duty", he added, "to try to reach our national objectives for peace and a better world by a rational way not by testing theories of the past or doctrines of the present."

Youth Needs Opportunity

There is no need to worry about the youth of Canada, the speaker said, "All it needs is an opportunity. There will be 600,000 to 700,000 men looking for a job as well as one million war workers after the war, and they must get them. It is up to the people to make this decision not the government."

"No one knows now what the character of the world will be after the war, and this fact gives Canadians the opportunity to start building for peace now. A loss of faith in the economic structure and in democracy can be eliminated if we but start to build the objectives of the nation now."

"We must build these objectives into the fabric of the nation's character and thus build a monument to those boys who now are laying the foundation of the nation, overseas. Let it be said of Canadians, as Churchill said of the gallant handful of the R. A. F., who saved Britain in 1940, 'This was their finest hour.'"

Introduced by G. Stokes

Mr. Bracken was ably introduced by Mr. G. H. Stokes, M. P. Hastings South, while the audience appreciation was expressed by Col. Roscoe Vanderwater.

Mr. Bracken drew laughter from his listeners in a tribute to the community singing when he said, "The only politics I shall mention is, if you vote as well as you sing, there is no need to worry about the country's future."

President Orland Pinkston, of the Rotary Club was in the chair and associates with him were President Jack McVeigh, Kiwanis Club and President Matt Currie, Kinsmen Club. District and adjoining counties, members of parliament were present. President Elmer Sandercock of the Belleville Agricultural Society spoke briefly, while Chairman Pinkston paid a fine tribute to the ladies of the Tabernacle United Church "Comrades Club" who provided the banquet in the Sunday School Rooms of the church. Jack Deacon's splendid tenor voice was heard in two numbers with Leo Riggs at the piano. Sandy Burrows and Harold Carruthers led the sing song.

POLICE COURT

John May, London, Ont., charged with assault with intent to cause bodily harm, was assessed fifty dollars, costs included, when he pleaded guilty before Magistrate J. L. Lloyd in police court today.

May, investigating police officers told the court, had assaulted the proprietor of a local hotel when he had been requested to leave a room he had occupied without registration.

The Crown urged a substantial fine in lieu of imprisonment in view of the fact that May was connected with a show.

A Lindsay youth who pleaded guilty to obtaining liquor, beer and wine permits when under age, was remanded in order to allow the court to secure further information regarding activities of the accused in Lindsay.

Eight residents who had imbibed well but not wisely paid the conventional ten and costs, while five motorists who had not observed parking regulations paid dollar fines and an equal amount in costs.

A rural resident charged with driving a car while intoxicated had his hearing enlarged for six weeks in order to be allowed to assist his relatives with the harvest. The Magistrate ordered his car held by police in storage, released upon upon surrender of the licence plate.

Display of Horses at Fair One of Finest Seen Here

"One of the finest horse exhibits in the history of the Belleville Fair", were the words of one fair patron as he visited the many stalls on the agricultural park during the first afternoon as the local exhibition was opened to the public on Monday. Horse stalls were filled almost to capacity with some of the finest specimens of horse flesh in the province of Ontario, while the same high measure of perfection was seen in the cattle exhibits with six different breeds being in evidence.

Hog and sheep exhibits are also numerous with all available space for this class of exhibits being taken up.

Indicative of the fact that despite the gaining popularity of mechanized farming, horse breeders are still giving strict attention to quality was seen in the exhibits of glossy Percherons, Belgians, Clydesdales, draft and agricultural and light horses. The best of these horses were paraded before the grandstand on the first night of the fair presenting a lovely appearance as they stepped along illuminated by colorful spotlights. Judging of many of the horse classes was done this afternoon.

Many Exhibitors.

Among the horse exhibitors in the Percheron classes was Arthur Wright, of Waupoos, with his fine stallion; Clarence Vermilyea with his young stallion and four other entrants and George Jarrell of Corbyville.

Belgian exhibitors are Robert Thompson, of Picton, with a stable of six head, while Murney Ferguson, also of Picton, is again back with a fine Belgian display.

An especially large entry is seen in the heavy draught and agricultural classes, among the exhibitors being Fred Denyes of Brighton, H. J. McFarland of Bloomfield, George Atkinson of Bloomfield, Earl Bush of Trenton, the local County Home team, E. Potter, E. Rabbi, Harry Smith and others.

In the light classes the exhibitors include Percy Jopling of Bridgenorth; Harry Pine, of Picton; Allen Mann of Peterboro, Arthur Raycraft of Warkworth; W. H. Lindsay, of Campbellcroft; E. H. Potter, Belleville. Saddle horses are exhibited by Ted and Harry Boyce and E. Potter with Wilbur Hart of Napanee, having ponies at the Fair.

Ray McLaughlin, of Elmcroft Farms, Oshawa, has a splendid show of Clydesdales, his display including two stallions, mare and foal, 3-year-old mare. Keith Ferguson and Eugene Rabbi are other exhibitors in this class. Known Dominion-wide, Dawes, black horses are again back for show at the fair.

Cattle Exhibit.

W. Latchford of Mountain View, and H. J. McFarland of Bloomfield are the only two exhibitors in the Holstein classes, while Ayrshires are shown by Elmer Wood of Crookston and Frank Smith and Sons of Odessa.

Jerseys are shown by George Jarrell of Corbyville, Grant Kerr of Campbellford, and W. C. Aylesworth, M.P., of Cataraqui. There is only the one exhibitor in the Shorthorns class, this being M. H. Pimmett and Sons of Indian River, while Randolf Junkin and Sons of Fenelon Falls and J. Stuart, Jr., of Peterboro, are exhibitors in the Hereford classes. Malcolm Bailey of Uxbridge, is the only exhibitor in the Aberdeen Angus classes.

Among the above named cattle breeders several are new exhibitors at Belleville Fair and the fair management expressed appreciation for the interest shown and for the quality of cattle brought for exhibition.

The War Today—

Finns End Second War in 5 Years, Now Involved Against Huns in Third

By J. M. ROBERTS, JR.

(Substituting for DeWitt MacKenzie, Associated Press War Analyst)

Finland has completed the circuit. Ending her second war in five years, she finds herself involved in a third.

Of all the by-products of the main war, Finland's situation is probably the strangest. She fought one war to prevent the Russians from taking territory virtually needed by the Reds when the time came to protect Leningrad. By a brave stand and with the aid of one of the smartest propaganda campaigns ever waged, she had the sympathy of a large portion of the world, although her defeat proved later to have been essential to the cause of the United Nations.

Then she installed a government which appealed to all her patriotic instincts, although actually it was pro-Nazi as well as anti-Russian, and when she thought the opportunity was good, joined the Germans against Russia in a futile effort for revenge. Britain joined Russia in the war on Finland. The United States did not, altho' American weapons in Russian hands helped reverse the German-Finnish tide.

And now Finland fights Hitler. Yet, in one of the strangest angles of the whole Finnish case, Germany has actually handed her a hope for the future where two months ago there was almost none.

Had the Germans withdrawn from Finland as agreed, the little country would have ended the war merely as the beaten satellite of Hitler, ranged against more than 40 nations. Now that Germany has forced her to the other side, Finland has a chance, in the short time remaining, to place herself in a much better position.

That Finland will be entirely welcomed into the winning fold is more than she can expect. Although a great portion of her trouble arose merely from the fact that she lives in the wrong place and was doing what had to be done, she didn't have to like it. She may come out better than Italy, which earned only contempt, but not much.

And the Russians are going to collect, in cash, strategic rights, and territory.

BCI Upper School Students Do Well In Examinations

Principal Turner Submits Report to Board of Education

Considerably higher average grades in Upper School examinations were achieved by students of Belleville Collegiate during 1944 tests than in 1943, it was reported by Principal W. S. Turner to the local Board of Education as they met for their regular meeting last Friday.

In a tabulated list showing comparative results of the two years it was shown that all Upper School students in the school passed in Latin and also in music, while the percentage of pupils passing their tests this year was generally quite higher than that of one year ago.

In English composition 88 percent of the pupils passed as compared with 67 percent one year ago, this comparing very favorably with the 89 percent passes noted throughout the province. In English literature the percentage of passes this year was 76 as compared with 63 last year, while practically the same average was maintained in history, 90 percent, as compared with 91 one year ago.

In algebra 94 percent of the pupils passed as compared with 75 percent last year, while the geometry percentage was 82 as compared with 61 last year. The trigonometry percentage was upped to 77 from 61 last year and the botany to 88 from 71. Zoology increased to 80 percent from 78, while a great improvement was seen in physics with the percentage of passes being 94 from 37. Chemistry students increased their pass percentage to 82 from 50, while French authors increased to 88 from 55 and French composition to 82 percent from 44.

In practically every case the percentage of passes achieved by Belleville students were comparable with, or exceeded, the percentage attained by the province.

230 in Vocational School.

In the Collegiate principal's report it was shown there were 230 students enrolled in the vocational school with two classes being necessary in the home economics course. It was expected the attendance at vocational classes would be increased by October as many students at present employed would be returning.

It was recommended that a fee of $3 be imposed on all students registering in the vocational classes, this fee being returnable to those who attend 80 percent of the sessions. It was also recommended that evening classes be held from 7 to 9 p.m. on Tuesdays and Wednesdays. Permission was also asked for the organization of general vocational classes according to the demand.

Mr. Turner reported that the Department of Education has provided that 2½ percent of the time in Grade IX shall be devoted to educational guidance and stated that he was convinced of the desirability of introducing guidance into Belleville schools. It was recommended that a program of educational guidance be planned to include all grades in secondary school and that some person with training in guidance be engaged when circumstances permit to direct the program.

Enrolment in the matriculation courses was now 745, according to Mr. Turner in his report to the chairman of the Collegiate Management Committee, Lt.-Col. B. C. Sisler.

As the result of inquiries as to the minimum age limit for kindergarten pupils, the secretary was instructed by board members to advise parents of under-age children that any change in the age limit would require securing the services of more teachers, opening additional classrooms, and the possible transfer of pupils from school to school. The board considers that such provision is essential if Belleville is to keep in line with other cities, but that change must be adopted only when the demand is strong enough, and when citizens have become accustomed to regard school boundaries as fluid, rather than rigid.

Proposes Rinks on School Grounds

Mr. E. E. Follwell gave notice of motion that at the next regular meeting of the board he would move that the Board of Education offer the city of Belleville the use of a suitable section of the school grounds at King George, Queen Mary, Queen Alexandra and Queen Victoria schools and the East Belleville Playgrounds for the purpose of building skating rinks open to the public, and that a committee be appointed to meet with the city council for the purpose of choosing the location desired and for the purpose of making necessary arrangements for supervision and for the liability in case of accidents, which supervision and liability is to be assumed by the city.

The committee would also arrange for the use of school water and lighting facilities, the extra cost of which, if any, shall be borne by the city.

1689 in Public Schools

In the report of Secretary Administrator L. A. Kells it was shown there was an enrolment of 1689 pupils in the four public schools as of the opening day report. This compared with an enrolment of 1737 for the opening the year previous. There is at present a staff of three kindergarten teachers, 42 grade teachers and three special teachers, making a total of 48. Miss Margaret Hillis had been added to the teaching staff to replace Miss Mary Mangold, who had resigned. Average grade enrolment in the public schools is 36.

The nurse's report submitted by Mrs. Watt showed that eleven of forty pupils on the list for removal of tonsils by the Rotary Club had been done. In all schools pupils looked well after the vacation.

A program of vocational guidance as recommended by Mr. Kells for pupils in Grades 7 and 8 was approved by the board. It was recommended that the program be introductory to that being planned by the secondary schools and to provide pupils with information regarding secondary school course and regarding further educational requirements for some vocations. Pupils will be brought into contact with the nature of some occupations and with the representatives of various professions and trades. At the close of the elementary school course and at the time of pre-registration for the secondary school, an individual interview will be arranged for each pupil to assist in selecting a secondary school course.

Achievement Days For Girls' Garden Brigade a Success

Stirling, Special — The Achievement Day, of the Girls' Garden Brigade for West Huntingdon and Springbrook held at the Agricultural Rooms, Stirling last Friday. Under the leadership of Miss Jean Scott, of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, assisted by Mr. H. L. Fair, Agricultural Representative, was very successful.

West Huntingdon group was under the leadership of Miss Georgia Pitman and Springbrook was under Mrs. Geo. Williams. The interest and results shown by the girls' work attested to the capability and enthusiasm of their leaders.

Each girl brought vegetable and flower exhibits as well as their record books which were very interesting and attractively assembled. Mr. Lynn Fair, local representative, judged the Girls' Gardens during July. Certificates were presented to each girl completing two projects.

Margaret Haggerty received the second certificate. Honora McAvoy also received two certificates covering four projects. One certificate was received by the following: Dora Rodgers, Joan McCurdy of West Huntingdon and Marie Cassidy of Springbrook. Marion Mitts has now completed three projects. Just completing their first project were Marion Gordanier and Helen Eastwood.

The girls are anticipating competing at Belleville today (Tuesday).

Many Fine Acts Feature Midway Of Conklin Shows

Highlighting the Conklin Shows here is "Kitten" a palomino horse and his master "Alberta Slim" in an act in which it is hard to discern which is more human.

"Kitten" is a more than intelligent equine who bows gracefully, curtseys and does balancing and other acts that are amazing to watch. He tells fortunes, answers questions and imitates an automobile with his master using his feet as "standard equipment."

The Hill-Billy entertainers bring a refreshing taste of the mountains of Tennessee with their own type music and songs. Some of the old time tunes are delightfully rendered while the hill-billy songs and comedy are amusing reminders of "Old Kaintuck".

The Mystic Maze Glass House where one sees himself in all sorts of shapes and has the illusion of meeting himself coming out is another novel attraction, while the Circus Sideshow that plays continuously is an attraction well worth seeing by all lovers of the "Big Top" entertainment.

The Kiddy Auto Ride and the popular merry-go-round look after the Midway wants of the children while the Moon Rocket Ride a real thriller for those with strong stomachs and who love whirling speed, is something that should not be missed.

The Pin-Up Girls and the Posing Vaudeville Show in which some really beautiful girls, among them Gloria Hart, a former "Miss Winnipeg" display plenty of pulchritude is one of the outstanding attractions. The productions are well-staged and are some of the things of beauty along the Midway.

Then there are the ferris wheel and the flying scooter guaranteed to give their riders thrills galore as they whirl through the air. Bingo, and other games round out an attractive Midway and easily uphold the reputation held by the Conklin Shows.

Pleads Guilty To False Pretences

Eighteen-year-old Stanley Wilson, Haliburton, charged with obtaining an automobile under false pretences, pleaded guilty in city police court this morning, and was sentenced by Magistrate J. L. Lloyd to six weeks in the county jail, a sentence he had already served, while awaiting final hearing.

Wilson was arrested in connection with similar charges laid against Leo Sylvain, alias, J. P. Lepine who signed worthless cheques for payment.

The accused, Police Inspector Claire Hayes, investigating officer, stated, was with Sylvain at the time of a purchase of a car and signed his name as William Watson, Holloway, for which he had received $2.

He told the court his wife had given birth to a baby since his apprehension. "It's time you grew up. We have had enough of you and you might as well be outside as inside a jail."

Sylvain, who pleaded guilty to obtaining automobiles from Belleville and Stirling and gasoline and oil from this city, was remanded for a week in order to give the Crown an opportunity to secure his record.

V.O.N. Report

The first meeting for the Fall term of the V.O.N. was held on Monday evening in the Chamber of Commerce with the president, Mrs. Fred Frederickson in the chair. The main part of the business period was the reading of the nurses' report by Miss Ethel Gordon. In opening, she extended a greeting to all the members following the summer recess, and expressed the gratefulness of both Miss Connor and herself at being able to have their month's holiday.

Reporting briefly on the nursing work for the past three months of the V.O.N., Miss Gordon stated that in June, July and August the nurses made a total of 1,398 home visits. "The Order, of course, continues to supervise a boarding home for children", she said. The attendance at the well baby conference is increasing. Miss Gordon expressed how extremely interesting this work is, and said that the importance of immunization for children over six months is constantly stressed. Special mention was made in the report of the four-fold campaign for funds which gets under way on Sept. 25.

Continuing, Miss Gordon told that Miss Stiver, Supervisor of Venereal Disease Nursing for the Ontario Department of Health, visited the local V.O.N. last week. Miss Stiver explained the new emphasis which is being placed on prevention of venereal disease and the success they are having in places adequately staffed with public health personnel in the follow-up of contacts to these diseases. She displayed some pamphlets for public use, designed to inform people in an intelligent way. Miss Stiver also stated that the Department has some splendid films on this subject suitable for a health conscious group and asked that the matter of procuring a film be discussed at the next meeting of the V.O.N.

SGT. V. STREBE IS IMPROVING

Is Removed From Dangerously Ill to Seriously Ill List

Latest word concerning Sgt. Vernon Strebe's condition, who was wounded in Italy on August 6. His general condition was very grave and he had undergone an emergency operation on August 21st.

The following letter has just been received:

No. 2 British General Hospital,
N1 Ward, C.M.F.,
Sept. 3, 1944.

Dear Mr. Strebe,

I am very glad to tell you your son Sgt. V. Strebe is definitely making progress, that today he was removed from the dangerously ill to the seriously ill list. That does not mean that he is quite out of the woods yet, but is a step in the right direction, and I hope that we shall continue to send you better and better news. Sgt. Strebe is one of the best patients we have ever had for he has been very ill, often in great pain and almost always in this sticky heat at the least, uncomfortable, but we have never heard him moan or complain. You would be very proud if you could see how he bears his wounds.

Yours Sincerely,
Jean P. Minchell,
Assistant Matron.

Sgt. T. Pedder Had Part in Rescue Of Army Unit

Member of the "Hasty-P's" in Italy continue to do a good job in fighting the Germans, it is indicated in a recent story by Major Bert Wemp, Toronto Evening Telegram war correspondent, who tells how the H. and P. E. boys went to the rescue of another unit when it was overcome by suicidal Nazi paratroopers.

"They dealt the Germans a smashing blow, inflicting heavy casualties, including 26 prisoners and of kind who don't usually surrender," according to the adjutant. "They also captured one 75-mm. gun a self-propelled gun, two 30-cwt. vehicles, a half-track and machine guns."

Included in the Hasty-P's rescue party was Sgt. Thomas Pedder of Belleville, formerly having gained wide recognition as a weight lifter in this district.

Surprise

Surprise is one of the fundamental elements of war. It has been practised from time immemorial and in this twentieth century it is still effective. Other wars were on a small scale as compared with this war and that of 1914-1918 and surprises brought lesser results but great surprises in this war have brought great gains for the United Nations. Germany tried surprise in the early stages of the present conflict as in Denmark, Norway and in Russia.

But Germany has never been able to use permanently surprise as have the United Nations. The greatest surprise so far has been the overwhelming success of the Allied invasion on the coast of Normandy and a train of success has followed in which success and surprise have been linked. The Germans had been looking for a landing on the heavily fortified Calais area: instead the landing came in Normandy with airborne troops, planes, gliders, ships of nearly every sort known in war. Then the Germans were surprised again with the break-out from Normandy and the swift stabs of armored forces with lightning speed which swept up all France into the Allied net along with Belgium and Luxembourg.

Once again the Allies have surprised the "herrenvolk," the "supermen" of Germany. Germany which had used airborne troops in Crete and elsewhere evidently did not look for a second airborne invasion, but it came, this time a thrust over into The Netherlands behind the German lines. By one writer this has been called the greatest airborne invasion of the present war. So once again came surprise for the enemy as the sky-moving troops arrived from Britain, in a movement with land troops to outflank the line on which the Hitlerites had long counted for their defence if they required it. But the gliders with troops came in to the accompaniment of little opposition.

With the gigantic strength of the United Nations, such an airborne invasion cannot but reap vast results which Hitler cannot prevent. Germany is now at her weakest of the war, she has been battered, her troops have been destroyed or captured and now on German soil the decision is being pounded out. There is as Sir Bernard Montgomery said nothing but "complete, utter and absolute defeat for Germany."

The Allied world is proud of the comprehensiveness and sagacity of the Allied command whose skill in war is hastening the conflict to its conclusion, and of valor and courage of their men who have turned the tables utterly upon the Huns. Here the Allies are now within Germany in places and in The Netherlands in less than three months from D-Day.

Surprise as a weapon of war and surprise in the other sense of bewildering and confusing the enemy is exacting a terrific toll of the foe.

Fair Maintains Reputation

Shannonville Fair, with a lineage going back into the depths of time as it is reckoned in this country, carries on with the courage and wisdom of all good fairs. Shannonville Agricultural Society has a set date, a Saturday, and the countryside knows it and attends one of the most attractive of the smaller fairs of Ontario. But that reference to smallness does not refer to the crowds—they are large as many a fair board will admit.

Like every fair Shannonville's has its own distinct character, even if it possesses all those attractions that are common to all fairs.

Long may fairs like Shannonville's last! It has long since proven its value in peace time and in war time and it never fails to attract. That proves that it has merit.

Shannonville Fair makes one day in the year a day that will never be forgotten.

Ghastly Revelations

1,380,000 bodies of victims were burned at a single Hun torture camp reads the heading of an article in one of the newspapers, telling the awful story of a camp near Lublin, Poland, where the mass horrors were enacted at the recital of which the blood of millions hundreds of years hence will almost freeze as they hear it told. Dante in his "Inferno" never was able to conjure up such a scene of terror and horror as the Germans, guilty of these atrocities, conjured up in their fiendish minds and enacted upon over a million and a third of its victims.

In all 820,000 pairs of shoes, many of them having been worn by children, were found by the Polish Soviet extraordinary committee investigating German war crimes. The unfortunate owners of these shoes had been sent out of this life with the torture of Hun fiends, the torture staff of Huns, including German women who were experts in torturing the women prisoners at the Majdanek camp. As high as 18,000 executions took place in a single day. 600,000 bodies of the 1,380,000 victims were burned in special furnaces which were able to burn four bodies in fifteen minutes if the legs and arms were chopped off, 300,000 on bonfires in a nearby forest and in two old furnaces and at least 400,000 on bonfires near the crematorium. The finding of the commission is that the chief culprits were the Hitlerite government and the super-hangman Himmler and their officials of the S.S.

Surely Nazi militaristic Germany is the world's most awful example in all history of perversion, brutality and atrocity. The perpetrators of these crimes may well dread the sure and certain judgment that is already beating through the walls of the godless German Reich. With such deeds Germany's name must be associated all down the course of oncoming generations.

Hero-Prisoner a Candidate

(Montreal Gazette)

The unusual announcement comes from Vancouver that a Canadian war hero, now a prisoner-of-war in Germany, has accepted nomination to run for the federal parliament in the next general election. The man is Lt.-Col. C. C. Merritt, V.C., who distinguished himself in the famous Canadian attack at Dieppe. He will run for the Progressive Conservative party in the constituency of Vancouver-Burrard. His signed and witnessed acceptance has been forwarded from Colditz, Germany.

The present member for this riding is none other than G. G. McGeer, dynamic Liberal stalwart, who was formerly mayor of Vancouver and is widely known for his unorthodox theories on finance. Mr. McGeer has announced, and it is generally understood, that he will not seek re-election. In 1940, Mr. McGeer won 12,500 votes, as against 10,500 for the C.C.F., and 9,500 for the national government (Conservative) candidate, which would indicate considerable C.C.F. strength in the riding.

What success Col. Merritt will have as a candidate remains to be seen. It is evident, however, that here is a man who is willing to serve his country in peace as he has in war. Voters of all parties will hope there will be many such in the years to come.

Greenwich Time

(Manchester Guardian)

All the world has a great respect for Greenwich Time, even those parts of it where the citizens now keep their own chronometers two hours ahead of the famous Greenwich standard. Our respect should be further increased by reports that the Astronomer Royal is beginning to change the chronometers of Greenwich from the pendulum type to what is described as "the quartz crystal clock." The most finished specimen of a pendulum clock, it seems, could keep time to a hundredth of a second a day; the "clock" which has abandoned the swing of the pendulum for the incredibly rapid vibrations of a quartz crystal reacting to an electrical stimulus is even now accurate to within a thousandth of a second a day and it is thought that its margin of error may yet be reduced to one ten-thousandth part of a second.

POSTWAR WOMAN

Some day I'm sure that she will say:
"I cannot stand the grind of gear.
I want a little garden gay,
And happy children playing near.
I want afresh the beds to make,
The silverware and glass to shine,
And there are sweets I want to bake
All in a kitchen that is mine."

Some day, and soon 'twill be I think,
She'll tire of bench and torch and gauge
And want a white enamel sink,
And tins for savory and sage.
She'll quit the work she's learned to do
To free some man for battle grim,
And give up wearing denim blue
For frocks and ruffled aprons trim.

When freedom's safe on land and sea,
And men return to peaceful trades,
At home again she'll long to be
On guard 'gainst all that life degrades.
As she was taught, she'll want to teach
Her children small both prayer and creed,
And conduct brave and proper speech
And give to them the care they'll need.

Harbor Pollution

I notice that the City Council are thinking of opening a sluiceway south of the C.P.R. bridge, through the Victoria Park driveway. The idea being to allow the river to have access to the harbor and thus flush out the harbor.

This would be a mistake. It was tried before and only succeeded in carrying more sewage into the harbour, and the condition was really disgusting, in fact, sickening. During my term as Mayor this sluiceway was closed up and conditions were improved although not remedied permanently.

The trouble is, engineering opinion to the contrary notwithstanding, that the main city sewer goes into the river a little south of the C.P.R. bridge. Sometimes in the fall there is little water in the river and conditions right there are dreadful. But in any case the sewage heads out into the bay, there it meets the prevailing south-west wind which drives it back into the harbour.

There is no remedy other than sewage disposal plant, and the government threatened us as far back as 1919, that they would force this on us. Meantime, our system of municipal taxation is such that this could not be built—nor anything else. Our governments are without much vision as you may have noticed. Ah well, time flies and sewage floats, and we have bathing beaches therein. Revolting!

Yours very truly,
Jamieson Bone.

Drives on Pelelieu And Angaur Isles Gain Momentum

Pearl Harbor, Sept. 19 — (AP) — American drives on Peleliu and Angaur Islands in the southern Palaus gained momentum today as the Japanese showed signs of weakening under the attack which cost them 5,543 dead in the first four days' fighting.

The Peleliu airdrome, one of the biggest and best of captured Japanese fields, was being used by American planes. To the north Marines pushed ahead across tough coral ridges, after capturing the island's main town, Asias, two adjacent villages and an offshore islet.

On Angaur Island, six miles southward, army troops speeded their advance. Infantrymen captured Saipan town, the principal settlement, with its artillery-wrecked phosphate refinery, once vital for Japan's explosives, and the largest railroad yard in Oceania.

Japs Apparently Withdrawing to Tip

Capture of the town meant the army spearheads had pushed southward more than half the length of Angaur, against small counter-attacks. The Japanese apparently were withdrawing to the extreme tip for a final stand.

On Morotai Island, 375 miles south of Davao, Southwest Pacific forces continued to scout for the disappearing Japanese garrison. Two light aerial attacks, the first enemy counter-blow against that islet, were reported.

Carrier-based American aircraft made their heaviest assault on adjacent Halmahera Island, source of potential Japanese reprisal attacks, flying 150 sorties Friday. Neutralization raids continued against the Netherlands Celebes, to the southwest.

Southern Luzon Bombed

Southern Luzon was bombed during the Sept. 8-13 carrier force strike at the Philippines and warships roamed for three days in constant sight of the islands without interference, Artemus Gates, assistant secretary to the United States Navy for Air, said at a press conference yesterday.

Gates was aboard a carrier during the strike. His was the first announcement that the attack spread to Luzon, main and northernmost island in the archipelago. The island was last bombed by Allied planes April 13, 1942, during a brief raid north of Manila.

ALLIED

San Marino's frontier was crossed at the town of Faetano, where the Marano River intersects the border. A bridgehead was established there and British units advanced one mile toward the city of San Marino itself.

Describing the bitter action for the mountain positions, an official report said:

"In addition to most determined resistance by veteran German troops equipped with small arms and supporting weapons the 5th army force had to negotiate rugged mountain masses. Even the crests were fortified with dug-in positions and concrete pillboxes. Emplacements with tank turret tops also were encountered."

The entire area was interlaced with wire entanglements.

The successful attack brought the Americans within 27 miles of Bologna, important communications and industrial centre in the Po Valley. Most of the intervening Terrain, however, is rough and well fortified.

The entire 5th army moved forward in pace with the attack. Brazilians near the West Coast drove on northward, but the exact rate of their advance or the opposition they encountered was not specified.

SKIM MILK AND BUTTERMILK

In the article about Vitamin A in Your Daily Diet recently I said:

"Not only whole milk, but also cream, skim milk and buttermilk (genuine) and skim milk (too often regarded as unfit for human nutrition) are good food sources of vitamin A."

The vice-chairman of the food and nutrition committee of a county defense council protests that here is no evidence to substantiate such a statement. He says that "according to Sherman's Chemistry of Food and Nutrition buttermilk contains absolutely no vitamin A and skim milk only an insignificant amount.

It may be that Prof. Sherman has changed his mind about it since he revised his textbook for the fifth edition (1937), but I'll settle for the compromise that both items, skimmed (not separator) milk and genuine buttermilk (not the concoction dairy firms often sell under that name) contain some vitamin A, although of course most of the vitamin A in milk is in the butter fat and there is only 0.3% of the fat left in skim milk (compared with 4.0% in fresh milk), only 0.5% left in genuine buttermilk.

As one recognized authority (Prof. Mary S. Rose, The Foundations of Nutrition, Macmillan, '38) states it:

> "Milk stands preeminent among food materials as a source of vitamin A which is not all removed with the butter fat, skim milk containing an appreciable amount."

This same young man who, as vice-chairman of a county defense council's committee on food and nutrition, would have me believe there is "absolutely no vitamin A" in buttermilk and practically none in skim milk, a few months ago tried to convince me that I should not feel as I do about the doctoring of oleomargarine with vitamin A and I should not mind if oleomargarine and other stuff offered as "pure" food is also doctored with sodium benzoate. The young man assured me that a dash of this chemical preservative in margarine or other foods consumed every day is harmless, and cites "a thorough study made under the Remsen board some years ago by a group of outstanding scientists" to that effect.

Outstanding scientists my eye. If I have any choice I'll take food NOT containing sodium benzoate.

A teaspoonful of butter contains 100 units of vitamin A. The yolk of an egg contains 825 units of vitamin A. A teaspoonful of cod liver oil contains 2000 units of vitamin A. Two tablespoonfuls of raw carrot or carrot slighly cooked contains 1000 units of carotene, provitamin A, which, in the body, is at least partly converted into vitamin A.

What foods contain fluorine or fluorides? How much should one consume daily to prevent dental caries? (Mrs. S. H.)

Answer—Wait for me. Have you been reading a miracle story in some magazine? Nobody knows as yet how much fluorine is good or bad for what. As soon as we have fairly sound knowledge of the effect of fluorine I'll harp on it here, you may rest assured.

Low Blood Sugar

What is the differenc between hypoglycemia and diabetes? Symptoms of spells sound alike. (S. B.)

Embittered fighting without substantial changes in the situation continued near the Adriatic south of Rimini. West of San Martino, Canadians advanced to the Ausa River at a point about three airline miles southwest of Rimini in a heavy battle with enemy tanks and infantry.

See-saw fighting continued for San Martino itself. The Germans were making lavish use of tanks, mortars and other weapons.

Greek troops reached the northern edge of Rimini Airfield, two miles from the edge of the city.

R.A.F. fighter-bombers paved the way for the Greek advance by pin-point bombing of pillboxes surmounted by Panther tank turrets.

Before crossing San Marinto frontiers, the British captured Monte Olivo and a wide range commanding the Ausa Valley.

The latest 8th. Army attacks toward the major Allied goal—a break-through into the Po Valley—were accompanied by one of the heaviest day-and-night aerial offensives ever made on enemy defences in Italy.

Ten separate striking forces of medium bombers made a six-hour attack on a heavily-fortified area immediately northwest of Rimini yesterday. R.A.F. medium and heavy bombers followed up last night, dropping 300 tons of bombs within five minutes on a zone three miles long and one mile wide.

SODA POP

Certain, sweet, non-intoxicating drinks containing carbon dioxide gas were named pop because when the bottles were opened the corks were expelled with a pop or quick, explosive noise.

The original name was soda pop which was soon shortened to pop.

Both the name and the product originated in America.

It is said that the first soda pop was made in 1807 when Dr. Philip Syng Physick, an eminent physician of Philadelphia, asked a local chemist named Townsend Speakman to prepare carbonated water for some of his patients. The chemist flavored the carbonated water with fruit juice to make it more palatable.

Whether or not this story is true, Dr. Philip Syng Physick was a real person. He was born in Philadelphia in 1768 and died in the same city in 1837. His father was a prominent man in the city and wanted his son to study medicine. At first, however, Philip Physick wanted to be a goldsmith. But after studying at the University of Pennsylvania, he went abroad and studied medicine in London under the famous Dr. John Hunter.

After completing a medical course at the University of Edinburgh, he returned to Philadelphia and practiced for many years. He gained such fame as a surgeon that he is known as "The Father of American Surgery." His mechanical bent was demonstrated by the fact that he invented numerous devices used in surgery.

In 1831 Dr. Physick removed nearly a thousand stones from the bladder of Chief Justice John Marshall in a single operation.

Dr. Physick lived to see soda pop become a popular drink in his native country.

On this subject Roger Burlingame says in "The March of Iron Men:"

"Water charged with carbon dioxide gas was largely an American invention and became, certainly, an American tradition which the sturdy Americans miraculously survived. It came into popular use in the thirties following the invention in 1832 of an apparatus for making it by John Matthews of New York City. In its train came the enormous soft drink business which brought with it ice cream, the great variety of syrups and flavors, artificial ice, increased manufacture of glass, synthetic processes for flavorings, demand for sugar, chronic dyspepsia, diabetes, the American drugstore and a few ineffably curious arguments against the use of alcohol."

WEDDINGS

CRABBE—EVERETT

An altar banked with an impressive array of asters, ferns and baby breath, Wall Street Church, Brockville, was the setting of a lovely September wedding on Saturday, the 16th., at two-thirty o'clock, of Margaret Vivian Everett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Everett of Brockville, formerly of Belleville, to Lieut. Lorne George Crabbe, Officers' Training Centre, Brockville, son of Mr. G. A. Crabbe, of Woodstock, and the late Mrs. Crabbe. The Rev. G. S. Maxwell was the officiating clergyman for the occasion. The wedding music was played by Sgt. G. A. Bishop and the soloist was Miss Helen Barnum.

Entering the church on the arm of her father, who gave her in marriage, the bride was radiantly gowned in a model of white embossed satin, fashioned with sheath-tight bodice that fell gracefully into a softly gathered skirt, long sleeves coming to points over her wrists and sweetheart neckline. Her veil of tulle illusion fell to the floor from an elegant coronet of 'mums and bouvardia. She wore the groom's gift of a gold locket and matching bracelet and carried an arm bouquet of red roses.

Attending her were Miss Jean Everett, her sister, wearing aquamarine moire taffeta, and Miss Lorene Crabb, in orchid. Their dresses were made in long torso effects, full sweeping skirts, sweetheart necklines and three quarter length sleeves. They wore half hats in matching shades to their frocks and carried bouquets of coral roses. Miss Marilyn Empey, as flower girl, was attired in daffodil yellow taffeta and halo hat of matching rosettes.

Lieutenant A. Seal acted as groomsman, and the ushers were Lieuts. Roger Senecal and Jack Hogan, all of the Officers' Training Centre.

For the reception at the bride's home following the ceremony, the bride's mother selected a cinnamon brown crepe dress, brown hat and accessories accentuated with mink furs. The groom's sister was wearing chocolate brown crepe complemented with turquoise accessories.

On the wedding trip to western points, the bride donned a blue wool dress, and matching hat, cinnamon brown coat and accessories in the same shade.

On their return they will take up residence at Brockville.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding were Mr. G. A. Crabbe, Woodstock; Miss Lorene Crabbe, London; Mrs. L. C. Hyden, Ingersoll; Miss Helen Barnum, Campbellford; Mrs. Talbot Ketcheson, Belleville; Dr. J. S. Loynes, Hamilton; Mr. and Mrs. M. Clark, Miss Alberta Everett of Ottawa; Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Ellis, Mrs. P. P. Everett, Iroquois.

Women's Activities

PLAINFIELD W.I.

The September meeting of the W.I. was held at the home of Mrs. Jas. McCreary on Thursday evening last. The meeting was in charge of Mrs. Clarence Hall, the president.

Community singing was led by Mrs. Joe Gowe.

Current Events were given by Mrs. Norm Hall, Sr. Mrs. Erle Denyes reported that five pairs of socks, two turtle-neck sweaters and two pairs of seamen's socks had been turned in. Mrs. Denyes distributed more yarn, and stressed the fact that the need was very great for knitting now with colder weather coming on. Mrs. Fred Hall reported on sewing being done. One pair of sheets, four pillow slips, and six little play suits were handed in. Mrs. Hall gave out several little dresses to be made. Four quilts were quilted last month and there are three more ready to be done at the hall this month. Mrs. Fred Prindle reported on war work money collections.

It was voted to give Mrs. Percy Hoskin one of the quilts as the family had lost everything by fire.

It was decided to have donation day on October 4, as each family is being asked to donate one dollar or more toward this donation to raise money to send the Christmas boxes to the boys overseas. Several ladies were appointed collectors.

This closed the business part of the program. Mrs. H. Palmer, leader of the girls' work, took charge and a grand display of what the girls' class has been doing was shown. The articles shown, all made by the girls themselves, were well made and certainly worth the effort.

A reading was given by Miss Irene Hall; solo, by Mrs. Ralph Wilder, with guitar accompaniment and a reading by Miss Olive Hall.

The Club Story was given by Miss I. Elliott. Mrs. Palmer spoke a few words on how well the girls had done the work and stated it was a pleasure to help them as their leader.

A contest was conducted by Miss Irena Hall. Collection was taken, $2.01. Twenty-nine ladies, five gentlemen and two new members were present.

The hostess served a lunch assisted by Mrs. Joe Gowe, Miss L. Latta and Mrs. H. Palmer and a social half hour was spent.

The study book was introduced by the President, Mrs. F. Yorke.

Mrs. Jas. Huffman and Mrs. W. Clare were appointed delegates to attend the rally at Foxboro in October. The attendance was fifteen and two visitors. Collection $2.55. Mrs. Baines served lunch.

During the course of the party, Mrs. Furmidge delightfully rendered "The Red Cross Nurse". Euchre and dancing afforded everyone a great deal of pleasure. Refreshments were served and "topped off" a very jolly evening.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Resignation From a Club.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

I want to resign from a small social club. To whom should I write my resignation? What should I write? And what reason can I give, since I cannot give the real reason?

R. N.

Write your resignation to the secretary of the club. And since it is a small social club, it would be approximately gracious to make your note somewhat on the informal side. Perhaps like this:

Mrs. Robert Field
Secretary, The —— Club
——, Ont.

Dear Mrs. Field,

I regret very much that, because of the pressure of many responsibilities, I shall be unable to retain my membership in The —— Club after October the first. Being a member of our club has been a great happiness to me, and I have many pleasant memories of our friendly meetings.

Sincerely yours,
Jane Doe

Proxy For Godfather

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

I am expecting my baby next month. I have only one brother, to whom I am deeply devoted, and I would like to have him be my baby's godfather. But since he is in the Service, I wonder if it is permissible for me to have someone act for him. Is it?

H. B.

Yes, if before your brother went away he consented to be your baby's godfather (as I judge he did), it is proper and permissible for you to have someone act as his proxy at the christening.

Parents of Daughter's Fiance Should Call.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

1.—My daughter is to be married next month, and I have not yet met the parents of her fiance. Should I invite them to dinner, or is it their place to invite us first?

2.—At the wedding the bridegroom will wear his uniform. What should the best man and ushers wear at a morning wedding? And how is the reception conducted?

B., N.Y.

1.—It is the "place", the social responsibility, of the parents of your daughter's fiance, or at least his mother, to have come to call on you and your daughter as soon as possible after their son had told them of his engagement. This is, naturally, a most important visit, for it shows their welcoming of your daughter into their family, their happiness about the engagement, and is the first step toward establishing the relationship between the two families.

But since the wedding date is so near and they haven't established this relationship, obviously they don't realize that this visit-of-welcoming is their responsibility. Therefore, if I were you, I would treat this omission realistically, not stand on ceremony, and, as soon as possible, make the acquaintance-gesture yourself. That is, write a cordial note to the young man's mother, saying that you and your family would so much enjoy meeting the family of your daughter's fiance and that you would be so happy if they would come to dine with you on (day, date, hour).

2.—What type of wedding is it to be, formal, semi-formal, informal? That is, what is the bride going to wear? If you will outline the plans to me, I shall be glad to talk over with you the proper attire for the men in the wedding party.

Fashion Flashes

THE TREND must be to long-skirted dinner and dance frocks, for such types appear in every show and shop window. Scarlet faille is used for a youthful dance frock made with short draped sleeves, square neckline, long molded torso line, swathed hipline sash and big double bow.

No dearth of flattery in the new big hats. Black satin with a low crown and wide, kettle-edge brim is trimmed with black veiling, dotted with jet beads, that is draped in swaths and swirls. A band of jet nailheads encircles the crown.

Never a dull moment with shining satin frock, suit or accessories. Sleek black satin is used for a shirtwaist frock made with club collar, wide belt and big square buckle in self fabric, slightly draped skirt at the sides, and rhinestone buttons and links.

An old favorite fur reappears in civet cat used to trim several new coats and suits. It is used in a wide border for a coat of fuchsia-colored woolen made with high closing and shoulder cut in one with bodice. Wide cuffs of the fur and tailored self belt.

Very clever novelties appear in the new handbags showing no dearth of ingenuity by our bag designers. A clever idea is a bound bag of leather set into a black plastic disc, and spinning around to open with a side slide fastener. Nice in colored snakeskin with a trapunto flower motif giving a raised effect.

Dance enthusiasts will go for a new print made up of twirling ballerinas doing arabesques and pirouettes.

A TURN OF THE CENTURY look marks many of the newest hats. Reminiscent of a hat worn by England's Queen Alexandra is a forward tilted toque-beret of white puffed felt trimmed with two winged black swallows and tied with a dotted black veil.

He discovered, through research and from direct observation in treating over a million feet, that many body ills are caused by misfitted shoes or by wearing shoes made on the wrong lasts.

Realizing that no shoe can be greater than the correctness of the last over which it is built, his first aim was to "Build a Last"—one that was scientifically proportioned, natural and conforming, with the result that Dr. Locke's perfected lasts so revolutionized the American shoe industry that today the greatness of his fame rests equally on his "last" and on the shoe itself.

Women today find that both weak and strong feet walk in shoes made over his modern lasts with a moccasin-like comfort such as the American Indian enjoyed on the freedom of mother earth.

In addition, as a crowning glory to his world-famous lasts, Dr. Locke Shoes speak a language of beauty and smart style at every step.

CHANGE IN LINEUP NOT ANNOUNCED COST BALL GAME

Reliance Management Took Player Out of Game Without Telling Umpire

GAME ENDS IN TIE

Failure on the part of the team manager to announce a change in the batting lineup cost Reliance girls their opportunity to go one game up in the girls' softball series at the Armouries Tuesday evening and with a couple of runs nullified the pastime ended in nine-all deadlock with darkness intervening to end hostilities.

Last night's game will now be replayed on Wednesday evening with the series still standing at a win each for Reliance and Stewart Warngr.

A technicality kept the Stewart Warner girls on even terms with their opposition last evening. In the first inning Pauline Colden was counted out for batting without the change in the batting order being announced to the umpire. She was late in arriving at the game and Stairs took her position at second during the first inning. With Reliance at bat Pauline took her regular place at bat without the change being announced and the SWACO management called for a ruling.

Otherwise it was just another girl's ballgame with plenty of hitting, spots of flashy fielding and the usual number of errors. Helen Garrow was the star defensively coming through with a couple of sparkling catches to cut off SWACO rallies, while in the last inning Pitcher Calcutt stopped a lightning drive from the Garrow bat and with an equally fast throw prevented a Reliance win with a fast throw to first. The winning run was on third at the time.

Offensively the teams were practically even with Reliance coming through with 14 bingles and their opposition just one more. Helen Meens was most consistent with the willow having four for five, while Garrow got two doubles and a single and Wright counting three one base blows.

Lineups:

SWACO—Fralick 2b; Meens c; Colden ss; Rowbotham 1b; Haslip 3b; Corneal cf; Kelleher rf; Ronsky lf and Calcutt p.

Reliance—Buker rf; Wright lf; Elliott 3b; Colden 2b; Garrow ss; Blaind c; McKenna cf; Coathup 1b, and Foster p.

Line score:

SWACO	102 301	2—9	runs
Reliance	112 300	2—9	runs

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

(Associated Press Sport Writer.)

New York, Sept. 19 (AP)—When Jimmy Conzelman, Assistant to President Don Barnes of the Browns, was in the throes of composing that rousing football ditty, "Its in the Cards to Win," he stopped to point out: "You Notice I Don't Say We Will Win." .... Now it begins to look as if Jimmy's Cardinals song could be transferred to the St. Loo bunch without changing either the title or the comment....If the World Series were starting today, we'd pick the Tigers in a walkover..With unaccustomed frankness and brevity, Jimmy Johnston concludes a 300-word letter about "the mighty Menichelli," his new South American heavyweight, with this statement: "I don't know any more about him than I have written—so no use in going any further."

Tough Picking.

When the managers of the Central Pacific Service Baseball League picked an all-star team at the end of the season, they refused to consider Joe DiMaggio and Johnny Mize because they hadn't played enough games in Hawaii but created a utility post for Tom Ferrick because the former Cleveland flinger had done some mighty hitting besides taking a regular turn on the hill..The team they picked: pitchers, Vern Olsen, Don Schmidt and Hugh Casey; catcher, Vince Smith; infielders, Ferris Fain, Joe Gordon, Bob Dillinger and Peewee Reese; outfielders, Mike McCormick, Barney McCoskey and Walt Judnich... Maybe it's just as well for the big leaguers that it's just an Army-Navy world series starting there Friday.

NEWARK BEARS WIN THIRD GAME FROM THE LEAFS

Page of Bears Knocked Out in Second Innings but Singleton Stops Rally

SCORE IS 5-4

By The Associated Press

Two hitting pitchers opposed each other last night and Newark's Elmer Singleton came out on top as the Bears notched their third straight International League play-off victory over Toronto 5-4.

Joe Page started for the Bears against the Maple Leafs' Woody Crowson before 13,000 fans. Page was knocked out in the second inning, when Singleton came on in relief. He finished the game, allowing the Leafs only five hits and doubling home the tying run in the fourth inning.

Both Crowson and Singleton got two hits, but Singleton had more on the ball in the clutch as both teams rallied in the ninth. With the bases loaded in the top of the ninth Steve Kuk singled home two runs for the Bears and the Leafs came up for the last time two runs behind.

The Leafs made their bid when Tony Castano singled Tom Astbury in from third with two out. However Castano was nailed a moment later trying to steal and Newark was within one game of sweeping their semi-final series.

Page met his downfall in the 2nd, when he walked two and allowed two successive hits with none out. Singleton retired the side without further scoring and pitched shutout ball until the ninth. He struck out four and walked only one.

Should the Bears win tonight they will have to wait until Baltimore and Buffalo conclude their series. The Bisons and Orioles have played only one game so far. The Bears lead the Leafs 3-0 while Buffalo holds a 1-0 edge on the Flock.

The weatherman got another decision over Baltimore and Buffalo in their play-off series when rain forced a postponement of last night's second game, and resulted in a decision to move on to Buffalo for a three-game series beginning tomorrow night.

'Ministry of Sports' Will Be Recommended In Quebec Legislature

Montreal, Sept. 19 (CP) — Hon. J. H. Delisle, Minister Without Portfolio in the Quebec cabinet, said here last night that he would recommend the establishment of a "Ministry of Sports" at the next session of the Quebec Legislature. He was speaking at a meeting of The Canadian Bicycle and Sport Goods Dealers Association.

The present government is interested in promoting such activities as sports which would be of benefit to the youth of the province, he added.

Detroit Tigers To Clash In Initial Series

Newhouser and Trout Are Primed to Shoot Works Against Yankees

CARDS NEARLY "IN"

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sport Writer.)

Detroit's Tigers, the hottest club in baseball not excluding the St. Louis Cards, head into their most important series today with a half-game lead in the American League, a complete at-home schedule for the rest of the season and both Hal Newhouser and Dizzy Trout primed to shoot the works against the still dangerous Yankees.

Since Aug. 1, Steve O'Neill's Tigers have won 30 and lost 12 for a percentage of .714 and only 11 were played at Briggs Stadium.

Despite three successive beatings by the Athletics that dumped them out of the lead and down the ladder to third, two games behind the Tigers, New York Yankees are still in the race. Joe McCarthy has his pitching planned for the Detroit series, leading off with Hank Borowy and Mel Queen ready for the second day, knowing full well he has to sweep all three to stay close.

Nels Potter, Denny Galhouse and Jack Kramer have been keeping St. Louis Browns in the race, a half game back of the leaders, with a big chance to regain lost ground this week if they can trip the lowly Washington Senators and half Philadelphia's revival.

Yesterday's only big league game was a 6-5 victory for Boston over Brooklyn in 10 innings in a single by Butch Nieman. The loss sent the Dodgers tumbling back into the National League cellar as the Braves squeezed into sixth place.

St. Louis Cards can clinch the flag today beyond a mathematical doubt if Pittsburgh should lose to Brooklyn.

The Vancouver Neons moved up to the fourth round of the International softball tournament at Cleveland, O., last night by tossing a 3-1 defeat to the American Yarns girls team from North Carolina with Myers holding the southerners to two hits. Earlier, the western Canadian girls had received a 3-2 loss from Stamford, Conn., Nutmegs but were not eliminated. The Nutmegs defeated Toronto Sunday Morning Class 2-0 to gain a record of three straight victories. In the men's division, Toronto Tip Tops eliminated Baltimore, winning 1-0 in nine innings.

The purchase of centreman Max Kaminsky of Niagara Falls from Buffalo Bisons in the American Hockey League was announced last night by Pittsburgh Hornets who had previously bought wingers Max Bennett and Dede Klein from Buffalo. Kaminsky served part of last season with the Boston N.H.L. Bruins.

Clark D. Shaughnessy, football coach of University of Pittsburgh, turned down a $125,000 contract to direct the Washington Redskins in the pro grid loop for five years, it was stated last night by G. P. Marshall, owner of the Redskins.

General Manager Herb Pennock announced at Philadelphia yesterday Fred Fitzsimmons had signed a contract to manage the Phillies again in 1945, thus setting rumors at rest that the former pitcher would be displaced by either Harry Leibold of Louisville or Stanley (Bucky) Harris of the Buffalo Bisons. Harris had been Phillies' manager before the breakup with ex-president Bill Cox in July, 1943.

A reported reason for the roughshod manner in which Philadelphia Athletics knocked New York Yankees out of first place in the American League standing last weekend is that Connie Mack's boys went after them with a vengeance because President Ed Barrow of the Yanks had registered a protest against the renting of Shibe Park for football games before the close of the ball season.

The $5,000 Scioto 2:04 Bar Pace, feature of yesterday's Grand Circuit card at Delaware, O., was won in straight heats by Prince Yakima, owned by R. H. Toronto, Sept. 19 — (CP) — Among the most open feuding which sports writers are wont to carry on has been that of Dan Parker of the New York Mirror and Andy O'Brien of the Montreal Standard.

But when Andy's dad, a hockey trainer, died, Dan came right to bat with his glowing tribute:

"Bill O'Brien, the trainer who died in Montreal did more to elevate his profession than anyone else I know of in the field of sports.

"All too many trainers are mere gymnasium hangers-on whose talent begins and ends with their ability to give a good rub. Bill O'Brien made a study of anatomy and, although he never made any pretense of being a doctor, he could and often did act as one in emergencies until a medical man could be located.

"Besides being intelligent and well-equipped to minister to the human body, Bill was a high-class gentleman with the appearance and dignity of a professional man.

"Wherever he went he left a train of friends. For years he handled the Montreal Maroons hockey club and later, Les Canadiens. He also was trainer for the Montreal Royals baseball club. Bill's two sons, Andy and Larry, who are sports writers in Montreal, lost as fine a father as a lad ever had in Bill's untimely death."

G. M. Head Says Public Will Be Able To Buy Cars Six Months After Switch From War Work

W. A. Wicker Addresses Joint Meeting of Oshawa Service Clubs on 75th Anniversary

Oshawa, Sept. 19 (CP)—Civilians will be able to purchase passenger cars four to six months after a clear "green light" is given to reconversion to peacetime production, W. A. Wecker, vice-president and general manager of General Motors of Canada, Ltd., said last night.

Mr. Wecker was addressing a joint meeting of Oshawa service clubs commemorating the 75th anniversary of the McLaughlin Carriage Company, now General Motors. Tributes were paid to the late Robert McLaughlin and his two sons, Col. R. S. McLaughlin and the late George W. McLaughlin.

Congratulatory telegrams were received from Prime Minister Mackenzie King, Acting Premier T. L. Kennedy of Ontario, D. C. Coleman, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway; James Simpson, president of the Dunlop Tire and Rubber Co.; C. W. Churchill, president of the Chrysler Corporation of Canada; W. R. Campbell, president of the Ford Motor Company of Canada; C. H. Carlisle, president of the Dominion Bank; T. K. Keller, president of Chrysler Corporation, and Alfred P. Sloan, president of General Motors.

Plant Expansion.

Discussing his company's postwar plans, Mr. Wecker said the speed of reconversion depended on Government action. The company was planning to spend millions of dollars for expansion of its plant to meet a postwar demand which he predicted would be 50 per cent greater than before the war. This was in addition to a $1 million-expenditure planned for restoration of the plant to peacetime production.

"We have been considering that the sales potential in Canada will be in excess of 300,000 cars a year for quite a number of years to come," he said.

He emphasized that "jobs are the result of a combination of capital, management and opportunity with some catalyst to make them fuse and function." Recently the catalyst had been war. In peacetime the fusing agent would be founded on "confidence and belief in the future of enterprise that is established by national economic policy."

Munitions Output.

The motor industry had entered every field of munitions production during the war; it led in payment of higher wages and the reduction of hours of work; its research in industrial hygiene brought better working conditions; it pioneered advances in technology, engineering and methods of manufacturing which brought changes in all branches of Canadian industrial life, Mr. Wecker said.

To pave the way for civilian production after the war, "the Government would have to give us a clearly defined plan for the prompt termination of war contracts, including inventories and equipment, and the liquidation and disposal of surplus equipment.

"In other words, we would have to know that our production facilities would be handed over to us for peacetime production before we could properly plan for peacetime production. . . . Incidentally, promptness in this respect means we shall build substantially our 1942 passenger car models."

He said also that it was possible that after the defeat of Germany the demands for war material might be reduced and it might be possible to produce war goods and automobiles at the same time.

75 Years After Founding Plants Turn Out Great Variety of War Equipment

Oshawa, September 19 — The 75th Anniversary of the founding of the McLaughlin Carriage Company which grew into General Motors of Canada, Limited, is being observed this week. There was no time off for celebration in the Company's plants, which have turned out hundreds of thousands of military vehicles, armored cars, guns, aeroplanes and tank components since war began.

In 1869 the late Robert McLaughlin started a carriage shop with four employees at Enniskillen, Ontario. Ten years later, the expanding business moved to Oshawa. Today nearly 15,000 men and women are employed exclusively on war production in General Motors plants across Canada. Among this number are men who once built carriages and who have come out of retirement to use their skill and craftsmanship on the assembly line for Mosquito bomber fuselages.

The span from "buggies to bombers" saw McLaughlin carriages recognized as the finest in Canada; the introduction of the first McLaughlin car in 1907; production of the first Chevrolets in 1915; formation of General Motors of Canada, Limited, in 1918, and the building of more than a million and a half civilian cars and trucks, the last in 1942.

This year also marks three personal anniversaries for R. S. McLaughlin, son of the founder. He has completed 26 years as first and only President of General Motors of Canada, and 57 years as an employee. Recently also he celebrated his 73rd birthday.

At his desk today, Mr. McLaughlin said, in referring to the 75th anniversary:

"My father inherited nothing but his hands and a natural skill and creative ability. His decision to build a carriage shop was a bold one because every village had one. But this one outlasted them all and here is why: This man had the spark of genius and a creative energy — and the right country in which to put enterprise to work".

Great Variety

Through the war years General Motors has produced a greater variety of precision war equipment than the public usually associates with the auto industry. Its employees are proud of the record production of motor transport vehicles, armored fighting vehicles, tank hulls, Browning machine guns, Oerlikon gun mounts, anti-tank gun carriages, the completely equipped nacelles and fuselages of the Mosquito bomber, and a large variety of other items, some of them still on the secret list.

This equipment has been in action on battle fronts in France, Italy, North Africa, India, Burma and Malaya. General Motors of Canada has sent civilian technical advisors to Europe, Africa, India and Australia to work in cooperation with the armed forces and to solve service problems on the spot. In Canada, the Company at its own plants has trained large numbers of army personnel in the use and maintenance of mechanized equipment.

Economical Methods Used

Improvements in design made by General Motors engineers are saving the Canadian people two and a half million dollars a year as well as saving millions of man hours and millions of pounds of such vital materials as rubber, metals and alloys and machine tools. General Motors plant workers have received $8,000 in Suggestion Plan awards in less than a year for ideas on improving and speeding production — production which backs up the nearly 3,500 employees on leave in the armed forces of Canada. Employees have oversubscribed for Victory Loan and are regular purchasers of War Savings.

At Oshawa, the GM Blood Donor Clinic has provided 30,000 donations which have been processed and sent overseas.

The broadcast, reported by United States government monitors, acknowledged that all German infantry guns in the port had been "eliminated."

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 484

By SAM GORDON

The Kibitzer

There is no excuse for a bad opening bid. Not ever. And you surely know why. The answer is because there is always a true bid or a pass available.

You have this hand:

♠K Q 6 5
♥A Q 7 2
♦A Q 9
♣K 4

This hand contains seven high cards (aces, kings, queens). High cards are no-trump tricks. Add them to the short cards and it will tell you how many suit tricks you have. There is a short in clubs.

Is it an opening bid of one heart, one spade, one no-trump, two hearts, two spades, two no-trump, or what? If you know each bid shows, you have no doubt in deciding.

It is not an opening of two hearts or two spades. Because an opening of two in a suit promises at least nine tricks. And you can count only eight tricks here.

It is not an opening of two no-trump. Because such an opening promises eight high cards or their equivalent. And you can come close to that here, but not quite.

It has enough for an opening of one no-trump. But that is not the correct bid. Because a no-trump bid does not admit having a suit that is biddable. You have two biddable suits here.

It has enough for an opening of one heart. But that is not the correct bid. Because with two suits of the same length, you should always bid the higher ranking suit first.

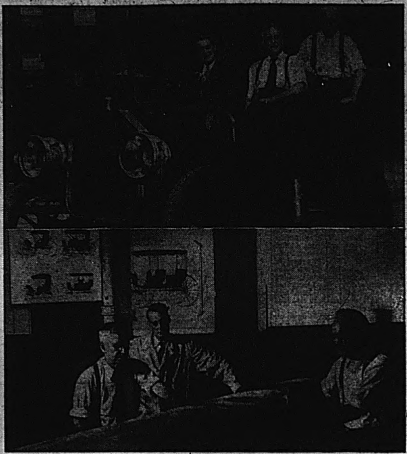
Thus, it resolves itself to an opening bid of one spade. All the needs for such a bid can be found in this hand; five suit tricks, four high cards, two sure tricks, a biddable spade suit.

There are extra values in each of the essential items listed in an opening bid of one. But not enough extra to carry it into the class of any of the two bids.

Many players would get the urge to open such a hand with a bid of two in a suit or no-trump. With values so near to a higher bid, chances are results would be the same. But a true bid is surer.

No need to lie to partner. Leave that for palookas and experts.

75th ANNIVERSARY OF McLAUGHLIN-GM ENTERPRISE



The 75th anniversary of the founding of the McLaughlin Carriage Works, the forerunner of General Motors of Canada, finds (above) old-time employees each with more than 40 years of service, starting out for a run in the first McLaughlin "Model F", built in 1907. They are Fred Branton, who started with the Company in 1903; E. J. James and William J. Drew, both employees since 1898. The former carriage workers now devote their craftsmanship to GM's production of plywood fuselages for the fastest bomber in the world. They are shown (below) fitting the outer skin on the famed Mosquito.

Fort Erie, Ont., Sept. 19—(CP)—Two veteran goose bone weather forecasters—William Henry Wintemute, Bertie Farmer, and George Mattison—after a consultation prediced an early fall and a steady, cold winter. FINLAND SIGNS

The stipulation causing the Finns most anxiety was said to be a Russian demand for a 50-year lease of the Porkkala naval base on the Finnish Gulf. Stockholm reported that one well-informed Finnish source said this demand embraced use of territory stretching inland from Porkkala to a point only eight miles from Helsinki.

This same source said Finnish troops already had begun operating against the Germans in northern Finland, but it was unknown whether actual fighting had developed. In some areas the Germans were said to be retiring.

The broadcast Moscow statement announcing the peace said:

"During the period Sept. 14 to Sept. 19 negotiations took place in Moscow between representatives of the Soviet Union and Great Britain, acting on behalf of all the United Nations at war with Finland on the one hand, and a delegation of the Finnish government on the other on the question of concluding an armistice with Finland.

"The following took part in negotiations on the Soviet side:

"Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov, Marshal Klementi Y. Voroshilov, Andrei D. Zhdanov, V. G. Dekanozov, Maxim Litvinoff, General Shchemenko and Rear Admiral Alexandrov.

"On the British side the ambassador, Sir Archibald Clark Kerr and the counsellor, Mr. J. Balfour.

"The following delegates of the Finnish government attended the conferences: M. Enckel, General Karl Rudolf Walden, General Henrich and General Enckel.

"The negotiations were concluded with signing of an agreement of armistice with Finland on Sept. 19.

"The agreement on the armistice was signed by Col.-Gen. Zhdanov on behalf of the governments of the U. S. S. R. and Great Britain. On the Finnish side the agreement was signed by M. Enckel, General Walden, General Henrich and General Enckel.

"The contents of the armistice agreement will be announced later."

"THAT KEITH WOMAN"

By Phyllis Moore Gallagher

CHAPTER 22.

When I came to, Peter was chafing my wrists. I started to sit up, but Peter said, "Sh-sh! Hornblower's got everybody in the next room including Luke. He's wounded slightly. Listen to what they're saying in there".

And so we listened: To Marvin Eustace saying that Pamela had threatened to tell Elsie's friends that Elsie was of low origin, which would have ruined her socially. He'd written Pamela a nasty note, but he'd never have killed her.

Victor Corliss admitted he'd found Pamela's body that night and that later he'd confessed to the crime when it looked to him as if the net was closing around Sandra. . .

Countess Fanella said she'd written some embarrassing things about Pamela in her biography but they hadn't been really vicious; Pam had never held it against her . . .

Dr. Wayne Courtney declared: "Sandra is my own daughter. Her real name is Chiquita and she was born in Rio. Richard Keith's daughter—the real Sandra—died the day she and Pamela reached Rio, nearly eighteen years ago. I found this out last year when I was in Rio. I wanted to see my daughter; to know if she were happy; so I returned to Washington. Most of the love I'd once had for Pam was gone, and I told her so——but asked her to marry me because I wanted to be with Sandra. Pam was engaged to Luke. She broke that engagement immediately though no one knew this except Pam, Luke and me. I'd known Reginald at the University and when I saw him in the role of Pam's butler I knew he was up to something, probably blackmailing her". . . .

Gladys said: "Yes, Reginald did have something on Pamela. I don't know what it was". Her voice broke a little. "But he told me that for $10,000 he'd let me in on it, too. He said that what he knew would make Luke Cramer jilt her. I offered him five thousand—that's all I could scrape up. You see, I loved Luke so much I wanted him to jilt Pam".

Earle Pines declared briefly: "I have nothing to say before this group. I refuse to discuss my private affairs here".

Then Sergeant Hornblower said. "And now you, Luke Cramer". With that the triple killer started his weird story.

"Yes, I killed Pamela Keith, Reginald Fielding and Marcella Kingsley". Luke Cramer's voice stopped for a moment. . . Sitting in the bedroom with Peter, listening, I could visualize that scene in the adjoining room. Hornblower staring a Luke intently, Police Stenographer Heath taking down Luke's confession while the other former suspects listened raptly.

"On the Thursday before I murdered Mrs. Pamela Keith", Luke went on very slowly, "she phoned me, demanding the return of $75,000 which she'd invested in a firm I'd recommended. There was no such firm, and I spent her money in an effort to save my own shaky affairs—and I lost it. I used Pam's money because I expected to marry her. I thought she was worth millions and it wouldn't matter to her. I didn't know she had only the income from her trusteeship of Keith's estate and that she spent that as fast as it came in. That Thursday Pam told me she'd given Earle Pines a check for $25,000 and had to make it good. 'That $75,000 I gave you', Pam told me, 'was the last of the settlement my late husband made on me years ago'.

"But I couldn't raise any money to pay Pam—so I stalled for time. The next day, she took the stock I had sold her to a broker who told her it was worthless. She phoned me afterwards, threatening to expose me if the money wasn't in her hands by Saturday night. She told me she'd stopped payment on Pines' check, but she had to make it good. Pam was almost hysterical and denounced me dreadfully. That hurt. Just ten days before, she'd been in love with me. Or so she said.

"But I know now she'd never loved anybody except Wayne Courtney. When he came back to the States and asked her to marry him, she washed me right out of her life. She wasn't even sorry. I think I hated her then as much as I'd ever loved her.

"So I decided to kill her. I drove to Baltimore that Friday night, garaged my car near the airport, and flew back to Philly. Saturday noon I phoned Pamela that I had the money and would come to her house as soon as I could. Eight-fifteen at the latest. I told her I was flying down. Late Saturday afternoon I realized I was getting a bad cold. I went to my doctor. He ordered me to bed. I went back to my hotel, got my mail at the desk and told the clerk how low I was. I went to my floor; then I walked swiftly down the backstairs. No one saw me. I took a plane to Baltimore, got my car and drove to Washington.

"From a phone-booth in a drugstore near the Charlton-Arms Hotel, I called Marcella Kingsley. I knew her well. She had once worked in an office in Philly and she was wildly in love with a married man I knew. I knew she was on the switchboard at the Charlton-Arms, Saturday nights, that this married man usually picked her up there after work.

"I asked Marcella to do me a favor. I told her I was invited to a dinner party which I didn't want to attend nor did I want to offend my hostess. I asked Marcella to connect me with the Keith number through her switchboard, putting in the call as if it were a long distance operator, saying 'Philadelphia calling Mrs. Keith'. She did that. Reginald answered — which made him part of my alibi. If Marcella listened in, I figured she'd simply hear me telling Pamela I was ill and couldn't come to Washington, but was sending her what she wanted by registered mail. Far from being pacified, Pam went into a rage. I had a bad minute then but, after talking with Marcella again, I was reassured. There was nothing about her voice to indicate she'd listened in to my talk to Mrs. Keith".

"I phoned Pamela again, disguising my voice through my handkerchief when Reginald answered. He didn't recognize my voice either; he wasn't prepared to hear me on a local call when fifteen minutes before I phoned, ostensibly from Philly. I guess Pam was startled when she realized I was in Washington, but she seemed at ease when I told her I'd explain everything and give her the money if she'd meet me on the terrace in five minutes or so. She readily agreed. I told her to bring the stock with her.

"I crossed over the hotel lawn from the drugstore. When I saw those rocks in the garden I picked one up. It couldn't be traced and would not look like a premeditated murder. And so I killed Pamela without parley, forgetting about the stock in my hurry. I went back to my car, garaged it in Baltimore, and took a plane from there to Philadelphia. There wasn't a slip-up anywhere; and I must have made record time. There was no blood on me except my gloves, and those I carefully wrapped in a newspaper and shot down my hotel's incinerator.

"Back in Philadelphia, I slipped into my hotel unnoticed, got into my pajamas and robe, and went down the hall to the elevator. There was a sleepy negro on the night shift, and I banked on his stupidity. I told him my telephone was out of order, which was true: I'd tampered with it before leaving for Washington. And I told him I was expected in Washington and was sick and couldn't make it, so I had to put in a long distance call. I asked him to send someone up to fix my phone immediately. Then I turned into the phone booth as if to call Washington. But I called my doctor instead, told him I was worse. He came over promptly, gave me another prescription and a sedative. My temperatupre was nearly 103 then; my inner excitement must have resembled the flu. I was telling the doctor my telephone had been out of order all evening and that I'd had to call him from the booth and to please ask the desk clerk to have someone fix it for I knew the elevator boy had forgotten it. He did and the telephone man had just finished his job when Letty called me and said Pamela had been murdered.

"That alibi buildup seemed foolproof, didn't it, Hornblower? Your men checked my movements; everything was in order, wasn't it?"

"Right", conceded Hornblower.

"I killed Reginald", Luke went on, "because I overheard his conversation with Letty. I was afraid he might eventually remember the familiarity of that voice which worried him. He was asleep when I struck. I was naked except for a pair of gloves which accounts for no blood on any of my clothes. I had taken those gloves from Sandra's closet, knowing Victor Corliss had given them to her. I chucked them into the incinerator, hoping they'd be burned before they were found—but they weren't. I didn't want someone else to pay for what I'd done; really I didn't.

"I pushed Marcella off the roof, having asked her to meet me there. I told her I had something important to tell her about her boy-friend. I had to kill her because cutting across the lawn to my car after murdering Pamela I happened to glance toward the lobby windows. Marcella was talking with Victor Corliss. I didn't know she knew anyone connected with Pamela and the more I brooded about that, and the possibility of Marcella having overheard my conversation with Pamela—I was certain I had to—kill her. But I did not— want to. It was a case of panic.

"I tried to kill Letty. I saw her snooping around those rocks on the hotel lawn. She almost caught me going through that library secretary the morning I arrived at the Keith house, but I heard her in time. Later I found the stock, almost tore the secretary to pieces doing it—and I burned the stock in the incinerator. Letty found a red feather besides that secretary and thought it was a clue. The officer saw her pick it up and was—amused. I was a broke stub of the quill pen and he'd thrown it on the floor. He told me all about it. He thought Letty was dumb, but I knew different. She might become dangerous—and she did. Well, that's all", he finished. "That's everything."

I looked up at Peter Gibson. He was no longer sitting beside my bed. He was leaning against the mantel, arm stretched out along the black marble surface. Then he stiffened, and I did too, as we heard Hornblower ask Pines why Pamela had given him a check for $25,000.

Pines said furiously, "I suppose I might as well tell. I wasn't blackmailing her. I knew Pamela once—too well. We eloped less than a year before she did the same with Courtney. Everything was kept secret. We had— a son. He died—last winter. I loved that boy—and she hated him. He lived with me and Pamela contributed a little now and then to his support. When Sonny was ill I asked for money to give him proper medical care. She turned me down flat. I hated Pam by then and told her I was going to expose our past to certain parties.

"Wayne Courtney was back then and she didn't want him to know about us, so she offered me $25,000. I accepted. Lord knows how Reginald found out about Pamela and me. But he did . . . and he was blackmailing Pamela. Made her take him on as butler. I guess he got scared and was going to shake down Gladys and clear out. Somethink like that".

Peter went over and closed the door. "What people!" he exclaimed softly; then, after a thoughtful interim, he asked, "Letty, why do you suppose Marcella Kingsley charged that call to Dr. Courtney's room—106-A?"

"I don't know", I said. "Not for sure, but there is one explanation. You see, if any calls are made and not charged to a guest, the operators have to make up the difference out of their own pockets".

Peter opened the door again. We heard Vic Corliss saying: "Yes, sir, I was the one who attacked Letty before the murder—on the estate. I wanted to look in the windows and see if dinner was over—and she followed me. I didn't know who it was. I thought it was a burglar until I felt all the lace in my hands. Then I pushed her away—and she ran. Afterwards I went up to the hotel and got a drink. When I came back, thinking to go to house and ask for Mrs. Keith, I found her murdered".

"You knew Marcella Kingsley?" Hornblower asked.

Vic said: "I met her one night after Mrs. Keith had told me to go out of Sandra's life and stay out. We were on a party. I hardly recognized her the night she spoke to me in the lobby".

Peter closed the door again, and lit a cigarette thoughtfully. "Who attacked you in the basement at the Keith house Letty"?

"It must have been Reginald. He probably forgot something, came back for it—and found me in his room".

And then I added: "Peter, remember me saying I thought Pamela had selected an odd group for her party? Well, it does make sense now, when you think about it. Pines was there so she could give him the money when Luke brought it. Gladys was there so she could be told that Luke was back in circulation, which would make Gladys not say nasty things about Pam to Wayne. Pam feared gossip. That's why she must have invited the Eustaces. Wayne liked them a lot—and she wanted to butter them into friendliness. And Countess Fanella was probably invited for the simple reason that Pam wanted her around—like me".

And after a long breath: "Want to know why I settled on Luke as the murderer?"

"I certainly do", said Peter.

"Well, first, Pamela was killed with one terrific blow, and Reginalds head was pummeled. I thought: The murderer is losing his nerve or his strength or something . . . and losing strength made me thing of Luke Cramer being ill. Then last night when the lights went out and Sergeant Hornblower herded us all into the dining room, I got to remembering Pamela's dinner. That she'd expected Luke—but not for dinner! Though I didn't notice it particularly at the time, there was no vacant place at the table and no hostess has a guest's plate removed unless she'd had definite word that that guest is NOT coming. And if Luke was coming and hadn't been invited to dinner . . . Well, that made me know something was wrong between Pamela and Luke. Then there was Dr. Courtney at the head of the table, like the master of the house, where Luke always sat. . So I surmised Luke had broken with Pam and eventually I decided that he was her murderer".

Peter came over and sat down on the bed beside me. "I'm going to settle that inheritance business out of court, Letty", he said gently. "No one will know Sandra Keith isn't the real Sandra Keith, except a few. And they won't talk. They all have too much on each other. Letty, I'm going to be a very happy man, most definitely eligible".

"And smart too", I added.

Peter lifted his hand as if to smack me but the telephone rang shrilly and Peter picked it up. "For you", he said.

Clem Barkley's voice was excited. "Letty", he said, "Anything unusual going on over there? I see the place all lit up. I'm at the hotel".

"A little something happened", I said, and told him all—or nearly all.

"My stars!" groaned Clem. "Good grief, Let- All that news broke over there and you didn't once think of the paper! Suppose I hadn't called you?"

"Am I—fired?" I asked tremulously; but there was no answer. Clem had hung up—and those long Gibson arms were around me.

"Never mind, sweet", condoled Peter. "I don't want my wife working anyway. I want her near my camp".

"Camp?" I gulped.

"I volunteered yesterday. I'm to report to Camp Lee next week".

"Oh!" I exclaimed, and before I could utter another word Peter observed: "That makes your mouth just right for a kiss".

And he promptly and completely demonstrated the truth of his observation.

THE END.

HOW TO RELIEVE PILE TORTURE QUICKLY AND EASILY

If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting this condition become chronic. Any itching or soreness or painful passage of stool is natures' warning and proper treatment should be secured at once.

For this purpose get a package of Hem-Roid from J. S. McKeown or any I.D.A. or other drug store and use as directed. This formula which is used internally is a small, easy to take tablet, will quickly relieve the itching and soreness and aid in healing the sore tender spots. Hem-Roid is pleasant to use, is highly recommended and it seems the height of folly for any one to risk a painful and chronic pile condition when such a fine remedy may be had at such a small cost.

If you try Hem-Roid and are not entirely pleased with the results, your druggist will gladly return your money.

Flying Bombs Again Released Against Britain

London, Sept. 19 — (CP) — The Germans loosed their flying bombs against London and other points in southern England again early today as the flow of evacuees back to the capital continued.

Some of those killed or injured since the robot attacks were resumed Saturday after a two-week lull had returned to the city in the face of repeated government warnings that the danger had not passed.

This morning's attack came before dawn, the second in as many nights. The alert was brief. Among the dead were a young mother and baby.

Where the Germans are now launching the robots has not been learned. The fact that the recent attacks have included only a few bombs suggests they may have been loosed from aircraft. Some coastal areas still are held by the Germans, however, and there is said to be a possibility that the range of the robots may have been stepped up so that launching sites well inland could be used.

Little Benny's Note Book

After supper pop was smoking the 2nd half of his first cigar, and ma said, Just because a thing is imported, that doesn't make it necessarily desireable, does it William?

Of course not, pop said Look at Japanese beetles, look at German meezles, he said, and ma said, That's exactly the essence of what I told myself in Hookbinder's Beauty and Charm department this afternoon. I was looking for a good pair of tweezers. Why do you suppose good tweezers are harder to find than they use to be, William? she said.

Probably because there are less of them pop said, and ma said, I suppose that's it. Anyway, I had just about finely decided on a choice when the salesman showed me another small trayfull and told me they cost about 50 cents more each, but they were imported from Sweeden. Well my dear, that was my cue to tell that salesman a few things. I told him that we raise more steel on this side of the ocean than the whole of Europe combined, and I told him that the increased price was merely a reflexion of the import duty and not of the quality, and I told him that quality begins at home and that a pair of our own tweezers sent to Sweeden would be every bit as imported as a pair of Sweedish tweezers packed up and sent over here. Well my dear, that salesman backed down in a flash. In fact he truthfully admitted that he had never even claimed the Sweedish ones were better, ma said.

So you bought a pair of the Sweedish ones, pop said, and ma said, Why William, such a thing to say. I mean how did you know? she said.

I just knew, but I still dont know why you did, pop said. Why the dooce did you? he said, and ma said, Because the shops are importing so few things these days I just took a pair for the sheer novelty.

It's a woman's world that's what makes it so amusingly different, pop said.

Being the end of the subject.

There Goes that TELEPHONE!

COPPER, rubber and other telephone materials continue to flow overseas in military communications equipment as well as in the form of ammunition, weapons, aircraft . . .

During one brief air battle, for example, this fighter plane's guns may spit enough copper to build several miles of telephone line.

War needs both at home and abroad must come first. Extensions to present telephone equipment are strictly limited. Fullest possible use must be made of existing equipment.

To those applicants who have been unable to obtain telephone service, we offer our regrets—and our thanks for their ready understanding of why their requests have had to be denied.

NORTH END SIEGFRIED LINE BEING OUTFLANKED

Massive British Forces Straddle The Lower Rhine

Canadian Forces Battle Into Port of Boulogne

By JAMES M. LONG
(AP War Correspondent)

London, Sept. 20 — (AP)—Massive forces of British Army and airborne troops straddled the lower Rhine in the Netherlands five miles from Germany today, in position for a great invasion around the upper end of the Siegfried Line.

British 2nd Army armor threw a 50-mile-long cut-off wall across eastern Holland in 48 hours. It merged solidly with parachute-glider soldiers dropped near Nijmegen on the wall Rhine. British units apparently were battling on to link with still other sky troops 10 miles farther north on the upper branch of the river near Arnhem.

The Siegfried Line was being outflanked. The path was opening for a wheeling offensive across the flatlands of northern Germany. Germans in southwestern Holland were menaced with entrapment.

Strong Resistance

Americans struck fierce German resistance in the invasion of Germany, and in their offensives from the Nancy-Metz Line and toward the Belfort Gap farther south. But two infantry columns had thrust 20 miles or more beyond Nancy toward Strasbourg.

With the big supply port of Brest on Brittany Peninsula in U. S. hands, 1st Canadian Army infantry battled into the channel port of Boulogne. An unconfirmed Algiers broadcast said Boulogne's garrison already had surrendered.

Front reports last night said Canadian units were attacking German forts north and south of the port. Seventeen German officers and 2,900 men have been captured by the Canadians so far in the siege. The garrison originally was believed to total 4,000.

At Nijmegen British forces were 12 miles west and slightly north of the German city of Kleve, which has been authoritatively described as the northern terminus of the Siegfried Line. Essen in the heart of Germany's industrial Ruhr valley 43 miles southeast of Kleve.

Says War Over this Year.

Field Marshal Montgomery, who is in over-all command of the ground and airborne armies on the northern front, told his troops in Belgium yesterday there was "no doubt" the war against the Germans would end this year.

Declaring that "no human power can stop the utter and complete defeat of the remnants of the German army," Montgomery added:

"I would say there is no point in rushing straightaway to Berlin today or this week. If you first defeat the Germans or collect them in as prisoners you will make the job easy."

The whole Netherlands front was developing into a potential trap for the enemy. The lower Rhine defences had been turned by the assault from the sky and the ground power-drive of the British. Allied planes battered at a German rush of reinforcements into the Netherlands and other points along the front.

The British drive enveloped Eindhoven, and stabbed 45 miles farther north, joining men of the Allied 1st Airborne Army at or near Nijmegen. They perhaps were already linked up with the pocket of Allied soldiers at Arnhem.

German resistance tightened considerably. Heinrich Himmler was reported to have visited German units in Holland urging "stiffest resistance." But the two Allied armies were steadily enlarging their stand, blocking most of the roads to Rotterdam and Amsterdam.

Fighting in Aachen.

Americans and Germans fought in the streets of Aachen. Some enemy troops held out in the factory district of by-passed Stolberg, six miles farther inside Germany. Americans were shelling Duren, 15 miles beyond Aachen and 20 from Cologne. Prum, eight miles inside Germany and 45 from Cologne, also was being softened by U. S. shells.

German civilians were defying Hitlerian orders to evacute the Rhineland.

On the 3rd Army front, Americans threw back German armored blows and advanced to the area of Dieuze and Baccarat, respectively 25 miles northeast and 20 southeast of Nancy.

Further gains were made south of the fiercely-defended fortress of Metz, but these were not detailed by Allied Supreme Headquarters.

There was no further official news of the Franco-American 7th Army, fighting west and south of the Belfort Gap.

The fanatical enemy stand at Brest, fourth harbor of France, collapsed amid shell and bomb-torn ruins after a siege of more than a month and a half—the longest of any enemy holdout in the west. All "organized resistance" had ceased, said headquarters.

There was no immediate disclosure of the number of prisoners taken in this part 500 miles behind the present battle line. Recently the German strength there was estimated at 12,000 to 15,000.

'Enemy Commanded By Lunatic' Hitler, Says Montgomery

London, Sept. 20 (CP)—Field Marshal L. Montgomery indicated in a speech to troops in Belgium yesterday that Hitler might be taking closer control of fighting in the west.

"The Allies have a lot to be thankful for in that Hitler has taken charge of the operations, as it means the enemy is being commanded by a lunatic," Montgomery said. "In that respect I am glad that the German generals failed in their bomb attempt against the Fuehrer."

Montgomery did not go into de-

Newspaperboy Day October Seventh

Peterborough, Sept. 20 (CP)—H. B. Cowan, Jr., Chairman of the National Newspaperboy Committee of the Canadian Circulation Managers Association, made public the text of a letter he has sent to premiers of all nine provinces of Canada asking them to proclaim Saturday, Oct. 7, as Provincial Newspaperboy Day.

The day has been set aside as National Newspaperboy Day, said the letter, which related with pride the job that the more than 35,000 newspaperboys in the Dominion are doing.

They have aided the war effort through selling War Savings Stamps, canvassing for blood donors, investing in Victory Bonds and in delivering the news to homes throughout Canada every day and "they and other youth like them engaged in useful pursuits will build the better world of tomorrow."

80 Italian Hostages Ordered By Kesselring for Execution

Rome, Sept. 20 —(AP)— Former Police Chief Pietro Caruso testified at the trial for his life today that Field Marshal Kesselring, Nazi commander in Italy, had ordered him to furnish 80 Italian hostages for execution in reprisal for the bombing of an S. S. column.

The trial, delayed Monday by the lynching of the chief state witness, started today while Allied police stood watchfully by.

Caruso was Rome's police chief during the last four months of German occupation. He said Kesselring's order was transmitted through the former German S. S. commander in Rome, one Kappler. The 80 were to be executed with hundreds of others, he said. Testifying that he was aware of the gravity of the request, Caruso asserted that he sought guidance from former Fascist Minister of the Interior Buffarini-Guidi.

"You had better turn them over, otherwise who knows what will happen to us," he quoted the official as saying. Caruso said he complied with the order after cutting down the number to 50.

The witness also blamed the Germans for the raid on St. Paul's Church last February, when Caruso's police broke into the sanctuary and seized Italian officers and civilians. He said he did not know that the action violated the Vatican's extraterritorial rights.

A co-defendant, Robert Occhietto, secretary to Caruso, testified he played both sides of the street during the German occupation, obtaining information from the Nazis which he asserted he turned over to the Allied 5th Army.

The hearing began quietly in contrast to the violence which marked the original effort to begin the trial Monday when Donato Carretta, former vice-director of the Regina Coeli Jail of Rome, was beaten to death by a mob.

The new choice of a courtroom was kept secret until the trial started.

Caruso was on crutches as a result of injuries received in an auto wreck when he attempted to flee north ahead of the Allied armies.

Baltic Drive Rolls Germans Back Over Latvian Front

CITIES BEHIND SIEGFRIED LINE HEAVILY HIT

Twin Towns of Rheydt Munchen-Gladbach Contain Important Railway Lines

FIVE PLANES LOST

London, Sept. 20 (CP)—Continuing their campaign to smash the principal railway centres feeding German forces defending the western frontier of Germany, R.A.F. heavy bombers last night hammered the twin towns of Munchen-Bladbach and Rheydt just behind the Siegfried line north of the Aachen battlefield.

Two important railway lines, one coming from Aachen and the other from Cologne, meet at Rheydt.

The Air Ministry described the raids as concentrated and said large fires were started. Five planes were lost.

The overnight activity also included numerous Mosquito attacks upon enemy rail and road movements deeper in Germany and Berlin reported an assault upon Budapest by Mediterranean-based planes.

There were indications the offensive was being continued in daylight today, the German radio warning service reporting shortly after 11 a.m. (6 a.m. E.D.T.) that Allied raiders were over Bavaria.

Seven German key communications centres were pounded yesterday by almost 2,000 Allied planes, including 700 heavy bombers. Ten heavy bombers and nine fighters were lost in these forays.

One formation of Mosquitos participating in last night's operations caught a convoy of enemy barges carrying fresh German troops across the Rhine between Emmerich and Dinslaken. The raiders riddled the boats with cannon and machine-gun fire and left several ablaze.

A formation of British Beaufighters tracked down seven German ships attempting to deliver supplies late yesterday in the heavily-defended fjords of Norway and hit all seven, leaving three burning furiously, it was announced. One plane was missing of the 700-mile round-trip flight.

Soviet of Estonia Votes to Establish Own Commissariats

Moscow, Sept. 20 (AP) — The Supreme Soviet of Estonia, meeting somewhere in territory reoccupied by Russian troops, has voted to establish its own commissariats of foreign affairs and defence, it was announced today.

(The action was in line with authority granted some months ago to the various Soviet Republics to conduct their own foreign relations and operate their own military establishments. Several republics already have taken advantage of this right, granted by the supreme presidium of the Soviet Union.)

Canadians Praised By Churchill on Part In Cracking Gothic Line

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press War Correspondent

With the Canadians on the Adriatic Front, Sept. 20—(CP Cable)—Tribute to the part played by the Canadian divisions commanded by Maj.-Gen. Vokes of Winnipeg and Ottawa and Maj.-Gen. Hoffmeister of Vancouver in cracking open the eastern sector of the Germans' Gothic Line defences was paid today.

The praise was contained in messages to the British 8th Army from Prime Minister Churchill and Allied army headquarters in Italy.

Mr. Churchill sent a message to Lt.-Gen. Leese, commander of the 8th army of which the Canadian corps is a part, congratulating Gen. Leese's force on the storming of the Coriano ridge and the crossing of the Marano River, Nazi strongpoints southwest of the Adriatic port of Rimini.

"I can see that this has been a grand feat of arms on the part of the troops involved," Mr. Churchill said. Lt.-Gen. Leese immediately forwarded the congratulations to Lt.-Gen. Burns, Canadian Corps commander, so that it should reach the Canadians who had earned it.

Town Taken by Toronto Irish.

The town of Coriano itself was taken by the Irish Regiment of Canada, a Toronto formation, on Sept. 13, while the ridge positions were assaulted by a Western Ontario regiment (probably the Perth Regiment of Stratford, Ont.) and a Nova Scotia Highland battalion (probably the Cape Breton Highlanders, Sydney, N.S.) in operations by Gen. Hoffmeister's formation.

First to cross the Marano river on Sept. 14 were two companies of a French-speaking unit (possibly the Royal 22nd Regiment, from Quebec) under Maj. G. H. Combie Simard, of Quebec, P.Q., and Maj. Fremont Trubeau of Rimouski, P. Q.

The French-speaking Canadians were quickly followed by a Nova Scotia regiment (perhaps the West Nova Scotia Regiment, Bridgewater, N.S.) which advanced so speedily to the river bank that the leading company, commanded by Maj. Bull Thexton of Dartmouth, N.S., secured a bridge before the Germans had time to carry out prepared demolitions.

The French-Canadians and the two other units are all of Gen. Vokes' division.

Official Statement.

Today's Allied Armies in Italy official handout said: "It may now be revealed that the Irish Regiment of Canada on Sept. 13 took the village of Coriano. Two other Canadian battalions made night attacks on the 7,000-yard ridge where it is situated. The Irish passed through them in the morning and fought a house-to-house battle for the village itself.

"The Coriano feature had held up the advance of the 8th on the Ardiatic sector for one week and a half. German panzer grenadiers were solidly positioned in tunnels, cellars and stone buildings. The night attack was followed by intensive bombing and shelling.

"Canadian infantry and tanks made the assault and captured a 2,000-yard sector of the ridge. The Irish alone took 70 panzer grenadiers in their bag of 130 prisoners. Montecchio, a key point in the Gothic line, and the important height of Tomba di Pesaro fell to the same regiment in the early stages of the campaign."

CANADIAN, GREEK TROOPS APPROACH RIMINI DEFENCES

Americans Have Breached Gothic Line on Six-Mile Front

STIFF OPPOSITION

Rome, Sept. 20 —(CP)—Against continued, stubborn resistance, Canadian and Greek troops of the British 8th Army are approaching the defences of Rimini on the Adriatic and assaulting the village of San Fortunato, today's Allied communique said.

On their left British and Indian troops have advanced to the outskirts of San Marino and captured the village of Serravalle to the north.

American units of the Allied 5th Army have breached the Gothic Line on a six-mile front north of Florence, and now are within three miles of the important road centre of Firenzuola. The break-through came after a week of intensive fighting.

British, Indian, Brazilian and other American units of the 5th Army, fighting on the flanks of the breach, continued to make progress against stiff opposition.

Storming steep mountain slopes, American troops won the heights of Castel Guerrino and Lacroce and penetrated well into Gothic defences 22 miles northeast of Florence.

Front dispatches to the U. S. army newspaper stars and stripes said the gains through the rugged mountains "cost us an uncomfortable number of losses."

The official announcement said, "although no large-scale break-through is apparent, the 5th Army penetrated against defences which are stronger than any yet encountered in Italy."

"The capture of most important hill features within the past 48 hours threatens the whole enemy position," it was commented officially at 5th Army headquarters.

RICE FIELDS LUSH IN INDIA

Calcutta, Sept. 20 (CP)—Crop prospects in the lush green rice fields of Bengal indicate today that there will be no repetition of last year's famine. Calcutta a year ago was crowded with hungary hordes estimated at more than 250,000 men, women and children, while in other parts of Bengal thousands were dying of hunger and disease.

FINLAND MUST REMOVE NAZIS FROM COUNTRY

Airfields, Merchant Fleet Must be Turned Over to Allies

TERMS NOT HARSH

London, Sept. 20 — (CP)—Stripped of her richest industrial territory and burdened with heavy cash reparations as the price of peace, Finland was dedicated today by acting Prime Minister Ernst Von Born to building up a new national existence with "the opportunities left to us."

Of immediate concern was the probably bloody task of removing German troops remaining in the country — one of the conditions imposed in the 23-point armistice agreement reached in Moscow yesterday with British and Russian representatives.

"It is a serious matter that we have to disarm German troops in Finland and hand them over to the Allies," said Von Born in broadcasting details of the armistice to the Finnish people. "And this, although we have to prepare hastily for the (Finnish) army to return to a peace-time footing."

An appendix to the agreement published today said withdrawal of the Finnish troops behind the new state frontier and advance of the Russians up to it would begin at 9 a. m. tomorrow.

The Times of London, declaring the Finns "have obtained conditions much less onerous than those offered in March of this year," said that through Moscow's successive arrangements with Romania, Bulgaria and Finland any "suspicion . . . of a dark plot designed to bring the whole of Eastern Europe under Russian sway is exposed as lacking foundation."

Stockholm reports which lacked immediate official confirmation yesterday said Finnish troops had moved against Nazi forces in northern Finland. Von Born said the south as far as Oulu already was clear. The Germans, if they desire, can withdraw into northern Norway.

The armistice agreement implied at least a certain amount of Allied assistance in case of prolonged German resistance. The pact requires that airfields in southern and southwestern Finland be placed temporarily at the disposal of the Allies.

CANADIAN TROOPS BATTLE REMNANTS OF HUN GARRISON

Enemy in Positions In Hills South Of Boulogne May Soon Be Overcome

ASSENEDE CAPTURED

By WILLIAM STEWART

With the 1st Canadian Army in France, Sept. 20 (CP Cable)—Canadian infantry which has worked through Boulogne and crossed the port and the Liane river in strength now is engaged in heavy fighting with remnants of the German garrison clinging to hill positions south of the town. Boulogne itself is almost entirely in Canadian hands.

Small pockets in the town remain to be cleaned out, and at positions to the north and south of the town the Germans still are resisting.

The remainder of the garrison might be overcome within a few hours or it might fight for another day or so.

The enemy still is fighting at his strongpoint around the coastal batteries of Cap Gris Nez.

Polish Units Take Hulst and Axel.

Polish units of the 1st Canadian army across the Netherlands frontier have captured both Hulst and Axel, while some elements push to within five miles of Terneusen on the banks of the Schelde.

Canadian infantry and armor captured Assenede on the Netherlands frontier.

The Germans still have a number of strong positions in the Boulogne area although the town and port are dominated by Canadian infantry forces who have bridged docks in two places and built up their crossings in strength.

Ontario troops are pressing into the southern section of the broken defence perimeter but the Germans have a number of concrete pillboxes, machine-gun nests and mortar emplacements there and have been shelling the eastern part of the town.

Maritime infantrymen who took the important Mont Lambert defence positions now have pushed right into Boulogne and today were crossing the river behind Ontario troops.

Other Ontario troops with Maritimers and French-speaking Canadians were neutralizing remaining perimeter defences to the north. Although Wimereux was reported captured that coastal suburb two miles north of Boulogne still contains strong German pockets.

Threatens To Bring About Fall of Riga At Any Moment

3,000 Communities Taken In Their Smashing Attack

By EDDY GILMORE
(AP War Correspondent)

Moscow, Sept. 20. (AP)—A massive Baltic drive, first phase of a Supreme Russian Autumn offensive, rolled the Germans back steadily today over the Latvian front, imminently menacing Riga and threatening to bring its fall at any moment.

Front dispatches said advance tank and motorised infantry units had pushed deep into the city's defences. The official communique announced an approach to within six miles as the Red Army edged in from three sides and brought artillery to bear.

In four days the Russian Baltic armies have captured nearly 3,000 communities in their smashing attack, which promises to clear all the Germans shortly from Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania and pave the way for the remaining steps of the Autumn offensive, expected to be bigger than anything to date. Developments may be expected from the Gulf of Finland to Yugoslavia.

The fury with which the Red Army is attacking on the Baltic front seems indicative of the way Marshal Stalin's forces finally will tear into the Nazis on every sector. The present northern campaign appears aimed at driving out, killing or capturing the last German in the Baltic region before the first snows of winter.

Smash 25 Miles

The heaviest Russian attack in Latvia took place southeast of Riga, with Gen. Ivan Bagramian's forces smashing forward 25 miles on a 75-mile front, sending the Germans reeling back into the Latvian capital. More than 2,000 places fell in that area within four days.

The closest approach to Riga officially disclosed came with capture of Kekava, on the west bank of the Daugava (Dvina) river six miles south of the city. A Soviet communique said the Germans there had orders "not to retreat a single step" but they lost more than 3,000 men. In five days on the whole front the Germans have lost 570 tanks and 390 planes.

On the Estonia-Latvia frontier Gen. Ivan Maslennikov's 3rd Baltic army captured Valga, 60 miles east of the Gulf of Riga, in a drive that threatened to divide the German armies in Estonia from those to the south. Through Valga run five important railways.

East of Riga, the Red Army seized another important communications centre, Plavinas, as part of a drive that engulfed more than 600 communities.

Reds Bridge Vistula.

(German broadcasts said the Russians had bridged the Vistula north of Warsaw.)

There was reason to believe that the long siege of Warsaw was going according to schedule and that Marshal Rokossovsky was tightening pressure by the hour.

After capturing Timisoara, seventh largest Romanian city of 90,000, the Russians pushed the Germans and Hungarians back onto the wheat-clothed Hungarian plain within 148 miles of Budapest.

The main immediate objective in the Baltic states was the division and liquidation of Col.-Gen. George Lindemann's 16th and 18th German armies, comprising more than 20 divisions.

A dense Autumn fog lay over the Baltic. The Russians reported great confusion in German ranks with many large units hopelessly lost and wandering in the Riga forests.

Izvestia said the tanks of Lt.-Gen. Obukhov, who captured Jelgava, "are breaking through to Riga".

457,346 Germans Taken Prisoner In West Since D-Day

Allied Supreme Headquarters, Sept. 20 —(CP Reuters)— A total of 457,346 German prisoners has been taken by five of Gen. Eisenhower's armies since D-Day, figures issued here today said.

Total by armies: British 2nd Army 73,000 (up to Sept. 14); 1st Canadian Army 52,971 (up to Sept. 14); United States 1st Army 173,375 (up to Sept. 16); United States 3rd Army 76,000 (up to Sept. 16); United States 7th Army 82,000 (up to Sept. 16.)

Major Captures Major, 7 Officers, 300 Men With A.A. Weapon

Chatham, Sept. 20 —CP)—Major Telford Steele of Chatham, a member of the Essex Scottish Regiment, forced a German major, seven other officers, three renegade women and 300 men to surrender an hour after they had taken up positions in a strongly fortified fortress near Ostend, it was revealed here yesterday. The surrender came after Major Steele, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Steele, directed an unorthodox assault on the position with Bofors guns.

Hitler Danced Wildly Elated Over '39 Pact With Russia Says Batman

By DON WHITEHEAD
Associated Press War Correspondent

With American Forces in Germany, Sept. 20—(AP)— A former personal bodyguard for Hitler has told me of the surprise and elation with which the Fuehrer greeted the signing of the 1939 non-aggression pact with Russia—the pact that enabled him to attack Poland five days later.

The former batman, captured in the Allied drive on Germany, said he was stationed at Hitler's quarters on the day the pact was signed. Foreign Minister Von Ribbentrop telephoned the Fuehrer from Moscow to announce the successful conclusion and the batman, hearing a shout and fearing something was wrong, rushed into Hitler's private room.

He found Hitler dancing and gesticulating, he said, meanwhile shouting: "I didn't think it would work! I didn't think it would work!"

The prisoner said he left a job as a waiter to enter the Waffen S. S. unit in 1935 and later was chosen as one of Hitler's personal bodyguards. He stayed in the service of the Fuehrer until 1940 when he fell into disfavor because of a drunken brawl at Berchtesgaden at the time Hitler was resting after the French campaign.

He described Hitler as a capricious and irrascible insomniac who neither drinks, smokes, nor eats meat. He said there was no truth to reports of an affair between Hitler and Leni Riefenstahl, but that the Fuehrer had become enamoured of a stenographer and carried on an affair which as far as he knows still continues.

Hitler, he declared, is guarded by a carefully-selected group of 40 officers, half Gestapo and half young officers in training. The Fuehrer keeps three batmen who wait on him, but the care of his clothing and cleaning of his rooms is done by a maid.

Another prisoner said Hitler's headquarters in East Prussia was a huge underground arrangement with walls so thick that no bomb could collapse them and that while he is there Hitler is guarded by a cordon of S. S. officers.

After looking at pictures this prisoner did not think the attempt on Hitler's life was made at the Fuehrer's headquarters.

The batman said he found Hitler difficult to know even though he served him for three years.

"He was different every day," the batman said "alternating between kindness and brutal harshness toward his subordinates."

He said Hitler was extremely nervous and, before the war, never went to bed before 3 a.m., and was not awakened until 10 a.m. now, he said, Hitler is called at 8 a.m. daily when he breakfasts on milk and arrowroot.

Staff officers who come to see Hitler were described as extremely nervous before the conferences. Once, the batman said, when Dr. Emil Hacha, Czech President, came to see Hitler, the Fuehrer told his personal physician to be ready to give Hacha stimulants — and that Hacha did collapse under the strain of the interview and needed two injections.

Fifteen Thousand Jam Way Into Second Day of Fair Considered Best in History

Military Display, Garden Show Entertain Grandstand Patrons in Evening

GOOD RACING

Turnstiles clicked merrily, directorial faces wore broad smiles in keeping with that of the weather man, and fifteen thousand people milled in a typical fair mood at the second day of the Belleville Exhibition yesterday.

Threatening morning skies cleared magically by noon and a sun reminiscent of June sent temperatures soaring to summer levels.

Despite the heat, that did not abate with the sunset, Military Day as Tuesday was styled, will go down in exhibition records as one of the finest in the history of the fair from all points of view. The weather was perfect, attendance a near record and a consensus, that this year's fair is one of the best in years.

Highlighting the day's activities were the thrilling trials of speed, described elsewhere in this issue and the colorful military parade and demonstration, that held the interest of the huge crowd during the evening.

Fine Harness Horse Racing

The directors made no mistake, when they attracted some of the finest harness horses in Eastern Ontario. That this district and neighboring communities are distinctly harness-race minded was evidenced in the crowd, that thronged the grandstand and infield during the first of the speed trials in the afternoon. Just as exciting were the races staged for the benefit of rural and urban running horse owners in this part of Ontario.

The crowd that overflowed the grandstand and almost filled that part of the track immediately in front and well to the sides, to welcome armed service units of the city and district at the parade and marchpast in the evening, was ampe evidence of the popularity of martial music and marching feet, as well as the entertaining ability of Billy Gardens Grandstand Show, staged directly following the military demonstration.

Crowds Line Streets.

Downtown streets were lined with spectators as the parade, headed by the R.C.A.F. Band, Trenton, under WO. Hancock, swung away from the Armories lawn. A squadron of Women's Division, R.C.A.F. and Mountain View squadrons followed and in turn came the gunners of the 34th and 47th Field Batteries, Royal Canadian Artillery; the Belleville Air Cadets, First Great War Veterans, headed by the Belleville Branch of the Army and Navy Veterans in Canada, some fifty strong, and the mechanized equipment and guns of the Argyll Light Infantry (T) and the artillery. Cadet Corps drum and bugle music and the skirling pipes of the Kilty Band of the Argylls added a further tuneful touch.

The parade skirted the grounds and rounded the track, finally emerging from the darkness into the brilliantly lighted area where Group Captain A. D. Bell-Irving, commanding officer of the Trenton Air Station, took the salute at a reviewing base. The large crowd broke into spontaneous cheering as each unit appeared in the march-past.

Tactical Manoeuvres.

Introduced by Lieut. Jeff Marvell who later acted as narrator for the battle drill demonstration of his unit, Lieut.-Col. B. C. Sisler, commanding officer of the Argyll Light Infantry, spoke briefly to the audience emphasizing the fact that the unit was "Belleville's own" and urged support for all its activities.

Bren gun carriers, acting as enemy tanks, that roared across a lighted area rear of the stage, were the "targets" for six-pounder anti-tank guns used by Argyll detachments in the first phase of the manoeuvres demonstration. Gun drill, sequence of fire order, method of laying on targets were efficiently pictured by the detachments. In the second phase, blank rifle ammunition, flares, miniature grenades and other mild explosives added a realistic touch when a mechanized convoy was attacked by the "enemy." Various actions of the troops, as in the anti-tank battle were cleverly explained by Lieut. Marvell over the public address system.

Tasty Dessert.

As a tasty dessert to the main military course and one greatly appreciated by the audience if applause is any criterion, was another sterling stage performance by the Garden Brothers Shows. The dazzling finales of the Silver Cyclones, outstanding skating act, again "brought down the house" with its weirdly beautiful finale. The Pethick Dancing Girls, Al. Harvey, colorful master-of-ceremonies; Fifi, the Clown; Louise Linden, star vocalist and accordion virtuoso; Zena the Dancer; the inimitable Clare Rouse, one-man band; the Claremonts, Donahue and LaSalle, the Cycling Kirks, and not to forget Ken Goode and his orchestra, went all out in their efforts to please.

The Conklin Midway, brilliantly lighted street of entertainment, was the mecca for milling thousands during the afternoon and evening. Livestock exhibits, especially the horses attracted plenty of attention. The Dawes Black Horses, proud Percheron stallions, drew unstinted applause during their periodic appearances before the grandstand. Cattle, sheep and swine, poultry and other exhibits were viewed in turn by curious but appreciative fair goers.

And last, but by no means least, one of the most enjoyable attractions of the exhibition, has been the unstinted efforts of the Belleville Municipal Band, which plays in front of the grandstand prior to the stage performance. Lieut. Jobson, and his merry musicians, have been the recipients of many laudatory comments anent their musical contribution to the Exhibition.

Rifle Stolen From Front Street Store

Gaining entry through a rear window, robbers entered the Front Street premises of the Vermilyea Shoe Store early Wednesday morning and made their getaway with a 38-55 rifle which had been left at the store.

Efforts had been made to open the store safe which had been moved away from the wall, but it is believed by police the robbers had been disturbed by the appearance of the city police patrolman on his four o'clock rounds. A check-up by Mr. Vermilyea revealed this morning that the rife apparently had been all that was taken.

According to police it is believed that gasoline ration coupons were the motive of the break-in as this is the third time this season the Vermilyea store has been entered.

If the motive for the break-in was gasoline coupons, the thieves had their labors for nothing, however, as since June 1st gasoline books have been issued from Toronto and not from district licence offices. Since then there have been no gasoline books at the Belleville store with only office records and ledgers being kept in the safe.

Investigating the break-in this morning Chief of Police Walter Probert and Inspector Clare Hayes called in Provincial Constable E. Soubliere to examine the moved safe for possible fingerprint clues. Officers formed no opinion as to the number in the party, but forwarded the suggestion there must have been two or three with the lookout warning of the approach of the night patrolman.

BRINGING HOME FUEL FROM CITY WOODPILE

New York, Sept. 20 (AP)—Apartment dwellers have been offered a chance to bring home their own supply of winter fuel—an opportunity created by last Thursday's hurricane havoc. The park department which made the offer said it would advise individuals with tree-carting facilities (no dealers) as to the location of the department's woodpile which came into existence when the storm uprooted hundreds of trees.

Hastings County Holds Reputation For 'Lunge Fishing

Lieut.-Col. Cyril Caldwell of Halifax, a fisherman of no mean repute had caught practically every variety of Canadian fish but the maskinonge, so he informed Mr. Fred H. Deacon during the latter's visit to the "eastern Canadian port".

Mr. Deacon promptly informed the colonel of the fighting specimens of "lunge" to be had in Hastings County waters, and the result was a visit by Col. Caldwell to this district.

Crowe Lake had the honor of upholding the reputation of the county, and yielded two fine specimens weighing seven and eight pounds respectively. Now the colonel's record is complete.

Trenton Woman Injured When Struck by Car

Mrs. W. Malloy, 22 Richard St., Trenton, received leg abrasions and two cut finger when she was struck at the intersection of Front and Bridge Streets last evening by a car driven by J. Bell of No. 6 R.D. at Trenton. Bell was making a right-hand turn against the red light when he struck the woman. She was taken to the hospital for a check-up but was later allowed to proceed to her home.

Car Damaged.

Fender damage was caused to a car driven by J. E. Lange, Catherine Street, as the result of a sideswipe which occurred on Coleman Street near Sills' warehouse. In attempting to pass another car the motorist failed to swing into line in time and struck the Lange auto.

Junior Farmers, Boys and Girls, Take Part in Judging Contests Sponsored by Belleville Fair

C. D. Graham, Director From Toronto, Addresses Youths at Holloway St. Church

PRIZES AWARDED

Featuring the greatest number of entrants ever to take part in junior judging competitions, the junior section of Belleville Fair was a decided success on Tuesday afternoon with boys' judging and girls' achievement events receiving high interest on the part of junior farmers in the Bay of Quinte district.

Conducted under the auspices of district agricultural representatives the competitions drew approximately 100 contestants of both sexes, the day being concluded with a banquet at Holloway Street United Church where boys and girls heard as guest speaker, Mr. C. D. Graham, Director, Agricultural Representative Branch, Toronto.

The value of junior farmer organization in the post war agricultural program was stressed by Mr. Graham, he asserting, that it was a challenge to such organization to fit junior farmers for participation in senior activity. There were 56 junior Farmer organizations throughout the province with a membership of 3,060 members, recently formed into a provincial organization working for the interests of rural youth.

Farmers Must Meet.

The speaker claimed that as agriculturists, farmers must come together with like interests. Over-all opinions must be formed, these dovetailing with the needs and wishes of others.

In suggesting a workable program for junior organization Mr. Graham recommended attention be given to soil conservation and reforestation. Soil conservation was definitely tied in with production and quality of production. It was most important to maintain quality of Canada was to keep her place in the post-war market. The response to swine club and other projects had been a good sign.

One of the fundamental aims of junior organization was to create greater pride and appreciation of farm life, Mr. Graham concluded.

G. S. Brownell Chairman.

As manager of one of the dairies sponsoring the junior banquet, Mr. G. S. Brownell of Swift Canadian Company, acted as chairman for the evening, calling on Elmer Sandercock, president of the fair for a word of welcome. Mr. Sandercock paid tribute to district agricultural representatives for the interest and claimed the part of junior went a long way toward the success of the fair.

Two Chinese Boys Help Missionary Escape From Japs

By BARBARA WILFORD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Toronto, Sept. 20 —(CP)— Miss Greta Clark, Church of England missionary to China, is back in Toronto five months afer she received warning from British authorities to leave an unnamed Chinese city because of danger, of a Japanese attack. Born on a farm in Peterborough County, Miss Clark was last in Canada six years ago.

In China since 1919 with the exception of furloughs, she carried on her work in Honan Province despite the "worst famine in history" and frequent bombings. For four years she was only 10 miles from the actual firing lines.

"I was reported missing and my friends believed I had been shot," Miss Clark said in an interview here today as she told of her escape from behind Japanese lines. With the help of two Chinese boys, and despite constant disappointments, Miss Clark succeeded in reaching Chungking, went from there to India where, after two months' wait, she boarded an American troop ship. She arrived in Toronto Monday.

She told of conditions during the fall and winter of 1942 when the starving Chinese had to resort to powdered elm bark and peanut shells for sustenance.

Newsmen Help.

"It wasn't till newspapermen saw the conditions for themselves and wrote about them in the papers at home that we were able to get enough money to start constructive work on a large scale," she said.

Assisted by five Chinese women, Miss Clark attacked the problem of rescuing children dying in the streets where starving mothers had adanboned them. Soup kitchens were established to which mothers with nursing babies could bring all their children. Meals were served to 150 mothers and children daily. Babies horribly misshapen because of improper diet responded miraculously to proper foods and within even two or three days were scarcely recognizable.

Formed Child Centre.

In an attempt to hold families together, each mother was given 400 Chinese dollars a month — about $15 in Canadian money, which was enough to feed her baby and herself.

Miss Clark formed a child centre to which were brought babies whose relatives could not be traced. Of the 57 children cared for at the centre, homes were found for 26. A staff of 20 did all the work and made the centre self-sufficient. They ground their own flour, spun and wove their own cloth.

In order to combat ignorance among mothers some of whom actually mal-treated their children, Miss Clark conducted a class in child psychology.

They augmented the meagre supply of goat's milk with soyabean milk, which Miss Clark says has the same food value as cow's milk.

"During the last six months there were no cases of serious illness—not even a cold," Miss Clark said proudly.

Bracken Greatly Impressed in Tour Of Batawa Plant

He was "very favorably impressed" with working conditions especially labor-management relations, and the general efficiency of the plant as a whole, Mr. John Bracken, Progressive Conservative leader stated yesterday following a tour of the Bata Shoe Company plant at Batawa, Ont. "It is an object lesson in Canadian industry", he added.

Accompanied by Mr. G. H. Stokes, M.P., South Hastings, Mayor Harry Rollins, president Elmer Sandercock, Belleville Agricultural Society, and ex-Mayor George A. Reid, Mr. Bracken motored through the beauty spots of the Bay of Quinte pausing sufficiently to get a "good highway view" of the Trenton Air Station, before arriving at the Bata plant.

The party was accorded a cordial welcome by company officials on arrival and following the tour of inspection were guests of plant executives at luncheon.

Mr. Bracken chatted informally with a number of employees evincing much interest in labor conditions in vogue at the plant.

He left later by train for Cayuga, Ontario, where he will deliver an address.

Freed Correspondent Tells How He and Two Others Were Captured

By EDWARD D. BALL
(AP War Correspondent)

U. S. 3rd Army Headquarters in France, Sept. 20 — (AP) — War correspondents Wright Bryan of the Atlanta Journal and Edward W. Beattie of the United Press were captured by the Germans Sept. 12 four miles north of Chaumont, headquarters for Gen. Pershing in the last war.

Bryan was wounded slightly in the left leg. Both presumably were taken to Germany.

A third reporter, captured with them, was freed by an Allied armored column and has returned to the Third Army press camp. Army regulations forbid publication of his name at this time.

The freed correspondent, brought back a dramatic account of the capture of himself and his two colleagues, who were on their way to Chaumont, now believed to be in Allied hands, to report the mass surrender of nearly 20,000 Germans.

The correspondent said that as the three in a jeep driven by a soldier, neared Chaumont on the road from Joinville they encountered broken trees and a burned jeep and decided to turn back. As the driver backed the jeep they were fired upon.

"I dived into a ditch," he said, "and Beattie and the other correspondent and the driver took cover under the jeep. I began to crawl down the ditch away from the firing and had gone about 100 yards when I observed someone waving a white handkerchief from the jeep. I heard another jeep coming down the road and waved and shouted at its occupants — six U. S. soldiers—to stop. They did and took cover in the ditch."

The correspondent said a group of Germans were gathered around the jeep he had been in and another bunch was coming down the road.

"I stood up and surrendered to a very young blond German, who was badly frightened and sweating profusely," he said.

Three of the soldiers had been wounded and he said he heard later two of them had died.

The captured correspondents and soldiers were interviewed by a German air corps major. The wounded correspondent was taken to a hospital.

Beattie and the correspondent were permitted to say goodbye to their colleague, who was placed in an ambulance in a Germany-bound convoy.

During the night, the correspondent related, they were awakened and told one of them was to leave. Beattie volunteered, he said, and later he learned Beattie had been shipped out in a convoy headed for the Reich.

The correspondent said he and the soldiers were loaded in trucks and moved out of Chaumont just after dawn. A day later they were in a long column marching toward Germany. An Allied armored column overtook the group and they were freed.

Picton and District

H.&P.E. Regt. Featured by War Correspondent

Picton, Sept. 20 — Prince Edward County people have followed with great pride the achievements of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment in Sicily and Italy. That their record is an enviable one is borne out by stories of returning soldiers. Whenever there is a tough job to be done the Hasty P's do it, declared Pte. Pete Mitchell, just home from Italy. They are now engaged in the battle for the Gothic line.

A war correspondent devoted a feature article to this unit. "When a company of another Canadian regiment ran into difficulties, being overwhelmed by German suicidal paratroopers, it was the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment that went to their rescue and did it to the Queen's taste," he related.

The commanding officer was on recce and he discovered the situation. The company, supported by tanks, crossed the open country to relieve the situation. They dealt the Germans a smashing blow, inflicting heavy casualties, including 26 prisoners, and of the kind who don't usually surrender. They also captured a 75-mm. gun, a self-propelled gun, two 30-cwt. vehicles, a half-track and machine guns."

The theme of the Conference is to be "Evangelism in Christian Education" and is part of the Christian Education Advance Movement inaugurated in 1940. This conference is one of five being held in this province and is being promoted through the Ontario Religious Education Council.

So far fourteen local churches are participating and the area covered by this conference is from Oshawa to Brockville. On Sunday afternoon a meeting was held in the Baptist S. S. rooms to hear reports of plans to date. The local chairman is Mr. A. E. Robinson.

Among other things reported on, the following leaders were announced as making up the team coming to Belleville:

J. Wm. Myers, Tabernacle Church on adult work, Belleville.

With such leadership for one conference it was realized the great importance church leaders feel in the need of Evangelism in our church, schools and the cross section of denominationalism, all interested in the same theme is of particular significance.

Man Fractures Neck Vertebra In 20-Foot Fall

Earl Claus, Bloomfield, who suffered a fractured, vertebra of the neck as a result of a fall, is progressing as well as can be expected, Belleville General Hospital authorities said today.

Claus fell into the Moira River while sitting on a cement revetment a few feet north of the Upper City Bridge. He lost his balance and tumbled twenty feet to the river bed covered at this point with a bare inch of water.

Deputy Fire Chief Gerald Vance, talking with a friend previous to the accident noted Claus sitting on the wall. His friend shouted a warning, but had no sooner uttered the words when Claus toppled from his seat to the river bed below.

Deputy Chief Vance and firemen rushed a ladder to the scene of the accident and rescued Claus from his predicament. He appeared to have suffered a severe cut on the head. He was rushed to the hospital where he is at present under the care of Dr. G. S. Cronk. Claus is an employee of the Reliance Industries Ltd.

Parisians Extend Warm Welcome To All Canadians

By WILLIAM STEWART
(CP War Correspondent)

Paris, Sept, 3 —(Delayed)—(CP) —Though amusements are still closed and exchanges of small arms fire echo through blacked-out streets at night, liberated Paris is one of the gayest wartime capitals.

American military personnel have been swept off their feet by the charm of its people, some of whom seem to be keeping their homes open 24 hours a day to soldiers.

Sidewalk cafes throng with people in stylish clothes and the streets are alive with an endless parade of bicycles which are the popular form of wartime transport. There must be a million bicycles in Paris and they tell you there is even a bicycle black market.

You have only to stand on the street a quarter of an hour to get a half dozen invitations to dinner that will be cooked somehow despite a coal and gas shortage. The city's hospitality is open-armed.

Every Parisian you meet is interested in Canadians and French-speaking Canadians in particular. All say they are extremely grateful for the part Canada is playing in this war as in the other war, and their invitations are offered as tokens of gratitude for the Canadian share in the battle of France.

The skeletonized editions of newspapers that appear daily featured the Canadian return to Dieppe with the day's important war news. Ordinary readers tell you that the Dieppe raid of two years ago, despite German propaganda, was received as a promise of this year's landing.

One Parisian on a street corner said "We knew that if two years ago you could remain on shore for five hours that when the time came you would be prepared to stay ashore as long as you wished."

Nude Body Found InHollywoodApt.

Hollywood, Sept. 20 (AP)—The nude body of Mrs. Helene Brady Brock, 40, identified by police as the wealthy widow of Charles M. Brock, Denver, Colo., oil man, was found yesterday in a luxurious Hollywood apartment.

In the same room officers aroused her friend, Milton Smith of Denver, who, police Capt. Thad Brown said, was in critical condition from alcoholism.

"Mrs. Brock may have died from alcoholism," Capt. Brown said. "In the absence of any marks of violence on her body, we are ruling out any theory of foul play. She had been dead about three days. Smith said he had known Mrs. Brock for 28 years. He could recall nothing of her death."

Capt. Brown said there were many empty whisky bottles in the apartment.

'Buy With Moderation As Wartime Ordinances Disappear'-Vaillancourt

Quebec, Sept. 20—(CP)—Senator Cyrill Vaillancourt, French speaking adviser to the Prices Board, told a meeting of the Retail Merchants of Canada Association, Quebec Branch, here last night "to buy with moderation in proportion as wartime ordinances disappear."

"It is important that post-war inflation, such as the First Great War's one, be avoided," he said. "Future belongs to those who shall show a positive mind and who shall organize to face competition."

RARE BIRDS BLOWN IN FROM SOUTH

Boston, Sept. 20 (AP)—Massachusetts State Conservation Department agents were busy rescuing birds today—birds that never should have been in Massachusetts—blown here from southern climes by a hurricane. Some of the birds were of such rare variety that field agents reported they had been unable to identify them.

Crete Blockaded To Prevent Hun Garrison Escaping

Rome, Sept. 20. (AP)— A strong Allied blockade has been thrown around Crete to prevent the escape of the German garrison and enemy forces there are being subjected to a succession of sea and air attacks, an official announcement said today.

Carrier-based planes from an Allied naval task force operating in the Aegean destroyed 11 German motor vehicles, damaged many more, and wrecked a JU-52 on the ground in an attack on Crete three days ago. The next day naval planes knocked out at least 25 more vehicles.

The British warship Aurora bombarded Melos, tiny Aegean Island midway between Crete and the Greek mainland, Sept. 17. A German wireless station on Melos was the target for both the Aurora and the British destroyed Terpischore the next day.

A joint Allied communique announcing these blows also said the islands of Mljet, Korcula and Brac off the Dalmatian coast were freed from the Germans by combined operations of Yugoslav partisans, the Royal Navy, the Balkan air force and Allied "land forces of the Adriatic".

Considerable losses were inflicted upon the enemy garrisons and operations are continuing in the Dalmatian area, the announcement said.

Japs Say 750 Americans Perish When Ships Sink

Washington, Sept. 20—A Japanese Domei Agency broadcast says that 930 war prisoners, including 750 identified as Americans, perished in the torpedoing of two Japanese transports in the Southwest Pacific.

The broadcast, beamed to Europe and recorded Sunday by the Federal Communications Commission, quoted front-line dispatches received in Tokyo as saying that the American prisoners and the Japanese crew were lost when a transport was sunk by an enemy submarine off Mindanao in the Philippines Sept. 7.

The Agency said it had been revealed, without identifying the source, that 180 war prisoners were killed in the sinking of a transport off Sumatra June 26. Five hundred and forty other prisoners aboard, the broadcast said, were rescued.

There was no confirmation of the report from Allied sources.

Says Home Defence Troops Should Be Sent To Fight Against Japs

Vancouver, Sept. 20 (CP)—Home defence troops should be the first sent to battle against the Japanese following the defeat of Germany, Howard Green, Progressive Conservative member of parliament for Vancouver Point Grey, told a meeting of the Bracken club here last night.

"We are risking a shortage of reinforcements and now are sending only partially-trained men to fight because of government policy dictated by a minority," Mr. Green said quoting Maj. Conn Smythe of Toronto, recently rehalilitated from overseas, to back up his statement.

Battle for Philippines Roars Into New Phase

Allied Headquarters, New Guinea, Sept. 20 —(AP)— The first big raid on the Philippines since the twin invasions of Morotai and the Palaus indicated today the "battle of the approaches" has roared into a new phase on the south.

To the east, one of two invaded islands in the Palaus virtually was conquered and unofficial reports from the invasion scene placed the other on the point of falling.

At Morotai, within 300 miles of the southern Philippines, today's report implied that newly-acquired base already is being used to launch air blows at the Philippines.

In a communique last night at Pearl Harbor, it was announced that American troops now hold two-thirds of Angaur, southernmost of the Palaus and have pocketed remnants of the small Japanese garrison.

On heavily-defended Peleliu Island, marine captors of the prized airdrome were credited in official reports with controlling most of the east coast.

The War Today—

Two Recent Developments In Official Frankness Noted

By J. M. ROBERTS, Jr.
Substituting for DeWitt Mackenzie
Associated Press War Analyst

Two recent developments in official frankness may, in the long run, prove as important as the fighting which overshadowed them.

We are beginning to get some light on the situation in China through a partial relaxation of what has been one of the world's tightest censorships, and on Anglo-American relations with Russia.

Clyde Farnsworth of the Associated Press tells us from Kunming that all the fine stories we have heard of the Chinese fighting qualities have been meaningless because of inadequate military leaders. Brooks Atkinson of the New York Times, in reporting at least partial revival of free speech at Chungking, indirectly confirms what has been widely feared — that government practices in China have embodied many of the very things we are fighting against in Europe.

Almost simultaneously John Hightower in Washington tells how Britain and the United States tip-toe in dealings with Stalin, indicating that liaison is still very insecure and that much remains to be done to assure post-war co-operation; and how the Allies are putting pressure on China for a reorganization of her poorly-handled war effort.

Both of these situations, hidden as well as they could be, under diplomatic top hats, have been worrying observers for months. Not only because of what was inherent in them, but because of the explosion they might cause on public opinion the more they were suppressed.

We have just had in Italy an example of too much hush-hush. The Allies are in trouble with Italian public opinion because of a speech by Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia with which they originally had nothing to do. Tito demanded territory Italy has held since Versailles. The psychological warfare branch eliminated that passage from the version to be published in Italy. The Italians picked it up from broadcasts, and now everybody's in a stew.

'Clarification'

The revelations about Russia and China — perhaps "clarifications" would be the better word, since the situations have been at least felt, if not generally known — should not be taken as adding to the gloom. The mere fact that the conditions now are out in the open could mean that we will be better informed on relations, and that such progress as is made will not be merely a false front erected by diplomats. It could mean that relationships themselves are better than they were — that there is a friendlier, more realistic meeting grounds — or else the more open discussion would not have been permitted.

Perhaps it only means that the whispering and tip-toeing no longer could be maintained. But the more hopeful view is that the international negotiators are beginning to realize that any lasting peace must be made not by diplomats, but by whole peoples, fully informed, so that they will not turn away in revulsion from anything they have condoned in ignorance.

Calm Prevails In Copenhagen

Stockholm, Sept. 20 (AP)—Street fighting and disorders which erupted in Denmark yesterday as Danes demonstrated against German seizure of government buildings and police stations were reported to have abated last night and latest advices indicated that calm once more prevailed in Copenhagen.

The Free Danish Press service said the Free Danish Council had asked all Danes to stop fighting but to continue a general strike until Thursday in protest against the dissolution of the Danish police force of 12,000 men.

Earlier reports from Denmark said Danish constabulary had fought a fierce but unequal battle yesterday in defence of the Royal Palace at Amalienborg in Copenhagen, where aging King Christian and his family were besieged.

The Danish officers finally were subdued after killing at least 14 Nazis, these advices said. Some members of the constabulary were reported to have fled to Sweden.

Loyal Support

Belleville Fair Board must feel proud of their efforts in the support they have had from all classes of the people, the people in the country districts and the city residents. This year's fair has been a demonstration of the solidarity of the people of these parts shown in their united tribute to the work of the officers and directors of the Belleville Agricultural Society.

Motor cars from the country districts came crowded with visitors to save gasoline, and the result is seen in bumper crowds and besides the crowds a wholesome interest in every phase of the fair.

This greater interest in part is due doubtless to the need that many feel of recreation and going to the fair has been a recreation and relaxation indeed in the arousing of interest in the activities of the exhibition. It has been an opportunity for a wholesome outing that will not be without an abiding educational value. And especially it must not be forgotten what this meeting place does for the whole district in the cementing of the best of relations of all the people.

The institution is one of great value it has been proved again and again and this year's effort is one in which the farming and the urban communities feel a deep sense of satisfaction.

Tea, Coffee Rationing Past

Signs everywhere are pointing the way to the victory beyond the present final-phase struggle in Europe against Germany. One of the latest of these to appear is the removal of the rationing of tea and coffee after a little over two years of restrictions. Improved world conditions have lifted the stocks and reserves of these two beverage commodities so that unrestricted purchasing is now in order.

The extension of the value of coupons twice in the period of rationing has helped the consumer public greatly, so that the final lifting of the restraints did not cause more than a ripple of excitement. Tuesday, the first day of couponless buying, was quiet in the shops in the matter of purchases of these two articles of the kitchen. Buying conditions will of course change no doubt and soon people will be buying as they bought before the rationing came into effect in August 1942.

Sugar, butter, preserves and also evaporated milk in some areas alone remain on the coupon list. The two commodities of sugar and butter are in so much demand that only rationing can handle them. The rationing of preserves is closely related to the shortage of sugar. As for the fruit production peaches are an unusually large crop this year and only the 1942 crop is believed superior to the estimated crop of 1,712,000 bushels in 1944. Estimated packs of strawberries and raspberries were lower than in 1943.

Eastern Ontario has increased its entire canning pack one hundred per cent and Western Ontario two hundred per cent over last year. Butter production is, as every reader knows, such as to be reflected in the rationing.

Canadians will welcome the change in the situation in respect to the beverage commodities for the removal of the restrictions and as a sign of greatly improved world conditions.

Everywhere the picture grows darker for the evil gangster nation, Germany, as she sees her defences being pierced by an irresistible force of Allied power which neither the Siegfried Wall nor whatever devices the Huns put up to ward off the day of reckoning can frustrate. The wheels of the Allied war machine, the most powerful organization ever assembled by a group of nations in world history, are rolling onward towards Berlin. Hitler and his crowd and their followers and Germans generally are foiled, and more than foiled for they are about to be crushed and never was a more righteous judgment to fall upon an evil nation which is responsible for the untold millions of sufferers who have been victims of German aggression than is hanging over the heads of Nazi militaristic Germany at this time, whether they fight to the last ditch as it is said they will do or not.

Hitlerism used the Atlantic Wall and the Siegfried line as symbols of German invincible power which they tried to impress upon the world. None of these has stood because a power greater than Germany's is smashing its way on. In earlier days it was the so-called "invincibility" of the German military machine that Hitler used to try to impress the world but that was an idle term for it did not exist, for there was always a stronger power—the Allied power, great in its reserve power, great in its moral power and great in the support it enjoys in the world and immensely great in its aim to make a better world in which war will be no more. The United Nations see the world's needs and they find before them a glorious opportunity to serve the whole world.

Old Towns and Wars

The place-names of the Franco-Prussian War have been spangling the news of the Allies' rush toward the German frontier, notes a Chicago Tribune columnist. Americans seldom visit these old towns of Lorraine and Alsace when on pleasure bent, so let us glance at some of them with nothing more than a tourist's interest in their military past.

Sedan, a small place for its reputation, is familiar as the scene of the surrender of Napoleon III with a large army to the Prussians in 1870. It was occupied by French and American troops in the last hours of World War I as a symbolic gesture. The sedan chair of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries is said to have been invented there, but the dictionaries throw cold water on this legend.

Nancy is a university town of considerable charm. Its savants made important contributions to psychology, especially in the field of hypnotism. From it came Emile Coue to persuade many Americans that their health would improve if they frequently repeated his formula for auto-suggestion: "Every day in every way I am getting better and better."

Metz is paired with Sedan as a surrendering place. The hardest fighting of the Franco-Prussian War was in the region around this city, where Marshal Bazaine gave up his famished army after a siege of fifty-four days. It has always been a fortress city, and its chief object of interest is the cathedral. On the exterior is a life-sized statue of the prophet Ezekiel, whose face might be a portrait of Emperor Wilhelm II of Germany. The French discovered this likeness after World War I and placarded it with the motto, "Sic transit gloria mundi."

Hopeless Refuge

(Montreal Herald)

Germany, short of almost everything for her war machine, is even running out of Nazi slogans. "Strength through joy" is long since departed. "Beauty through work" more recently followed it. But the Nazis must have slogans, so they have fallen back on, of all things, "faith and honor."

Dr. Goebbels frankly tells the Germans that faith and honor can be dispensed with in good times, "as they can be replaced by success and victory. In bad times however these principles are of importance as they must make up for setbacks and defeats."

This hasn't even the frightened honesty of deathbed repentance. Dr. Goebbels is simply admitting that, having run out of everything else, he is falling back on a couple of civilized virtues for expedient aid in an extremely bad situation.

Obviously it won't work. For 11 years the Germans have been offered faith in nothing but Adolf Hitler by their government. As for the honor, the Nazis conceived this war in a series of broken pledges and have conducted it in an atmosphere of egregious lies. And the German people, in condoning and enduring all this, have been but little less faithless and dishonorable than their leaders.

Dr. Goebbels once again admits the hopelessness of principles whose very meaning he obviously has forgotten—if he ever knew them.

Most elephant trainers are partially deaf. The shrill trumpeting of the animals during the training period is injurious to the human ear.

MIGRATION MAGIC

They never call to say goodbye
Or tell us they'll be back in spring,
As silently as minutes fly
The purple martins take to wing.

One day the house with life is gay
And high above they wheel and soar;
The next they've packed and gone away,
And vacant every room once more.

What signal struck no man can tell;
What beacon flashed no man can say,
But by some art they've mastered well
They mark the hour to go away.

And by that magic, past the power
Of mankind's cleverest to learn,
On April twentieth, to the hour,
The purple martins will return.

LIGHT YEAR

A light year is the distance travelled by light in one year.

Roughly it is 63,000 times the distance between the earth and sun.

The light year is a linear unit used especially in measuring the vast distances between fixed stars and the earth.

All astronomers, however, do not use the same year as a basis for such computations, although the Julian year is generally taken as a basis of the light year, since it is somewhat simpler than the others, being exactly 365 days and six hours in length.

"Round numbers only," says the U. S. Naval Observatory, "are used in dealing with the light year. The Julian year of 365.25 days is in common use among astronomers and may be very safely employed in computing stellar distances."

A light year is computed, in round numbers, by multiplying the number of seconds in a year, about 32,000,000 by the speed of light, about 186,000,000 miles a second.

The U. S. Bureau of Standards says: "The term light year is used in astronomy to designate an approximate order of distance, and not as an exact unit of length. The year used in reckoning is the tropical or calendar year, and were the velocity of light accurately known, it would be possible to calculate the light year exactly in miles, kilometers or other familiar units of length."

Some years ago Edwin B. Frost, director of the Yerkes Observatory, wrote: "The light year is a perfectly definite unit of distance. It may be determined by multiplying the number of seconds in a year by the velocity of light, for which the latest value (by Prof. Albert A. Michelson of the University of Chicago) is 186,227 miles per second. This equals 5,876,746,000,000. Speaking roughly, the light year is therefore a little less than six million million miles."

Another unit used in measuring interstellar distances is known as the parsec, which is a coined word composed of the first elements in "parallax" and "second." It is equal to 3.26 light years or about 20,000,000,000,009 miles. A million parsects is called a "megaparsec."

CIVILIZATION AND DEGENERATION

Casual remark in some war correspondent's report of what is happening in Europe rankles long after the correspondent's name and the rest of his story have been forgotten. He described a celebration of some successful Allied achievement and, to show the resourcefulness of the service, of supply, he said the banquet here in the very front lines included even white bread. Then another dispatch from somewhere in Italy mentioned what the correspondent regarded as a special benefaction to the hungry Italian civilians — the dispensing of white bread instead of coarse wholegrain bread to which the people had been accustomed.

These bits of news within the news are far more interesting than the news itself.

It is conceivable that the weak-mouthed, lame-jawed, more or less edentulous American war correspondents and military personnel would be delighted to get some white bread they could eat without serious strain to their feeble masticating equipment. It is easy to understand that the civilians in any European district latey liberated from Nazi or Fascist subjection would be happy to get bread of any kind or color.

If American occupation of France, Italy or other European countries introduces general use of white bread instead of the more nutritious, more healthful whole grain bread the people have always used as the mainstay of their diet, then our coming will not be an unmixed blessing. It seems regrettable that we cannot share with these victims of authoritarian oppression the fruits of civilization and freedom without at the same time encouraging them in the cultivation of nutritional deficiency.

This physical degeneration which comes with ultra-refinement of food is due mainly to the use of white flour and white sugar. As one nutrition authority, Norman Jelliffe, expressed it. "A 55% fracion of the calories in the American diet of 1840 (when whole wheat flour was used) containing a minimum of 600 international units of vitamin B1, has been replaced in the contemporaneous American diet (refined white flour substituted almost exclusively for whole wheat flour, refined white sugar almost exclusively for old-fashioned brown sugar and molasses) by a like fraction containing only about 50 international units of vitamin B1."

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Life Expectancy

Please explain why a woman's life expectancy is greater than a man's.

Answer—Except to confirm your impression—recent statistics show that women live a few years longer than men — I have no explanation. I was formerly inclined to infer that women behaved better than men, took better care of themselves as regards smoking, drinking and associated excesses or sins. Now I am not so sure about that.

No Authority I

I understand you are an authority on hardening of the arteries and high blood pressure — or as my doctor calls it, hypertension.

(Mrs. P. S. L.)

Answer—Thank you, Ma'am, but I'm afraid some one is spoofing you. All I know about hardening of arteries (arteriosclerosis) and /or (for they are not the same thing) high blood pressure (hypertension) I try to tell in this column from time to time or in the booklet CVD (cardiovascular degeneration) —for copy of this booklet send ten cents and stamped self addressed envelope and ask for it—do not inclose a clipping.

Healthful Reducing

In three months I have lost twenty pounds in weight and five inches around hips. I followed your directions as in the leaflet "How to Lose Weight". Naturally this is pleasing to my vanity. But what I do thank you for is the vast improvement in my general health and vitality. This is what pleases my family, for I guess I had lost most of my old time cheerfulness and readiness to join in the fun.

(Mrs. L. C.)

Answer—That's what I'm always trying to tell them. If a reducing program does not actually improve health and vitality it is probably wrong and maybe dangerous. Any reader who asks for it (no clipping will be considered a request) and incloses stamped self addressed envelope may have the pamphlet "How to Lose Weight".

Written For The Canadian Press
By ALEXEI IONOV

Moscow, Sept. 20 (CP) — Two hours' car ride from Stalino, on the banks of the shallow Turets is the town of Konstantinovka, a typical workers' settlement in the Donbas. Before the war its population numbered 75,000 and almost all its adults were engaged in industry.

Konstantinovka received the same treatment at the hands of the Germans as all other Donbas cities: Gorlovka, Kramator, Mariupol and Slavyanks. Everything was burned and destroyed.

When I visited Konstantinovka last June there were street cars running from the railway station past several factories to the centre; the city had electric light, water and a drainage system, and a cinema. Shortly after its liberation the people restored 13 schools and equipped several food stores. A small cottage houses the editorial offices of the Miners' newspaper. Another cottage houses the library, the books for which were collected by the people themselves, Moscow contributing 5,000 volumes. One house has been converted into a broadcasting centre and the occupants of 1,500 apartments now can regularly listen in. By their own efforts the people are restoring another cinema and two more schools.

From the first day of their liberation the people of Konstantinovka set about improving their living conditions and concentrated on restoring their industry. The chemical, coke-chemical and glass works are now partly restored, and the latter is gradually gaining its pre-war level of production.

I also witnessed celebrations at the steel mills where, with the aid of housewives who came to the factory during the war, one blast furnace, two open-hearth furnaces, an air blower, a 500-kilowatt power plant and other auxiliary shops and aggregates were restored. The mills are already yielding steel.

DO NOT DISTURB

Saipan (CP)—A correspondent fleeing to the whistle of Japanese machine-gun bullets dived into a foxhole, showering the lone American occupant with sand and stones. "What the hell's the matter with you?" he asked, shook the dust from his book, and went on reading "Journey Into Fear."

What happened to 1000 men who bought Life Insurance

Let us select at random the names of a thousand men from the records of the Great-West Life. Suppose that all of them in 1909, at age 25, purchased a $5,000 Twenty Payment Life policy, kept it in force and allowed the dividends to accumulate. Now here is what would have happened to these men between 1909 and today.

In 1914

22 have died before reaching age 30. Each of their families received $5,000 from the Great-West Life, plus accumulated dividends, although premiums paid averaged only $434.

In 1924

Another 46 have died, their dependents receiving $5,000 plus the profits that had accumulated. These men had paid into the Company an average of only $1,524.

In 1934

Another ten years have passed and another 71 men have died. The Company paid out $5,000 in each case, plus accumulated dividends, although the premiums received averaged only $2,734.

In 1944

138 men, between the ages of 50 and 60 years, died in the past ten years. Their dependents also received $5,000 plus dividends. Premiums paid amounted to $2,850 in each case.

723 are still living—age 60. They still have $5,000 insurance protection, as they have had over the entire 35 year period. Each has paid into the Company $2,850 and yet the cash value of each policy has grown to $3,165, plus substantial accumulated dividends.

That is the way life insurance works. Many persons pay into a common fund. The dependents of those who die are protected. The policyholders who live receive benefits later on. Insurance is "all for each and each for all". No man can afford to be without life insurance.

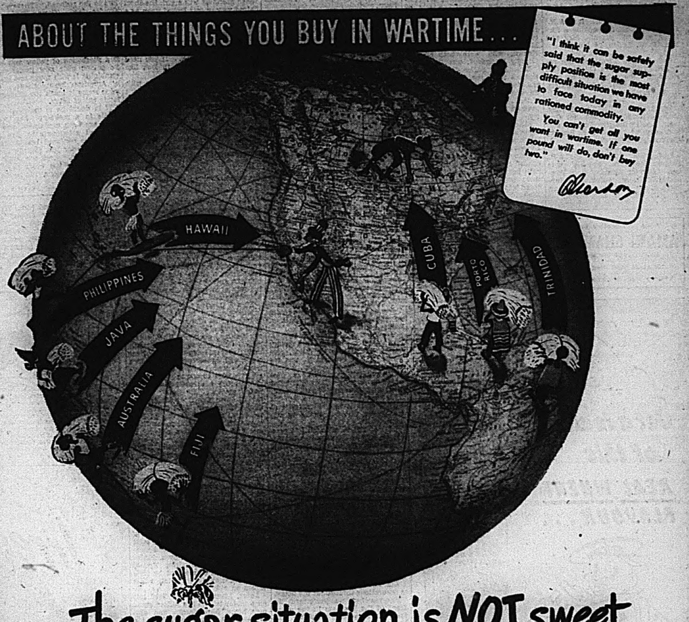
ABOUT THE THINGS YOU BUY IN WARTIME...



"I think it can be safely said that the sugar supply position is the most difficult situation we have to face today in any rationed commodity.

You can't get all you want in wartime. If one pound will do, don't buy two."

The sugar situation is NOT sweet

FOUR-FIFTHS OF THE SUGAR CANADA CONSUMES HAS TO BE IMPORTED

This map shows where Canada, Great Britain and the United States got their sugar in the good old days of peace. Our three countries take practically all the exportable sugar from these major sugar-exporting areas.

But supplies have either been cut off by enemy occupation of the country—as in the case of Java and the Philippines, or their production radically reduced by shortage of workers, as in the case of Hawaii, Porto Rico, Australia, Trinidad, Fiji.

Even the production of beet sugar in Canada and the United States has been drastically cut by labour shortage. In both countries the '43 sugar beet crop was forty per cent less than in '41. The only country to show an important increase is Cuba, where output had for years been deliberately restricted. But its increase has not been sufficient to offset the losses elsewhere—let alone meet the increased demand.

ROLLING ON SUGAR

The war has brought some unusual demands on the United Nations' sugar pool. Vast quantities have been taken for making industrial alcohol used in the manufacture of synthetic rubber (tires, etc.) as well as T.N.T. and smokeless powder. For instance, the explosive to fill five 16-inch shells requires as much sugar as is produced on an acre of the finest sugar land. This year Cuban sugar alone used for making industrial alcohol will equal Canada's normal sugar imports for more than two years.

THE SUPPLY IS SHARED

All sugar supplies are pooled and under the control of the Combined Food Board of the United Nations, which allots supplies to Canada, United States and Great Britain on a uniform basis.

DO WE NEED MORE SUGAR?

A century ago the whole world didn't consume as much sugar as Canada does today. Our sweet tooth has been acquired in quite recent times. Sugar rates high for its energy value, but starchy food is a good substitute.

SUGAR BANK
"YOUR ACCOUNT IS RUNNING LOW BOYS!"

WE'RE LIVING ON OUR SUGAR CAPITAL

At the time of "Pearl Harbour" the United Nations had a reserve stock-pile of about 3 million tons, but for the last 3 years we've been using more than has been produced—and dipping heavily into "reserve." Liberated nations will have to dip in too. Extra good crops could improve the situation, but greatly increased supplies are not in sight. If current consumption keeps up, we could be very short of sugar next year. We must do the utmost to conserve our supplies.

WEDDINGS

BICE—RAYCROFT

The Hostess House, R.C.A.F., Trenton, was the scene of a quiet but pretty wedding ceremony on Friday evening, September 15th., at eight o'clock, when Elizabeth (Betty) Raycroft, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Raycroft, became the bride of P/O. Alan Thomas Bice, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Bice of Calgary, Alberta. Flt. Lieut. Nimmo was the officiating clergyman for the occasion.

The bride selected a particularly striking pastel blue wool suit complemented with black accessories and corsage of deep pink roses.

Miss Shirley Meagher, as bridesmaid, was wearing a woollen suit in canary yellow shade, black accessories and corsage of Talisman roses.

P/O. Bernard Campbell, of North Bay, Ont., acted as groomsman.

A small reception was held at the Hostess House following the ceremony and then at the bride's home in Belleville. Decorating the bride's home was a profusion of gladioli in colors of pink and white. The mother of the bride received the guests attired in a blue ensemble with corsage of gladioli.

After a wedding trip to Toronto, P/O and Mrs. Bice will reside at the home of the bride's parents, while the groom is awaiting posting.

MITCHELL—TURNBULL

Rev. W. A. Brown officiated at the wedding, solemnized in St. John's Anglican Church, Ancaster, September 12, at 10 a.m., when Gladys Helen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Turnbull, Sydenham, was united in marriage to Mr. Charles Wesley Mitchell, son of Mr. Walter Mitchell and the late Mrs. Mitchell, Lindsay.

The bride looked charming gowned in a Chinese blue suit with Tilipino tan accessories and a corsage of roses and gladioli, as she entered the church on the arm of her mother, who was gowned in rose sheer crepe and corsage of pink carnations.

Miss Dorothy McRory was bridesmaid, attired in a beige suit with Paris tan accessories and corsage of gladioli. Mr. Harry Jones of Belleville, was best man.

A reception attended by twenty-five guests was held on the rectory lawn. A toast to the bride, proposed by the best man, was responded to by the groom. A toast to the bride's parents was proposed by Rev. Mr. Brown, it being their 37th wedding anniversary. This was responded to by the bride's mother, in the absence of her father, who was unable to attend.

Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell left on a motor trip to Northern Ontario. Upon their return they will reside in St. Catharines.

PAUL—WARTMAN

The marriage of Alice Louise Wartman, a graduate of Kingston General Hospital, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ward R. Wartman, Napanee, to Lieut. Edward Benjamin Paul, R.C.A.M.C., Camp Borden, son of Mr. and Mrs. Percy M. Paul, of Odessa, took place on Sept. 19, at four o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, with Rev. S. B. Griffith, Kingston, officiating, assisted by Canon Spencer, Camden East.

Cut flowers and ferns were used as decorations throughout the house. The ceremony was performed in front of the fireplace in the spacious drawing-room which was banked with ferns and baskets of pink and white asters. Mrs. Bruce Finlay, aunt of the bride, played the wedding music. During the signing of the register the soloist, Mr. Garnet Brooks, sang "O Perfect Love", and "I Walk Beside You".

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a floor length gown of ivory slipper satin, inset with a yoke of Chantilly lace. Her long veil of hand-embroidered French lace fell gracefully from a halo of bouvardia clusters, and she carried a cascade bouquet of American Beauty roses, bouvardia and fern.

Miss Carolyn Wartman as bridesmaid, and little Miss Nancy Wartman as junior bridesmaid, both sisters of the bride, were wearing similar gowns. The bridesmaid's gown was a floor-length model of buttercup yellow sheer crepe, with sweetheart neckline, lace mitts to match and a Dutch flower cap, with turquoise veiling and she carried a cascade bouquet of peach gladioli. The junior bridesmaid's gown was floor length turquoise blue sheer with sweetheart neckline, and a halo cap of turquoise with veiling and yellow flowers, and she carried a nosegay of Summer flowers.

Lieut. R. A. P. Fleming, R.C.A.M.C., Camp Borden, acted as best man.

Mrs. Wartman, mother of the bride, was gowned in wine crepe with black accessories and corsage of tea roses. Mrs. Paul, mother of the groom, was gowned in a black ensemble with matching accessories and corsage of Talisman roses.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the residence of the bride's parents, the bride's table centred with the three-tiered wedding cake, surmounted by a miniature bouquet of American Beauty rose buds, and surrounded by tulle and pink flowers with tall white tapers on either side.

Later, Lieut and Mrs. Paul left on a motor trip to the Allison summer home, Morrisburg, and also Montreal, the bride travelling in a teal blue gabardine tailored suit, with spice brown accessories and wearing a corsage of American Beauty roses. Upon their return they will reside at Allandale, Ont.

Among those who assisted in serving at the reception were Mrs. Harry Moore and Mrs. Harry Caldwell of Belleville, sisters of the bride.

Forty Entrants In Baby Show At the Fair

Stealing the show with first prize in the group of from one to six months inclusive at the annual Baby Show at the Belleville Fair on Tuesday afternoon was Carol Ann Pomeroy, daughter of Pte. and Mrs. Norman Pomeroy, Pinnacle Street. Winning laurels for first honors in the age group of from seven to twelve months inclusive went to Georgia McBrien, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford McBrien, 355 Albert Street.

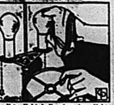
Recorded as the biggest baby show in many years, forty entrants were recorded in yesterday's competition. Not only were there contestants from the city, but also a number of representatives from the surrounding districts. Judging the babies according to point system, the nurses Mrs. L. Miles, Mrs. Ruth McIntosh and Miss Byers, on examining them, found it extremely difficult to pick the winners, because as one nurse said, "They are all such beautiful babies".

Mayor W. H. Rollins opened and conducted the contest assisted by Mrs. F. Denyes. During the entire judging, there was a large number of very interested spectators and enthusiasm was keen as to whom would be the winners.

Other winners in the 1-6 months' group were Gail Greatrix, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Greatrix, 159 Church Street; James St. Louis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred St. Louis, 137 Station Street; Marcia Benson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Benson, Trenton; Sylvia Joan Pearson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Pearson, R.R. 3, Belleville.

Winning the remaining prizes in the age group of from 7-12 months were Marilyn Ann Wallbridge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wallbridge, 20 Henry Street; Bert Grant, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mac Grant, Donald Street; Gwendolyn Wilson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Wilson, Foxboo; Linda Ruth Peck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. Peck, Carrying Place.

Wife Preservers



A dirty light bulb gives less light. Make it a habit, when you're dusting, to wipe the light bulbs with a soft, clean duster. If they are very dirty, wipe with a damp cloth wrung out of warm, soapy water, then with a cloth rinsed in clear water, dry with lintless cloth. Never immerse light bulbs in water. It may cause the glass to come loose from the base.

BEAUTY By Helen Jameson

MAKE-UP FOR BLONDES

Though an excess of make-up is now considered a good-looks crime, the brunette can sometimes get away with it and be forgiven. But blondes are completely out of favor if they make their countenances too scenic, go in for brightly-stained lips, rosy-red cheeks, heavy eye shadows. The fair-haired girl has to mind her make-up manners, or tongues will wag. All of which is pretty silly, as overdone complexions, like bleached hair, haven't a thing to do with character; they are just slips of judgment.

The world has changeable ideas. When grandma was a girl, the short haired woman was looked upon as a dour, over-educated, masculine female. When the bob arrived, soon after World War I, the short-haired ducky was regarded as speedy; she was under suspicion. So, it was with the lipstick. If you need it, you were supposed to look like sin.

The reason why the lassie with dark eyes and hair can play with pigment to her heart's content is because the heavier fabric of her skin, and its olive tones, from less contrast to synthetic blushes and lip pigment than do the complexions of the tow-headed dollies. The blonde skin has the appearance of transparency, rouge shows up boldly.

Blondes wrinkle earlier than brunettes, because of the delicate character of the skin texture and underlying tissues. But they have other advantages. They suffer less from blackheads, and few blonde skins are excessively oily. Why? Nobody knows precisely, yet survey made by beauty operators prove that it is so.

Girls who carry the golden halo can't be grouped in one class. There are true blondes, near ones, dark and light ones. There is also the tow-headed contingent, and this latter type seldom retains the corn silk coloring after twenty. There are those who have a glint of copper with the gold—close sisters to the redhead. There are ash blondes, too. These howl more about the color of their mops than any of the other Goldies.

We've discarded the old rule about light, flesh-colored powders for fair skins. In all complexions there is a suggestion of yellow and ivory. So golden girls now prefer ochre, combining it with rouge and lipstick of American beauty shade. Carmine rouge is much too lithographic; is out of favor.

If in doubt as to make-up color, toddle to a make-up bar where there are open containers, and experienced attendants to give first aid to the confused beauty seeker. Find a powder just slightly darker than the skin. Seek the rouge tint that plays up the eyes; have the lipstick harmonious, not quite so light.

History of Founding Of Emmanuel Church Heard at Service

Last Sunday the regular service of Evening Prayer at Emmanuel Reformed Episcopal Church was known as a Home-Coming Service, and all members and friends of the past as well as present were invited specially to attend.

The Rector stressed in his sermon the principles which distinguish Emmanuel Church and the Reformed Episcopal Church, and the circumstances which led to the founding of the Church and Denomination in the later years of the last century.

Emmanuel Church was founded in 1888 as a Church which should embrace two great principles, Episcopacy and the Book of Common prayer all that that means by way of beauty in the service, and order in government; and strictly Evangelical doctrine and practice and all that that means by way of adherence to the principles of the Protestant Reformation and conformity to the Bible as the only rule of faith and practice. In the early days of her existence she identified herself with the Reformed Episcopal Church in the United States which was founded in New York in 1873 on the same principles adhered to by the founders of Emmanuel Church; and the First Synod in the Dominion of Canada of the Reformed Episcopal Church was chartered by the Dominion Government. The Reformed Episcopal Church in United States with which Emmanuel Church early identified herself is affiliated with the Free Church of England under the jurisdiction of the which the First Synod of Canada came for a number of years, but due to the difficulty of Episcopal oversight from so great a distance, the Canadian Synod has now elected a Canadian Bishop and applied to the Reformed Episcopal Church in the United States to come again under its jurisdiction. The application is receiving favorable consideration and may be granted at the next triennial meeting of the General Council in May of next year.

Evangelical practices as well as doctrines are firmly safeguarded in her by Canon Law.

The present Bishop of the Canadian Synod is Bishop Archibald R. L. Keevil of New Westminster, British Columbia. The headquarters of the Denomination is in Philadelphia, Penna., U. S. A., Bishop Frank V. C. Cloak, D. D., of that city being the Presiding Bishop.

When you use water softener for laundry, let the water stand in the tub for about 10 minutes after the softener is added. During this time the lime deposit will rise to the surface in the form of scum. It may be removed, leaving a clear, soft water for rinsing. It's extra work, but well worth it.

Three P.E. County Men Distinguish Themselves in Action

Picton, Sept. 20—Three Prince Edward County young men distinguished themselves in action overseas according to news stories just released.

CAPT. W. GRAYDON

Capt. William Graydon, son of Mrs. J. L. Graydon, Picton, and whose wife resides in Kingston, suffered a compound fracture of the leg, yet from a stretcher directed infantry and tanks in the battle which won the dominating feature of San Maria, ten miles south of Rimini, Italy. The war correspondent who wrote the story said. "It was largely due to the heroic action of Capt. Graydon that the Canadians won as quickly as they did. One company of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment advanced around the left of a large building in which were both Canadian and German wounded. A ding dong battle ensued. Although wounded, and on a stretcher, Capt. Graydon knew the position could be outflanked on the right. He directed the infantry and tanks until success was obtained. Satisfied, he was packed away to hospital where he is coming along fine."

Capt. Graydon's brother, Lieut. Jack Graydon, is serving in France.

CPO. A. E. LIGHTHALL

That Chief Petty Officer A. E. (Gus) Lighthall, R.C.N.V.R., gave his life for others is indicated in a navy press release. It was stated that "he gave his life trying to free a Carley float for his men. He was caught in the superstructure and pulled down."

CPO. Lighthall was serving on the Canadian corvette Alberni which was recently sunk in the English Channel and went down in a few seconds after an explosion. He is officially reported missing at sea. He was born in Picton, May 4, 1905, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Lighthall. From 1923 to 1926 he served with the U. S. Army, chiefly in the Philippines. In recent years he sailed on the Great Lakes. Survivors are his wife; a sister, Blanche, of Glenora; four brothers, Jack of Toronto, Angus of Patterson, N.J., Capt. Thomas and James of Picton.

LT. GORDON MAYBEE

Lieut. Gordon Maybee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Maybee, Wellington, was one of three officers who commanded a company of the Irish Regiment of Canada, which cracked and took Montecchio, key town in the Gothic Line, and was congratulated by General Sir Oliver Leese, Commander of the 8th Army.

Another regiment hit Montecchio first, but was thrown out twice by strong forces of paratroopers. Then the Irish went in. When they had finished with the strongly fortified town, the place was littered with dead Nazis. They also took 117 prisoners of war, 90 percent of them suicidal paratroopers.

Lieut. Maybee's brother, Norman, is a prisoner of war in Germany. He has been promoted to the rank of Flying Officer, his parents have been informed.

BANCROFT

Swimmer Catches 5-Pound 'Lunge With Bare Hands

Bancroft, Sept. 20 — While swimming across the York River this summer Teddy Kelusky happened to glance to his side and saw an object coming towards him. On second look Teddy saw that it was quite a large fish so immediately the thought flashed through his mind to snatch at it. He reached out with his arm swiftly and lo and behold he was able to grasp the fish but then the fun started for Teddy was still in mid-stream and yet had to make shore clutching his prize and trying to plod along with just the one hand. After a hard struggle he made shore but was nearly fagged out. Teddy said the water, where he caught the fish was some twelve feet deep. On arriving home later he weighed the fish which tipped the scales at 5 pounds, 8 ounces and measured 28 inches in length. This, no doubt, will be an inspiration to many fishermen who read this article that when their mind is nearly exhausted trying every bait they own in the tackle box that they still can resort to Teddy's tactics.

$40,000 Red Cross Hospital Will Be Built at Bancroft

Bancroft, Sept. 20 — Plans are being completed by the architect Mr. Dolphin of the Red Cross Society, Toronto, for the erection of a new $40,000 Red Cross Hospital at Bancroft. The local executive have known for some time that the present building was inadequate to cope with the present day demands and with this thought in mind contacted headquarters in Toronto who received the idea with approval. One slight drawback was the procuring of a suitable site on which to erect such an institution and the local purchasing committee after viewing three or four sites in the village decided to take the agricultural grounds at the northwest edge of Bancroft village which was offered at a very nominal figure. This purchase was made on Wednesday last.

The present Red Cross Hospital was erected in Bancroft in 1926 and at that time served its purpose, which was solely to handle any emergencies, which arose but now that the roads have made such progress in the past ten year the little building is proving much too small for the demand.

The plans of the new hospital are such that additions can be added as required without impairing the structural view. It is the intention that when the new hospital is completed the present Red Cross hospitals at Apsley, Coe Hill, Wilberforce and Whitney will be closed and ambulances with headquarters at Bancroft will be pressed into service to serve the outlying townships adjacent to Bancroft. It is understood that the Toronto executive met this weekend to determine whether or not work on the building would be started this fall or laid over until spring.

Essential Oils Plant Destroyed

Bancroft, Sept. 20 — The Bancroft plant of the Dominion Essential Oils Limited of Lakefield was completely destroyed by fire early Sunday afternoon. Fire of unknown origin swept through the structure of the buildings with relentless force and even though the local fire equipment was on the scene a few minutes later efforts were fruitless to save the plant. The local plant employed some ten men and had three trucks on the road gathering the brush which was used for the manufacturing of an oil for refining. It is understood that there was no insurance coverage. The men on Monday were busily engaged reconstructing the plant so as to cause as little delay to the working as possible. The plant was under the management of Mr. John Brown.

MAJ. CONN SMYTHE WILL NOT ACCEPT N.H.L. PRESIDENCY

Position Offered Him by Governors at Last Meeting

STAY AT GARDENS

Toronto, Sept. 20. (CP)—Major Conn Smythe announced on Tuesday that he will not accept the presidency of the National Hockey League, offered him at a league meeting two weeks ago.

Wounded in Normandy where he was serving with his sportsman's battery, Smythe returned to Toronto Monday, and is convalescing at Chorley Park Military hospital.

"I have my family to consider", said the former managing director of Maple Leaf Gardens and former manager of the Toronto Maple Leafs. "I have my friends—and I never knew I had so many. I have my business and I have my job at Maple Leaf Gardens, or at least I hope I have".

The decision leaves the N.H.L. still without a permanent President. Mervyn (Red) Dutton, managing director of the League since the death in 1942 of the late President Frank Calder, was offered the presidency last Spring but announced his refusal early this month. He now is carrying on as president with Lester Patrick serving as managing director.

In announcing his refusal of the league presidency, Smythe said he believed that before the position is filled the N.H.L. Clubs should stregthen the league through binding agreements and plans for development. He said two more teams are needed to make it sound. There now are six teams.

Smythe said he would not object to the presidency going to a United States citizen nor to the league office being established in a U.S. city. It now is in Montreal. He suggested Boston as a possible centre for league headquarters.

He added that he does not take any personal part in directing the Maple Leafs this winter although he hopes to resume his old job as managing director at the Gardens.

Stewart Grattan Wins Fast Class On Race Program

Peterborough Horse Makes Every Post a Winning One for $300 Purse

GOOD RUNNING RACE

Being unable to fill the 2.20 class a classified race was substituted and this provided a real race on the first day of the harness racing program sponsored by the Belleville Fair. Harry Stewart's good pacer, Stewart Grattan from Peterborough ran away and hid on his field winning the race in three straight heats. In the 2.27 class, the heats were split. Audrey Scott, a shifty mare from Toronto heading the summary in two straight heats with William Powell, a real trotter heading the field in the other. The Powell horse got a bad break in the first heat, when the starter gave the word and then rang the bell. The driver, Dave Dawson of Port Perry, pulled up his mount but the remainder of the field went on to finish the heat. Mr. Dawson was allowed to start back in the second heat and William Powell was much the best staying on the trot the entire route. Audrey Scott, however, took the final heat.

Stewart Grattan, winner of the classified race had too much "foot" for the field and once he got to the top the rest could not get to him. Lee Volo, for which a sum in four figures was paid early this summer did not like the footing and although Jack Weiner had him close the first heat, he was unable to stand the pace and faded in the next two.

The running race attracted a great deal of interest with Mr. Bassett of Trenton supplying the winner in a shifty runner in Mildred Royal. She won all three heats handily. An added attraction was the appearance of a pair of oxen hooked to a stoneboat. The pair is owned by Mason Clarke of Sidney township and were well trained and easily controlled. The kiddies had a great time climbing aboard the 'boat' while the oldster generation got a great kick out of seeing the way people travelled in the older days. The results:

Vancouver, Sept. 20 — (CP) — You can place bets on the horses here without worrying about John Law appearing suddenly. Possibly the only legal off-track wagering in Canada, the Vancouver system has been operating for two years and there has been nothing to indicate it won't be going again next season.

A city "messenger service" licence is the paper that makes the set-up legal and bets can be placed on any Vancouver or Victoria track. The licence holders advertise that they use a direct wire to Victoria. A receipt is given when the wager is made and if the punter is lucky enough to pick a winner, he gets paid off at track prices.

The charge is 10 cents for each ticket that has to be purchased, so it costs the same whether one makes a $2 or $10 flier. A person who bets the winning double or quinella pays another charge "for bringing the money back from the track."

The Vancouver licence department said so far "roughly 15" messenger service licences have been issued and the majority of these are spotted in the downtown district, several of them operating in hole-in-the-wall cigar stands.

One man who wrote a letter to a newspaper wasn't enthusiastic about the scheme. Saying it was the first time he ever wagered, the man wrote that he was intrigued by race information and placed a $2 show bet. This cost him $2.10. The horse was in the money and paid $2.10 to show. He claimed he was charged an additional 10 cents on the payoff—he made a winning bet and ended up a 10-cent loser.

Prairie Prodigy:

Pacific coast racing officials are high on Bobby McKenzie, 17-year-old apprentice from Edmonton. Two top officials said they think he is top flight material. Wallace (Vancouver News-Herald) Kelk wrote that "in our book he rates one of the best jockey prospects to show here since the days of Hank Mills and Jimmy Hunter." Rex Ireland of Edmonton has McKenzie under contract.

Who Are the Champs?

Tommy Clark's Vancouver Neons didn't get into the Western Canada Senior Women's fastball play-offs but the B. C. champions played an exhibition series against Saskatoon Pats, official titleholders, while en route to the world championship series at Cleveland. When Neons smothered Saskatoon 12-1 in the first game, Clark claimed the unofficial crown for his Neons. Then Pats beat Neons two straight. Since then there has been a great silence from the Clark Press Bureau.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

New York, Sept. 20 — (AP)—Any pro football league that can get control of the Yankee Stadium and the Los Angeles Coliseum will have the upper hand in the furious post-war competition that is likely to take place . . . So far three leagues are projected — the All American Conference, the United States League and the Trans-America League —besides the established National League . . . They're all planning to invade New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago and Los Angeles, which also figures in the National's post-war plans besides having three or four clubs in existing coast circuits . . . In the key cities only those two fields would fill the major league bill. The All-American Conference, through Mrs. Lou Gehrig, figure to have an "In" at Yankee Stadium, but so does the Trans-America loop, which awarded a New York franchise to J. Basil Maguire, whose wife is one of the Ruppert heiresses. The Los Angeles Coliseum is city-owned but is controlled by the colleges that play their big games there and so far they've turned a chilly shoulder toward all pro propositions.

Success Story:

Herman Lewin, boss of the box office dept. for Mike Jacobs, had just finished reading "How to Win Friends and Influence People" when the author, Dale Carnegie, walked in to buy seven $10 tickets to Friday's Joe Baksi-Mauriello fight . . . A few minutes later Carnegie walked out with seven top-price $12 tickets.

SENIOR REFEREE COMING TO CITY

With the senior wrestling referee Cliff Worthy of the Ontario Athletic Commission appointed to handle tonight's Sexton - Katan bout and the big noise that reached Frank Tunney in Toronto, Frank is personally coming to Belleville tonight to see the match and find out first handed what all the fuss has been about down here the last week.

Katan should not favor Worthy as a referee for some weeks ago he gave Big Earl McCready the nod over Katan right here in the Arena.

In addition to main Scrap Ivan Rasputin "The Mad Russian" will tangle with Al. Dunlop and this should be no pink tea. And to add heaps of more spice to the card it's Nanjo Singh and Karl Krippler Davis in the opener.

Some dish we would say and all on one card for Wednesday's Wrestling fans which should make standing room at a premium.

NEWARK BEARS SWEEP FOUR-GAME SERIES WITH LEAFS

17-Year-Old Don Johnson Hurls His Team to 3-2 Victory

NOW IN FINALS

Newark Bears swept their way into the final series of the International League's Governor's Cup play-offs as they eliminated Toronto last night 3-2 on a four-hit pitching job by 17-year-old Don Johnson.

Taking each of the first four games, the Bears now must wait to meet the winner of the Buffalo-Baltimore semi-final series. The Bisons and Orioles have completed ony one game of their best-of-seven set. They meet tonight at Buffalo in the second game.

Johnson was in control all the way, allowing the Leafs their two runs when he walked Vern Theole and muffed opposing pitcher Luther Knerr's ground ball to set the stage for two successive singles in the fifth. Johnson then set the Leafs down in order with the exception of a walk to Harry Davis in the ninth.

The Bears put on a well coordinated attack, starting with their first score in the second. Joe Buzas an1 Mike Portner singled, Buzas and Mike Portner singled, Buzas stole third and scored on an infield out. Newark put over the winning runs in the third on successive hits by Roy Zimmermann and Bill Rabe, an error and two walks.

John Zontini, who drove in the Leafs' second run, was the only Toronto batter to make two hits, while Nick Rhabe paced the Bears with three, Bill Rabe and Mike Portner each getting two.

Canadian Boxers Win Victories In New York

New York, Sept. 20—(CP)— Two Canadian fighters won victories at the Broadway Arena in Brooklyn last night before a crowd of 3,800. A third ran into a tartar and was knocked out.

Montreal's Johnny Price, conceding 3¼ pounds to 148-pound Danny Martin of Newark N. J., won the decision in a fast eight-round bout, semi-final to the Danny Bartfield-Joe Amico go in which Bartfield, a New York boxer, outpointed the Philadelphian. Bartfield weighed 139, Amico 141.

In a scheduled four-rounder, Phil Palmer, 163½, Vancouver, Ab.C., knocked out Leo Black, New York, in 1:22 of the second round.

Patsy Zoccano of Toronto found he had taken on a handful in Frank Gromada of New York and was knocked out at 2:50 of the first round of the scheduled four-round 139½.

The Welland Atlas Steels moved into a 3-2 lead over Hamilton last night by winning the fifth game of the Niagara District Senior baseball play-offs by a score of 3-0. The shut-out went to the credit of Sal Maglie, although he yielded eight hits, two more than the Steels garnered.

Featherweight champion Willie Pep at Hartford, Conn., last night celebrated his 22nd birthday by stopping Charley Lewis of New York in 1:52 of the eighth round of a scheduled non-title 10-rounder. Lewis at 128 had a one pound advantage. Lewis was down twice in the eighth and the bout ended with him hanging helpless on the ropes.

A world's record for two-year-old harness racers on a half-mile track was set at the Grand Circuit meeting at Delaware, O., yesterday when Titan Hanover won the $5,000 stake. Titan Hanover won in straight heats, taking the second for the fastest mile on a half-mile track by a two-year-old in either gait trotting or pacing.

The pennant-winning Milwaukee team of the American Baseball Association was eliminated from the play-offs last night by Louisville, which finished third in the schedule. Louisville won 7-5 to take their first-round series by four games to two.

Yesterday's Stars

By the Associated Press

Hal Newhouser, Tigers—hung up 26th victory and sixth over Yankees by scattering eight hits for 4-1 edge in series opener.

Johnny Niggeling, Senators—shut out Browns for 10 innings until lifted for pinch hitter in 11th as Washington scored six to wallop St. Louis, 6-0.

Hal Trosky, White Sox — hammered three doubles to pace Chicago's 13-hit attack in 6-3 triumph over A's.

YOUTH WILL VIE WITH AGE ON RUGBY FIELD

O.R.F.U. Opens 62nd Senior Season on Saturday in Toronto

SERVICES TO PLAY

Youth will vie with age both on the playing field and in administration in Ontario's sixth wartime football season which opens this Saturday with games scheduled in the Dominion's oldest and youngest football leagues.

The Ontario Rugby Football Union which came into being in 1883 opens its 62nd senior season with the Dominion Hamilton Wildcats hosts to Toronto Indians in Hamilton. The other two O.R.F.U. teams—Toronto Balmy Beach and Ottawa Trojans — swing into action the following week. The junior and intermediate series have been dropped for the duration.

All four teams will participate in the opening games in the Ontario Armed Services Football League which is launching its first season. Camp Borden R.C.A.F. plays Toronto Navy Bulldogs in Toronto and Hagersville R.C.A.F. plays St. Thomas R.C.A.F. in the University of Western Ontario Stadium at London.

The 12-game O.R.F.U. regular schedule ends Nov. 4 with Union play-offs to follow. There may be an eastern Canada final between the O.R.F.U. and the Quebec Rugby Football Union which rivals the Ontario Union in point of age but there will be no east-west game at the end of the trail this season. Western Canada football officials have announced they will not enter a team this year. Ontario Union teams have won the Dominion title in the last two years—Toronto R.C.A.F. Hurricanes in 1942 and Wildcats in 1943.

The armed services league's 12-game schedule is correlated with that of the O.R.F.U. and on two days, Oct. 7 and 9, they share doubleheader dates at Toronto's Varsity Stadium. There may be an east-west services game at the end of the season and the four Ontario teams are pointing at this.

The football will be strictly wartime variety, all eight clubs fielding a mixture of football veterans and promising youngsters.

Tigers Strengthen Lead In American Loop as Boston And St. Louis Browns Lose

Detroit Defeats Yankees With Newhouser Winning 26th Game

28,290 PRESENT

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sport Writer.

Boston was practically eliminated, New York was tottering on the brink and St. Louis was a faltering second to the league-leading Detroit Tigers today after the most important 24 hours of the American League season.

Steve O'Neill's Tigers, who had never been on top until Sunday, had opened up a 1 1-2 game gap on the Brownies by knocking off the Yanks in the opener of a crucial series while St. Louis and Boston lost.

Detroit's 4-1 victory yesterday over New York's ace, Hank Borowy, took most of the wind out of the champs' sails. The Brownies were shut out, 6-0, in 11 innings by the dungeon-bound Washingtons. Disaster struck Boston at Cleveland where the Red Sox bowed 3-2 to Steve Gromek's efficient nine-hit tossing.

Dizzy Trout was primed today to match Hal Newhouser's feat of beating the New Yorkers six times in the same season. Trout held five victories over the Yanks and Newhouser made it six yesterday by shutting out the McCarthy men until Johnny Lindell homered in the ninth.

World series fever began to hit Detroit with 28,290, the year's largest weekday turnout at Briggs stadium.

St. Louis took a heart-breaking loss when Washington scored six in the 11th after blowing a chance in the last of the 10th when Denny Galehouse's single with the bases loaded hit base runner George McQuinn to retire the side.

With Hal Trosky hitting three doubles, Chicago kayoed Jess Flores with a pair of three-run innings to down Philadelphia 6-3.

LET'S ALL DO MORE TO WIN THE WAR

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 485

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Pull the switch. Here's where we transfer from opening two bids to opening bids of three in a suit. But before we shift, let me jog your memory a bit.—

First, let me remind you of something you undoubtedly remember. It is that all jump bids are special signals. That goes whether the jump is a responding bid or opening bid.

Now let me remind you of something you may have forgotten. It is that a one-jump shows strength; a double-jump shows length and strength; a triple jump shows length only.

Thus, a one-jump opening bid of two in a suit shows a hand that expects to make a game all by itself, hoping partner has a trick. To be more specific about it, such a bid shows not less than nine tricks.

Thus, also, an opening of two no-trump shows a hand that expects to make a game in no-trump if partner has one high card. To be more specific about it, such a bid shows eight no-trump tricks.

Backed by all that fundamental wisdom, you can expand to bids of three in a suit. Because an opening of three is a double-jump. Therefore, it shows length and strength.

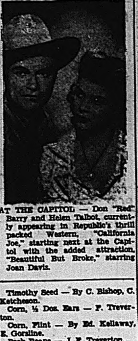
Following that line of reasoning, woddaya know? An opening bid of three hearts or three spades must show a long suit with strength in that suit and elsewhere.

Pick up a hand like this:

♠ 9 2
♥ A K Q 8 7 6 3
♦ A 6 4
♣ K

Your hand is too good for an opening bid of one heart. It has not the nine tricks needed for an opening of two hearts. It is an opening of three hearts.

Your suit is longer than asparagus and stronger than horseradish. Your outside ace is as strong as an onion. Players make much fewer bobbles when they know their vegetables.



AT THE CAPITOL — Don "Red" Barry and Helen Talbot, currently appearing in Republic's thrill packed Western, "California Joe," starting next at the Capitol with the added attraction, "Beautiful But Broke," starring Joan Davis.

AT THE McCARTHY—Bette Davis, Paul Henreid in a scene from Warner Bros. dramatic triumph "Now Voyager," now at the McCarthy Theatre along with Michael O'Shea, Anne Shirley, Gene Lockhart in "Man From Frisco."

Windsor Boy Dies Of Hydrophobia

Windsor, Sept. 20 —(CP)— The parents of 11-year-old Lawrence Mayea were notified last night that an official diagnosis revealed their son's death Sept. 2 was due to hydrophobia and today Dr. H. S. Collacutt, federal veterinary in Essex County, announced that six children have been bitten by dogs in Windsor since Saturday and that another definite case of rabies has been discovered.

Three children were attacked outside the city limits last night by a dog believed to be mad and one of them was bitten severely, said Dr. Collacutt, announcing that he and his staff intend to destroy all dogs found at large in the city.

Lawrence Mayea's death was the first in Windsor in 14 years from hydrophobia and the father, Jerry Mayea, said of the official diagnosis—"we believed it all along."

He said Dr. Gustave Lacasse, who attended the child, had asked whether the dog was foaming around the mouth and that he replied he didn't know because it was dark.

What happened to the little brown short-haired dog which bit the boy in the leg is not known. It hasn't been seen since. Officials said it was possible it had travelled quite a distance from its home and died somewhere a few days later. Rabid dogs never live more than 10 days, they said.

AMERICAN BRED

CHAPTER 1

It had been one of those early March days that start with the caress of Spring, and end with the full venom of winter. Ann Rivers strained her eyes to see through the sleet-encrusted windshield. There had been no threat of stormy weather as she had turned her little coupe out of her sister's driveway in Bar Harbor that morning but, halfway through Massachusetts, clouds had commenced to roll across the horizon, and now a heavy wind threatened to sweep the light car off the road.

She filled up with gas in Providence, and asked for a road map which she knew she couldn't read. She was fairly adequate with a flat tire, but a road map always gave her an inferiority complex—like knowing the capitals of the states, or naming the presidents beginning with Washington. She flicked it open, however, and then, after a proper lapse of time, folded it up again and gave the attendant a sunny smile. "Which way would you suggest to New York?" she asked companionably, and he said, "Route 84 through to New London is quickest, and you miss the Post Road traffic".

"Thanks", she said, and drove off, feeling as if she had picked his pocket while his back was turned.

On the fringe of Providence, the sleet began, with the roads glazing and her progress slowed to a snail's pace. She wasn't crazy about sleet but she couldn't help admiring what it did to the landscape. A grove of maples, transformed into a fairyland of shimmering silver, held her gaze an instant too long. The car swerved and there was the crutch of a fender against the bank, followed by a complacent slump of the springs, like a dumpy old lady setting into a chair.

Ann used the best of the worst words she knew, and put the car into reverse. Tire treads sang against icy soil, but the car merely pretended to move, rocking gently back and forth to an accompaniment of squeaks and groans. She tried first gear. The tires kept on singing, but the car failed this time even to rock.

Ann gritted her teeth and used the word over again, adding a couple of robust phrases to top off. She got out on the road and tried to push. It was only a gesture, but it showed her intentions. While she was doing it a car approached. She waved her arms for help and yelled "Yohoo!"

The lights blinked at her with a knowing leer, and then one went out entirely, and an ancient sedan loaded to overflowing with children and suitcases clattered past her and disappeared into the enveloping dusk.

In about five minutes, a chauffeur-driven limousine hummed smoothly into sight. If fenders could be drawn up in disdain, Ann felt the limousine's draw up like a dowager's dress before a beggar's importunity. She had the flashing vision of an old man slumped down in the back seat, nervously chewing on a cigar. He's in a hurry to meet a bad case of dyspepsia, she thought as the limousine flashed by. . .

The road was empty of cars. With the coming of the storm, most of the traffic must have taken the main Post Road, which she had gone to such pains to avoid. She remembered having passed a group of roadside cottages about half a mile back. She was almost certain to find a telephone there, and somewhere in this lost corner of the state a service station would probably be functioning.

High heels made her progress as treacherous as walking on greased cobblestones with stilts. Her hair blew out from under her hat, streaking wetly across her face, with the short ends whipping into her eyes. She twisted an ankle and as she thrashed the air to regain her balance, she felt the small crisp snap of a shoulder strap. Tears welled into her eyes. She could stand the crumpled fender, and the cars that wouldn't stop, and the sharp pain that tore through wrenched muscles, but nothing in the world could sap one's self-confidence like a broken shoulder strap.

It seemed an eternity before the lights of what seemed to be the main house loomed up out of the driving slash of the rain, and a sign, swinging and screeching from the branch of a gigantic maple, bade her welcome to the Tru-Frend Tourist Bungalows. Her lips grew wry as a world of Kozy Kamps and Dew Drops Inns passed through her mind. TRU-FREND forsooth!

A deep puddle lay in wait for her, and trapped her maliciously at the foot of the porch stairs. Shaking her sodden slipper like a duck, she knocked at the dark door, and then after a long empty silence, fumbled impatiently for the bell. She found a little knob in the middle of the door panel and turned it, pleased to hear a fire-gong report sound from somewhere within. She remembered, as a child, just such a bell on her grandfather's house; if you took a firm hold of the knob, and turned it violently and let go of it, it would make several revolutions all by itself, with a clangor fit to wake the dead.

She grasped the knob and then thought better of it. She had once spun her grandfather's bell just to hear it ring, and had been rewarded with the flat of her grandfather's hand across a convenient part of her anatomy. No! Now was not the time to play with people's front doors. A well-learned lesson is never forgotten, and a spanking for bell-ringing would be the ultimate indignity of a series of indignities.

She was beginning to think that no one was home, when the door swung open. A dim shape planted itself squarely on the threshold, and a man's voice demanded from the cavernous darkness, "What do you want?"

The greeting was devoid of any vestige of cordiality. Ann felt that she had been grossly taken in. There was no Tru-Frend about him. He should have had his bell rung good and hard.

"I want to come in!" Her voice mounted as a trickle of water from the eaves gathered on her hat brim and then emptied itself in one icy current down her back.

The voice from the darkness spoke, with a fair degree of logic. "Well", it said, "why don't you come in?"

"Why don't you get out of the way, and I will!"

The figure stood aside, and she marched forward into the gloom. Crack! She doubled up and grasped her shin-bone.

"Bump into something?" the voice asked with interest.

"What do you think I did? I could have killed myself!"

"You'd have come a long way on a bad night to do it here. Next time, hold your horses", Mr. Tru-Frend advised, and turned up the light.

Ann cast a malevolent glance at the chair which had attacked her. "Have you a telephone?" she requested.

He made no answer. He just looked at her, with a small grin tugging at the corners of his rather full lips. In the light, she saw that he was a nice-looking young man, dressed in high boots laced over blue jeans, and a flannel shirt. He had a round face and very blue eyes, but for all his boyishness, he exuded a kind of physical strength and arrogance. "I'll bet he's got a temper as bad as mine", Ann thought.

"You look a sight", he informed her, still grinning. "Like a drenched pup".

"I asked you if you had a telephone", she repeated with aloofness.

"Sure, we've got a telephone".

She was annoyed with herself for flushing beneath the bold impudence of his amusement. "Where is it, please?"

"Right next to you".

She turned and came face to face with an old-fashioned wall instrument. "Thank you". She whirled the crank, and put the receiver to her ear. "Operator!" She waited. "Operator!" She frowned. "I think it's out of order", she told him.

"I know it's out of order", the young man amended. "It's been out of order all afternoon. Storm".

She wanted to pick up the same chair that had bumped into her, and throw it at him. "Then why didn't you tell me?" she demanded.

"Just a minute, lady", he interrupted brusquely. "You knew all the answers, and were telling me, not asking me. Now suppose you calm down and let's hear what the trouble is. And remember, a fresh dame don't cut any ice where I'm concerned".

Ann shook with rage. A fresh dame, indeed! She ought to turn her back on him and stalk out of the house. But what would it gain her?

So she smiled upon him. "I don't like you", she informed him pleasantly, "but my car's in the ditch down the road and I need your car to pull me out".

He smiled too.

"That's too bad", he said. "I could get you out in a jiffy. Only I have not got a car. At least it's not running".

He glanced at her wet shoes. "Look, you better come out to the kitchen and get dry a while, and we'll dope something out later on". He didn't wait for her to answer, but guided her with a firm hand toward a dark room beyond. Ann wasn't scared, but at the same time she wasn't quite sure what the next step was going to be.

"Stand still, and I'll turn up the light", her companion instructed.

She stood still. The glare blinded her for a moment and then she saw that she was in the kitchen, and that an old woman was sitting before the table peeling potatoes.

"This young lady's car broke down, Mom".

The old woman's face turned toward Ann, and unseeing eyes stared into distance. She nodded. It was as if she saw Ann, and accepted her. "Better you warm yourself at the fire", she invited. Her speech was rich with the echo of some old-country language, some echo that the son's voice lacked completely. Ann tried to place it. German? Austrian? Swiss?

"My husband and I were born in Alsace-Lorraine. My son was born here".

Ann started. It was as if her mind's question had been read.

"Our name is Freund and this is my son, Paul", the old woman continued with the punctilious courtesy of another world. "He is worried, and when he is worried he is sometimes not very polite, but he is a good boy—Come nearer to the fire, my child, you are cold".

Ann moved gratefully toward the warmth. "My name is Ann Rivers", she offered in turn, feeling suddenly new and shy.

"Better take your shoes off", Paul Freund suggested bluntly.

He left the room, returning after a few moments with a man's old camel-hair coat, and a pair of boudoir mules fringed with pink ostrich feathers.

"Here, put these on", he commanded with a gruff, almost reluctant kindness.

Ann held one of the slippers in her hand; some tourist stopping for the night must have left them. But no. They had too recently been near perfume, too recently been worn. As she slipped them on, she tried to fit this touch of incongruous femininity in the sturdy, old-fashioned house.

"I have to go back upstairs", Paul broke in on her thoughts. "Mom'll take care of you until the storm lets up". He vanished before she could protest.

She rose restlessly, and went to the window, peering out into the darkness. She could see nothing but a steel gray blur, hear nothing except a steady hissing roar as sleet drove against the windowpanes.

Mrs. Freund moved to the sink with the pan of potatoes. "Better you stay here tonight", she suggested.

"Impossible", Ann was about to reply. "I have to get on to New York". But Mrs. Freund was ahead of her. "Maybe it's important for you to be somewhere? Maybe somebody worries about you?" she anticipated gently.

Somebody worrying about her? She wished it were so. What, a glorious feeling it would be to have someone worry about her. There was Tom, of course. But Tom wouldn't worry about her. He'd call her apartment, and if she weren't there, he'd call the next day, or rather he'd have his secretary remind him to call. There must be something wonderful about modern business, Ann reflected; it taught men how to put everything into compartments. That was it. She didn't belong in Tom's life, she belonged in one of his compartments the one he labeled love. He didn't look into it very often, satisfied that she was there, and that, presumably, he held the key to it.

It was a little the same with Helen, who had for years considered Ann in the light of a duty, rather than a younger sister. About once a week, she expected Ann to report her whereabouts, and her prevailing state of being; but inasmuch as they had parted only this morning, after one of those family arguments in which both sides get stiff-lipped and voices grow precise, it was fair to suppose that Helen wouldn't worry if she didn't hear from Ann for a good bit over the allotted lapse of time.

The argument had verged perilously close to open bickering. It had had to do not only with Ann's refusal to marry Tom (of whom Helen most whole-heartedly approved), but Helen had also taken exception to Ann's decision to rid herself of Broadfields to the first feasible buyer. "It passes my comprehension", Helen had said, "how you can bring yourself to sell the farm. It's sacrilege to let it go out of family. It was our home". She had stressed the "our", and her upper lip had grown straighter, thinner, longer—making her look like the dining room portrait of Aunt Laura.

"What you're trying to say", Ann had countered tersely, "is that you wish I'd keep the place because of the sentiment that you have for it. In that case, why don't you and Arthur buy it?"

"That's quite out of the question". Helen's attitude became that of dealing with a 12-year-younger sister, hot-headed and irresponsible. "You must realize", she had explained patiently, "that Arthur and I have established our summers at Bar Harbor for far too many to change the pattern of our lives now. Besides, Father meant you to have Broadfields as a kind of anchorage, and this impulse to be free of it and take a job in New York is just a whim".

How untrue that was, but how futile to argue the point with Helen. Helen couldn't realize that sometimes you relinquished a thing because you loved it, not because you didn't love it.

Ann had been little more than a baby when her father had bought the farm and moved his family there. His friends had called him a fool to give up his law practice. He had called them fools to keep theirs. In the years that followed, when he had leisure from the labors of raising sheep and breeding horses and growing crops, he wrote articles, elaborating his theories of Constitutional law, and in the pine-panelled study that was library and farm office combined, he had written his biographical studies on the Supreme Court, with his desk piled high with a jumble of legal volumes, breeding records and soil samples. And in that same pine-panelled study, Ann and Helen and two aunts had collected after his death to hear his will.

To Helen he left her mother's jewels and the house in Bar Harbor; a few odds and ends of family furniture to the aunts—and to Ann the farm and a block of income-invested stocks. He left her a letter, also, a very intimate letter, in which he told her of his love of the land, his faith in it, and his hope that Broadfields would always insure for her contentment, keen pleasure, and security.

For a while, his hope had come true. And then things began to tumble. The stocks which had brought in an income of over two hundred a month dwindled in dividends to fifty; and, along with the debacle, the market for her father's Morgan horses and pure-bred sheep abruptly vanished. Now it was a struggle to feed livestock when there was scarcely enough money to meet her own small bills at the grocer's. It was heartache, too, to see fields growing back into brush, planting programs neglected, and breeding plans interrupted. But Helen, who was not of the land, could not know an obligation to the land. She could only cling stubbornly to a tradition.

"Come. You must eat something. It is dinner time."

Ann stirred, and brought her thoughts back into the warm kitchen. "I really am hungry", she acknowledged. "Can't I help you?"

The old lady shook her head and moved effortlessly from stove to table. "I see better than most people", she said.

Ann seated herself before a steaming bowl of soup, and inhaled the rich onion smell appreciatively. Mrs. Freund told her it was potato and leek soup, and that the salad which flanked the thin slices of cold pot-roast was made out of the roots of celery, boiled and seasoned with pepper, vinegar, and salt.

"It's excellent!" exclaimed Ann.

A low moan broke in upon her unashamed enjoyment. She looked up startled.

100,000 NAZIS FACE ENTRAPMENT IN HOLLAND

Fierce Battle Rages for Control Of Lower Rhine

British Open Path To Airborne Troops

By JAMES M. LONG
(AP War Correspondent)

London, Sept. 21 — (AP)—British 2nd Army tank troops and Allied sky soldiers have captured intact the mile-and-a-half-long Nijmegen bridge in a raging 24-hour battle in Holland. They thus broke open a path to the relief of a pocket of airborne troops locked today in a grim fight for life near Arnhem, 8 miles north.

The Germans counter-attacked by land and bombing from the air in a desperate attempt to save their historic river defence line, but some of the western front's hottest fighting virtually set the seal of doom on perhaps 100,000 enemy troops caught in Western Holland.

The whole fate of the Germans' Ruhr Valley and the safety of their entire northern flank was turning on the outcome of this first victory and the unfolding of a second battle about to take place for control of the crossings of the northern branch of the Dutch Rhine at Arnhem.

As Lt.-Gen. Dempsey's armor raced across the Waal, largest branch of the Dutch Rhine, toward the north, units of Lt.-Gen. Brereton's Allied 1st Airborne Army — believed to be Americans — apparently were hanging on grimly to positions astride the doorstep of the Ruhr.

The Germans declared the entire 1st British Airborne Division was "largely wiped out" in the Arnhem area, but it was believed Americans were holding firmly to positions on both sides of the northern branch, and were possibly holding at least one crossing.

Canadians Skirt Leopold Canal.

Canadian troops have entered the Netherlands after skirting the eastern end of the Leopold canal, while others still are engaged in cleaning out remaining German pockets around tottering Boulogne.

The Canadian entry into the Netherlands was made along the same route as Polish troops of the 1st Canadian Army had followed—across the Hulst Canal between Hulst and Axel, and to Terneuzen on the Estuary of the Schelde.

The Nijmengen bridge was taken last night, a BBC correspondent reported, and "early this morning elements of our armor were north of the river, across it, and our troops are now in a position to speed up their drive n Arnhem."

The Germans were reported attacking the airborne island of troops with reinforced assault forces and were reported rushing reserves into the recesses of the Reichswald, a great forest just south of the Siegfried anchor of Cleve, in a desperate effort to block the Emmerich gap route into Germany's northern plains.

Emmerich, 15 miles east of Nijmegen and 19 miles southeast of Arnhem, guards the eight-mile passage between the Rhine—the Germans' historic line of defence which was now turned—and the Ijssel, the large Dutch waterway turning northward at Arnhem.

Piercing of the gateway would open the path to Essen, 55 miles southeast of Nijmegen, and the industrial Ruhr which Hitler sorely needs to wage war.

No Chance to Destroy Bridge.

The British and airborne troops attacked the Nijmegen bridge from front and rear so quickly the Germans had no opportunity to blow up the huge concrete ecrossing. The desperate German attempt to avert disaster on the lower Rhine took the form of co-ordinated heavy bombings of Eindhoven to the south and a fierce counter-attack from the west of the town.

This failed. The western base held firm and the wedge was widened with slight gains to the east. In addition more reinforcements and supplies were poured into the airborne army.

The frustrated effort of the Germans to chisel their way through from the west was almost their last hope of a break-through from what rapidly was becoming a death-trap in western Holland.

Few Escape Routes.

It was believed no usable bridges existed across the Rhine south of Nijmegen for their escape, and such ferries as were in operation were subject to bombing. If they succeeded in crossing the Rhine, the Allies at Arnhem, once a junction is made there, would have to advance only 24 miles to the Zuider Zee to close the trap.

The Nazis' defence flooding of western Holland was now kicking back, blocking many paths of escape.

The Germans caught in the trap were mostly scraped-together divisions without adequate battle skill.

"They attack willingly enough," one officer said, "and die easily."

On other sectors of the Allied 500-mile front:

From north of Aachen to the Belfort Gap the Germans were throwing in one counter-attack after another—attacks which cost them at least 116 tanks in 24 hours and nowhere gained ground against the U. S. 1st Army or the U. S. 3rd Army.

Encircled Aachen thundered to explosions which suggested last-minute German demolitions, while to the east of Aachen, the 1st Army fought its way through the last crumbling resistance in the factory district of Stolberg and battered on to the edge of Gressenich, 28 miles from Cologne and eight miles east of Aachen. Duren, 20 miles west of Cologne, was under American artillery fire.

Some of the heaviest German tank losses were in attacks on this stout wedge through the Siegfried line.

Other heavy fighting was taking place in the outskirts of Biesdorf, one mile east of the Luxembourg border. It is 11 miles southwest of Bitburg and north of Trier.

On the 7th Army front at the south end of the line today's communique reported, without elaboration, "gains have been made along the entire sector northwest of Belfort."

Allied Armies Are Over Month Ahead, Eisenhower in Form

New York, Sept. 21—Reporting from Paris after his return from Gen. Eisenhower's advanced headquarters, CBS Correspondent Merrill Mueller said today the "general has been driving himself to a point where, though his brilliant and tremendous mind could stand the pace, his exceedingly tough physique could not."

"His health deteriorated so much that he was literally instructed not to leave his camp for several days," said Mueller. "He is in tip top form again today however, and the sparks are flying about getting this thing over with."

CBS said Mueller also reported that Allied armies "are well over a month ahead of schedule, which is wonderful for the tactical operations but a first class headache for the strategic planning . . ."

Newsman Finds Boulogne Fairly Quiet But Far From Healthy Place

By ALAN RANDAL
(CP War Correspondent)

Boulogne, Sept. 21 —(CP Cable)— The Battle of Boulogne is nearly over. The town itself and the docks are in the hands of Canadian troops although the city is far from a healthy place.

Given the right conditions the attacking Canadians could clean up the remnants of the German garrison in a matter of hours. On the other hand, the Germans in strong fortifications in strategic places to the north and south of the channel port could hold out in a last-ditch struggle — if they have the heart to stand more of the pounding they got today.

In the centre of Boulogne around the Citadel and the high-domed Cathedral things are comparatively quiet. A few Allied tanks halted momentarily while German shells whistled overhead to the area of Canadian positions.

In the street by a police station which was functioning again a few German weapons were scattered about where they were turned in by French Forces of the Interior. The Cathedral apparently is not heavily damaged. There is one large hole in the east side of the main dome which dominates the city, a smaller dome to the west has been hit twice and the cross on top has been smashed.

In the battered streets army bulldozers are clearing away debris of all kinds, including the remains of diminutive, shell-shattered street cars.

In one street, near where a mortar battery fired round after round, Ontario troops have set up a field kitchen and were having mid-day dinner from mess tins, oblivious of the noise of their own mortars and the woof of an occasional German shell-burst.

Down a cobbled lane others were enjoying the fruits of their assault. They had taken over a little tavern and were rapidly depleting its stock, while new arrivals from the zones of fighting showed souvenirs taken in close fights — everything from German pistols to watches.

In a walk from the outskirts of Boulogne into the heart of the city only two civilians were to be seen. They were two elderly women, with a Canadian soldier in the middle, an arm around each one.

From a vantage point on Mont Violette, five miles southeast of the city, the Battle of Boulogne seemed to be a desultory affair. There were occasional puffs of smoke over the city from bursting shells and licks of flame in the surrounding hills.

Reds Open Double-Barreled Drive on Port of Tallinn

RCAF ANNOUNCES AMALGAMATION OF TRAINING CENTRES

Reduction in Staff Of Eleven-Man Air Council Will Also Be Made

FOUR CITIES AFFECTED

By JACK BRAYLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, Sept. 21—(CP)—The R. C. A. F. announced today a further contraction of the Commonwealth Air Training plan by the amalgamation of four training commands—at Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg and Calgary — and a reduction in the staff of the 11-man air council.

First step in the program will be amalgamation Dec. 1 of No. 2 Training Command, with headquarters at Winnipeg and comprising all Manitoba and part of Saskatchewan, and No. 4 Training Command, with headquarters at Calgary and comprising Alberta and part of Saskatchewan. The new command will be designated as No. 2 with headquarters at Moose Jaw, Sask.

Next step will be amalgamation of No. 1 Training Command, with headquarters at Toronto and roughly covering Ontario, and No. 3 Training Command, with headquarters at Montreal and roughly covering Quebec and the Maritimes.

To Be Further Fused.

Eventually, this new amalgamated command will be further fused to become a part of Eastern Air Command. No dates were given for this fusion and the new headquarters was not mentioned, although a fair guess might be Dartmouth, N. S.—present E. A. C. headquarters.

No mention was made of Western Air Command the newly-created Northwest Air Command—both of which will likely take on a new importance with the switch of Canadian war activity to the Pacific at the conclusion of the war in Europe. However, another fair guess was that these commands would continue to function separately from the No. 2 Training Command until the war's end.

This speculation was given some weight by the announcement, which, in speaking of the eventual fusion of Eastern Canadian commands into one unit, pointed out the E. A. C. now is preoccupied with operational duties like convoy patrols. The implication might be that these duties will not be necessary or on a curtailed scale with the end of hostilities in Europe and E. A. C. will be able to devote attention to other command duties.

19,000 GERMANS SURRENDER TO 25 ALLIED SOLDIERS

The height of something or other was reached in Romorantin, France, when 19,000 German troops under Maj.-Gen. Erich Elster, third from right, surrendered to a platoon of 25 Allied soldiers who had been jeep-ing it behind German lines in France. Here Elster, who said he had been convinced six months ago that the war was lost for Germany, is surrounded by staff officers, talking surrender terms and methods with Lieut.-Col. Jules K. French, second from right, Fairfax County, Va. Leader of the platoon that persuaded the Nazis to give up was Lieut. Sam Magill, 24, of Ashtabula, Ohio.

CANADIAN TROOPS CLOSE ON BITTERLY DEFENDED RIMINI

Greek Troops Now Within 2,000 Yards of This Stronghold

GET AIR SUPPORT

Rome, Sept. 21—(CP)—Canadian troops of the British 8th Army have made further progress in the battle on the Adriatic front just south of Rimini by clearing the enemy from several towns in the vicinity of San Fortunato, while British units have made similar gains in San Marino area, today's Allied communique reported.

Greek troops of the 8th Army fought to within 2,000 yards of Rimini.

Rain slowed the Allied 5th Army's offensive after American forces had captured heights dominating Firenzuola, an important junction on the road to Bologna.

R. A. F. fighter-bombers blasted a path for the Canadian assault on Rimini's flank despite dense clouds, smashing particularly at enemy artillery on the north bank of the Marecchia River, almost five miles west of Rimini.

Blow Holes in Highway.

Spitfires and Mustangs blew holes in highway bridges across the Reno River, across which the Nazis must send supplies to the Adriatic front.

British ground units beat off fierce counter-attacks at Ceriano, and reached the outskirts of San Marino, city in the little republic.

Prisoners taken by the 8th Army, total of which exceeds 6,700 for the past four weeks, rose sharply as British troops whittled down the Nazi 162nd Turcoman Division.

Headquarters described fighting on both ends of the front as intense and declared the Germans were "clinging desperately" to their defensive positions.

The enemy's hold on Rimini and the gateway to the Po Valley was jeopardized by the Canadians, who broke through German defences southwest of the port and advanced to San Lorenzo, less that two miles southwest of Rimini.

As a result of this break-through, the Canadians were in position to outflank Rimini on the west and isolate its defenders. They were within a mile of the Marecchia River which flows into the Adriatic at Rimini and only three miles from the coast northwest of the city.

(CANADIAN—Page 12.)

MANY AFFECTED

London, Sept. 21 —(CP Reuter)— Many thousands of French subjects now in Holland and 40,000 Netherlands subjects deported to France by the Germans are affected by the signing here yesterday of a repatriation agreement between France and Holland.

CHINA'S FUTURE ROLE IN WAR GIVING CONCERN

Question Whether U. S. Drive Will Open Route While Resistance Strong

WHAT LEADERS WANT

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
(AP Staff Writer)

Washington, Sept. 21 — (AP) — China's future role in the war against Japan is a subject of increasing concern for military and diplomatic officials here.

The big question is whether the American drive across the Central Pacific — even though it is months ahead of old schedules — can open a supply route to free China, while it is still organized for effective resistance to Japan.

For this reason Pacific strategists are paying closest attention to the speed of the Allied drive into Germany. A long-delayed victory in Europe, which would set back the day of full concentration against Japan, could jeopardize China's continued existence as one of the "Big Four" United Nations.

Military leaders want from China:

1. Manpower resources to crush the Japanese armies in Asia — especially if Russia does not enter the war.

2. A government capable of preventing Japanese warmongers and agitators from going underground in China to spring up during the years of peace.

3. A nation that in the immediate post-war years will become a dominant power in East Asia.

Shape of Situation

At present realization of these aims is threatened by the most complicated set of military and political considerations in any war theatre. As outlined by high-ranking government advisers on China policy the situation shaped up like this:

China has been at war constantly for seven years. For almost five years she has been blockaded. During this period the Chungking government has lost close relationship with the people and their local and regional leaders.

These leaders have grown increasingly dissident. The Communist groups in North China, long opposed by the government of Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek, have grown more powerful. Other opposition groups have come to the fore, particularly in Kwangsi province.

(CHINA'S FUTURE—Page 2.)

Divisional Commander Taken

London, Sept. 21 (CP)—Today's German communique claimed the 1st British airborne division in the Netherlands had been "to a greater extent destoyed," with the capture of 2,800 prisoners including the divisional commander.

Allied Control Commission Now At Helsinki

Stockholm, Sept. 21—(AP)—The newspaper Aftonidningen said yesterday it was understood an Allied control commission under Russian General Sjadnov had arrived at Helsinki to begin administering the terms by which Finland obtained an armistice with Russia..

Meanwhile Finnish residents began evacuating Porkkala Peninsula, which the Russians obtained as a naval base.

Finnish troops were reported moving close behind the retiring Germans in Northern Finland.

Moscow, Sept. 21—(AP)—The Soviet Press today hailed the Finnish armistice as a Victory for the Allied cause, but asserted the Finns had failed to disarm a single German soldier and that "Finnish authorities helped the Hitlerites retreat with their arms." e

Italy, One of the Worst Countries In the World in Which To Fight

By DOUG HOW
Canadian Press War Correspondent

With the 8th Army in Italy, Sept. 21—(CP)—Now it was Coriano, another name lent to the profanity of soldiers, another village jerked from obscurity to become a word in a communique that said it was the keypoint in heavy fighting. It sat upon a dominating ridge and the ridge, running north and south, formed a natural bottleneck with the Adriatic Coast running northwest.

Men were killed and wounded because of Coriano's strategic location when Canadian and British troops came surging through the Gothic Line hellbent for the Lombardy Plains and captured it last week. It had become one with the monastery hills, the Cassinos, the Sangros, the Salernos, or any of the other musical names of Italy that war had perverted into lines and bastions and battlefields.

The soldiers could look back over their year in Italy and wonder how many of their comrades had died because the Apennines thrust their rocky spine through the whole great length on this rugged peninsula, how many had died because the Moros and Sangros and Rapidos and Garigilianos flowed down to the sea from the hills, how many had died because Italy was so narrow and so rugged and you often could do nothing else but assault straight ahead across the innumerable rivers and over the innumerable hills, how many had died because the Italians built their villages upon the peaks of slope after slope and their homes and cemeteries with strong, thick walls that made them natural fortresses.

"I should say" the 8th Army's solid, trusted Lt.-Gen. Sir Leese Leese had once declared, "that if one had a choice of countries in which to fight one would certainly pick Italy last."

The soldiers would growl their agreement. They knew with a blooded knowledge that he spoke an awful truth.

For every American who lived for weeks in an Anzio slit trench, for every Canadian who knew the hell of Ortona, for every Tommy and New Zealander and Polish soldier and American who cursed the height that reared itself behind the shambled Cassino, the name of Italy would always ring with a haunted, deathly note.

Italy's war had been that sort of war—one where geography restricted movement.

Now a new, a final phase was at hand. The lanky peninsula was running itself out. Even here with Coriano at their side the Canadian and British troops were past the last of the Apennines. The Lombardy Plains beckoned a few miles ahead.

Destroy Northern Anchorage of Nazi Line in Estonia

Russian-Romanian Columns 30 Mi. From Hungary Proper

By DANIEL DE LUCE
(AP War Correspondent)

Moscow, Sept. 21 —(AP)— Red army veterans of Leningrad, having destroyed the northern anchorage of the German Baltic line in a massive sweep across Estonia, raged forward today in a double-barrelled drive for the enemy port of Tallinn.

One wing of Marshal Govorov's forces thrusting west from Narva has captured Rahlka, less than 65 miles east of Tallinn, a Russian war bulletin disclosed last night. Govorov's second wing was spearing north from Tartu.

(London estimated this force was less than 50 miles from Tallinn on the southeast.)

Moscow's guns thundered a salute to Govorov for his four days' gains ranging from 37 to 44 miles, wiping out formidable German defences between Lake Peipus and the Finnish gulf.

Seeking to trap or annihilate any German troops from Finland who may reach Estonia, Govorov turned the enemy's flank and sent his troops rushing through the centre of the little northern country like a tidal wave.

Northern troops, following the Narva-Tallinn railway, were within artillery range of the key rail town of Rakvere, and closing in on Tapa, important rail junction 45 miles southeast of Tallinn.

Capture 100 Settlements.

Meanwhile on the approaches to the Latvian port of Riga Gen. Bagramian's columns captured an additional 100 settlements and again hurled back tank and infantry attacks aimed at his communications base of Jelgava.

Between Bagramian's and Govorov's forces the two armies of Gen. Yeremenko and Gen. Maslennikov surged forward in an attempt to slice the German front in half in the vicinity of the common border of Estonia and Latvia.

In the past two days Russian communiques have announced German loss of 4,750 populated places in the Soviet Baltic drive.

The Red army was officially silent on the battle for Warsaw and the drive from Transylvania toward the plains of Hungary.

Blast Rail Centres.

(The Germans said Russian groups which crossed the Vistula at Warsaw were smashed in a counter-attack and that 69 landing boats were destroyed or captured.)

A sustained aerial assault blasted against Hungarian rail centres and military installations as Marshal Malinovsky pushed his Russian-Romanian columns beyond Timiskoara to less than 30 miles from Hungary proper. Should he turn south, he would imperil the German garrison 70 miles away at Belgrade. If he moved north, he would strike at the vulnerable rear of a large enemy group in northern Transylvania.

Marshal Rokossovsky was known to be mounting a series of fierce attacks against the west bank of the Vistula close to the southern limits of Warsaw but officially the Kremlin was silent.

Carrier Task Force Rips Maintenance Centre in Sumatra

By CHARLES GRUMICH
Associated Press War Correspondent)

Aboard a British aircraft carrier off Sumatra, Sept. 18—(delayed)—(AP)—A fast carrier task force under Rear Admiral Clement Moody, R. N., smashed the vital railway repair and maintenance centre at Sigli in northwestern Sumatra today in a surprise attack that met little or no opposition.

It was the British far eastern fleet's sixth such offensive thrust since April.

Carrier-borne bombers, escorted by fighters, crossed the northern Sumatra mountains to reach the target and unload their bombs upon Sigli, which is situated inside the approaches to Malacca Strait.

The attack left great clouds of smoke rising from the target area. One plane failed to return, but the Japanese made no attempt to intercept the Allied surface forces.

The lack of opposition led to the conclusion the Japanese are shrinking inside their "co-prosperity sphere," risking little in the defence of its outer perimeter.

This raised the possibility of more extended operations by the far eastern fleet, embracing such alternatives as:

1. Support of any combined operations by the Southeast Asia command extending from Arakan in Western Burma to Sunda Strait.

2. Storming down Malacca Strait toward Singapore, neutralizing or seizing such enemy-held naval bases as Sabang and Penang on the Malay side.

3. Responding to any call to join American forces in the Pacific for a sea-air showdown with Japan.

Crippled Woman Contributes To Shriners Fund

It is not very often that financial assistance on the part of organizations who sponsor medical and other treatment for crippled children, shows a dividend other than a complete cure or substantial improvement on the part of the tiny victims.

However, amazed members of the Belleville and District Shrine Club at the Belleville Exhibition yesterday, had the unique experience of seeing a young woman, hopelessly crippled, hand them the sum of six dollars "in appreciation of what the Shrine did for me years ago."

She was "Miss Jolly Dolly," an attraction in one of the Conklin Shows, who contracted a strange malady that affected her legs when a child.

Shriners took her case in hand. They provided treatment and other medical care, and did not spare the financial "horses" in her case.

Dolly did not forget. Appearing on the stage before the grandstand during the local Shrine clubs draw for winning tickets, she sold postcard pictures of herself amounting to twelve dollars—and later in the day, with a brief note, quietly forwarded six dollars to the Shrine Fund for Crippled Children here.

Milling Crowd Driven to Shelter By Heavy Downpour of Rain Near End of Belleville Fair

Grandstand Performance and Other Attractions Completed

GOOD RACING

An unscheduled act of natural pyrotechnics rang down the curtain, more or less abruptly on the most successful exhibition in the history of the Belleville Agricultural Society Wednesday night.

The timing was well-nigh perfect. Milling crowds, that thronged the brilliantly lighted Midway and grandstand, watching stage performances and listening to the shrill cacaphony that nothing but a fair or circus produces, had little warning of the sudden entrance of the newcomer who quickly, but belatedly, put an effective quietus on the last-night proceedings.

Distant lightning flashes earlier in the evening may have been mistaken for the whirling lights of the Midway. Periodic rumblings of thunder may have been any of the strange noises associated with the modern fair.

But at ten-thirty, the by-no-means hit of the evening, appeared on the stage, heralded by vivid lightning and rippling thunder and to the uncomfortable crescendo of downpouring rain, wrote finis to the current edition of the Belleville Exhibition.

A Record Crowd

But the crowd numerically must go down on the records. As one old-timer put it, "Oh well, I had seen it all anyway." Approximately ten thousand people had clicked the turnstiles long before Old Jupe Pluvius, and his crowd-chasing illuminated water act appeared as an unwelcome finale. At that, the fair was virtually over.

Directors approached last night, and their opinions may be taken as a consensus, described the fair as the "best in its history." True, the weather played an important part, but to the 1944 directorate must go the major share of credit for the success of the exhibition just concluded.

Early organization and a thorough probing into the possibilities and potentialities of the Exhibition laid the first foundations.

Factors of Success

Re-organization and expansion of various classes of exhibits and an augmented prize-list were other factors in the ultimate success of the fair. Decision to include war-work, and exhibits of war organizations struck a popular note in these unsettled days. Improvement of grounds' facilities with the co-operation of the City Parks Board, provided a physical attraction, especially to livestock breeders. The very best in stage entertainment and Midway attractions were decided upon.

Tireless consistent effort in "ironing out the wrinkles" and sincere application to the task of remedying causes of criticism of former fairs added a further load to the shoulders of already very busy men.

The success of the Exhibition is a colorful monument to their efforts. President Elmer Sandercock and his board, aided and abetted by the fine co-operation of junior and lady directors, came through with a splendid job, as thousands of fair patrons will attest.

Sultry Weather

Sultry weather yesterday proved no deterrent to a large afternoon crowd. The trials of speed proved as exciting as those of Tuesday as did the running races, parade of livestock and horses; judging, and track parades of carriage horses, heavy draft, lady drivers and other attractions.

A bewhiskered gentleman, apparently of the pioneer type caused a mild furore to grandstand patrons, when he paraded along the track with a yoke of oxen. Diminutive ponies, carrying riders equally as small in comparison, delighted the younger element.

In the evening, the grandstand show, although slightly abbreviated due to the late rain, proved every bit as entertaining as any previous performance. Conklin's Shows attracted thousands, while special interest was evinced in the draw for the prizes offered by the Belleville District Shrine Club.

Takes 27 Germans Single Handed

Welland, Sept. 21 — (CP)—L.Cpl. Anthony Albano, son of Peter Albano of Welland, described his singlehanded capture of 27 Germans in a letter received by his father yesterday.

"I was out in the village looking for a place to get some water for the kitchen," Albano wrote, "and a Frenchman told me that the Boche were only about 400 yards down the road. So, figuring that there were only two or three, decided to go after them. When I got about 50 yards from them they dropped all their weapons and started waving a white hankie and shouting "Kamarad."

The 27 Germans captured on this occasion brings the number captured to date by Albano to 43.

Great Port City Picture of Ruin And Desolation

By BARBARA WACK
(AP War Correspondent)

Brest, Sept. 21 —(AP)— A few French civilians trudged back into captured Brest Monday, pushing wheelbarrows piled with mattresses or riding in carts. But there was nothing to come back to in this great port city, a picture of desolation and ruin with a majority of its buildings demolished by terrific aerial and naval bombardment during the 46-day Allied siege.

(A dispatch from Supreme Allied Headquarters last night said headquarters sources refused to speculate on whether Allied salvage crews would be put to work on the port at once. Censored dispatches from Brest contained no information on damage to port facilities.)

Lt.-Gen. Hermann Ramcke, commander of the crack German paratroopers who had been holding the port, left to his subordinates the formality of surrender.

Not Seen for Days.

German prisoners interviewed as they walked through the streets said Ramcke had not been seen for several days. There were reports he had fled either by submarine or plane.

Brest fell at 3 p.m. Sept. 18, after a final 24 hours of terrible artillery bombardment. Swarms of Germans —naval personnel, paratroopers and merchant navy men—began emerging from the famed submarine or plane.

We moved into one pen, past rooms filled with scattered German belongings. The narrow pen opened into the bay (30 words censored). Like the others, this pen had a 15-foot reinforced concrete roof. There was a gaping hole, however, in the roof, with steel girders hanging down.

Caused by June Raid.

One German said the damage had been caused by a British raid, in June.

On the way out we entered one of the underground hospitals. The patients looked desperately ill, and one blond German nurse told me the siege had been terrible.

Prisoners continued to be escorted out of the pens several hours after the city fell.

Late in the day the prisoner bag was estimated at 8,500, bringing to 35,000 the number of Germans captured during the battle for Brest.

RCAF ANNOUNCES

Save $50,000 a Command

An Air Force statement spoke of the closing of stations and Air Force facilities and said the abandonment of rented property and the use of its own facilities will result in an annual saving of $50,000 for each command. Economies will be effected by housing staff members now collecting nearly $350,000 annually in subsistance allowances.

The statement also contained high tribute for the four retiring air council members.

Air Minister Power first forecast the air curtailment program Feb. 16 when he announced a new Commonwealth agreement which envisaged provision of an even flow of trained personnel to operations over a long period while at the same time reducing the intake of trainees and closing out training units behind them.

This was followed March 13 by his announcement that 28 schools would be closed in the period between March 12 and the end of this year. On June 13 he announced closing of 23 relief landing fields.

10,000 Training Planes

Foundation of Canada's aerial contribution to the war came about when an agreement was signed in London Dec. 16, 1939 by Commonwealth representatives.

At the end of last year 10,000 training planes flew an average of 2,000,000 miles daily to produce a current and still-expanding swarm of 50,000 aircrew graduates—enough to man 15,000 combat aircraft.

Deadline for termination of the original plan was March 31, 1943, but its success saw its extension to March 31, 1945. Canada was down to pay half the extension's estimated cost of $1,500,000,000 with Britain, Australia and New Zealand paying the rest. Mutual aid has been a factor in the financing of the plan with Britain contributing much of the training equipment and Canada the largest share of the cash. The 1942-1943 budget for the plan amounted to $603,000,000.

EXCHANGE SEAT SOLD

Toronto, Sept. 21 — (CP) — Sale of a seat on the Toronto Stock Exchange for $40,000 was made yesterday, the Exchange announced. W. R. Bricker and Company of Kitchener were the purchasers and will become a member firm of the Exchange. The price was $500 more than the previous sale price.

Plant Representatives Hear Appeal To Reduce Industrial Accidents

Terming industrial accidents "helpers of the enemy," Mr. Harry Mabson, Toronto, chief inspector of the Ontario Industrial Accident Prevention Association, told representatives of the Central Ontario Association here last night that this province had paid out fifty millions of dollars for compensation from Sept. 1, 1939, to Aug. 1, this year.

"Forty-one millions of this staggering total was paid out in actual cash compensation while eight and three-quarter millions compensated for medical aid," Mr. Mabson said.

2020 Fatally Hurt.

Almost the equivalent of two infantry battalions, 2020 persons were fatally hurt, while 516,814 were out for a period with injuries, some of which resulted in permanent disabilities in that length of time.

With compensation being paid on a wage percentage basis, employees actually paid another twenty millions, although they did not handle it, Inspector Mabson told the association.

Representatives of sixteen firms from seven areas of the Central Ontario district, some sixty-five in all, at a banquet held in the Y.M.C.A. heard an urgent appeal for co-operation of management, plant supervisors and factory personnel in combatting the menace of industrial accidents.

"Lots of industries," he said, "were big enough to take the blame for serious accidents because they did not take accident prevention serious enough. They practised safety by proxy. Practically all explosive plants have better records and are much less concerned now with the safety of plant, production, or personnel, because they primarily sold the idea of safety."

Inspector Mabson deplored the fact that some managements make safety by-laws which do not produce results. The only way to sell it is through a course of safety with plant supervisors as teachers.

Must Start With Management.

While safety must start with the management which carries the financial load, supervisors must carry the responsibility of selling it to the men. As they supervise so must they supervise safety. Inspector Mabson urged the formation of safety committees formed by employees to work with management and supervisors.

Accident records, he said, reveal the largest percentage occurred through unsafe practices rather than unsafe conditions. A safety committee can correct this in short order, but guidance must come from the top. Employees, if given responsibility will react to it, and management will get far more from them than from a "bunch of orders." Teamwork can accomplish much more than the individual, for it possesses a wealth of power that can harness problems. The steering must be done by supervisors who are big enough to accept help from others.

Train Employees.

Management and supervising staffs should make all efforts to train employees along safety lines, and to get them to realize it is something they must do. Others may choose to do it, but the best things done are those that employees want to do.

"You will find employees want safety production as well as you," Inspector Mabson concluded.

The speaker was introduced by Mr. A. Cranfield, Peterborough, while Mr. Ed. Shortt, city, thanked him on behalf of the district.

Vice-chairman Jack Allin, of the C.O.A. occupied the chair while Mayor Harry Rollins formally welcomed the representatives to the city. Appreciation of the fine banquet served by the "Y" ladies was expressed by chairman Allin.

Social Service Organizations Perform Fine Community Service

Home front activities of the Salvation Army, Children's Aid Society, the Y. M. C. A. and the Victorian Order of Nurses, four organizations whose work along humanitarian and social service lines is well known, are such as to amaze the average citizen if the full scope of their work was revealed.

The man on the street, busily engaged with his own war efforts, and his interest centred for the majority of the time in what is going on at the various theatres of war, perhaps does not pause to consider or realize what actual war activities are being conducted within the confines of his own community or district.

War has had far-reaching effects on the life of the nation. Its probing fingers have delved deeply into the lives and enviroment of all classes of citizens. And in its wake, it has left and is leaving, in many cases, conditions that are impossible to be remedied by the people involved.

Maintain Morale

Community organizations have been shouldering the greater part of the onus of responsibility for the maintenance of morale and well-being of classes of citizens directly and indirectly affected by the war, who have found it impossible to help themselves.

Another phase of the community organization, such as the Y.M.C.A. and the Salvation Army is the task of upholding the morale of members of the armed services and catering to their comforts during the tedious months of training. Of late returning veterans from the war theatres have felt and appreciated the comforting ministrations of these organizations.

The Victorian Order of Nurses, and the Children's Aid Society are doing a yeoman service behind the scenes of social service work upon which the curtain of publicity seldom rises.

Unmarried mothers, an inevitable aftermath of the chariots of war; little children sick and sometimes deserted, families unable to cope with hospitalization and medicinal problems, have felt the beneficial touch of the hands of these associations.

Need is Great

The need for community work is great. The demand for service is increasing as the war rolls relentlessly on.

On Monday, September 25th a campaign for funds for these four organizations will be inaugurated. The quota is $15,000 an amount urgently needed if the efforts of these community servants are to be maintained.

This city has always endorsed social service work both morally and financially. Next week another call will go out for similar support.

Belleville will be asked to contribute and to contribute generously to these humanitarian causes. It is an investment in health, one that is sure to pay dividends in the long-looked for days of peace to come.

CHINA'S FUTURE

Economic Difficulties

Economic difficulties, inflation and shortages have made the lot of the people increasingly miserable. The armies fight without even a minimum of necessary arms. They are in many instances poorly led, and they feel they have less and less to fight for.

The Allied command set-up is regarded by some as hopelessly complicated. Gen. Stilwell serves two masters as Chief of Staff to Chiang and an officer of the Allied Commander in Southeast Asia and Burma, Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten. Lord Louis, in turn, is subject to decisions of Gen. Auchinleck, India commander, for troops. Auchinleck's primary concern is to preserve order in India.

6000 DESERTERS

Washington, Sept. 21 —(AP)— About 6,000 alien merchant seamen have deserted their ships in United States ports since the beginning of the war and now are being rounded up by the immigration and naturalization service. Those apprehended, the War Shipping Administration said, will be given the choice of returning to ships of their nationality or face deportation. Most of those who deserted their ships have found employment in private industry.

REJECTS PROPOSAL FOR SETTLEMENT OVER GRAIN NOTES

Hon. J. L. Ilsley Says in Letter to Premier Douglas of Saskatchewan Acceptance Would Impose on Dominion Cost of Carrying Out Latter's Election Promises

Ottawa, Sept. 21 (CP)—Finance Minister Isley today made public the text of a letter to Premier T. C. Douglas of Saskatchewan reviewing proposals made by that province for settlement of $17,700,000 in 198 seed grain notes falling due Oct. 31.

Turning down the suggestions made by Mr. Douglas, Mr. Isley said:-

"The acceptance of your proposal would throw upon the Dominion government the cost of carrying out your election promises."

In his letter, and in a statement issued to The Canadian Press last night, Mr. Isley said the plan outlined by the Saskatchewan C.C.F. government would mean the province would bear no burden of the debt and the Dominion would assume the entire balance left unpaid by farmers.

Premier Douglas' Statement.

(In a statement in Saskatoon last night Mr. Douglas said under his government's plan the cost to the province would be $7,000,000 and the Federal government's cost $10,000,000. He said Mr. Isley's statement that the province would not pay anything was not correct. Some $4,000,000 had already been paid and $3,000,000 would have to be refunded to farmers who had paid in full if settlement was made at 50 per cent of the principal.)

Mr. Isley, referring to a letter from Mr. Douglas dated Sept. 11, said the Saskatchewan Premier had threatened to advise farmers not to make any further payments on the loans unless the province's plan was accepted by the Dominion. There had also been a threat to have municipalities return money already collected.

Mr. Isley said this was "a proposal which, in the light of your publicly-announced attitude to the treasury bill obligations of your province, would involve a loss to the Dominion treasury of $10,600,000."

Contradiction of Undertaking.

Mr. Isley said such an attitude was a contradiction of the solemn undertaking of the province in the agreement and with a sense of responsibility to Canadian taxpayers it would be wrong in principle to submit to such a threat.

"It may be that your government is in a position to cause some loss to the Dominion if we do not respond to the whip which you are proposing to apply, but I think if this is the case it will be the lesser of two evils," said the minister.

"If you advise the farmers not to pay anything more on these notes, even though they have the money in their hands with which to do so, your action cannot be regarded as otherwise than unwarranted and reprehensible. It will be an affirmation of the principle of repudiation which should no more apply in relations between provincial governments and this government than in other relations."

Mr. Isley said press statements of Mr. Douglas indicated he regarded treasury notes as little more than scraps of paper.

"Your offer means that so far as the discharge of the obligation to pay the banks $17,000,000 is concerned, the province will assume none or practically none of this obligation, whereas you expect the Dominion government to assume $10,600,000 of it and the farmers to discharge $7,100,000," Mr. Isley said at another point in his 2,400-word letter.

"For your own purposes, as a matter of Saskatchewan government policy, you intend to return some money to farmers who have already paid the whole or at least more than 50 per cent of the principal. This proposed rebate has nothing to do with the discharge of the previous obligation under the contract — the obligation to pay the banks $17,700,000."

Based on Election Premises

Mr. Isley said the settlement plans were based on the government's election promises to increase assistance being given by the Patterson (Liberal) government. The previous government had set aside funds for this purpose and presumably they were still in the provincial treasury.

"You will forgive me for saying that I cannot believe you and your party did not then (during the election) intend that the province should bear the remainder of the cost just as the Patterson government was paying for the cost of voluntary adjustments it was making," Mr. Isley continued.

"Any other interpretation would mean that you were making an election promise which you must obviously have known was completely beyond your capacity to carry out—because it lay wholly within the power of another government.

"Certainly if you intended as a government not to bear the cost of the adjustment you were promising you did not make that clear in your pre-election advertisement. I therefore prefer to believe that your present proposal to throw on the Dominion the whole cost or practically the whole cost of carrying out the promises that you made was a post-election development.

"Whether or not this is so, there was, needless to say, no consultation with the Dominion government before these promises were made and I do not feel that in fairness to your predecessors, who were faithfully carrying out the terms of their agreement with the Dominion government without any suggestion of repudiation of this agreement, we can, as a matter of principle, comply with your request that we bear the full cash burden of making good your promises to the electorate."

Supply Situation Of Civilian Goods Greatly Improved

By JACK WILLIAMS
(CP Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Sept. 21—(CP)—With a thorough-going review of wartime controls and restrictions underway, Canadians appear to have passed through the most acute period of rationing and shortages and to be headed toward a better supply situation in civilian commodities.

The fact a number of controls have already been eased or lifted and that similar action is expected on others shortly does not mean, officials say, there is a period of plenty immediately ahead.

Donald Gordon, Prices Board chairman, has made it clear that if Canadians are to get through this winter without suffering from shortages they will have to restrict their purchase of such goods as clothing, in which supplies are limited.

Nevertheless, the No. 5 ration book that housewives will soon be carrying to the grocery store will not rank in importance with some of its predecessors. It still will be vital for butter, sugar and preserves; but the once-rationed tea, coffee and meat now are on the unrestricted list.

Apart from foods there also is a definite easing in the supply situation. Recent Prices Board revisions have opened the way, when other conditions allow, for the manufacture of consumer goods which have been missing from retailers shelves for months. Orders affecting a long list of goods from bath tubs to bobby pins have been rescinded.

For many of these articles restrictions not imposed by the Prices Board will, however, continue to be a limiting factor. Labor is difficult to get, supplies of raw materials are in many cases limited and factories still are busy with war work.

The Munitions Department is currently engaged in a general review of its orders and Munitions Minister Howe has indicated that a comprehensive statement may be forthcoming soon outlining what civilians can expect.

All this, officials say, is part of the government's policy of allowing industry to return to peacetime products as soon as war conditions permit. A staggered process, it is believed, will make possible more efficient use of available supplies and will help overcome unemployment when conversion becomes more general.

In addition to the intensive work being done in the departments a special cabinet sub-committee is keeping an eye on conditions with the idea of having the controls ended as soon as possible.

Berlin Says Churchill on Way To Visit Stalin

London, Sept. 21 — (CP) — A Berlin broadcast, quoting "a dispatch from Lisbon," asserted today Prime Minister Churchill was en route to Moscow from his Quebec meeting with President Roosevelt.

The broadcast coincided with an announcement here that the Prime Minister would report to the House of Commons on the Quebec Conference following his return to London. Parliament will reassemble next Tuesday, and it was expected Mr. Churchill would appear shortly after that date.

South Africa Plans Grants for Natives

Pretoria, Sept. 21.— (CP)—It is expected that the introduction of pensions for natives in accordance with a law passed during the last session of the South African parliament will shortly be authorized by P. V. G. van der Byl, minister for native affairs.

Money for the scheme will come from general revenue, but the cost cannot be known until all applications are received. Men from 65 and women from 60 may apply, payment being one pound ($4.50) monthly.

The scheme will be introduced in three stages; first cities, then towns and rural areas. Pensions for blind natives have also been changed from ex gratia to statutory basis.

A Record-Making Fair

1944 fair of Belleville is now history. It has made history in its success, in the breadth of its appeal and in the support which country and city have accorded the efforts of the officers and directors and exhibitors to provide a wartime exhibition of real merit in spite of restraints such as those relating to travel on the highways and roads and to labor shortages, along with the concentration and absorption of the people's effort in the war. The crowds that came and enjoyed the sight of the exhibits and thrilled with the entertainment are proof of the firm hold these events have on the minds and hearts of the people.

That records would be broken as to attendance was to be expected from the start for the weather for one thing has been of the best. Among the other factors making for a new high mark in attendance were these: that there is always a good showing of exhibits which get close to the lives of the people such as livestock, the grains and other produce of the field and of the farm homes, the fundamentals on which so much of our living is built; there was ample entertainment of an interesting character; the fair is a meeting place and in wartime when travel is rather limited for reasons known to everyone, it provides an outlet for the feelings and interests of the people and so a fair with a good line of exhibits, fine buildings and an active and hard working board has a natural appeal; more money is in circulation with limited outlets and people feel the need of exhilaration of the sight of something new and in personal contacts, especially in this community of agriculturists and city-dwellers; there is the interest, deeply imbeded in human nature, in championship horses, cattle, sheep, swine and other lines and the irresistible appeal of the track events. In fact so fundamental is a fair that it cannot fail to draw crowds.

It is an annual event of great significance for it also creates good will and fellowship.

It is in short an index of progress of the healthy and sturdy countryside. It is a showroom of the best products of the farm and it has been extended to take in ordinarily the production of the cities. It is a glass in which the advance of farming and of its associate industrial developments in the cities is evident.

Those in charge of the Belleville fair have every reason for enthusiasm over the results of this year's undertaking.

Effort and interest spent on this exhibition will bring rewards in new inspiration, in the sense of satisfaction and pride all connected with it must feel, and in the brief interlude it has afforded in a time when everyone is working hard for the greatest cause in the world—the liberation of the world from the Nazi abomination and Japanese criminal aggression.

The holding of district and local fairs in wartime has been thoroughly justified by results here and everywhere.

Buying With Moderation

Some good advice was given Canadians the other evening by Senator Vaillancourt, French-speaking adviser to the Price Board, "Buy with moderation in proportion as wartime ordinances disappear." He added that post-war inflation must be avoided. These thoughts should sink deep in the minds of the people.

It is expected that with the removal of rationing of tea and coffee, people after having been taught the benefit of conserving will not become extravagant in their use of these commodities. Rationing has served well the war cause and buying just what one needs even when rationing is lifted on a commodity is the way that will avoid any tendency to inflation not only now but in the post-war time. The war's lesson in this regard is clear.

Looking to the Future

The future of farming in this community will be in safe hands, all the evidence of the record of the Junior Farmers assuring that happy augury. The tens of thousands who attended Belleville Fair have had sufficient evidence of the impressive part that the sons and daughters of farmers are taking in regard to the calling they will pursue.

Agriculturists today in the stress of war have given a proof of the solid value of agriculture as a great foundation of the national economy. It is the basic industry and has been through the centuries and will so continue to the end of time. Implements may change but agriculture goes on. To farmers of today and of preceding generations Canada owes a great debt. Canada knows the stout worth and substantial character of the farmer. And that will always be for no age of the future can supplant the industry of agriculture for there is nothing to take its place. It is primal and enduring.

In the contests at the local fair this week, visitors had the opportunity of seeing in the competition for the junior farmers, the knowledge, ability and interest of young rural Canada, looking to the future and helping in the present for what the younger boys and the girls have done in these latter days has been of untold value to the productivity of the farm, so much needed for war purposes. They have been very well trained by their fathers and mothers and they have a true conception of the importance and the character of rural life. The contests in which they have entered in large numbers are calculated to stimulate and reward the aspiring boys and girls of the country. Results have proven well and the active farmers thoroughly realize this.

At the close of the day of competition and judging, marked by a banquet the young agriculturists were impressed with the challenge to participation in senior activity. Today the young farmer is aided by the great strides made in scientific agriculture and for the young farmer soil conservation and reforestation with the results which naturally flow therefrom naturally attract the attention of those who are living the rural life with all its possibilities of development. Attention to production and quality of production naturally follows interest in conservation and forestation.

The young farmer too is growing up in a world which finds more and more attention paid to scientific farming and to marketing and world markets. He is born into a great calling with all the possibilities and advantages it has in being a foundation industry, one that merits pride on the part of the worker in this essential activity and of every other person.

Bulldozers

(Winnipeg Tribune)

Once again the bulldozer makes the news. This time it was somewhere in Britain. It seems an enemy bomb had hit a gasoline dump and loosed a river of flaming gasoline. In spite of efforts to put out the blaze the flood of gasoline rushed toward a nearby village. A bulldozer came chugging on the scene and quickly threw up a dam which blocked the path of the flaming liquid. Its advance was halted and the village was saved from complete destruction.

When a final reckoning is made it will doubtless be found that the bulldozer was one of the "weapons" which played a notable part in bringing victory to the Allies. It has served the United Nations all over the world. It has built roads on countless islands in the Pacific, it has smashed through the jungle and apanese pill boxes, it was king of the Alaska Highway, it helped built the great northern airbases. Now as a tankdozer it is crashing the hedgerows of France.

The beauty of the lumbering machine is that it will be just as useful in peace as it was in war. Long may it rumble along, tossing trees and rocks over its shoulders as it goes.

The reward of one duty done is the power to fulfil another.—George Eliot.

HOW A FROG BREATHES

A frog has no ribs and therefore breathing is not accomplished by expansion and contraction of the chest, as in most air-breathing creatures.

The air must be swallowed in order to be conveyed to the lungs.

For this reason it is not necessary for a frog to hold his breath when it jumps into the water. All it has to do is to quit swallowing air.

The anatomy of a frog is such that it must close its eyes to swallow.

If its mouth is held open too long it will suffocate.

A frog can go for a considerable time without breathing because it gets part of its oxygen supply through the skin.

In cold weather frogs frequently sink to the bottom of a body of water and remain there for an extended period.

The breathing movements then cease, the blood circulating in the skin being able to absorb enough oxygen to support life while the animal is in this inactive state.

In East Africa there is a little frog that swells up like a rubber ball to frighten its attackers.

A web-footed frog in Java, known as flying frogs, glide from tree to tree.

Scientists have been able to produce normal frogs from eggs that have been artificially fertilized with chemicals.

A South American tree frog secretes a venom as deadly as that of poisonous snakes.

When the female of the Darin frog of Chile, deposits her eggs the male swallows them and hatches the young in a pouch in his throat.

There is a species of frogs in parts of South America that when mature is only about one-fifth as large as when it is half grown After reaching a certain point in its life circle it grows smaller.

There is an old superstition that the croaking of frogs presages rain.

The female of a Central American frog hatches her eggs in a pouch on her back. After she lays the eggs the male picks them up with his hind feet and puts them in the pouch.

The Louisiana state department of conservation says that frogskins can be used for making women's purses and shoes.

Jumping frogs have been known to jump more than 14 feet.

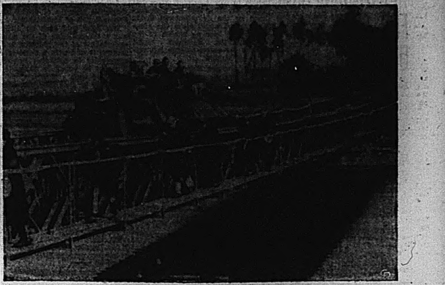
ALLIES CROSS ALBERT CANAL ON BAILEY BRIDGE



An Allied tank-buster is shown crossing the Albert canal on a Bailey bridge thrown up by engineers, while refugees make their way back to a safer area. The British Second Army is mopping up northern Belgium between the Albert canal and the isolated pockets of German resistance in a trap in Schelde Meuse canal east of Antwerp.

Sporadic Attacks Of Flying Bombs Made on England

London, Sept. 21 — (CP)—Flying bombs zoomed over London and the southern counties last night for the fourth successive night as the Germans continued sporadic attacks apparently aimed at keeping Britain's lights from coming on again.

Casualties included several children recently returned from the safety of country districts.

"This is a grim and unhappy lesson," said one man whose house was badly damaged. "My house was empty except for myself, but several of my neighbors had brought back their children and were at home when a bomb fell."

In one section at least two people were killed and four others were seriously injured when a row of homes was destroyed.

While the newest raids carried neither the intensity nor terror of the earlier assaults, the rush of evacuees back to the capital was noticeably slowing down.

The government stood by its assertion that the "Battle of London" was won but not entirely over, and reiterated warnings that those evacuated at the height of the blitz should remain away a little longer.

Renewal of robot attacks after a two-week lull coincided with the lifting of blackout restrictions. Under new dimout regulations householders are required to black out all lights when an alert sounds, and the robot assaults thus have had the effect of keeping London in continued darkness.

Inasmuch as most of the Germans' coastal launching sites have been cleared, it is generally believed the flying bombs are being launched from planes.

Secret Weapon Seen by Neutrals

London, Sept. 21 — (CP) — Citizens of neutral countries who claim to have seen the Nazi "V-2" secret weapon, believed to be a rocket bomb, say it looks "like a flying telegraph pole with a trail of flame," London newspapers declared today.

The neutrals say the projectile is about five feet in diameter and 50 feet long, carrying a ton of explosive and nine tons of secret fuel for motive power.

They described it as a long range weapon useful against targets hundreds of miles away and say it has an extremely high trajectory.

Propaganda Minister Goebbels has announced that the new terror weapon is ready for use, the newspapers said.

THE VALUE OF CALCIUM

Contributing cause of the common nutritional deficiency in children, growing youths, young and mature adults—remember what Sherman said—no, no, not Gen. Wm. Tecumseh but Prof. Henry Clapp Sherman, Columbia University—you don't? Tch, tch, tch! How many times must I tell you Sherman said (Chemistry of Food and Nutrition, Macmillan, '37): "A food supply may appear liberal and varied, and yet unless milk and green leaf vegetables are well represented it may be calcium-poor. Hence the ordinary mixed diet of Americans and Europeans, at least among dwellers in cities and towns, is probably more often deficient in calcium than in any other chemical element."

Contributing to this calcium deficiency in childhood, youth, early, middle and mature adult life, is the combination of habits, customs, circumstances and obsessions which in one way or another discourage, forbid or prevent exposure to sunshine or skyshine. Such exposure to direct or diffuse sunlight is the natural way for the body to manufacture vitamin D, and vitamin D is essential for the normal assimilation, utilization and retention of calcium (and phosphorus). So it is necessary not only to include plenty of milk (or milk products) and green leaf vegetables in the daily diet, but to expose the body to sunlight or daylight, or else take as a supplement to the diet a good daily ration of vitamin D, to insure normal calcium metabolism or utilization.

Aside from prevention or relief of rickets and tetany, and the function of calcium and vitamin D (and phosphorus)—calcium seems to regulate phosphorus metabolism, or perhaps it is more accurate to say vitamin D maintains the balance between calcium and phosphorus—in the formation of normal bones and teeth and protection against dental caries (decay of teeth an adequate daily intake of calcium and vitamin D, at least in my opinion, prevents or relieves a great many of the vague disabilities which sufferers commonly call "chronic rheumatism." Indeed this is precisely what I recommend in the pamphlet "Calcium and Rheumatis" which you may have on request (a clipping is not a request) if you inclose a stamped envelope bearing your address. Mind, though, this is not a cure-all for joint diseases.

If it seems at all inconsistent to ascribe to calcium and vitamin D such influence on bones, teeth, muscles and nerves or on ailments involving such widely different tissue or structures, don't let it worry you. We haven't told you the half of it—calcium and vitamin D have great influence on the coagulability or clotting time of the blood and on the force of the heartbeat and one with calcium and vitamin D deficiency is more likely to bleed excessively from minor wounds and to have poor circulation because of weakness of heart action.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Low Basal Metabolism

Please tell me what doctors mean by low basal metabolism and the treatment for such condition. (Mrs. P. M. C.)

Answer—If a doctor uses such terms in giving his opinion or advice to a patient the patient should interrupt him, if the doctor fails to explain, and ask him what it means.

Round Back

Is there any way one can get rid of a rounded back from not standing correctly? Can it be cured by exercise, massage or a brace or supporter of any kind? (E. L. J.)

Answer—Round back, round shoulders, anterior-postural deformity, weak back, spinal curvature, kyphosis are different names for the condition. Neglect of physical education in school, silly wearing of high heels in girlhood, rickets in childhood, other nutritional deficiencies are common causes. Send ten cents and stamped envelope bearing your address, for booklet "V-I-T-E Spells Youth." Massage or brace or other artificial support can be of little avail so far as correction is concerned. Proper exercises, suited to the individual condition, contribute much to correction.

Berlin Threatens To Execute 40 Hostages If Caruso Executed

London, Sept. 21 —(CP)— The Berlin radio declared today that 40 hostages in the hands of Italian Fascists behind the German lines in Northern Italy will be shot if former Rome Police Chief Pietro Caruso, now on trial for his life in Rome, is convicted and executed.

Among the hostages, the broadcast declared, is Jose Togliatti whose brother is Foreign Minister in the government of Premier Ivanoe Bonomi.

Caruso, who headed the Rome Police during the last four months of the German occupation, is accused of turning 50 hostages over to the Germans for execution.

German Prison Camp Conditions Considered Generally Satisfactory

Ottawa, Sept. 21 — (CP) — Conditions at two German prison camps where Canadian naval personnel and merchant seamen are held are considered generally satisfactory, the Wartime Information Board reported today in a press release.

The two camps — Marlag for naval prisoners and Milag for merchant seamen — are located in a sandy uncultivated area surrounded by pine trees. At Milag last April there were 113 Canadians out of a total of 3,080 prisoners and at Marlag, where men from the destroyer Athabaska were recently taken, there were 11 Canadians among the 1,002 prisoners.

All prisoners are British and include English, Irish, Australian, New Zealanders, South Africans, Maltese, Egyptians and Indians. To date there are 129 Canadian naval and merchant seamen in German hands, 41 of them officers and 88 ratings.

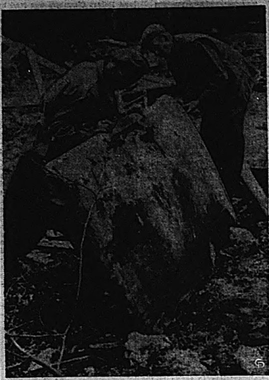
CANADIANS IN FLYING BOMB AREA



Two Canadian soldiers are shown inspecting the wings of a flying bomb which they discovered on a captured launching site at Genevieve, south of Dieppe. During their advance into the flying bomb country Canadians have found much evidence that a large number of the buzz bombs launched against southern England failed to reach their target, crashing into the fields near the launching sites.

First Lord of Admiralty Visits Frigate Commanded by Belleville Boy

Ottawa, Sept. 21. (CP)—Rt. Hon. A. V. Alexander, First Lord of the British Admiralty, recently visited the new Canadian frigate Loch Achanalt at a Scottish port and paid tribute to Canada as a maritime power.

"Canada has the fighting prowess the seamanship and the productive ability to operate successfully ships of war and ships of commerce", said Mr. Alexander.

Mr. Alexander, who presented the ship a phonograph and recordings from his wife, addressed the crew from a gun platform, Naval Service Headquarters said in a press release.

He told them he did not know what Britain would have done without the Canadian Navy during the dark days of the Battle of the Atlantic.

"Britain", he said, "is very proud of you—and we are proud to work and fight with you. You, too, should be proud of the part you have played. It does my heart good to think of the men in the Canadian frigates and destroyers who are fighting down in the Channel. They are doing a magnificent job".

The First Lord told the men of Loch Achanalt that they had "about the latest and best frigate" turned out by a British shipyard.

"We now begin to see the victorious end of this struggle", he concluded. "We were all determined, even in the darkest days, that we should see a victorious end. We should keep together to conquer the problems and difficulties we shall meet when the war is over".

H.M.C.S. Loch Achanalt is under the command of Lt. R. W. Hart, son of Mr. Robt. Hart, Belleville.

2 Juvenile Gangs Cause Near Riot, Are Rounded Up

Quebec, Sept. 21 — (CP)—Quebec City police had their hands full last night in rounding up a crowd of juveniles, ranging in age from 10 to 15, who caused a near riot in the streets of St. Charles and St. Esprit parishes.

Two gangs, numbering about 200 each and armed with a wide variety of weapons, were prepared to do battle and a few skirmishes resulted before police stepped in and ended the affair.

The youngsters lined up in battle array in support of their leaders—one of whom lost his "sweetie" to the leader of the rival group. Fighting broke out Tuesday night but the crowd was not as large as that last night.

As the boys faced each other for the great battle, hatchets, knives, clubs and other weapons were seen. Police said many of them suffered injuries but "none seriously."

TELLS OF FIGHT

Los Angeles, Sept. 21 — (AP) — Movie actor Jon Hall told the Grand Jury that investigated his battle with band leader Tommy Dorsey on the balcony of the musician's Hollywood apartment last month that Dorsey hit him "with a big black thing that came up and struck me between the eyes," and that Mrs. Dorsey cut him with a knife or bottle. The transcript of Hall's testimony was filed yesterday with the clerk of the Superior Court.

Monthly Liquor Ration in Ontario May Be Increased

Toronto, Sept. 21 (CP)—An increase in the monthly liquor ration in Ontario and a decrease in the ration in Quebec may be announced "very soon" by authorities in the two provinces, it was learned reliably today by The Canadian Press.

It was understood that the Ontario ration would be increased from 26 ounces every two months to 26 ounces a month and that the Quebec ration would be reduced to 40 ounces a month from its present 80-ounce level. It was considered likely the two provinces will take action independently and that any announcements would not necessarily come simultaneously.

There have been recurrent reports that Ontario's ration would be doubled soon, some placing the effective date at Oct. 1 and others Dec. 1.

It also was understood that the Dominion government plans to retain its wartime restriction on the amount of liquor and wine which may be released for sale annually.

The Canadian Press learned that early this summer the Dominion government, following pressure from the Ontario government, had considered lifting the restrictions. However, it is understood the situation has been reviewed and that Dominion officials have decided against any change.

Reasons for the proposed reduction in the Quebec ration were not known immediately but it was understood that the Liquor Control Board of Ontario has ample supplies in warehouses to provide for doubling the existing ration.

POLICE COURT

Taking of evidence arising out of two highway accidents following which motorists were charged with careless driving and failure to signal intention of turning off highway, occupied most of the time in the regular weekly county police court this morning. The accused were found guilty in both instances and assessed the regular fine and costs.

Assistant Crown Attorney S. G. Robertson acted as prosecutor.

Wilbur Sherry, Tyendinaga township, and John W. Hamilton both paid $5 fine and $2.50 costs for negligence arising out of an accident which occurred on Sept. 9th in Thurlow township. Mr. E. E. Followell acted as counsel for Hamilton, while A. B. Collins represented Sherry in the case. Constable J. R. McKay was complainant.

"I can't see the point of these unavoidable accidents," commented Magistrate Lloyd as he found the two guilty of careless driving. "It is apparent that neither exercised sufficient caution when approaching the intersection.

Pilot Officer Wallace Burkart was found guilty of a charge of failing to signal an intended turn off the highway and was assessed $5 and costs. The accident in question occurred west of the cemetery crossing on Highway No. [illegible] a patrol car driven by Provincial Constable Duncan collided with the Burkart car as it was turning off the highway. Evidence deduced showed that Burkart had failed to signal his intended turn off the highway with the result that the following patrol car had crashed into it in attempting to pass. Mr. Chas. Payne acted as counsel for the accused.

For having loose gasoline coupons in his possession, Bruce Russell of Toronto was assessed $25 and costs or a month in jail in default. A charge of speeding against Frederick Moyes was enlarged, while Albert Labreque paid $17.50 out of court on a like charge. G. William Dickson paid $12.50 for failure to have a driving permit, while Mildred Sianchuck was fined $10 and costs for misrepresenting her age in procuring a beer book.

New York, Sept. 21 —(AP)— Japan is confronted with a serious shortage of fuel for both industrial and domestic use this winter as a result of a slump in the production of firewood and charcoal, the Tokyo radio indicated in a broadcast reported today by United States government monitors. The broadcaster attributed the slump chiefly to a labor shortage and to transportation difficulties.

Psychiatric Study Valuable to Doctor

London, Sept. 21. (CP)—Dr. R. D. Gillespie, physician for psychological medicine at Guy's Hospital, advocating the value of psychiatry to the family doctor, suggests in the British Medical Journal that it enables unnecessary operations to be avoided.

He recalls an appendicitis operation which disclosed a normal appendix and which a knowledge of pyschology could have avoided; afterwards he noticed the man was inordinately fond of self display.

"The experience of an unnecessary operation is very impressive", adds Dr. Gillespie. "I have known such operations to be performed for broken hearts, angry fathers, sexual guilt, depression of spirits, anxiety of all sorts and even on account of mistaken pride—the patient herself knowing that she had no physical ailment really, but lacking the courage to tell her parents that she had simply been [illegible] demonstration and was not ill at all.

"In that instance the play went on and the appendix came out and the patient was no better a character afterwards, rather the reverse.

WEDDINGS

BENSON—CHAMBERS

A quiet Autumn wedding was solemnized at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Manse, Kingston, at 10.30 Monday morning, September 18, when the Rev. J. Forbes Wedderburn united in marriage, Mary Jean, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Chambers, of Napanee, and Clinton W., second son of Mrs. Victoria Benson and the late William Benson, of Ivanhoe, Ont.

The young bride looked charming in a street length dress of pale blue wool crepe with brown accessories. Her corsage was of American Beauty roses and she wore an engraved gold locket, gift of the groom. The bride was attended by her only sister, Miss Margaret Chambers, who was attractively gowned in a gold wool crepe dress with black accessories and corsage of mauve asters and pink roses.

The groom was attended by Dr. G W. Kinsman of the K.G.H. interning staff.

Following the marriage ceremony, the happy young couple left for Niagara Falls and points west. For travelling, the bride chose a brown tailored suit and a tuxedo styled topcoat of soldier's blue.

The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was an engraved sterling silver bracelet and to the best man a wallet.

On their return the young couple will reside at 186 Sydenham St., Kingston. The bride is a graduate of the Ontario Hospital.

ROWLANDS—PAGE

Nursing Sister Gladys Mary Page became the bride of Flight Lieutenant Ross Readman Rowlands, at a pretty wedding which was solemnized in King Street United Church, Oshawa, on Tuesday afternoon, September 12. Both the bride and groom are attached to the R.C.A.F.; the bride stationed at Trenton, and the bridegroom at Greenwood, N.S. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Floyd Page, Enniskillen, and the bridegroom is the son of Rev. and Mrs. Ernest Rowlands of Bermuda.

Rev. J. M. White of Toronto, performed the ceremony, assisted by Rev. J. V. McNeely. Mrs. Harvey Stone of Toronto, played the wedding music and Mrs. George Foster of Stratford, was vocal soloist. Palms, ferns, and gladioli formed the floral setting for the ceremony which took place at four o'clock.

The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Cecil Branton. She wore a gown of white satin, fashioned on Princess lines. Her fingertip length veil was arranged from a Queen Ann headdress and she carried a bouquet of white roses and bouvardia.

Miss Clara Page, of Toronto, was maid of honor and Nursing Sister Wilhelmina Allen, of Trenton, was bridesmaid. The attendants were gowned alike in blue silk jersey with blue flowered hats, blue accessories and carried cascade bouquets of pink gladioli.

Flight Lieutenant Frederick Holwood of Winnipeg, was groomsman, and the ushers were Harvey R. Stone and Clyde Clapperton, cousin of the bride, both of Toronto.

A reception was held at the Genosha Hotel, where the guests were received by the bridal party, and Mrs. Page, who wore a navy blue brocaded sheer gown, a corsage of American Beauty roses, and by Mrs. Rowlands, mother of the bridegroom, who wore mid blue crepe, brown accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

Flight Lieut. and Mrs. Rowlands left for St. Jovite, in the Laurentians, where they will spend their honeymoon at Gray Rocks Inn. For travelling the bride wore a wood brown suit, with matching accessories, brown squirrel furs and a corsage of gardenias. The bride and groom will later return to their R.C.A.F. stations.

Among the out-of-town guests at the wedding were Mrs. Robert Rowlands, grandmother of the bridegroom, Trenton; Nursing Sisters Marie Garry and Opal Shaw, also of Trenton.

KEAST—McNULTY

The Sanctuary of the Church of Christ The King, Sudbury, Ont., was the scene of a very lovely September wedding on Monday, the 4th, at nine o'clock in the morning, of Mary Genevieve (Jean) McNulty, daughter of Mr. James McNulty, of Timmins, and the late Mrs. McNulty, and niece of Mrs. Martin Horne, 210 Edmund St., Sudbury, to Hugh Richard Harold Keast, attached to the R.C.N.V.R., and son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Harold Keast, of Copper Cliff. The Nuptial Mass was celebrated by the Rev. Father Dwyer and served by George Keast, brother of the groom, and Ronald Horne, cousin of the bride.

Autumn flowers in a profusion of multi bloom formed the impressive floral setting for the occasion. Mrs. Albert Perras, of Copper Cliff, presided at the console of the organ, and played softly throughout the ceremony and at the signing of the register. Miss Monica Keast, sister of the groom, as soloist, delightfully rendered "Ave Maria", "What Could My Jesus Do More", and "On This Day, O Beautiful Mother".

Entering the church on the arm of her cousin, Mr. Basil Horne, who gave her in marriage to the strains of the Bridal March from Lohengrin, the bride was wearing a model of white slipper satin and lace, classically simple in style, fashioned with a sheath-tight bodice, softly gathered skirt and long sleeves ending in points over her wrists. Accentuating the sweetheart neckline was a single strand of pearls. Her veil of embroidered tulle illusion draped softly about her head from a Queen Anne headdress and fell to the floor in a slight train. She carried a cascade bouquet of pink and white roses.

Miss Norma Jean Spiers, cousin of the bride, was her only attendant. She was attired in a floor length gown with a blush pink sheer full sweeping skirt and maroon velvet top, complemented with wing sleeves, sweetheart neckline and tight fitting bodice. Atop her head, she wore an elegant coronet headdress of maroon velvet misted with blush pink veiling. She carried an old fashioned nosegay of pink and white rosebuds.

Pilot Officer John Keast attended his brother as best man, and the ushers were Clarence Keast, also a brother of the groom, and Hugh Finn.

A wedding breakfast following the ceremony was held at the Inco Club in Sudbury. Mrs. Martin Horne received the guests wearing a two piece crepe ensemble in chocolate brown shade, with matching hat and accessories. She was assisted by the groom's mother, who chose for the occasion a lavender crepe suit accented with brown accessories. Both wore corsages of Bettertimes roses.

In the afternoon, Mrs. Horne entertained at a reception at her home in honor of the bride and groom.

On the honeymoon to Muskoka, the bride selected for travelling a royal blue wool suit, black hat and accessories and corsage of red roses.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding included Mrs. Norman Spiers and Norma Jean Spiers, Detroit, Michigan; Miss Margaret Ethier, Belleville, Ont., PO. Keast, Winnipeg, Manitoba.

Five Generations

Very seldom are to be found in a group five generations all of the same sex. The above picture shows Mrs. John Gilroy of Coe Hill, who celebrated her 86th birthday on August 30, with her daughter, Mrs. Elisha Ash, Madoc, Ont., her granddaughter, Mrs. Herb Kellar, of Thomasburg, Ont., her great granddaughter, Mrs. Alton Switzer, of Belleville, Ont., and great great granddaughter, Baby Sheila Switzer, nine months old, who seems quite interested in her great great grandmother. In spite of Mrs. Gilroy's advanced age she is still quite active and recalls many happenings in the pioneer days of Wollaston Township, where she has spent about 65 years.

Front Row: Left to Right—Mrs. Elisha Ash, Madoc; Baby Sheila Switzer, Belleville, and Mrs. John Gilroy, Coe Hill.

Just about the best buy for the woman who leads a busy social life which entails dining out and the theatre, is a beautifully made street-length suit of black satin. Such a suit can be dressed up to opulent heights, or it can be severely toned down to subdued elegance. Sets of jet or rhinestone buttons that takes but a few minutes to sew on, help to set the mood of the occasion.

CANADIAN GOVT. FOLLOWING TERMS FINN ARMISTICE

No Indication in Treaty Announcement Whether Transfer of Petsamo Includes Nickel Holdings

Ottawa, Sept. 21 —(CP)— The Canadian government is following closely the terms of the armistice between Finland and Russia in connection with its effect on the properties of the International Nickel Company of Canada in the Petsamo region.

External Affairs Department, however, are not ready to disclose any information on the matter. It is assumed that since the area is to be transferred to Russia the question will be one for communications between Canada and the Soviet government through L. D. Wilgress, Canadian ambassador in Moscow.

Sudbury, Sept. 21 —(CP)— R. L. Beattie, vice-president and general manager of International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd. which has large nickel-copper holdings in the Petsamo region of Finland, said Tuesday night he has no idea whether those holdings will be affected by terms of the Russo-Finnish peace treaty.

The treaty is reported to cede the Petsamo region to Russia.

"There is no indication in the treaty announcement as to whether the transfer of Petsamo will include our holdings," said Mr. Beattie. "Our Finnish workings are at Salmijaervi, about 30 miles southwest of Petsamo, so they may not be included in the deal.

But company officials expressed general agreement that any demands by Russia for Petsamo territory would be with the objective of obtaining the rich nickel deposits of that region rather than an Arctic port in Finland.

The Mond Nickel Co., an International Nickel subsidiary, in 1934 obtained a concession to prospect and explore for nickel in the Petsamo fjord region, about 600 miles north of Helsinki.

The company's mine was within three months of the production stage when Russo-Soviet hostilities broke out in November, 1940. Russian planes bombed Samijaervi and Petsamo Dec. 1 that year but information on any damage to the mine property was never officially determined by officials here.

Robombs Strike Third Night in Row

London, Sept. 21 —(CP)— For the third night in succession the Germans struck at London and southern counties with flying bombs Tuesday night.

Although the attack was not heavy compared with previous robot assaults, considerable damage was done to homes in scattered areas. A fire watcher was among the fatalities.

The new assault gave added weight to the warnings of government officials that the danger is not over. There were indications that the number of returning evacuees was diminishing.

Mess Room Chatter Of Canada's Airmen

(By The Canadian Press.)

With The R.C.A.F. Overseas, Sept. 21 (CP)—Normandy is still chuckling over the escapade of one squadron of Allied pilots who, in their "aerial runabouts", flew over the battlefield in top-hats as a long-nose" gesture at the Luftwaffe.

They were flying the Taylorcraft Auster, the homely little artillery spotter which lives with the troops and parks on tiny waste plots or roadways.

When they went out on a section of the Normandy front recently, every pilot of the Squadron was wearing a top-hat.

As they flew low over the infantry, the pilots solemnly doffed their toppers, to the delight of the soldiers on the ground.

"It's good for the morale of the troops," grinned one of the pilots afterwards.

A German JU88 either carrying a mine or a large bomb slung externally, was blown up in the air by Wing Commander George Abner Hilts of St. Stephen, N.B., commanding officer of the R.C.A.F. "Cougar" night-fighter squadron over Normandy beaches.

FO. Ivan Smith, former resident of Calgary, who flies a Typhoon fighter-bomber in Normandy was lucky when he forced-landed among the trees near St. Germain d'Ectot. As he climbed from the crumpled fuselage several members of the Royal Engineers arrived and informed him they were engaged in blowing up the enemy mines all around the area. He had landed in a clear spot.

Armament crews on a Normandy Typhoon fighter-bomber field have discovered a peacetime use for hand-operated air-raid warning sirens. They found, during recent equipment tests, that the sirens hold a strange attraction for cows on neighboring farms.

More than 110 airmen of the City of Saskatoon squadron are taking correspondence courses in subjects running from mathematics to farming psychology and music. FO. Bob Hogg of Saskatoon, squadron educational officer, who taught at Elstone, Sask., before the war, says about 35 per cent of them are seriously studying to qualify themselves for the educational schemes provided by the Government for discharged service personnel. Most of the remainder are just brushing up or keeping themselves up-to-date with subjects they feel will be useful.

Canadian Army Polish Troops Advance Farther Into Holland

By CHARLES LYNCH
(Reuter War Correspondent)

With the 1st Canadian Army, Sept. 21 —(CP Reuter)— Polish troops of the 1st Canadian Army drove farther into The Netherlands and now have elements in Zaamstag, four miles south of Terneuzen on the west bank of the Schelde.

The Germans are withdrawing in face of the Polish onslaught across the Hulst canal. The Poles have two bridges over the canal and are reported to have captured the towns of Hulst and Axel.

This is the first sign in more than a week of German resistance slackening in the Schelde area.

To the northwest, Canadian troops have captured Assenede on the Belgian-Netherlands frontier but are still facing heavy going in the flooded terrain.

Fighting continues southwest of Boulogne where 3,000 Germans are holding out. The prisoner count now is more than 3,000 in the assault.

The river Liane, which flows through Boulogne, has been bridged and forces are pouring across to deliver the final blow to the remnants of the garrison.

So far the commander of the Boulogne garrison has shown no signs of surrender in spite of the hopelessness of his position, but the end is believed not far away.

Mopping-up continues east of the Liane and also to the north of Boulogne in the direction of Cap Gris Nez where German pockets are still holding out.

Polish Army Women Describe Nazi War

Toronto, Sept. 21 —(CP)— Sgt. Stefania Soltan, one of six members of the Polish Women's Army in Canada to visit detachments of the Canadian Women's Army Corps describes her battlefield experiences in the front line of the regular Polish army as "just bombs, gunfire and hard work—sometimes for 24 hours a day."

Sgt. Soltan, a tall, shy girl who wears the Cross of Valor, a decoration given only to men, was one of the first two women to see service with the regular Polish army. A nurse at the time of the German invasion of Poland, she fought with Gen. Sigorski's First Highland Brigade in France and Norway.

"The Germans were advancing over the mountains," she said, describing her early experiences in actual combat. "We were on the heights and behind us in the valley was a small village. I had to carry supplies up the lines. care for the wounded and prepare food.

"Someday, I'll be able to say more about it than I can now."

The group of Polish servicewomen is in Canada under the charge of Capt. Irena Grozda whose home city is Lwow, one of the most devastated battle areas of Poland. She and her five charges were all in Poland when the Nazis over-ran their country in 1939. All are trained to use rifles, machine-guns and grenades.

"We can take care of the enemy when we come up against him," promises Capt. Grozda.

Birmingham, England, Sept. 21—(CP)— Employees resumed work yesterday in the Austin Auto Factory here where 15,000 staged a two day sit-down. They went on strike over wages, challenging the contention that the automobiles produced constitute war work. Negotiations will be resumed.

PROBLEM OF CARE OF WAR-RAVAGED FOLK IS BIG TASK

Reports Heard From Military Officers on Survey of Situation

PRODUCTION

By CLYDE BLACKBURN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, Sept. 21—(CP) Differences of opinion over the extent to which relief may be given peoples of enemy countries dominates the second meeting of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration council meeting which continues here.

Otherwise the council is proceeding with its planning for the world's most comprehensive, relief effort with the feeling that the problem of caring for war-ravaged people is as big today as it was when UNRRA was organized last November.

Tuesday the council heard reports from military officers assigned to survey the situation which govern the decisions in liberated countries as to when the military relief will end and civilian relief, UNRRA or local organizations, take over.

It also heard exhaustive reports from the combined production boards in Washington their ability to supply the commodities UNRRA will need when it takes over in any area.

William L. Batt, for the combined Production and Resources Board, Sir Charles Hambro for the Combined Raw Material Board, and George Patterson, of Ottawa, for the Combined Food Board, reported for those organizations and told what they had been doing for the military organizations and what they might be expected to do for UNRRA.

Vast Relief Organization.

From all the reports received it was made apparent that this vast relief organization, which already has 1,500 employees in a budget of about $2,000,000,000 will be called upon to function immediately the military authorities feel that a country has been sufficiently cleared and reorganized to hand over to civilian authorities and that it will have full support of existing war production agencies.

The present meeting, held in accordance with the constitution which requires a council meeting twice a year, offers an opportunity for member governments to make any complaints or suggestions that may occur to them regarding the future operations of the organization.

From now until the meeting ends it is expected there will be few open meetings but the work will be carried on in committees sitting in camera.

A move is afoot to bring forward a definite resolution to spend $50,000,000 on Italian relief, and to amend the constitution regarding enemy countries to take care, at least, of the transfer of displaced people back to their homes in an orderly and healthy way.

Tito's Partisans Suffer Reverse In Loss of Valjevo

Bari, Italy, Sept. 21 —(AP)— Marshal Tito's Yugoslav partisan forces suffered one of their first major reverses in the current border-to-border offensives with the loss of Valjevo to the German counter-attacks, reports reaching here said.

Valjevo, southwest of Belgrade, was taken late last week by the partisans' 1st and 12th corps in a drive on the capital which also netted Lajkovac, 15 miles beyond. Sunday a German tank column, moving down the highway from Belgrade, succeeded in clearing it of celebrating partisans.

On the other hand latest reports reaching here contained news of additional partisan victories, particularly in Albania where the important town of Berat, 45 miles south of Tiran fell to the National Liberation Forces. Reports said the Germans set fire to the town before fleeing.

BATAWA BOMBERS ONLY GAME AWAY FROM ONT. TITLE

Defeat Grimsby "Peach Kings" at Bata Diamond Wednesday Evening

SCORE IS 12-4

Batawa "Bombers" are just one game away from a provincial intermediate "C" softball championship today as the result of a classy 12-4 win over the Grimsby "Peach Kings" on the Bata diamond on Wednesday evening. The return game will be played on the Grimsby diamond on Saturday afternoon when a win for the Bombers will give them the Ontario Championship.

With "Buck" Stacey pitching steady ball to set the visitors down with only five hits, the Bombers had little trouble in setting down the Grimsby threat. He limited them to one run until the last inning when they got to him for a few safeties and three runs, but the damage had been done. Bombers collected 13 hits, including three homers, off the delivery of Cocks, the Grimsby hurler who went the route.

Stacey aided his own cause with a mammoth homer in the fifth inning which scored two ahead of him and put his team well out in front. The homesters went into the lead in the first inning, added five in the fifth, three in the sixth, two in the 7th, and got their final counter in the eighth canto. The visitors got their first run in the sixth, being set down almost in order up to that period.

Adding to Stacey's home run performance were round trippers clouted by Aquino and Austin which assisted materially in upping the Bomber score against their opposition.

The Teams—Grimsby: Cocks p; Kelter 2b; Julkie 3b; Comfort ss; Fox 1b; Schwab c; Belcott cf; Lawson lf and Lane rf. Bombers: Ellis lf; Peacock cf; Austin 1b; Stacey p; Aquino c; Muffitt 3b; Kutasinki rf; Stojan 2b and Cook ss.

New York, Sept. 21—(AP)—Major Connie Smythe not only made this corner's prediction look good when he turned down the National Hockey League presidency but he tooted the whistle on a situation that seriously handicaps one of the biggest winter sports. Listen to these remarks from Connie, who never hesitated to throw his weight around for the benefit of his Toronto club: "The league needs a leader with the power of a Judge Landis, full authority to direct affairs, and not a social secretary. Today the president makes a ruling and it can be wiped out by an appeal to the Board of Governors. All wrong. Let the governors make rulings but let the president have final authority. It's time we had a real hockey boss."

Sport Shorts From Britain

By ALLAN NICKLESON

London, Sept. 20 (CP)—Jewish Al Phillips who survived a torpedoing and dive-bombing at sea to become top challenger for the British featherweight boxing championship, probably will wear the crown before long.

The 24-year-old Londoner earned the right to meet the 38-year-old titleholder, Nel Tarleton of Liverpool by defeating the other top-ranking challenger, Len Davies of Wales, in a London bout. Hardly was the fight over before the London Queensberry Club, despite threat of buzz-bombs which has hit at spectator attendance in the London entertainment world, opened negotiations for the title bout.

Old Nel, however, has not yet agreed to such a bout and there is a slim possibility he may retire as undefeated champion. A sergeant in the R.A.F., he is not compelled to defend his crown as long as he is in the services.

But most fight fans considered it proof of Nel's keenness to defend the title when he accepted a non-title bout with Johnny King, British bantamweight champion, and beat him over eight rounds a few nights ago at Nottingham. If Tarleton, Britain's oldest fight champion does meet Phillips, boxing followers believe he will bow out before superior hitting power.

Phillips was in the Merchant Navy before the war, then transferred to the Royal Navy and was aboard a ship that carried troops for raids on Norway. Now he is on war work as a tailor's cutter.

Maj. Hedworth Barclay, third leading figure to pass from the British turf at a ripe old age, died at Edinburgh at the age of 85. World-renowned Lord Lonsdale was 87 when he died last April and Mrs. Tom Chalonder, only woman ever to hold a trainer's licence in Britain, was 98 when she died last March.

Oldest of present-day racehorse owners, Maj. Barclay was one of the most prominent racing figures 40 to 50 years ago. He first became famous with Bendigo, who won the 1883 Cambridgeshire by a neck at 50-1 and became a public idol.

Holly Gourlay, former English golf champion and now a chief commander in the A.T.S., has been appointed to command all ATS, Canadian CWACS and American WACS who will serve under General Montgomery at rear headquarters of the 21st Army Group.

Before posting to her present job, Miss Gourlay was an ATS quartermaster.

More than 100 greyhounds, including Jubilee Time, most valuable greyhound in the world, escaped when a flying bomb fell near their kennels "Somewhere in Southern England." The kennels were destroyed and some of the dogs buried, but none was seriously injured.

Several dogs broke loose but were rounded up. A trainer and several kennel boys were buried by the bomb but they too escaped injury. Jubilee Time cost its owner $11,000.

AIRBORNE CATTLE INDIA TO BURMA

New Delhi, —(CP)— One job given to Australian airmen in India was that of flying cattle into Burma. The first step involved camouflage. White animals were painted with permanganate and turned into brunettes.

They were then walked into the planes and thrown and tied. Later they were lashed into bamboo stalls. The airmen also flew in mules and ponies, but these were less troublesome than the cattle.

RELIANCE GIRLS GO ONE UP ON SWACO LASSIES

Winners Made Their Hits Count Scoring Two in Third

FINAL COUNT 3-1

An error of judgment coupled with playing miscue which gave the Reliance girls two runs in the third inning was all that Tillie Donihee's lassies needed Wednesday evening to go one game up on their SWACO opposition in the local girls' softball finals.

The series now stands at two games to one for the Reliance girls with the best-in-seven series to be continued on Friday evening. Last night's game which the Reliance won by a close 3-1 count was a replay of Monday evening's deadlock, and incidentally, was one of the best played games of the current season, being played in considerably under the hour mark.

Although outhit by a comparative wide margin by the Stewart-Warner girls the Reliance lassies took advantage as opportunity presented itself and made their hits count. Reliance batters counted only three hits and earned only one of their three runs, while SWACO cuffed Millie Foster's offerings for seven bingles but the Reliance hurler was unbeatable in the pinches.

SWACO got runners aboard in both the first and second cantos but snappy fielding nipped in the bud any scoring threat. In the third Norma Stairs beat out a bunt for Reliance, Millie Foster drew a walk and both moved up on a passed ball. Lois Calcutt then took the out at first instead of playing home on Buker's hit and Reliance went into the lead. Foster then scored on an error making the count two and nothing.

SWACO got their only run in the fourth as Haslip was safe on an error and scored on Kelleher's single. First two batters for Reliance walked in the sixth with Wright scoring on an error.

Kelleher was the only batter to get more than one hit with Colden and Corneal counting doubles for SWACO. Reliance hits were all of the one base variety.

Lineups:

SWACO—Fralick, Meens, Colden, Rowbotham, Haslip, Corneal, Kelleher, Ronsky and Calcutt.

Reliance—Buker, Wright, Colden, Garrow, Elliott, Blaind, Stairs, Coathup and Foster.

NORMAN DUTTON GOES TO SEA

Ottawa, Sept. 21—(CP)—Seaman Norman Dutton, 19, son of Red Dutton, managing director of the National Hockey League, is at sea on the Canadian destroyer Assiniboine after 16 months of irksome training, hoping to even the score a bit for his family.

His brothers — Joe and Alex — Flight Sergeants in the R. C. A. F. have been reported missing over Germany.

Young Dutton's action station on board the Assiniboine puts him behind the business end of an Oerlikon gun. When he's had a good crack at Jerry, he hopes to take up a hockey career, cut short when he was playing left wing for River Cale in the Eastern United States Amateur League. He was only 17 at the time.

Does he expect to make good in professional hockey?

"My dad thinks I will."

Imperial Grattan Free-for-All Winner at Fair

Defeated Second Heat When Line Broke and Horse Ran Away

GOOD RUNNING RACE

Imperial Grattan after running away when the bike hit an obstacle in the second heat came back to win the final heat of the Free-For-All in connection with the last day's racing at the Belleville Fair on Wednesday afternoon. R. A. Grattan, his chief opposition won the second heat. In the 2.15 class Audrey Scott proved a good race mare by winning this class after having won the previous afternoon. Her owner Richard Scott of Toronto, stated he was giving his mare a good rest from now 'till the Picton races.

The competition in the two classes was not as keen as that of Tuesday but the large crowd were out to have a good time and they enjoyed the program provided. A feature of the afternoon's sport was the appearance of Baldwin in the fast class. This horse raced here in his younger days but time has taken its toll and the horse is not yet in condition for a hard race, yet he showed some of his oldtime brilliance by going to the front each half but from there home ran out of steam. He is the perfect pacer and still keen to get in there and muck with the best of them.

Imperial Grattan easily won the first heat but in the second, the bike struck an obstacle, the line broke and the horse galloped away but ran into the field at the backstretch and did no damage. His driver had him away well in the last heat and he came down the lane quickly to edge out R. A. Grattan. In the running race Rockville Rose easily disposed of a fine band of runners with Babe of Tralle taking second money. The results:

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 486

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Let's not quibble over three bids. What I am trying to say is, when we talk about an opening three bid, let's understand what kind of a bid of three we are talking about.

There are three bids and three bids; three no-trump, three spades, three hearts, three diamonds, or three clubs. But not all of them are alluded to merely as "three bids."

Three no-trump is spoken of as "three no-trump." Three diamonds or clubs is expressed as "three in a minor." And three spades or hearts is often pointed to as "three in a major."

However, a "three bid" is frequently referred to without stating what kind. When that happens, it means three in a major. If it is intended for any other bid of three, the word "no trump" or "minor" is added.

An opening three bid is an immediate double jump bid. And a double jump is the signal for showing length and strength. Which is exactly what an opening bid (in a major) shows.

How much length does a three bid show? A suit with at least seven cards. How much strength does a three bid show? A suit that is practically solid and at least one sure outside trick.

What is meant by a practically solid suit? A suit expecting to lose no more than one trick in it. Like seven cards with A K Q or any four honors. A sure outside trick is A or K Q in some other suit.

Typical of an opening three heart bid is this hand:

♠ 6
♥ K Q J 10 7 5 3
♦ K 3
♣ A Q 4

Notice that this hand contains a practically solid seven card heart suit. Notice also its sure trick in the outside club suit.

An opening three bid promises a hand that is too good for an opening one bid. And it promises a trump suit that is long enough and strong enough to need no support from partner.

A good bidder can always find a good bid.

Symthe Invited Back to Gardens

Toronto, Sept. 21 — (CP) — Directors of Maple Leaf Gardens at a meeting yesterday invited Major Conn Smythe to return to his position as managing director of the Gardens as soon as he recovers from wounds he received in Normandy. In the meantime they invited him to serve as a member of the executive committee of the Board of Directors.

Major Smythe, now convalescing in Chorley Park military hospital, announced Tuesday he would not accept the presidency of the National Hockey League offered to him by the N.H.L. Board of Governors.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Now Voyager"

The new Bette Davis positively will not lose her eyesight, chop off her lover's head, be tortured, take a beating, go to jail betray her husband, be tried for murder, or even sit on a cactus in the Warner Bros. picture, "Now Voyager".

On the contrary.

Miss Davis revels in a role any dramatic actress would give a new set of tires, or sugar rationing card to possess. She has three lovers (3) count 'em. She has 30 costumes by Orry-Kelly. She plays herself as a 20-year old Miss, as a 28-year-old bachelor girl, and as a smartly dressed, snick-snack young woman of the world in an up-swept hair-do.

Recent releases seemed to indicate that Miss Davis was reaching for new heights of insolence and selfishness in the kind of characters she chose to portray. Her "Little Foxes" part saw her an as archetype of the grasping woman, perhaps highlighted by the fact that the locale was in the South, where women ordinarily are soft-spoken. "In This Our Life" saw her mistreating pretty Olivia de-Havilland and stealing her man.

The change of character in "Now Voyager" is sudden, complete and probably healthy. Anyway as aforesaid, it's a holiday for Bette Davis.

Her lovers: Paul Henreid, the leading man with the Viennese manner; Charles Drake: very handsome, and John Loder, who has kissed most of the leading ladies of his day. Her costumes; modern, sleek and Park Avenue in the manner of Orry-Kelly. Her character; a complex thing, with neurosis, mother-hatred, love on mountain tops and all the overtones of despair and joy that are apple pie for actresses like Bette Davis.

For the first time in many pictures, Bette gets all the sympathy. There are few women who don't enjoy that. Miss Davis is very happy about everything especially her role.

The War Today—

Battle for Germany Is Begun, Will Be Decided in Netherlands

By J. M. ROBERTS, JR.
(Substituting For Dewitt Mackenzie)
Associated Press War Analyst

The battle for Germany, which for a time appeared likely to take place at the Rhine, has actually begun in the Netherlands and will be decided there.

That the Germans can take another terrible beating and yet retire once more in sufficient strength for any real further stand appears unlikely.

Reports from Arnhem sound grim. Allied troops are reported surrounded by a bitterly determined enemy. But they were trained for just such fighting. The Allied comanders have yet to blunder in western Europe. This morning's news that all airborne units south of Arnhem have linked up with the British 2nd Army is a strong indication that the battle to turn the northern end of the Siegfried line is still going, as the generals love to put it, "according to plan."

The Germans are fighting to save themselves in the very territory where they began the total war in May, 1940.

Plans Open to Allies.

Two plans of action, which may merge, seem to be open to the Allies. Holding tremendous German forces by strong attacks south of Holland, everything else can be thrown into an invasion of northwestern Germany, across the coastal plains to envelop the great German ports as those of France and the Low Country coasts have been enveloped. That would be the Russian system, with truly decisive blows farther south held in reserve.

On the other hand, the Allied campaign has developed almost like three separate wars and may continue that way.

The 7th Army on the extreme right flank has conducted its own private invasion, has cleaned up southern France and stands before Belfort, ready to invade southwestern Germany, probably the weakest area of Germany where there has been talk of forming provincial governments for separate truces.

The American 1st and 3rd armies have operated all along separately from, although in complete coordination with, Field Marshal Montgomery's British - Canadian forces nearer the coast, and are pointed toward the Cologne-Coblens area.

Arnhem is the first job. It is the key to the border and the great north German highway system. A gap there would pesmit the Allies to flow both east and south behind the Siegfried and Rhine defences, providing an anvil on which the three U.S. armies could pound the life out of Germany's entire western defences.

Predicts Italians in North Italy Will Resist Retreat of Germans

By DOUGLAS AMARON
(CP Staff Writer)

London, Sept. 21 — (CP)—Clement Attlee, Britain's deputy Prime Minister, predicted on his return from a visit to the Italian battlefront that the Germans, in their retreat through the industrial north of the peninsula, will meet resistance as hostile as that offered by the Maquis in France.

Mr. Attlee, declaring in an interview that the soldiers in Italy "have done a remarkable job in containing and smashing a strong German force," said that although they have been overshadowed by events in France, "nobody should under-estimate their achievements."

The Deputy Prime Minister, who followed Prime Minister Churchill to Italy, was at the front when Canadians, British, Indian and Polish troops breached the Golic Line and called this success "one of the finest feats of our arms in this war."

"The news from France has stimulated our men in Italy who now see the part they are playing in the grand strategy," he added.

Shortly after Mr. Attlee returned, another government minister went to the Italian theatre. He was L. S. Amery, secretary of state for India, who planned to visit Indian divisions with the 8th Army.

Controversy Over Saluting

Sir Percy Harris plans to ask Home Secretary Morrison in a parliamentary question to modify a saluting order issued to Wiltshire policemen by their chief constable, Col. Sir Hoel Llewellin.

The Colonel ordered all policemen and women in the county, on or off duty, to salute military officers. Salisbury Divisional Liberal Association asked Sir Percy to make an issue of this order which it considers "a step towards the establishment of militarism or perhaps Fascism."

Wiltshire police didn't take kindly to it either and with few exceptions have turned a blind eye to every army, navy and air force officer who came their way.

Wing Cmdr. Guy Gibson's decision not to accept a political career was a disappointment to many of his friends who had envisaged an easy entry for him to parliament at the next general election as MacClesfield's Conservative member. Gibson, dam-busting Victoria Cross holder, was offered the candidacy after the present member, Canadian-born Garfield Weston, announced he would not seek re-election.

Gibson's refusal precludes the possibility of two of this war's V.C. winners sitting [illegible] the Commons. Maj. Philip Sydney, V.C., is Conservative candidate [illegible] Chelsea by-election.

John 'Killer' Katan Loses Bout on Points to Sexton

Rasputin Wins and Loses in Bouts With Dunlop and Davis

A GOOD CARD

John "Killer" Katan lost a decision in a Belleville ring but he was not defeated. On Wednesday night, he gave Frank Sexton, the Pacific Adonis, a real going over but Sexton had a little too much class for Mr. Katan and Cliff Worthy, senior referee of the Commission awarded the bout to Sexton on points. Ivan Rasputin, the Mad Russian, was the work horse of the evening defeating Al Dunlop in the preliminary bout but was disqualified by Cliff Fox, when he apparently had Carl "Krippler" Davis in a bad way in the semi final joust, which was the closing bout of the card. It was apparent to a well filled arena that Fox had made a mistake in the bout with Rasputin because the Russian did not strike the referee as supposed. Davis did the dirty work on Fox.

In the main bout Katan started in where he left off on Sexton the previous week and put on a number of head locks and strangle holds that had Sexton hollering for mercy but through it all the Pacific Coast champ hurt the "Killer" plenty. His famous neck hold stood him in good stead and Katan was wary every time Sexton approached. Katan finally won the first fall when Sexton was prostrate from a stranglehold but Sexton came right back to win the prettiest fall of the night. Perched on the top strands of the ring ropes, Sexton put on a leg head lock and turning Katan in the air flung him heavily to the canvas and he heard the birdies sing. In the final fall Sexton had much the best of the argument although in trouble several times.

The Mad Russian certainly is a mean hombre and he gave both Dunlop and Davis a real going over in the preliminary and semi-final bouts. He gouged, kicked and bit and the wrestlers that opposed him had nothing to counter these fierce attacks. He will be welcomed back because he can take it as well as give it out. There will be three more bouts next Wednesday night.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By PHILIP BLOOMBERG
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Toronto, Sept. 21 —(CP)—(Advance)—A year ago there was some talk of the organization of a full-fledged professional or semi-pro' baseball league embracing several large cities in Ontario. However, due to the manpower and transportation situation at the beginning of the summer, the plans entertained—if there were any—were seemingly abandoned.

Besides the possibility of being a paying proposition, baseball men said the idea would help to revive the game after it had been at a low ebb for several years. However, even without the proposed league, the diamond game enjoyed a great year in the province and throughout the country.

Now it appears, in the light of recent events, that if baseball is to retain favor and be prevented from returning to its somewhat stagnant state of the late '30's, a professional league in some form is essential in the province . Similar conditions may exist in other sections of the country.

The Boom

This season's boom actually gained its birth several years ago, when it became apparent that the armed services would drain the leagues in Canada and the United States of many first-class players. Seeing the usual required standard of ability lowered, many aspirants flooded the game.

But now the warriors will soon return. Frank Shaughnessy, president of the International League, summed up the situation when he said that if the war ended this winter 75 per cent of the players in his loop likely would not be playing there next season. In general, that implies that very few Canadians will measure up to professional calibre in the next few years.

Although many of the better-than-average players developed in Western Canada, the Niagara District and the Pacific Coast may continue to play for the love of the game and its slight financial returns, baseball would hold little promise for the youngsters. And, after all, it's the kids who mould the future.

A professional loop in Ontario, and even in other parts of the country, could preserve and definitely improve the standard of play. Whether it could become a paying proposition would depend on the fans. Perhaps within 10 years they would be witnessing a Canadian "World Series."

CHAPTER 2

"Paul's wife", Mrs. Freund quietly explained. "We are waiting for the doctor".

"Oh, but I oughtn't to intrude at a time like this", Ann cried remorsefully.

"You are no bother. You are welcome". The old lady began to lay out a tray. "I'll take Paul something to eat. His wife does not like to be alone now".

"Couldn't I sit with her, while he has a bite down here with you?"

"Yah. That is sensible. A little rest will do him good. A little rest will do them both good".

Ann gulped down the last of a strong cup of coffee, and tiptoed through the darkened hall. A faint gleam from the landing above guided her up the stairs. She paused before an open door. Paul was sitting beside his wife, holding her hand. All the roughness was gone from him, all the seeming arrogance. Ann felt as if she had never seen such tenderness on a human countenance before. She felt as if she had no right to see it, for it was not meant for her. She moved back into the shadows.

A loose board creaked beneath her step. Paul looked up. Carefully, as though it were a piece of fragile china, he laid the small bloodless hand back on the counterpane, and tiptoed across the room out into the hall. "She's asleep", he whispered.

Ann nodded. She motioned him to go downstairs. "I'll stay".

For an instant, he seemed undecided. He glanced back into the room. "All right", he said finally. Ann felt as if a great compliment had been bestowed upon her.

Cautiously, she lowered herself into a low dressing chair beside a boudoir table which stood near the door. How like, in essence to the little satin mules. There was a silver toilet set, complete to its most useless implement. There was a regiment of perfume bottles, all empty except for one or two, and a huddle of photographs, some framed, some slipped into the mirror's edge. The largest of the framed ones occupied the centre of the table—a leonine headed man who seemed possessed of a superfluity of jaw. It was inscribed, in a great gush of ink, To Carol the best trooper in the business from Max the best Agent in the business.

Carol. Paul's wife. How did a girl from show business fit into the homely picture of an old blind woman and her son?

She knew suddenly that Carol was awake. She turned and met the puzzled stare of wide brown eyes. Ann rose and went to the bed. She smiled, and found herself speaking as one would speak to a little girl—gently and slowly. "My name is Ann. And I know your name is Carol. I'm staying with you while your husband has a bite of supper".

"Oh, yes—" The girl's brows wrinkled— feathery, delicate brows, lightly golden without the dash of pencil that showed up in garish photographs. "Paul told me. Your car—"

"In the ditch", Ann finished for her.

Carol sighed. It was good not to have to use one's breath to talk. Her lips moved stiffly. "Don't go".

"I won't", said Ann. She sat down in Paul's chair. Carol's hand groped across the blanket, and somehow came to rest within Ann's warm grasp. This is unreal, thought Ann. She wondered what her sister would say—the Rivers were an undemonstrative lot, reserved and cold behind the high wall of impeccable breeding.

"I like you", Carol whispered. "Paul liked you, too".

"I'm glad", Ann said humbly.

"He doesn't like many people", Carol went on with effort. "He's funny that way. But when he does like a person, he likes them". Her voice trailed off. "The pain's coming again!" she cried. Her body bent upwards in an arc of agony. She screamed. Paul hurried in, his round face white, but his voice as brusque as ever. "K.O., feller!"

"O.K.-" she gasped.

Ann found herself in the hall. For the first time in all her twenty-two years she was aware of being lonely. She made her way down into the kitchen, blinking the tears from her eyes. She was glad that the old lady could not see her. She said, with forced nonchalance, "Well, I think I'd better be trying to get back to my car. I might be able to flag some help if I wait long enough".

The old lady shook her head. "The storm is too bad. It is getting worse, even".

"But you have enough on your hands tonight without taking a stranger in—"

"Already you are not a stranger", said Mrs. Freund. "You can sleep in one of the cabins. Paul kept a fire in it all day for Rosalinda. You will not mind Rosalinda being with you. There is no place for her in the house now, with the baby coming".

Ann's lips set. Rosalinda. A sister perhaps? Or some plump actress friend of Carol's? She had a swift vision of a voluminous lace camisole, and corset strings trailing over the back of a chair. She was about to say, "Look here, I have to know a person a very long time before I'd consider sharing a room with them—and I've never known anybody that long". But Mrs. Freund thrust a bundle of blankets into her arms, and it had the effect of something being thrust into her mouth stopping her tongue.

"It is the first cabin on the left", Mrs. Freund instructed. "Paul left a light on the porch".

Ann stumbled out into the darkness. The wind almost bowled her over, and sleet cut into her skin like flying pebbles. It was all she could do to accomplish the short distance to the blinking electric bulb beckoning her through the gale. She bent her head and started to make a dash for it only to become rooted to the ground in a panic of fear such as she had never before experienced. Dogs! A pack of dogs, an army of dogs—barking, snarling, growling at her very shoulder.

Ordinarily she wasn't afraid of any animal from a mouse to a snake, but the pitch blackness, in the middle of a storm, with your arms stuffed with blankets, was no place to make a hero of yourself.

A window in the house raised, and Paul's sharp whistle sounded. The dogs immediately subsided except for a few low mutterings.

"Don't mind them", he shouted. "They're all in kennels!"

"Thanks", Ann called back drily.

She scraped her feet on the porch of the cottage. With both arms about the bulky bundle, she knocked on the door with difficulty, her hat tilting over one ear and a bit of fluff from the blanket making her sneeze.

There was no response. Rosalinda was either sleeping or had not yet come in. Perhaps, Ann thought as she pushed open the door, Rosalinda will be stuck somewhere, and I'll have the room to myself tonight. Dear Lord, if You kindly see to that for me, I'll do something for You some day. She meant it, without flippancy.

She pushed the door to behind her, and led by the wavering light from the porch, deposited her burden on one of the two iron bedsteads. There was a slight whimpering in the far corner of the room. Ann froze. Rosalinda was either a lady of liquor, or the village idiot. Definitely, she must be one or the other to be sitting in the corner of a dark room on a night like this.

Ann wanted to sing out jauntily, "Come out, come out wherever you are!" but all she could manage was a croak that was meant to sound like "Hello".

She waited. There was only silence to her friendly overture, and then the soft resumption of the whimpering, as if Rosalinda were crying to herself.

You're in for a a pleasant night, Miss Rivers, Ann assured herself. Rosalinda is not only tight, but she has a weeping jag to boot.

"I'm going to put up the light", she warned her unseen roommate politely. It took a certain amount of exploring before her hand connected with a switch near the door. She snapped it, trying to be nonchalant.

The room blazed with light, and at the same instant there was a sharp ejaculation of surprise and protest from a low divan at the far corner. Ann stared. Then she started to laugh. . . .

Rosalinda, recumbent upon the soft mattress, stretched the full length of it with dignity and a deep sense of possession, was guiltless of lace camisole or trailing corset strings. Rosalinda was a mammoth ,darkly-brindled Dane.

"It—it is Rosalinda, is it not?" Ann essayed on a wave of doubt.

Yes, it was Rosalinda. At the mention of her name the dog pointed her ears, and looked toward Ann with broad twitching nostrils. Then, deciding that the intruder was not objectionable, she gave a low whine of acceptance and cradled her great head once more between her paws.

Ann melted into sheer emotionalism. She'd always been a fool when it came to a dog, and the bigger the dog, the bigger the fool. "You great ninny, you!" she whispered, crowding down beside Rosalinda, and putting her arms around the magnificent neck. "Move over, can't you?"

Rosalinda moved reluctantly, and with some misgiving. This was her sofa, and from past experience she knew that when you gave people an inch, they were likely to take a divan. However, Ann's lap proved a pleasant enough pillow, and Rosalinda resettled herself with a gusty sigh of satisfaction.

Ann surveyed her companion. Rosalinda was doubtlessly a fine pet, but she didn't look like much in the way of Great Dane. Ann had been brought up with a Great Dane and she remembered that it was a breed that went all to conformation—lithe, massive, clean-cut lines, and vibrant springs of action. In later years, her father had fancied setters, and she had been raised with never less than a half a dozen or so about the place. She prided herself on knowing dogflesh. Rosalinda was of the pet class—a little old and much too fat—obviously a lady who cared a great deal about her creature comforts. Rosalinda might well run to lace camisoles and trailing corset strings in some future incarnation!

Ann wondered how a luxury breed (a Great Dane was no joke to feed) had come to be part of the modest household of the Freunds. Were there, perhaps, more Great Danes in the kennels outside? There were two kinds of dog people: those who raised them and those who collected them—but she couldn't imagine in which category the owners of the Tru-Frend Tourist Cottages could possibly fall. Maybe, she said to herself, this is all part of a dream, like Alice in Wonderland. She half expected Rosalinda to turn into a pig within her arms—

Rosalinda remained a dog, but her head became a ton of lead. Ann lifted it and gingerly moved her leg which had fallen asleep. Rosalinda gave a low woof of resentment.

"If you think", Ann said, "that I'm going to sit up all night holding your head, you're mightily mistaken". And Ann crossed the room to her bed.

Rosalinda, however, was already deep in dreams. Her feet worked rhythmically ,and she snuffed her jowls like a horse.

"I'm afraid you're going to snore a lot, my girl", Ann remarked dubiously, as she struggled through the tent-like proportions of the generous flannel nightgown which old Mrs. Freund had slipped in with the blankets. "But go ahead and even have your nightmares. I'm going to have a few myself". She opened the window, turned off the light, and jumped into bed. "I bet I have bigger and better ones!" she called out into the darkness.

Rosalinda answered with a long drawn-out sigh.

"And please remember the sofa's your bed, and this is mine! No poaching. I know your kind from way back!"

Rosalinda didn't poach, but she was certainly noisy Ann decided, as she lay listening to the miscellany of sounds which issued from the corner of the room. Rosalinda held a veritable symposium with herself. She went through a whole repertory of sounds from bass to contralto, with innumerable variations and nuances. She played herself like an organ, tentatively essaying one stop and then another, and finally going into subtle combinations of stops, while her footwork on the treadles was magnificent. Ann covered her head with the sheet. It did no good. Now there were rustlings and scratchings, and long rippling arpeggios, as a mammoth paw drew along the rippled material of the sofa cover.

After half an hour of this, Ann's nerves were ragged. "Wake up and come out of it!" she implored hoarsely. "I'm going crazy!" Silence. "Intermission". Ann concluded. "She's getting up steam for the next performance."

The next performance began shortly, like a concert orchestra tuning up. Now a wind, now a string, now a few tentative notes from the drums. Ann had the sense that she would only have to tap a baton to have the piece commence.

It commenced, however, without benefit of baton—a deep sonorous bassoon note, a thin flute-like note, and then bassoon and flute together in close harmony. Ann sat bolt upright in bed. Two such sounds could not have come at one, and the same time from one and the same throat. She listened attentively. The close harmony came again. Ann's mouth hung open. It was against nature. It would take two dogs to make that noise, and one of them couldn't be a Great Dane the size of Rosalinda. She reached out and switched on the table light.

She blinked and rubbed her eyes and blinked again. Then she was half way across the room, putting on Paul's coat and slamming down the window on the way.

"Oh, my goodness!" she gasped. "You poor darling, why didn't you say so! And me calling you fat and lazy!"

Rosalinda raised her head and nuzzled the puppy forward for Ann's inspection and approval.

"Oh my, can I touch it?"

It was damp, but almost dry—and silky and small, like a chipmunk. Its eyes were tight shut and its head wavered about exploring an inch or two this way and that. Ann sat back on her heels. "Oh, this is incredibly wonderful!" she whispered in awe.

"SYNTONA HAS BEEN A GREAT HELP TO ME I FEEL YEARS YOUNGER"

"Relieved Stomach Disorders, Rheumatic Pain; Nerves are Relaxed, and I Sleep Sound at Night."

MRS. NELLIE GAYMER

Mrs. Nellie Gaymer, 26 Erie St., St. Thomas Ontario, is glad to pass her experience along to others, because she knows what it has meant to her to get relief from long standing stomach disorders, severe rheumatic pain, nervousness and disturbed sleep. It will pay every man or woman suffering in a similar manner to read carefully her inspiring message.

"I suffered with stomach disorders, constipation and sluggish kidneys for almost 12 years," said Mrs. Gaymer.

"I used to be terribly distressed with gas, bloating and sour acid risings after my meals. I was subject to spells of heartburn between meals and a feeling like there was a lump in my throat. Sometimes I got dizzy spells and sick headache. Then rheumatic pains set in my arms, limbs and joints. I developed a nagging dull pain across my back. My kidneys were acting too freely, and frequently disturbed my sleep at night. I became extremely nervous and worried over my condition.

"After taking many different things without benefit, I decided to try Syntona, and I can truthfully say nothing has ever done so much for me. It relieved the troubles with my stomach so that I enjoy my meals once more. I am now free from rheumatic pain and backache and I do not have to get up during the night. Also my nerves are calmed down and my sleep is more restful than it has been in years. Syntona has been a great help to me and I feel years younger."

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville at DOLAN THE DRUGGIST.

President To Open Drive Saturday

Washington, Sept. 21 — (AP) — President Roosevelt, back from his Quebec conference with Prime Minister Churchill, began work today on the campaign speech he will deliver Saturday night before the International Teamsters Union (AFL).

It will be his first avowed campaign talk in his drive for a fourth term and will be broadcast on all radio networks.

To permit uninterrupted labor on the speech, the President ordered that his appointments for the day be kept at a minimum.

Compulsory Training And Higher Pay For British Army Proposed

London, Sept. 21—(CP)—Britain is drafting a program for a peacetime army, navy and air force, providing for one year's compulsory military training at the age of 18 and higher pay for the services to make them more attractive, it was learned last night.

General pay increases are expected to be announced at the end of the European war, under a "length-of-service" provision with the possibility of extra allotments for soldiers serving in the Far East.

Considerable criticism has been voiced in the press here on the British pay scale, many contending that it has resulted in a reluctance of British soldiers to fraternize with Dominion and American troops, who receive more.

More Than 320 U-Boats Identified As Definitely Lost

London, Sept. 21 —(CP)— The 1943-1944 edition of Janes fighting ships contains the identity of more than 320 U-boats definitely lost to the Germans ranging from U-1 to the U-1059.

It was pointed out that this does not mean Germany has ever had over 1,000 U-boats. In some quarters it is believed the identification numbers were deliberately boosted in the hope of scaring the Allies.

Some of the sunken U-boats were supply vessels of 1,600 tons but most of the bag were of the 740 or 517-ton type. Nearly 200 U-boats were destroyed in 1943 alone.

CANADIANS CROSS INTO HOLLAND SKIRTING CANAL

Infantry is Clearing Out Last German Posts Outside Boulogne

IN LAST STAGE

By WILLIAM STEWART
(CP War Correspondent)

With the 1st Canadian Army, Sept. 21 — (CP Cable)—Canadian infantry and armored forces have skirted the eastern end of the Leopold Canal and crossed the Netherlands frontier while infantry engaged in the Battle of Boulogne, is cleaning out the last German positions north and south of the town.

The Canadian entry into the Netherlands followed advance elements of Lt.-Gen. Crerar's Polish troops across the Hulst canal between Hulst and Axel, to Terneuzen on the Schelde Estuary. Hulst and Axel are respectively 15 and 22 miles west of Antwerp.

Canadians operating to the west of the Poles passed through the town of Philippine about two miles from the Estuary.

At Boulogne, Ontario, Maritime and French-speaking troops fighting their way through remaining German concrete positions, have taken 6,000 prisoners, but are meeting strong resistance from Germans still holding out.

Over 300 Sorties

The weather yesterday permitted tactical air force planes supporting the Canadians to fly more than 300 sorties against German positions at Boulogne, Calais and Dunkirk, while heavy bombers struck at concrete works protecting the approaches to Calais.

The Battle of Boulogne is in its final stages and Canadian infantry are so deep into remaining chains of German concrete positions that attack by air is rendered difficult.

Maritime infantry now well south of Boulogne were rooting Germans out of their defences around Mount Etienne while Ontario infantry who have swept across the Liane river and Boulogne's port now are fighting around Outreau, just south of the town, and Le Portel which overlooks the sea and dominates the port entrance.

Nazi Defenders Disorganized

Possibly 1,000 or more Germans still are fighting in the flank positions of Boulogne's perimeter defence belt, but they probably are disorganized, with some groups manning concrete positions carrying out individually orders to hold out as long as possible.

There still is stubborn resistance around Wimereux, two miles north of Boulogne, where Maritimers also are operating.

North of Boulogne two pocketed garrisons in positions guarding Cap Gris Nez continue to hold out with a total of about 700 men.

The Canadian forces which fought their way around the eastern branch of the Leopold canal and through Phillipine have by-passed enemy positions defended by fanatical paratroops.

$200 FINE LEVIED

Kitchener, Sept. 21 —(CP)— Gilbert Brohman of Kitchener was fined $200 and costs in police court here yesterday on a charge of having a voucher purporting to be an order for butter, which actually was an order for tea and coffee. Brohman received 113½ pounds of butter when he handed in the altered voucher to a creamery.

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE

Toronto, Sept. 21—(CP)— Small index gains were showing at noon today for the mining groups and the western oils and the industrials were steady on the whole.

Mackenzie was a feature of the Gold group, changing hands in volume at a gain of 12 cents to 1.74. Lake Dufault, San Antonio and Upper Canada were other stronger golds while moderate declines came through for Giant Yellowknife, Frobisher, Bear, Beattie, Aunor, Little Long Lac, Cochenour Willians and O'Brien.

Noranda, Steep Rock and Pend Oreille were weaker base metal issues. And Hudson Bay and Labrador were higher.

Food issues ruled higher and miscellaneous industrials were down. Other groups showed steadiness. Home, Anglo-Canadian, East Crest and British-Dominion were stronger western oils.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

New York, Sept. 21 — (AP) — Mild bidding continued to prop selected issues in today's stock market although many leaders stumbled over light selling.

Prices were well mixed at the opening and the direction was obscure near the fourth hour. Dealings were sluggish throughout.

Among better performers were U. S. Rubber, Santa Fe, Woolworth, Montgomery Ward, Du Pont, Kennecott and General Electric. Intermittent losers included U. S. Steel, Chrysler, Goodrich, N. Y. Central, Douglas Aircraft, United Aircraft, Allied Chemical and Consolidated Edison. Canadian issues were quiet, although C.P.R. dropped 1/8 and Lake Shore eased 3/8.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Toronto, Sept. 21 —(CP)— Cattle trade was very dull on the livestock market here up to mid-session today with no sales of any account on killers. A few stockers sold steady at $6-$9.

The few calves offered were steady at $12-$15 cwt.

Lambs were steady at $12.50-$13 for good ewes and wethers. Bucks were $11.50-$12 and a few medium quality Western lambs $10-$12.

Sheep were steady at $1-$4.

Hogs were 15 cents cwt. below yesterday's top at $17.85 for Grade A dressed. Sows were $13.25 dressed.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Marketing Service were: Cattle 20, calves 30, hogs 180, sheep and lambs 200, unsold from yesterday were 1,400 head of cattle.

HABIT FATHERS INDUSTRY

Huns Dismantling Factories on West Side of Rhine

By DON WHITEHEAD
(AP War Correspondent)

In Germany, Sept. 21 —(AP)— The Germans have begun dismantling factories west of the Rhine and are shipping the machinery to eastern Germany to prevent its falling into the hands of Allied troops.

American forces, meanwhile, held firmly onto their breaches in the Siegfried line against continued counter-attacks.

Forward observers in the Aachen area saw the Germans dismantling a factory and loading the machinery on a train and trucks. They immediately called for air and artillery missions to blast the transport.

In Soleberg the Americans still fought house to house, cleaning out stubborn resistance. The Germans had made every house a strongpoint but the town was almost cleared as American troops reached high ground on its eastern side.

HOGS

Toronto, Sept. 21 —(CP)— Prices were unchanged at bacon-hog markets reporting early today. Dressedweight: Grade A delivered: Hamilton $17.50; Hull $17.40; Barrie $17.65; Stratford, to farmers $17.50, to truckers $17.65; Brantford $17.35.

"Guy That Got Hit" Shows Scar as Proof

Fresno, Calif., Sept. 21 (AP) — Antonio Ferreira, not familiar with court proceedings, sat interestedly through a hit-run case yesterday.

Three witnesses identified him as driver of the automobile involved. the Judge ordered Ferreira to jail, and the police started him toward the cells.

At that point Ferreira protested: "Wait a minute—I'm the guy that got hit."

He jerked up his trouser leg and showed the scar to prove it.

Red-faced court attaches found that the accused motorist in the case had not been notified of the hearing date.

DROPPED ON WARSAW

London, Sept. 21 (CP-Reuter) — The German D.N.B. agency today said Polish commando paratroops have been dropped on Warsaw by a "large formation of Anglo-American bombers."

The agency claimed that all the paratroops were dropped in full daylight and were shot up while still floating to earth.

64 Rockets Poured By Typhoons Into Fort Merxem

London, Sept. 21 — (CP—Waves of Allied planes crossed the Channel today and the German radio said bombers were again over Western Germany.

Smoke still rolled up from Calais, German-held port opposite Dover, where R.A.F. heavy bombers late yesterday struck with up to 4,500 tons of bombs in a 2½-hour attack. Then rocket-firing Typhoons roared above the streets, blasting gun positions and concrete fortifications.

While these blows were in progress the France-based U. S. 9th Air Force sent Marauders against German railways feeding the Siegfried Line. They concentrated on the Trier freight yards, which were packed with enemy troops and supplies.

Six formations of American medium bombers participated in the attack without loss. The crews said many hits were observed among cars, tracks and buildings of the junction which serves the gateway to the Moselle Corridor.

Typhoons slugged 64 deadly rockets into Fort Merxem, last German stronghold in Antwerp. The target was two long buildings inside centuries-old fortress walls sheltering an estimated 2,000 German troops. Since the capture of Antwerp this pocketed enemy force had stubbornly resisted all attempts to dislodge it and has been shelling the city nightly.

APPLE TREES IN BLOOM

London, Ont., Sept. 21 —(CP)— For the second time this year apple trees at the city's sewage disposal plant have burst into bloom. William Bird, in charge at the plant, said the continued warm weather as London went into the first day of autumn—Sept. 21—must have something to do with it.

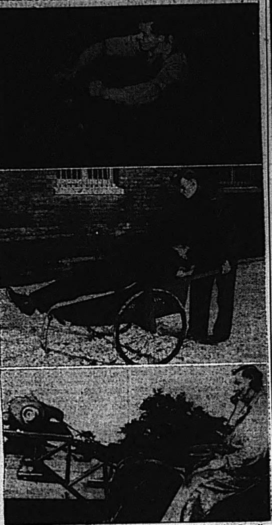
ARMY SUGGESTION BOX PRODUCED THESE IDEAS



Shown here are two pieces of equipment developed by the Canadian army from ideas submitted by soldiers through the Suggestion Box. At top and centre is pictured a Buoyant Cart. Designed to overcome the difficulty of loading equipment from ramp of a landing craft not yet in contact with dry land, the cart can be paddled (as top) or used on land as an improvised conveyance (centre) for moving equipment or stretcher cases. It can carry 250 pounds, is made of moulded plywood with detachable bicycle wheels. The handles become oars when the cart is used on water. Below is a machine designed for laying cable at high speed to help get telephone and telegraph communication under way quickly. It is mounted on a vehicle and can spew out cable for considerable distances. This too was developed from a Canadian soldier's idea.

Enemy Resistance On Pelelieu Island Most Bitter

Pearl Harbor, Sept. 21 (AP)—American invasion of the Palaus has cost the Japanese the small island of Angaur, most of Peleliu and 7,645 lives, but Admiral Nimitz reported last night that "the enemy resistance is bitter" on rocky and rugged Peleliu.

The announcement came after a communique told of the virtual conquest of Angaur, where only mopping-up action remained.

A new airfield was reported started on Angaur. The invasions of Peleliu and Morotai, in the Molucca islands west of New Guinea, provided ready-made airstrips for the Allied forces. Small planes were reported already using the Peleliu field, and the Motoral field, 300 miles south of the Philippines, presumably has been put into shape.

Battle at Marino Ridge.

A mile behind the farthest point of the Canadian advance a large enemy force still was waging a desperate battle on San Marino ridge.

Tactical air operations were hampered yesterday by poor weather, although some close-support targets were hit in the battle area. Heavy bombers raided objectives in Hungary and Czechoslovakia. The M. A. A. F. flew about 1,400 sorties, losing seven planes.

H. M. S. Aurora during the night of Sept. 18-19 gave Candia Harbor on German-held Crete another bombardment, it was announced.

American troops of the 5th Army, meanwhile, beginning their drive down the northern slopes of the last mountain barrier guarding the plains of Northern Italy, drove the Germans off the heights of Monte Montale, Monte Acuto, Monte Frena and Barco. They were 25 miles northeast of Florence and only two miles southeast of Fiernzuola, which is a junction of roads extending northward through the remaining German defences.

Fight Way Around Town.

They also fought their way toward the key town of Santa Lucia, part of the Futa Pass defences of the Gothic Line.

In the Ligurian coastal sector 5th Army troops approached the outskirts of Pietrasantan 10 miles north northwest of Pisa, in a steady advance which reached the foothills at the western extremity of the northern Apennines.

The 5th Army's British forces took Valdicrioto and other hill masses on the right of the American line of advance.

To meet the threatened breakthrough toward Bologna the enemy continued to shift troops into the centre of the Gothic Line from the west coast sector.

SOLDIER'S IDEA

This training device grew out of a suggestion box idea and is used to train soldiers in handling deadly enemy mines. It is a replica of a German "S" mine but when a soldier touches it instead of being killed or mangled the jack-in-the box bogey simply gives him a quick scare—and a grim reminder of what would happen if the mine was actually lethal.

BRITISH BREAK THRU BARRIER NEAR ARNHEM
REDS CAPTURE ESTONIAN NAVAL BASE OF TALLINN

Reach South Bank Of Rhine R. Branch Opposite City

Germans Cut 'Relief Road' From Eindhoven to Nijmegen

By JAMES M. LONG
(AP War Correspondent)

London, Sept. 23 — (AP)—British armor, bolstered by American parachute troops, slashed through a six-mile German barrier of blood and steel to the southern bank of the Rhine branch opposite Arnhem today, and roared out with artillery support for an isolated British airborne division holding on grimly north of the river.

But 25 to 30 miles south, German armor cut the "relief road" from Eindhoven to Nijmegen last night, and a swirling, see-saw battle raged along the route up which the British 2nd Army had pushed.

The break-through, slicing to the Rhine south of Arnhem, was made in a six-mile drive by one of Britain's finest tank regiments supported by U. S. airborne troops fighting as infantry.

It already had linked up with another airborne force dropped as reinforcements just two days ago south of the upper arm of the Rhine.

The drive vastly eased a situation which last night was described as critical.

Could Open Road

Juncture of the British ground drive and the sky soldiers over the river would open the Ruhr road to Berlin, but it was not disclosed who now holds the strategic Arnhem bridge. Fierce German attacks beat upon the pocketed British.

One German counter-blow cut the Eindhoven-Nijmegen road near Veghel, and the outcome of a pitched battle there was not yet known.

The enemy command was hurling every bit of fanatical S. S. fighting power it had in the north into attempts both to break the British 2nd Army supply stream across Holland, and to hold Lt.-Gen. Dempsey's armor away from the sky troops in the Arnhem foothold.

Germans fought and died in their tracks by the hundreds. Even now the road from Nijmegen, 10 miles north to Elst south of Arnhem was not entirely free from counter-attack.

9,000 Prisoners Taken.

Today's communique confirmed German resistance at Boulogne had ceased with the Canadian capture of Le Portal two miles to the southwest.

Canadian forces also took Wimereux, 2 1-2 miles north of the great channel port, and now have rounded more than 9,000 prisoners including garrison commander Lt.-Gen. Heim.

The all-out siege of Boulogne had lasted six days. A dispatch last night from Canadian Press War Correspondent William Stewart said defences there were the toughest encountered by the Canadians since their action on the Caen front in July and early August.

Three American armies were fighting heavily against Germans making a backs-to-the-Rhine stand. Nazi resistance was ferocious and desperate.

U.S. 1st army men nonetheless captured the town of Stolberg six miles beyond Aachen after a bitter house-to-house struggle and mopped up little villages nearby. They were unable to advance farther east toward the Rhine city of Cologne, 28 miles from the most advanced elements.

The American 3rd army smashed one German counter-assault five miles south of Metz, and one of the biggest armored battles of the invasion thundered into its fifth day on the Lorraine plain between Nancy and Strasbourg, its outcome yet untold.

Strengthen Positions.

Seventh army men meanwhile strengthened positions east of Epinal, midway between Nancy and Belfort, wedged closer to the highway town of Remiremont farther south, and held its crossings of the narrow upper Moselle. Melisy 15 miles north of Belfort guarding a pass to Germany was captured.

Along the Riviera, 7th Army units captured the resort town of Menton, at the Italian border.

The airborne pocket in the Arnhem area rejected a German demand to surrender. The last word from the heavily-beset force there came in a radio message late last night from its commander:

"Morale is high. We will hold out. . ."

Industrial Arnhem was itself a battleground, and it was not known how much of the actual town the airborne soldiers held after fighting since Sunday through flaming days and sleepless nights. Weather hampered reinforcement.

No Confirmation.

Paris radio said without confirmation that Arnhem had been captured by these soldiers landed from planes and gliders. Berlin termed Arnhem a smouldering ghost town. Lyons radio said without confirmation the Germans had abandoned Arnhem.

On either side of Eindhoven, 45 miles to the south, British forces gained a mile or so, widening the base of their supply and reinforcement wedge to the north.

The Germans asserted the battle in Holland "will determine the fate of the whole western front".

Along the coastal flank Canadians wiped out the last German positions south of the Leopold Canal, boxing Nazi remnants into a thin strip along the Schelde Estuary between Zeebrugge and Terneuzen.

Clearing weather today promised hope of renewed aid to the British at Arnhem.

The last direct dispatch from this isolated division was written at 5 p.m. yesterday (noon, E.D.T.)

8000 WORKERS PLEDGED TO WORK ON DAY WAR ENDS WITH HUNS.

Spokane, Wash., Sept. 23 (AP) — Eight thousand civilian workers of the Spokane Air Service Command have signed a pledge to remain on the job the day Germany collapses. The workers adopted a slogan: "The war will end in Tokyo—not Berlin."

SOLDIER LOSES SOUVENIR

Malden, Mass., Sept. 23 (AP) — First a Japanese machine-gun was captured by an American marine sergeant and today it was captured by the Malden police. The sergeant—home on furlough—took his father to the rear of a cemetery to show how the weapon worked. The roar brought a swarm of police. After explanations the sergeant lost his souvenir.

Perth Regiment and Western Tanks Fight Hours With Nazi Paratroops

By DOUG HOW
Canadian Press War Correspondent

With the Canadians on the Adriatic Front, Sept. 23 (CP)—For six hours the German paratroopers counter-attacked the Perth Regiment and the western tanks dug in on point 204. Tankmen shot them off their Shermans. Infantrymen fought with rifles, grenades and machine-guns.

The Perths were ordered to make a slight withdrawal to allow an artillery concentration to be brought down on the enemy beating at this force which had broken through his Gothic Line and now was mounting the slope behind it.

After dawn they retook the positions and found Pte. H. E. Detler of Niagara Falls, Ont. Cpl. Roy Martin of Kitchener, Ont., had to shake him to get him awake. A mortar bomb had caved in part of his slit trench. Paratroopers had dug within a few feet of him. The fight raged with intensity for hours. And Detler slept through it all . . .

L. Cpl. Abraham Rochlin, Montreal, guided a company under Capt. W. J. (Sammy) Ridge, Millbrook, Ont., in its capture of the feature point 111, pointed out machine-gun and sniper positions and mine locations . . .

Pte. C. J. Mills, Gilbert Plains, Man., and Pte. Lorne Malcho, Stratford, Ont., did excellent work in evacuating wounded. One man was killed by a shell while accompanying Capt. Ridge on an inspection of platoon positions on the point 204 feature . . .

When his platoon was having difficulties getting forward, Lieut. Bill Hider, Stratford, jumped up, shouted encouragement and beckoned them on. Their advance continued . . .

When a company under Maj. H. A. Snelgrove, St. Marys, Ont., first crossed the Foglia river the afternoon of Aug. 30 in an attempt to breach the Gothic Line positions, the forward platoon under Lieut. A. W. B. Robertson, Toronto, was pinned down for two hours and was finally pulled back with the rest of the company to positions near the river. Capt. Ridge's company with a troop of eastern tanks made the attack under cover of early darkness . . .

From houses and fields a few miles back of the forward companies, the Perths' quartermasters and cooks prepared and delivered at least two hot meals and a haversack luncheon a day to the fighting troops even at the height of battle. Two cooks prepared the food for each company, then jeep drivers and the company quartermasters took it forward.

The Regimental Quartermaster Sergeant is C. T. Carter of Stratford, and the Company Q. M.'s are J. N. Grainger, Paris, Ont., George Tethers, Galt, W. J. Hall, Belleville, Hugh Gould, Waterford, Ont., V. Salt, Stratford, and Frank Billings, St. Marys.

GIGANTIC TASK TO FINISH WAR BY END OF YEAR

Gains During Last Three Weeks Have Been Small and Won At High Cost

HITLER IS OBEYED

With the U. S. 3rd Army in France, Sept. 23—(AP)—More and more it is becoming clear that the Allies have a gigantic task ahead of them if they are to finish the war this year.

The mad flight of the Germans and the sweeping gains of the Allies of the last summer have halted at the German border. There is no hiding the fact that for the last two or three weeks the gains have been small and won at high cost.

German soldiers know the war is lost but they have been convinced by Hitler that they will be wiped out anyway and that they might as well go down fighting in the hope of making the Allies willing to compromise.
